Press opinion is overwhelmingly on the side of Canada, both in connection with United States congressional demands for an interview with Gouzenko and on reports of a "smear" against External Affairs Minister Pearson.

Although editorial comment as such has been limited, British sentiment has been made plain in front-page stories referring to "Republican spite" and stressing that the Canadian mood, as the Manchester Guardian puts it, now "has grown more anti-American than most Canadians can remember."

CONCEALED SATISFACTION

Beneath the partisan tone of British writing — "including the right-wing Daily Mail's injunction to Senator Joseph McCarthy to "lay off"—can be sensed a sort of concealed satisfaction in the way Canada is handling the situation. It is as though a respected and earnest youngster were standing up quietly and firmly to the generous-hearted, but sometimes impulsive, older brother of a family in which Britain still instinctively regards herself as the matriarch.

Thus The News Chronicle, Liberal, comments that the Canadians, "whose political institutions and practices have stayed closer to those of Britain, find themselves reacting according to an instinct which dollars and drug stores have done little to change."

Partly responsible for British bias against American tactics is the universal dislike expressed here for McCarthy, who has been built up into a symbol of certain less desirable American characteristics.

Lawyers' Request For Room Left Over For New Council

COBOURG (ENS)—Committee reports wound up the November session of Northumberland and Durham counties council. The session was very routine in character with little to highlight it. Demands of the Northumberland and Durham Bar association that more adequate accommodation be provided for lawyers, witnesses and women jurors was left to the January session at which time a committee will be appointed to investigate.

The road and bridge committee recommended that no action be taken by the counties council on the resolution from Simcoe county regarding a 65 percent subsidy on roads. The request from Murray township asking that part of a township road be taken over by the counties, was referred to next year's council.

BYLAWS FOR SCHOOLS

Following were the recommendations of the finance committee report:

Recommendations that bylaws be prepared for issue of debentures for high school construction at Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Brighton. The amounts involved are $1,040,000 for Durham High School District (Port Hope and Bowmanville), Cobourg, $175,000 and Brighton, $515,000. The committee recommended that Miss McMahon's salary (clerk in road office) be increased $200 per year and the same increase to the counties clerk and treasurer. Earlier this year the council cut the Salvation Army grant from $500 to $250. At the session just concluded, the finance committee restored the grant to the original figure.

The legislative and bylaws committee recommended that no action be taken on the resolution from Lanark county regarding the dog tax for sheep losses. The committee endorsed a resolution from Simcoe county to reduce the holding to a minimum of two-fifths of an acre under the Veterans Land Act. The committee recommended that no action be taken at the present time in regard to creating farm ponds as a conservation measure.

In order to make sure that the counties do not pay the upkeep of people in the counties home who can pay their own way, the Board of Management made the following recommendation:

"We would recommend that council pass a resolution at this session authorizing an investigation into the financial status of every person being admitted to the counties home and if they are found capable of assuming their own financial responsibilities, that there be a charge of $60 a month allotted, and if there be any residents now in the Counties Home, who, after investigation, are found to be capable of paying $60 a month, that this charge be put into effect from the passing of this resolution."

Men Teachers Hear About Superannuation

The Public School male teachers of Peterborough, Lindsay, Lakefield, Haliburton and surrounding districts held their fall meeting in Prince of Wales School on Friday, with the president of District 5, James Bruns, as chairman. The outstanding feature of the meeting was the informative address by Alex Fleming, of Kitchener, on "What Does Superannuation Do For Me?"

The Ontario Public School male teachers are represented by Mr. Fleming on the superannuation commission. It was pointed out that a full pension is only obtained after 40 years of teaching or after 35 years at the age of 62. The teacher pays 6 per cent of his salary towards this pension. Jack Nichols thanked the speaker and the meeting closed with refreshments.

French Planes Attack Reds For 18th Day

HANOI, Indo-China (AP) — French fighter and bomber planes today attacked Communist-led Vietminh offensive preparations north and northwest of Hanoi for the 18th straight day.

The air squadrons blasted at the Vietminh highway over which supplies are brought from Communist China, and at troop concentrations outside the rim of the Red river delta.

An army spokesman reported French-Vietnamese troops killed 42 Vietminh and captured 79 in continuing mop-up actions inside the delta area.

Independence Promised To Puerto Rico

By TOM HODGE

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) President Eisenhower has promised to move for complete Puerto Rican independence any time the legislature of that Caribbean American dependency asks for it.

The offer was announced to the United States delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, speaking during debate on proposed measures to determine when a dependent territory becomes self-governing.

The island, taken by the U. S. during the Spanish-American War of 1898, was recently given self-governing status as a commonwealth associated with the U. S. Some UN delegates have contended that this status is meaningless and that in reality Puerto Rico is still a dependent territory.

This viewpoint lost out in the assembly, however, when the 60-country group adopted a resolution declaring the island no longer comes within the meaning of the term "non-self-governing territory" as defined by the UN charter. The vote was 26-16, with 18 abstaining.

ATROCITY DEBATE MONDAY

Lodge is slated to touch off the much-heralded Korean atrocity debate when the assembly resumes Monday, with demands that the body condemn the Red torture killings in strongest terms.

UN sources say he will introduce a biting resolution—co-sponsored by Britain, France, Turkey and Australia—voicing the assembly's "grave concern" over the killings and warning against repetition of such "inhumane" acts.

Informed sources predict that the Soviet bloc, which bitterly fought placing the item on the assembly agenda, will come up with charges that South Koreans committed some atrocities of their own.

30,000 Miles of Goodwill for Canada

NORTH AND SOUTH of the Equator . . . on both sides of the Atlantic . . . in half a dozen different languages . . . the Seagram Collection of Paintings of Canadian Cities is making front page news for Canada.

Spanning three great continents, the International Tour of the Seagram Collection is telling Canada's story of achievement as it never has been told before—interpreting our country to the peoples of other lands in the graphic idiom of a language always and universally understood.

And everywhere this airborne art gallery has touched down—for a brilliant formal preview and a one-to-two week public showing—the response has surpassed the most optimistic hopes held by The House of Seagram when it commissioned the painting of fifty-two portraits of Canadian cities by distinguished Canadian artists and planned to send the canvases on their 30,000-mile goodwill flight.

Hundreds of columns of newspaper comment and pictures, scores of radio and television broadcasts, newsreel films and animated public and private discussions all testify to rapidly mounting interest in Canada and friendly receptiveness towards all things Canadian. Already more than 60,000 persons have studied the paintings and carried home brochures reproducing the paintings of the twenty-two Canadian cities in full colour.

More important, these new foreign friends have carried away vivid personal impressions of Canada as a great and growing country — a land of tremendous natural and industrial resources and remarkable human resourcefulness.

The progressive machinery was a revelation to view, and Del Spencer, operator of the projector, was thanked.

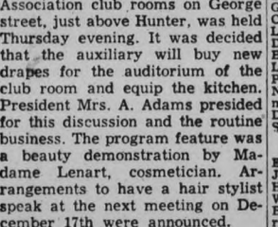
How To Select The "Right" Coat

Coat-hunting time is here. Since you're seen in a coat perhaps half of your walking hours as long as chilly weather lasts, it's a crucial purchase from a beauty angle. These shopping tips may help you:



1. If you wear a suit under a coat wear one while trying the coat on. (If the weather's too warm to wear a suit while shopping, have the salesgirl let you borrow a suit for this purpose from the store's stock.)

2. Do you want the coat for country or city wear? Tweed, plaids, checks and stripes are for country, while flannel, broadcloth, doeskin, cashmere, wool Cheviot, fleece, boucle and velour are city fabrics.

3. Black, brown, navy, gray and beige are your basic colors. There are very few women into whose wardrobes red, green or gold coats fit well. Have a list of your wardrobe colors with you and consider them all when choosing a coat color.

4. Fur trim adds to the expense of a coat and limits its usefulness. Such a coat is generally too dressy for all-day wear but not dressy enough for evening.

5. If you're under 35, ask yourself if the coat is sophisticated enough for you. If you're over 35, beware of a matronly coat and be sure it has an air of youth about it.

LOANS

If you're in a spot financially right now, with expenses like fuel, clothes for the children, and plans for the holidays ahead, think this over. You can borrow $50 to $1000 promptly on your own signature at HFC. One-day service. Then take up to 24 months to repay on a plan that you select yourself.

N.B. Plant Begins Making Finest Hosiery Gauge

SUSSEX, N.B. (CP) — A New Brunswick plant, started as an experiment less than a year ago, plans to produce 75-gauge nylon hosiery, the finest gauge ever attempted in North America.

The Sussex branch of Sheer Silk Hosiery Mills Ltd., is operated by 65 New Brunswickers—63 men and two women. At this time last year they knew no more about knitting than Prairie farmers know about squid-jigging.

Only a handful of instructors were available when production began but the local employees caught on quickly and within a few weeks operations were in full swing.

Company president Dallas Grant says the people of New Brunswick are "very adaptable for this type of work" and have made real strides in the operation.

GO TO QUEBEC

Although the stockings are knitted in Sussex, they have to be refined at the parent company in Sherbrooke, Que., before being placed on the market.

Mr. Grant says that the only drawback in production of extremely fine gauge stockings, is that they require a finer denier nylon than is made on this side of the Atlantic.

Until such time as it is produced here, he said, the company will import 10-denier yarn from Italy.

He did not say what effect this would have on the price of the new hosiery.

Institute Honors Girls 'Club Leader

COLDSPRINGS (ENS). — The Coldsprings Women's Institute met on Wednesday afternoon in the hall, with an attendance of 26. The president, Mrs. Allan Linton, was in the chair.

Mrs. M. Dines, treasurer of catering at the plowing match, reported receipts of $2,589.52. Ten dollars was voted the TB fund.

It was decided to hold a New Year dance, the date to be set by the committee in charge. A euchre on December 11 was announced, and a dance in January, with Jim Fisher of Toronto, champion caller, and his dance band furnishing the music.

The sum of $15 was voted the club leaders to aid them in their work.

Mrs. W. Maughan read an address to Mrs. Hilton Minifie, a past Girls' Club leader, and Mrs. McKinley presented her with a cup and saucer.

The roll-call was "A Handy Super Dish to Leave for the Men."

Mrs. Harold West was convener of the following program: A reading by Eileen Gibson; Miss Edith Hoskin, historical research convener, gave an address on the life of the people in Coldsprings 100 years ago; and Mrs. Jack Gordon gave a reading.

Mrs. West moved a vote of thanks to all those assisting with the program. Lunch was served.

Policemen's Dance Very Successful

A splendid crowd, of approximately 400, attended the dance held by the Peterborough Police Athletic Association on Friday evening at Club Aragon. President Don Erskine was chairman of the program which included draws for door prizes and numerous dance prizes, all donated by local merchants.

The gifts to winners included a silver tea service, an oil painting, certificate for a complete hair styling, a sports shirt, a ladies' compact, a men's travelling set, two turkeys, two dresser lamps, and, last but by no means least, a load of wood.

City policemen are quite delighted with the success of this event. Typical of their service to the public at all times, they plan to use the proceeds in sponsoring a minor hockey team, to give a Christmas party for some elderly folk, and other such ways.

Child's Sewing Machine Sews Real Chain Stitches

The ideal gift for a child, especially at Christmas, is one with the thrill and exctiement of a toy, but one which bestows the satisfaction which comes from having something useful.

If you can find a gift which teaches a new skill, you present the child with the most precious gift of all. You open up a whole new, magic world of "making things."

For a little girl, home-making is the most enchanting world she knows, and two of the most interesting things in it are her dolly's clothes and her own.

There is a genuine child's sewing machine with a little red, green or grey plaid carrying case which can be clamped on a child's table so that daughter may stitch away happily while mother is sewing. It is possible to do shirring and ruffles on it, and what dolly's dress is complete without a shirred skirt with rows and rows of dainty frills?

With it comes a child's sewing book, which explains, with simple drawings, and in terms a child can understand, how to sew a plain seam, how to make the ruffles and do shirring and pleats, and even shows how to make a little skirt or apron. It shows how to do simple quilting without any attachment. This kind of quilting is just the thing for doll or baby blankets or pot holders. Mothers will be surprised to find they can use this machine for quick mending and repair work. Also, it is an easy item to pop into the luggage when the family goes on holidays for stitching up tears in the children's play clothes.

Christmas Mailing Early Means Less Hectic Days

When you stroll down to your corner mailbox to send off your greeting cards, you'll set into motion one of the most complicated pieces of machinery in existence: Canada's postal service.

By the time a single one of your cards has reached its destination, a total of 17 postal employes will have handled it. The load of Christmas cards and gift packages is handled right along with the regular and commercial mail. These are some very good reasons for the post office slogan: "Mail early for Christmas."

If the Christmas cards you take to the corner are correctly addressed and each stamped with a three-cent stamp, they'll get there. You can even pen a personal message inside, something you can't do at the two-cent rate.

FIRST MAN

The first man to get your Christmas card is the collector who takes it from the red box and stuffs it into a sack for the trip to the main office. Another man loads the sacks onto a handtruck that goes to the sorting room. Here the envelopes are all faced the same way for cancellation.

During facing process, all air mail, special delivery, tiny envelopes, slugs and nixies are sorted out. A slug is a fat letter that won't go through the cancelling machine. And a nixie is a letter that has been returned unclaimed.

The canceller is the fourth man to handle your card. After cancellation, a fifth man takes the cards to another section for sorting by local, province, major cities and foreign countries. Then the mail gets a second sorting.

OUT-OF-TOWN HANDLING

Out-of-town letters are bundled by destination and tossed into pouches. These pouches are closed and locked at train time. A mail truck driver trundles the pouches onto the dock for the trip to the station. They're loaded here, unloaded at the destination and moved into the out-of-town post office. Here, they get primary and secondary distribution, pouching and delivering to stations.

Finally, the carrier comes trundling up the street with his load of Merry Yuletide greetings and a pair of aching feet. He, as number 17 in this chain, unloads your card and it's up to you to do with it what you will. Maybe you like to decorate the mantelpiece or tack cards on the wall. He doesn't care. But he and a lot of other postal employees would like to get down on their collective knees and beg you to "mail early."

A schedule of mailing dates for overseas, United States, other provinces and local delivery is displayed in the Post Office. Check it!

Carol Music And Words Decoration In Trinity Hall

A very large crowd attended the Christmas tea and bazaar of the Trinity United Church Women's Association on Friday afternoon, and were made welcome by the president Mrs. H. A. Mitchell and the minister's wife, Mrs. Gordon S. Maxwell, assisted by other members.

One of the loveliest things about this tea was the decoration of the Trinity Hall itself by Mrs. Harold Gray. She has written music and words of a favorite Christmas carol on white banners, placing them around the balcony so they can be read easily from the floor. Heavenly Christmas angels are holding each banner and also an open book which centres the stage background.

The banners will be left in the hall throughout the Christmas season so that the children too may enjoy it.

Two tea tables were identically arranged with Christmas centrepieces of silvered branches tipped with colored balls and red and white candles in silver candalabra.

Tea pourers were Mrs. N. D. Seaton, Mrs. F. C. Patterson, Mrs. R. J. Allen, Mrs. Allan Wade, Mrs. F. W. Horton, Mrs. Donald Whyte, Mrs. J. Nicholls, Mrs. E. H. Wellman, Mrs. Reuben McDonald and Mrs. C. H. Marrs.

One bazaar table featured shortbreads and was convened by Mrs. Fanjoy. Another offered mincemeat, Christmas cake and Christmas puddings, and was convened by Mrs. J. E. Weir with her group members assisting.

The group of which Mrs. C. H. Harris is leader had the home baking table, Mrs. W. A. Davern's group had aprons and quilts. The novelty table which received donations from all groups was in charge of Mrs. B. V. Moore.

CGIT girls had their own table of bazaar articles with, Miss Joan Krogh in charge. The Saturday Boys' Club, which is under leadership of Mr. Doug Vaisey, had a booth where they sold articles they have made.

Miss E. Morrow and Mrs. C. S. Cummer were taking tickets at either door of the hall.

No Runs From Small Snags With New Hosiery

Treated carelessly, hosiery could easily become a woman's most expensive clothing item. Along with tight garters, our delicate stockings must face these enemies: chipped nails, roughened skin and chair splinters.

Most of us have learned to adjust our garters properly, to check our nails before donning or washing our hose, to pat a bit of cream on our heels after bathing and to be certain that our chairs are smooth.

Of course, we occasionally forget to be careful. And then there is nothing we can do about the furniture we encounter in offices and public conveyances. So it would seem that snags will always be with us.

However, a well-known hosiery company claims it has taken a giant step toward eliminating snags. Its new hosiery features a construction that locks the other stitches in place when a single thread is snagged. Thus, the run is arrested before it can get a start.

Although a run will still result should you pull more than one thread, the company says that research shows one-thread snags cause most runs.

According to this firm, you can get dozens of one-thread snags without worrying about a single run. When you get a snag, you need only to hold the thread away from the stocking and snip it.

Available in 12 denier, the new stockings are said to have a well-designed heel and foot reinforcement.

THIS CAREERIST (above) is about to snip a one-thread snag, an action unheard of until now. The construction of her new stockings is said to lock the other stitches when a single thread is snagged.

Horticulturalists Buy New Books

OMEMEE (ENS) — Omemee and district Horticultural Society met with W. D. Wilson presiding.

In view of a favorable balance reported by the treasurer, it was decided to spend $15 on horticultural books for the library.

As has been the custom, no meeting will be held in December. It was agreed to hold the next meeting January 21, when gladiolus bulbs are to be distributed. The secretary was requested, if possible, to optain the film, "Krilium Soil Conditions."

The Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt gave a talk on fertilizers. The uses of the different chemicals in commercial fertilizers were explaned, along with the best methods of introducing them to different types of soil. Plants, if fed entirely on chemicals, will finally break down. There is no substitute for nature's way of fertilizing soil. Straw and animal manure were recommended with chemical fertilizers. It is the part of commercial fertilizers to act as a stimulant.

The uses of old root and wood ashes were discussed. Soot, which is a fertilizer and a disinfectant, as a top dressing should be well worked in. Wood ashes should be used only as a light dressing and are more beneficial to light soil. In heavy soil, they are apt to cause scab in potatoes. They do not assist drainage.

Mr. Zufelt showed a film on humming birds and one on garden insects.

3 cups quick biscuit mix

Pre-cook the onions, potatoes and carrots.

Blend ¼ cup ketchup and 1 teaspoon salt into ground beef. Form into balls, roll in flour and brown in butter, turning until half-cooked.

In a separate pan, make your sauce by combining the mustard, horseradish, Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup ketchup, bay leaf and milk or broth. Arrange the cooked vegetables and meat balls in a casserole. Cover with sauce.

In a separate mixing bowl, combine 3 cups biscuit mix with one 8-oz. cup water. Stir with a circular motion until dough is uniform. Turn out onto a floured board; knead lightly for 20 counts. Rolls out into a sheet ½" thick and cut with a floured 2" cutter. Place over mixture in casserole and bake in a 450 deg. oven for 15-20 minutes. Serves 6.

Two films, "From One Cell" and "To Save These Lives" will be shown. Dr. Agnes Moffat, practising physician in Peterborough, is to speak about cancer.

It is felt that educating the public to recognize early symptoms of cancer and to seek treatment at once is the best defence against the disease at present.

DOROTHY DIX

Teen-Age Lad's Weaknesses

DEAR MISS DIX: We are worried about our 15-year-old son. He's a good student, and his conduct never causes us a moment's concern. He doesn't run around, keeps good hours, and what friends he has are fine boys. However, he does seem to be interested in anything important. At home, he does nothing but listen to hillbilly radio programs or records adn reads cheap comics. He makes no plans for the future, yet, since he is such a fine student, we want to send him to a good university. He just isn't interested in discussing the idea. I'm afraid that my constant nagging is losing his love and respect for me.

A WORRIED FATHER.

NATURAL AGE PATTERN

ANSWER: Your son is following a fairly natural pattern for his age, and I think you can thank God for his fine qualities of scholarship, his discrimination in choosing friends, and the fact that he is content with his home life. Youngsters go through phases such as listening to special types of music and certain reading that invariably shock and disturb their parents. However, these phases pass. An intelligent boy will soon tire of cheap music and books. Your son's preference in music, however, is scarcely reprehensible. Hillbilly muisc is as close as we come to a folklore in song, and is receiving the serious interest of many music lovers.

I suggest for your further consideration, a fine book by Dr. J. R. Gallagher, "Understaniding Your Son's Adolescence." You will find much that is enlightening, and some surprising information therein. The complexity of young males hasn't received nearly the attention it deserves—there are, for instance, many more books written about teen-age girls than teen-age boys. A better understanding of your son will banish most of the doubts you have about him.

DEAR MISS DIX: My daughter is starting to go steady with a nice boy. I would like to know when is the proper time to meet the boy's parents, and which family makes the first move?

MRS. W. A.

ANSWER: This is a problem more of friendliness and commonsense than of strict etiquette. You don't make a formality of a daughter's "going steady." Why not ask the boy's people in for tea or supper some Sunday evening? I'm sure they are as anxious to know you as you are to meet them. The parents of young people are always interested in knowing the families of their children's friends.

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going steady with a fellow for six months. A while back he suggested getting engaged at Christmas, but that's the last I heard of the idea. I don't know whether to take him at his word or forget he said anything aoout it.

ERNESTINE.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Did you agree when he made the suggestion? Perhaps he's planning on giving you a ring as a surprise Christmas present. Better wait and see.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: The boy I go with is five years older than I am, and we get along fine except for one thing. He tells me that when we're in a group, at a party or at some other gathering, I talk and laugh too much.

SHEILA.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Perhaps you are a bit too boisterous; or perhaps your friend is too serious and can't enter into the spirit of fun as you do. If you are incompatible on this important point, better watch your step.

CHINA Highlights by TOM O'CONNOR

HOW MUCH BONE ACTUALLY IS IN BONE CHINA?

Well now that is a moot question. You can buy a 59c English Bone China cup and saucer, but you can also buy one for $59.00. The amount of bone ash content does not make the difference, but it helps a little. So we have anywhere from 10 to 50% bone ash content in china.

If a factory puts any quantity of bone into the china clay it's a bone china dish and we North Americans, particularly above the 49th parallel, are the most discriminating shoppers of advertised lines in all the world. So, our old Mother England is not so slow as some of our good neighbors think.

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: .. you do so much good with your kindly hints and philosophy..I've tried your "Jiffy Cake".. the one that is made in 1 hour and beaten with an egg beater. It turned out so successfully that I can honestly say it is the first cake that has been really a joy to see and eat. I've attempted others before, but since the jiffy one all have not been exactly as one sees in print. I only have a rangette but still the temperature is good and steady. Lately I've bought a tube pan. Wondered if a 2-layer cake recipe could be baked in the tubepan. It is a 10-inch one...can most general cakes be beaten with an egg-beater? the Jiffy one was so light and my other ones so heavy and porous it makes me wonder... I would appreciate a mayonnaise recipe...one that is similar to the creamy type in the store...I have been given access to a large quantity of turkey fat . . . I have tried to make pastry with it but it is always too crumbly and rich. Is there some way of hardening it? Can turkey fat be made into good shortening? Could you give me the proper proportions of fat I should use in basic recipes?...

Mrs. Arthur M.

ANSWER: The answer is "no" to your question re baking any 2-layer-cake recipe in a tube pan; also to your qquestion can most general cakes be beaten with an egg-beater?

Let us make haste slowly. You know how to makek a successful Jiffy Cake. You want to use your tube pan, and you want to beat your batter with an egg-beater. Try this

HOT MILK SPONGE CAKE

Sift cake flour and measure 1 cup. To the flour add 2 teaspoons baking powder and sift them together 3 times. In a bowl beat 3 eggs for 10 minutes until they are very light and nearly white. Begin adding 1 cup sugar to the eggs, while beating constantly, taking at least another 5 minutes to add the sugar while you beat, so that none of it settles at the bottom of the bowl. Add 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Heat 6 tablespoons milk until it is scalding hot but not boiling. Sift 1-3 of the flour mixture over, add 1-3 of the milk and fold in; repeat until all flour and milk are added —but at this stage do a minimum of mixing, merely fold until flour is moistened and batter is smooth. Pour into ungreased tube pan. (If yours is a 10-incher this batter will be lost in it, but that will not affect the baking.) Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 minutes. Batter will shrink about 1-16 inch from sides of pan. Invert pan over cake hack to cool for 1 hour, then loosen cake at sides with knife and coax out with fingers. This batter may be baked in loaf or layer tins.

The mayonnaise recipes you mention is a trade secret. The following recipe is a reasonable facsimile.

CREAMY MAYONNAISE

In top of double boiler mix together 1-3 cup flour, 1 teaspoon each sugar, salt and dry mustard. Slowly stir in ¼ cup mild vinegar and ¾ cup boiling water and cook over boiling water, stirring until mixture thickens. Cook covered 5 minutes, stirring twice. Remove from heat and pour into cold bowl. Beat in with rotary beater 4 egg yolks thoroughly. Chill this 2 hours. Chill 1 cup salad oil 2 hours. Now begin to very slowly beat into the cooked mixture the salad oil, 1 teaspoon at a time, until all is used, being sure the oil is incorporated before you make another addition. Chill again, covered.. This may be made more creamy by the addition of a little heavy cream or whipped cream when you take some out of the jar to add to the salad.

In shortening packing plants beef fat (tallow) is used to harden shortening mixtures. It must be very pure and well rendered though. Try adding 1-3 lb. beef fat, carefully rendered (you can buy this from the butcher) to each 2-3 lb. turkey fat. Melt them over low heat together (preferably in double boiler), then pour into bowl and chill overnight. Use 1-3 part fat to each 1 cup unsifted flour in making pastry. Fat from fowl makes delicious biscuits and muffins, and of course the harder fat would not be needed in them, for you want them tender and crumbly.

Parents Guests Of Girl Guides

LAKEFIELD (ENS) —Ten members of the first company, Girl Guides, entertained their parents, friends and members of the group committee on Wednesday evening in Memorial Hall, and as a result earned their hostess badges.

The following girls, under the leadership of Captain Betty Jewell, won their badges, Karen Walker, Anne Witherstone, Athabelle Hendren, Margaret Richardson, Patty Jakins, Isobel Coons, Jennifer Last, Diane Peters and Iola Peters.

The girls served a delicious lunch which they had previously prepared. They must send out the inviations to the party, greet their guests as they arrive and bid them good-bye as they leave. They have also to be at least a second class guide before they are elibible to try for their hostess badges.

Reds Reject Latest Plan "Has No Merit"

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Allies today handed the Communists detailed plans for a Korean peace conference, but the Reds said they could see no merit in the proposal, and will unveil one of their own Monday.

Arthur H. Dean, special United States envoy, presented a 12-point formula which would allow non-belligerent nations with a direct interest in Korea to attend the conference as non-voting observers.

Russia would attend as a full member on the Communist side of the table, not as a neutral as the Reds demand.

ENDORSED PLAN

Dean said the 16 United Nations members which fought in Korea and South Korea's president Syngman Rhee have endorsed the plan.

The envoy also said Rhee promised him he would not resume hostilities while a peace conference was under way, and would cooperate fully at the conference.

The fiery South Korean president had said repeatedly he would order his American-trained divisions northward unless progress was made toward unifying Korea by late January.

Negotiations to set up the peace conference revert to full-scale plenary sessions Monday at the request of the Reds. The diplomats have met as two sub-committees since Nov. 16.

Dean suggested Friday that the peace conference itself be held in Geneva, Switzerland, "not less than 28 nor more than 42 days" after termination of the current preliminary talks.

The Reds called two recesses totalling 45 minutes to consider Dean's proposal.

15-Week Strike Ends Contract Approved

BATAVIA, N. Y. (AP)—A strike which lasted 15 weeks at the Massey-Harris Farm Equipment Co. ended here Friday night when 900 employees approved a new contract negotiated by company and union officials this week.

The new contract was approved by company and union officials this week.

The new contract was approved by 750 production workers and 150 office employees in locals 1831 and 3723 of the United Steel Workers Union (CIO).

Union spokesmen said the contract provides for hourly raises of 8½ cents for production workers, and monthly increases of $15 for men and $9 for women office workers. Present wage scales were not revealed.

South Korea, Chiang Stand Firmly United

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Nationalist China and South Korea today announced that they "stand firmly united" in the battle against communism, and called for a united Asiatic front strongly backed by the United States.

A joint statement issued during closed-door conferences here between Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and South Korea's President Syngman Rhee did not say flatly that a formal alliance had been agreed upon.

But the statement indicated clearly that the two bitter foes of communism have joined forces and hope their alliance will serve as a basis for a united front of democratic Pacific powers.

SEE ASIA AS KEY

Their joint statement expressed conviction that "victory over communism in Asia is the key to world peace and stability."

Rhee and Chiang affirmed that they would not fail "those stout-hearted anti-Communist prisoners of war in Korea who have so nobly placed liberty above all else."

And they voiced determination "to carry on the fight against Communist aggression until those of our brethren who have been enslaved are restored their liberty."

Churchill Limbers Up Baritone In School Stag Party Singsong

HARROW, England (Reuters)—Sir Winston Churchill, 79 on Monday, limbered up his lusty baritone Friday night to join 528 singing 'teen-aged boys in a "stag party."

It was the annual singsong of Harrow Public School, and "Old Boy" Churchill was cheered for minutes when he stepped on to the dais in the semi-circular speech room.

His deep voice boomed out with the students to the school's traditional songs.

Churchill, introduced as "Harrow's greatest son," told the boys that attending the singsong made him feel 14 years old again. He has sung with them every year since 1940.

During the singing, Churchill once or twice furtively removed his glasses to brush away a tear.

A special verse was sung in his honor. It went:

While in this fight to guard the right
Our country you defend, sir,
Here grim and gay we mean to stay
And stick it to the end, sir.

Tapping his foot to the music, the 'old boy" beamed his delight.

"GOOD OLD WINNIE"

After the songfest, Churchill went to the headmaster's house. The boys gathered outside, shouting "Good Old Winnie" and singing.

Sir Winston appeared at an upstairs window, acknowledging their cheers with his wartime "V" signs.

Then he left for home, to prepare for his 79th birthday party Monday and the forthcoming Bermuda conference.

Small Hope Held For Survival Of Missing Trio

EDMONTON (CP) — The sixth daylight search for a missing civilian plane was to begin today without hope for the survival of a paralytic polio victim aboard and only a slim possibility that his attending doctor and the pilot still are alive.

The light plane disappeared Sunday night on a projected mercy flight from Grande Prairie to Edmonton, a 275-mile non-stop trip through an advancing storm and icing conditions.

The only two clues to the whereabouts of the Cessna 180 have been abandoned. The latest came Friday when a civilian plane taking part in the search reported sighting the word "help" stamped into old snow about 85 miles north of Edmonton. The RCMP reported later it was the work of children.

IRON LUNG CASE

The polio patient was Lloyd Williams, 33, of Edmonton. Williams was to be taken to Edmonton for iron lung treatment. His attending physician on the flight was Dr. Don Wilson of Grande Prairie, and the pilot was 32-year-old Gordon McDonald of Edmonton.

A prominent doctor said that the only method of keeping Williams alive would have been through artificial respiration. If the other two occupants had lived, he said, they could only maintain the manual respiration "for a matter of hours."

Searching airplanes already have put in almost 650 hours of flying over the 20,000-square-mile search area of northwestern Alberta.

Missionary Tells Of Red's Cruelty

HONG KONG (AP)—A Canadian Roman Catholic missionary said today that his Chinese Communist jailers once tied a string to his nose and led him around like an animal in an attempt to make him confess he was a spy.

The priest, Rev. Antonio Bonin, 52, of Lanoraie, Que., reached Hong Kong this week after the Communists finally expelled him from North China.

A number of other Canadian Roman Catholic missionaries have arrived here in recent days.

Father Bonin said the string-in-nose episode occurred at Pachungtze, Manchuria, where he had been imprisoned in February, 1948. He said he was clubbed and spat on so many times he often felt like a beast, but refused to "confess."

For three months in 1952 he was denied water to wash his hands and face, with the result that he now is suffering from skin complaints. Although in weakened condition, he is recovering his health.

Otonabee Reeve Retires Two Contesting Vacancy

A two-way battle for the reeveship of Otonabee township is looming after Dave McIntyre, 1953 deputy reeve, and Norman McConkey, former councillor, both indicated Friday afternoon that they would contest the office.

Reeve Dick Stewart, the incumbent for the last three years, was nominated but he said he would step down for "personal reasons" and to "make way for others".

Two were nominated for the deputy reeveship, vacated by Mr. McIntyre. William Chambers, a 1953 councillor, said he would run. The other nominee, Gavin Shearer, also a 1953 councillor, had left the Keene village town hall by the time it was his turn to speak; but he had indicated to friends that he would not stand for any office this year.

The deadline for qualifications, so a nominee can take part in the Dec. 7 election, is 9 p.m. Saturday.

12 NOMINATED

Twelve were nominated for the three council seats. And an election here seems likely also.

Nominated were A. G. Henwood, Erle Huston, Joseph Slattery, Steve Elmhirst, William Chambers, Dick Stewart, Gavin Shearer, Elmer Oliver, Stewart Nelson, F. D. Whalen, David Kempt, and R. E. Stanley-Jones.

Mr. Slattery, who has served one year on council, said he would be a candidate. So did Mr. Elmhirst and Mr. Stanley-Jones. Mr. Huston said he was "pretty sure" he would run; and Messrs. Nelson and Whalen wouldn't commit themselves.

On the school board, three are to be elected, and there were six nominees. Allan Davis, Thomas Hope, Harry Stewart, Percy Wilson, Thomas J. Gall, and Harry Reid.

Mr. Stewart, absent from the meeting, gave his written consent; and Messrs. Davis, Hope and Wilson all indicated they would be candidates. Mr. Reid did not speak but he indicated to friends that he would not stand for office.

Altogether four men were nominated for reeve: Mr. Stewart, who is retiring after three years as reeve (once in that time county warden), twice as deputy reeve, and twice as councillor; Peter J. Mather, also a former councillor, reeve and county warden, who said he wouldn't let his name stand; Mr. McIntyre, a veteran of 10 years in office (seven years as councillor, three as deputy reeve) who said he would run for reeve; and Mr. McConkey a former councillor and previously unsuccessful candidate for reeve who was absent but gave permission for his name to stand.

REVIEWS STEWARDSHIP

Reeve Stewart gave a detailed account of the township's affairs over the past year and he also touched on the highlights in county council.

Of most interest to the 100 or so ratepayers who crowded into the village hall, now undergoing renovations, was Reeve Stewart's statement that he would step down from the reeveship this year.

"I've had it three years and during that time have had excellent cooperation from the township and county councils," he said. "It is with mixed feelings that I say I will not be a candidate this year . . . The knowledge I've gained in the last seven years is something that couldn't be gained in a university."

Even though he wouldn't be reeve in 1954 he said he thought it would be safe to "promise" that "the sixth line will be partially paved next year." And the part that isn't paved will be built up so it will be in shape for paving later on.

He singled out four Otonabee matters for special comment:

1. The $3,000 cut in the roads appropriation by the department of highways. That cut the construction program on roads to a minimum. At the same time, he said, the township roads are as good or better than those of any other township in the county.

2. Redecoration of the village hall. When he entered council seven years ago there was talk of redecorating the dingy hall, but nothing was done until this year. Painting, decorating and fixing up the building, generally, will run to as much as $1,000. He paid tribute to the Lions Club and the Women's Institute for their work in improving the hall.

3. Annexation by the city of the Downers' Corners area for the McGinness plant and other industries. This was a quick decision, said Reeve Stewart. He said that Otonabee could never have made it an industrial site because a water line had to be laid to the area, and Otonabee didn't have $70,000 to invest in this.

4. Fire protection. Some time ago he personally made a survey of what Otonabee ratepayers wanted. Sixty per cent of the people on small holdings wanted fire protection; only 10 per cent of the farm residents.

"So, after all, this is a democracy," said Reeve Stewart. "We are the servants of the people and we didn't feel like going out and spending the people's money when the majority didn't want it."

"Education: "If we are going to raise children we will have to educate them." Costs are mounting—not just in Otonabee but all over North America.

Taxes: "Higher next year than this year, and higher the year after, and so on."

During the past year Otonabee had the lowest hospitalization and relief bill of any municipality in the district. He credited this, not just to luck, but also to the careful scrutiny given all cases by James McCarthy, township clerk and relief officer, and to the care taken by township home owners when they rented their homes to newcomers.

Deputy Reeve McIntyre dealt mainly with county problems. He said that the county's property committee of which he was chairman this year, was faced with heavy expenditures because of department of reform institution directives.

Adequate locks on the cells had to be changed after the escape of the Boyd gang from Toronto, causing departmental jitters. The cost was more than $1,000. Now some heavy cement work is required to ensure that the jail is escape proof.

Because of dissatisfaction with the whole setup a county committee is going to interview the minister, said Deputy Reeve McIntyre.

Mr. Slattery, who is running again for council, told of the work of the building committee in renovating the Keene hall. To date the bill is an estimated $914.

Mr. Mather said it was the 21st consecutive Otonabee nomination meeting he had attended. He congratulated the reeve and council on their year's work and said that the renovations on the hall were well conceived.

Wellington Sutton reported on behalf of the school board. He estimated that in the next five years classroom space will have to be found for 500 Otonabee children.

Township Clerk McCarthy brought the welcome news that a suplus of $1,367 is anticipated on the general account at the end of the year. There was a $1,285 deficit in 1952.

Transportation Moves Backed By Chevrier

OTTAWA (CP)—Two cabinet decisions affecting transportation have been defended in Parliament by Transport Minister Chevrier.

He said Friday during the throne speech debate that the government took the only possible step in refusing to subsidize a Canadian-flag deep sea fleet and in rejecting for the present an application by Canadian Pacific Airlines to operate a scheduled air cargo service between Vancouver and Toronto-Montreal.

The decision against subsidies should cause no surprise, Mr. Chevrier said. It was a continuation of the policy announced in 1949 by Prime Minister St. Laurent that a Canadian-flag deep sea fleet could be justified only as an economic operation and as a security measure.

However, it cost 25 per cent more to operate Canadian-flag vessels than similar ships under British registry. It also cost 50 per cent more to build them in Canadian yards.

REGISTRY CHANGED

When a recession developed about 1949 in ocean cargoes, 91 Canadian-owned ships were transferred to British registry. About 50 vessels were operating under the Canadian flag in October when the ship owners asked for subsidies.

Subsidies would cost $5,000,000 annually and another $200,000,00 would be needed to modernize the fleet, at least half of it from the government. Taxpayers would not tolerate that burden.

Britain had agreed that in an emergency the 91 Canadian-owned ships under British flag would be returned to Canadian registry.

CAUTION WISE

Referring to the air lines case, Mr. Chevrier recalled that in the United States one of three national air cargo carriers went bankrupt within two years of being licensed. The other two sought to merge and boost cargo rates by 25 per cent.

If that was the position in the U.S., it was wise for Canada to look carefully before granting an application such as that of CPA. The government had made it clear the decision was only for the time being and that it was not in the public interest to grant the application at this time.

CPA had filed proposed air cargo rates averaging 22½ cents a ton while those of the government-owned Trans-Canada Air Lines were 24 cents per ton mile for short trips, 19 for medium distance trips and 15 for long trips.

Troop Movement Completed In Germany

SOEST, [illegible] (CP)—The Canadian Army's largest peacetime troop movement was virtually completed Friday. The main incoming units are all here and the last big outgoing group sails for Canada tonight.

The next stage will be the arrival at Hamburg Dec. 2 of the first organized draft of dependents.

The movement to Germany was cleaned up Thursday night with the arrival in this 1,300-year-old town of the 2nd Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, fresh from Camp Shilo, Man. This brought the Canadian Army in Germany close to its full projected strength, except for a few small drafts still to come.

The artillery's mascot, an exceptionally low-slung dachshund, seeing for the first time the land which bred his ancestors, drew chuckles from the large crowd of German civilians who watched the regiment arrive.

Election May Be Necessary In Burleigh

Norman Wilson and Sydney McCauley were both nominated for reeve Friday afternoon at the annual Burleigh - Anstruther nomination meeting in Apsley town hall.

Unless Mr. McCauley refuses to stand for the reeveship, there will be an election and another nomination meeting for council. Only four men, including Mr. McCauley, were named for council; so if he runs for reeve, further nominations will be needed.

If Mr. McCauley runs for council instead, both reeve and councillors will be returned by acclamation.

Nominees will have till 9 o'clock tonight to qualify. Here is the slate as of late Friday:

NOMINATIONS

Reeve — Messrs. Wilson and McCauley (one to be elected).

Council—Mr. McCauley, Earl Trotter, Douglas Dunford, and Albert Bolton (four to be elected).

School trustee for the Burleigh-Anstruther and Chandos area school board—Donald Fowler and Vernal Young (one to be elected).

The four nominated for council were the same as in 1953. Mr. McCauley is a veteran councillor. Mr. Trotter has been in for three years, and Messrs. Bolton and Dunford have both been in for two years.

Mr. Wilson has been in municipal politics for 13 years. He spent four years on council and has completed his ninth term as reeve.

Only 15 people went to the Apsley hall for the annual nomination meeting and the ratepayers' meeting that followed.

MORE ABOUT—

Promised Attack

he said he had not been referring to Ald. H. T. Rehill's fire, water and light department. He referred to the conduct of the fire department as "perfect."

PERSONAL ATTACK

Ald. Syd Black, he said, had no department to be criticized during his first year on council, but, he added, "last year, he was the first one to knife me and he did the same thing this year. If he can tell me one thing he's done in two years sitting on council, I want to know."

In reply to Ald. A. B. Burrows' comment that council had treated him with "Christian forebearance," Ald. Graham described himself as a "reformed alcoholic" and referred to Ald. Burrows' parks department as "the rottenest department in the city today."

"We have a job going on about three blocks from here, costing about $4,000. If I'm elected mayor," said, "I want to see that bill."

He charged that the parks superintendent had bought a business in Lakefield for his son and then "when business got bad, he gave him a job in the parks department. Another son gets $1.50 an hour for carrying a little board while another man paints the parking stripes."

WHO PAYS FOR GRADING?

Another question Mr. Graham wanted answered was: "Who's paying for grading the CGE parking lot?"

Waving aloft a copy of Friday's Examiner, which showed a predicted surplus of more than $46,500 in the city's budget this year, Mr. Graham said: "Isn't it nice we have such a big surplus on nomination night? I wonder if it will be the same under the new assessment?"

He charged that there was "one man sitting on council who drew 2,000 loads of fill to his apartments on Clonsilla Ave . . . 140 loads in one day . . . and he hollered for more.

"I kicked against the sewer going down by Clonsilla Ave.," Mr. Graham added. "I don't know yet who paid for the private road; but I'm going to find out.

"I haven't told you people a tenth of what I know but I'd be libelled for the rest of my life if I told you the rest of it," he concluded.

BLACK ANSWERS CHARGES

Speaking immediately after Mr. Graham, Ald. Black admitted that during his first year on council he hadn't been chairman of any committee. "I don't think anyone could sit on council for one year and learn everything about his job," he said; but this year he was chairman of the legal and reception committee and a member of all but two of the other committees.

"I think this man's crazy," Ald. Black said his reference to Ald. Graham. "He's an alcoholic."

This remark brought a loud chorus of boos.

"He admitted it here tonight himself," Ald. Black protested. "Instead of being in hospital he's on council.

"I'm just a little bit peeved at that type of treatment," he said of Mr. Graham's references to him. Ald. Black was treated to a mixture of applause and boos as he sat down.

SPIKING INSINUATIONS

Ald. T. D. Miller said he had nothing against Mr. Graham but he was "grateful for the opportunity of spiking some of the insinuations Mr. Graham has been spreading around the city about our property on Clonsilla."

The "private" road Mr. Graham referred to, he said, was not a private road but was a city road on city property. It had cost $3,000 and was built under the Local Improvement Ace, with Ald. Miller paying 60 per cent and the city 40 per cent.

As for the sewer, a petition had been signed for its construction by the required number of property owners on Clonsilla Ave. "before I ever purchased the property."

"As for the matter of fill at three dollars a load, you can buy all the fill you want for a dollar a load."

Ald. Miller explained that every year when the paving program is started the engineer designates the places where he wants the fill to go. "After that they can dump it where they want," he said.

FILL TO BE DUMPED

He said the superintendent of Warren paving company had told him they had some fill from Monaghan Rd. to be dumped and he told him, "You can dump all the fill you want on my property. He added that the fill contained huge chunks of hard-top which wasn't the best type of fill for a housing development.

Ald. Miller said Miller Construction had taken a piece of swampland and produced living accommodation for 40 families on which at least $8,000 a year in taxes was being paid. People were living there who had moved into the city, adding to the welfare of the city as a whole.

He said he had served the citizens sincerely for six years, three years as chairman of the finance committee and two years on the board of governors of Civic Hospital. He described the members of city council as "the finest bunch of men I've ever worked with."

"I don't care how black I'm painted. I can justify every move I make. I have never been arrested. I have never been in jail," he concluded, as a murmur of protest arose from the crowd.

nominees took part in the controversy.

NEED MORE INDUSTRY

W. Gordon Powell charged that many citizens were alarmed at the city's failure to attract new industry.

"I wonder if we have pursued an all-out effort in this respect?" he asked. "I wonder if we have worked as well as we might have with the Chamber of Commerce in an aggressive effort to pull in new industries.?"

Mr. Powell named other centres which, since the end of the Second World War, had obtained new industry and wondered "if we have asked the men already in industry if they have any suggestions, such as industries making parts for their own."

He also urged immediate construction of the Memorial Centre and stressed the necessity for keeping the tax rate down.

The city was "far from a solution of the downtown parking problem," he maintained and said the city should be looking for inexpensive land for parking space. He suggested the land at the foot of Simcoe St. where the city dump was formedly located.

OUTLINES PLATFORM

George W. Carphin said the letters of his last name stood for the planks in his platform: C for civic economy and efficiency; A for alderman elected by the ward system; R for retrenchment, a curtailment of spending; P for Peterborough, first, last and all the time; H for health, construction of the Memorial Centre; I for industry and N for no favoritism whatsoever.

John C. Smith said the people of Peterborough were not asleep; they were ignorant of what was going on. Not one person had been able to tell him how much the mayor was paid.

"There is too big a gap between the people and city council," he charged. As a workingman, he would like to keep the people informed so they would not be accused of being asleep "when the big parcels of property are bought."

Glen Price said there was not a great deal of fault he could find with the present council but he was more concerned with what they had not done than with what they had done. He stressed the need for the Memorial Centre, a zoning bylaw and new industries.

TWO REASONS FOR RUNNING

He had two main reasons for running: He thought the southern section of the city should be represented on council and he was a member of organized labor. Not only that but he represented the working classes of the city.

Ald. P. J. Anglesey reminded the audience he had spent six years on council and stressed that he didn't represent any particular group and wasn't asking the support of any particular group.

The other labor candidate, Ald. William J. Triggs said that, according to popular opinion, organized labor was always demanding something but that night the labor candidate were offering themselves to serve the community.

eH said working people liked to think of themselves as the backbone of the community but they realized that all members of the community depended on one another.

"If I am elected, I shall act for all the people of Peterborough," he promised. "I never yet have tackled a job that I haven't put everything into it."

Ald. H. S. Longhurst said he had been surprised to be elected two years ago, and it had taken him two years to learn the job of council. He was not enthusiastic about running again this year but he had been talked into it and would be pleased to serve again.

TWO WOMEN CANDIDATES

One of the two women candidates for council, Mrs. Alene Holt said it was an unusual step for a woman to take. She had taken a long time to make up her mind but when she announced her intention of running, she was amazed at the number of people who had urged her to do so.

She pointed out that women were gaining prominence in politics and urged the re-election of Mrs. Rowell to the board of education.

"I'm entering this field on the definite understanding that I'm going to work like a man where physically possible but with the mind and thoughts of a woman," she concluded.

Stanley McBride said his prime interest was in trying to make Peterborough the best possible city to live in. "Anything I can do I will do," he promised.

The only other woman candidate for city council, Mrs. Edith Addyman said it was the third time she had tried for municipal office but her first attempt for a council seat.

"I had previously thought there was no room for a woman on council; but after to-night's incident I'm inclined to change my mind," she said, referring to the controversy raised by Norman Graham.

TAXES DISCOURAGING

She said that the re-assessment had raised the assessment on some of her property 400 per cent. She believed everyone should own his own home but taxes were discouraging younger people from becoming homeowners.

Years ago she had pleaded with Mayor Ovens not to sell the old bus barns for $12,000. She said the property could have been used for parking and now the city was paying $40,000 for property to be used for a parking lot.

"I think you need a woman for a good housekeeper on council," she urged.

Ald. J. A. Dewart, who has been on council for four years, reminded the audience that "it does take time before you become accustomed to the manner of conducting municipal business."

Apart from council, he is chairman of the civil defence committee and of the board of health. "It is an advantage to be sitting in council and being able to take the affairs of those two bodies directly to council," he maintained.

PERENNIAL CANDIDATE

Perennial candidate Fred T. Tuggey said the reason he had been asked to seek a seat on council was that people "thought they needed somebody to speak up."

He said the tax rate had risen from 33 mills in 1940 to 64½ this year. It put him in mind of a hungry man being offered a crumb. His $600 taxes had been reduced $2.24.

He said the auditor had estimated in 1949 that the tax rate should be 52 mills in 1953.

"Where's it going to end?" the fiery, fast-talking political veteran asked. "We talk about men getting homes. We talk about industries. What are we doing about it?

WOULD CHECK SPENDING

"We need a good scrutiny with regards the way money is being spent. This question lays with you. If you want your business scrutinized in a way you know what's going on, I'm your man.

"I see where council issued $20,000 in debentures; $40,000 of that is depriving people of houses," he said, referring to the purchase of property between King and Sherbrooke Sts. for a parking lot. "If private capital won't buy parking space, why should council turn people out on the streets?"

"I think they've gone parking meter crazy," he said, to a burst of applause. "With these new double meters people can't park in front of their own property."

Mr. Tuggey concluded with an apparent reference to the assessment notices. He had received his that day.

"Don't take tha Christmas card they sent you too seriously," he warned. "If you do, it won't be a happy Christmas; it'll be a gloomy one."

Marmora's Reeve Given Acclamation

MARMORA — (ENS) — Reeve Ritchie Wells, was given acclamation of the nomination meeting of Marmora village held in the town hall on Friday evening with E. C. Prentice, Village Clerk presiding.

But this did not preclude the possibility of an election since the name of Sam Davidson was added to that of the four retiring councillors as a nominee for a seat on the council. Nominations were received on behalf of W. D. Lavender, Carl Heath, John Reynolds and W. A. Sannon. Qualifications will be received up until 9.00 p.m. Saturday evening.

F. R. Wells the retiring hydro commissioner was nominated for return to office and the name of ex-Reeve Ralph E. Neal was also submitted. Acclamation was given the three retiring members of the Public School Board, namely Donald P. Marett, Thomas J. Bateman and Ray Wright.

At the close of the nominations a short speech making period ensued the most interesting report being that presented by Councillor William A. Shannon who touched on the report received from R. O. Anderson and Associates Limited on the cost of sewerage and waterworks system.

Reeve And Deputy Contests Certain In Belmont Twp.

HAVELOCK (ENS)—An election for reeve and deputy reeve seems assured in Belmont-Methuen township.

George Newton, deputy-reeve in 1953, is challenging Reeve William E. Griffith, veteran township politician, for the reeveship. And two of last year's three councillors—Gardiner Gawley and Robert Wrightley — are contesting the deputy-reeveship which was necessarily vacated by Mr. Newton in his major bid for office.

All four men have qualified.

The three vacancies on the Belmont-Methuen council, and the vacancies on the two school area boards, were all filled by acclamation.

45 YEARS IN POLITICS

Mr. Griffith has been in municipal politics for 45 years. His career began in 1908 when he was elected councillor. He remained as councillor for four years and then unsuccessfully contested the reeveship in 1912.

In 1915 Mr. Griffith was elected reeve and since then he has been in that office 12 times. He was warden in 1921.

His opponent, George Newton, was a councillor for 12 consecutive years and then when Belmont-Methuen got a deputy reeveship last year, Mr. Newton went in by acclamation.

He was a member of the county council's property committee in 1953.

Two 1953 councillors—Gardiner Gawley, with three years' experience on council, and Robert Wrightley, with seven years' experience—have moved up to battle it out for the office vacated by Mr. Newton.

Burrell Keating, who has been councillor for two years, is one of the three 1954 councillors in by acclamation. The other two are newcomers, Reuben Doan and W. G. Barrie.

Also in by acclamation are the three members of the two school boards.

Trustees in SS Area No. 1 are Earl Pollock, Reginald Barton and Earl Cook. Barton and Cook are new.

Trustees in SS Area No. 2 are Walter Vansteenburgh, Everett Toms and Earl Dafoe. Dafoe is the newcomer.

Three others were nominated for council—Walter Vansteenburgh and Messrs Gawley and Wrightley—but they declined.

The nomination was quiet and the attendance was only two-thirds of the usual figure.

The election will be Dec. 7.

Says Shot In Dark Accidental

Victim Suspected Of Burglary In Shop Basement

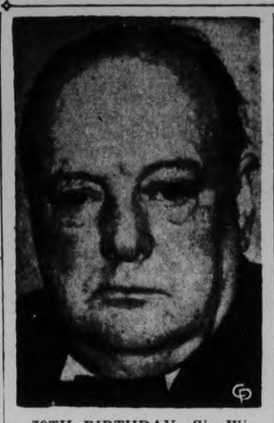
TORONTO (CP)—Constable G. E. Barclay today was charged with manslaughter in the death of a 14-year-old boy who was shot in the basement of a dental supply company's premises.

The constable was remanded a week on $1,000 bail.

The charge was laid following the slaying of Garfield Belfon on mid-town College street late Sunday night. Three alleged companions of the boy were remanded in court today on $1,000 bail each on charges of shopbreaking. They are George Marshall, Frank Fuss and Douglas Richarson, all 16, of Toronto.

Constable Barclay said the shooting of young Belfon through the neck was accidental.

Two boys were arrested Saturday night in the building, the S. S. White Dental Supply Company. Sunday night police checking the premises next door found a window of the White firm open and called another patrol car.



Police say Barclay went into the basement of the White building and searched amid large boxes and crates, some of them six feet high. He told senior police officials later he heard a rustling and shouted: "Come out of there. It's the police."

As he approached the crates, one of them apparently was pushed toward him, knocking him backward. He said that as he fell, his gun discharged. The Belfon boy, eldest son of a barber, is believed to have died immediately.

IN TOTAL DARKNESS

The basement was in total darkness at the time of the shooting, police said.

Mrs. Charles McKenna, wife of the general manager of the dental supply company, said she thought the youths were looking for dental gold stored in a safe in the building.

79TH BIRTHDAY—Sir Winston Churchill today is celebrating his 79th birthday prior to taking off for Bermuda for the Big Three Conference.

Churchill Enters 80th Year Works As Usual

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill reached his 79th birthday today, bearing on his bowed old shoulders the rising hopes of the British people for a lasting peace with Russia.

The grand old statesman arranged a day of business as usual.

He called a morning session of his cabinet and planned to spend many hours at his desk tying up the loose ends of government affairs before departing Tuesday night by plane for the Big Three meeting in Bermuda.

A family dinner party was arranged for tonight at No. 10 Downing Street, the prime minister's official residence, followed by a small reception for friends and government ministers.

SOLE CONCESSION

That was his sole concession to the passing of another milestone in his long and fabulous life.

"Some birthday, some man" was the jubilant banner headline on the Daily Express, owned by Churchill's old buddy in peace and war, Lord Beaverbrook.

"He sets forth into the 80th year of his life without thought of turning from his labor to enjoy the tranquility of old age," the independent Express said in an editorial. It continued:

Charges Soviet Controlled Atrocity Camps

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U.S. delegate to the United Nations, charged today that Soviet officers headed North Korean prison camp commands responsible for thousands of atrocity torture cases and deaths. He charged that world Communism consciously uses atrocities as a policy weapon against its foes. Lodge made the accusations in a speech prepared for delivery to the UN General Assembly as it launched a debate on the American demand that Red China and Communist North Korea be condemned for the atrocities.

He said the toll in Korea from Red mass murders, death marches and tortures now is estimated at nearly 38,000—almost 9,000 more than shown in documents distributed Saturday night to delegates.

An aide said the U. S. defence department authorized the new figure on the basis of studies since last June 30.

CONSCIOUS POLICY

Lodge said that these atrocities "were due to a conscious policy is strongly suggested by the following facts:

"The mass executions of Korean civilians—in some cases in the same groups with American and other prisoners of war—were done by authority of a purely political agency, the North Korean political security police.

VIOLENT HATRED

"Many of our prisoners were subjected immediately after capture to the usual Communist jargon of violent hatred and abuse, and in not a few cases were executed in cold blood shortly afterward.

"These atrocious killings were closely connected with the incessant political probing and manipulation of the very same prisoners in prisoner-of-war camps—both in Seoul early in the war and later, on a much larger scale, in the prison camps of North Korea.

"Nor can we ignore these facts:

"That the leading men of the North Korean regime and the North Korean army were for the most part Soviet citizens;

"That the North Korean political security police carried out many of the mass murders;

"That Soviet officers were at the top of the command structure over the prison camps in North Korea.

DEDICATION TO BRUTALITY

"These facts indicate a sort of common dedication to wholesale brutality which it is utterly repulsive to contemplate."

Lodge did not specifically document his charge of Russian command in the camps but in his conclusion he said that "these terrible acts were taken by an authority having an unhappily close connection with the Soviet Union, and were and are in conformity with actions tragically typical of so many absolutist systems throughout history."

His statement was one in a double-barrelled arraignment of

Say Gouzenko To Refuse U.S. Interview

TORONTO (CP) — The Telegram publishes today a copyrighted statement in which Igor Gounzeko, the former Russian code clerk whose disclosures sparked the 1946 Canadian spy trials, says he has decided not be interviewed by the spy-hunting internal security sub-committee of the United States Senate.

Two requests from the subcommittee to interview Gouzenko were forwarded recently to Ottawa through the U. S. state department. Last Wednesday, the House of Commons in Ottawa was told that such a meeting would be permitted, with some restrictions, by the Canadian government.

Gouzenko's statement today said:

"I have read the statement of Hon. Lester B. Pearson, (minister of external affairs) in Parliament regarding a proposed interview with United States officials. I noted the words, 'it is his (Gouzenko's) responsibility to determine the effect of any such discussions on the preservation of his new identity and consequently on his safety.'

WOULD PROTECT FAMILIES.

(Gouzenko now is a Canadian citizen, living in an Ontario village under an assumed name and with Royal Canadian Mounted Police protection.)

"It is clear therefore that the matter of the interview is now up to me and the choice before me is either the conversation with U. S. officials or the safety of my family and myself.

"I choose safety, not because to do otherwise would be foolish courage; in some cases, such as the defence of one's honor, even foolish courage is excusable; but because I consider the safety of

Whitby Boats Hunt Plane Near Oil Slick

TORONTO (CP) — Boats from Whitby, 29 miles east of here, today searched Lake Ontario near the scene of an oil slick which may provide a clue to the disappearance of a jet plane.

The vampire jet vanished Sunday on a training flight with its only occupant, Fo. Richard Russell, 20, of Toronto.

RCAF officials said heavy skies kept search planes on the ground today. However, more than a score are ready to resume the hunt for the plane and its pilot when skies clear. It is hoped the plane may have come down on shore.

EXAMINE OIL SLICK

Boat crews examined the oil slick near Whitby for signs of wreckage. The air force said it was not certain the slick came from the missing plane.

Mental Patients Cost 50 Million

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. J. B. M. Griffin of Toronto, general director of the Canadian Mental Health Association, said today the care of patients in mental hospitals costs Canada approximately $50,000,000 annually.

He made the statement in his report to a one-day annual meeting of the association's board of directors. Approximately 40 members of the board from all parts of Canada attended.

These, he said, are some of the problems facing Canada in the mental health field:

"1. Nearly four people out of every 1,000 citizens in Canada today are patients in mental hospitals and institutions.

"2. At least one per cent of our population is crippled by mental retardation and deficiency. Of this number about 10 per cent are in mental institutions.

Hold Korean Woman For $40,000,000 Fire

PUSAN (AP)—South Korean police said tonight they are holding a Korean housewife on charges that her "carelessness" caused Friday night's $40,000,000 Pusan fire—the worst in Korea's history.

The police would not say where they are holding the woman and refused to answer other queries.

A police spokesman said she is accused of leaving a small charcoal stove burning unattended when she left home. It burned down her house and high winds spread the blaze over one-sixth of Pusan, a city of more than 1,000,000 people.

The government also removed Pusan's provincial police chief because of the fire and also because of a recent successful guerrilla raid against a provincial police station.

Eden Says Russia Sincere

LONDON (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said today Britain looks forward to an early meeting of the Big Four foreign ministers and is confident the United States shares this hope. Eden told the House of Commons the Russian note of Nov. 26 means the Soviet government is prepared to meet with Britain, the United States and France "without conditions." Labor members pressed the foreign secretary on whether Washington shares his view or whether the U.S. state department had taken a "discouraging attitude." Eden replied: "I have naturally had communications from the United States and . . . I have every reason to believe that the answer I have just given will be endorsed by the United States government."

WANTS EARLY DATE

Eden expressed hope the meeting will be arranged at an early date.

Eden said he was still in consultation with the American and French governments on the subject and added:

"These exchanges are proceeding rapidly and satisfactorily. It is the hope of Her Majesty's government that it will now be possible to arrange a meeting of the four foreign ministers at an early date."

The Russian note of Nov. 26 expressed the Kremlin's willingness to take part in foreign ministers' talks with the three Western powers.

Presumably a reply to the latest Russian note will be drafted by Churchill, President Eisenhower and French Premier Laniel at their conference in Bermuda beginning Friday.

Racial Discrimination Row Aftermath Queen's Visit

HAMILTON (AP)—Bermuda's biggest public upheaval of the century raged today over alleged slights to the colored population during the visit of the Queen last week. The royal tour, intended to improve Commonwealth relations, instead brought to the surface long-buried resentments, although the Queen herself was the subject of the highest praise and devotion on all sides.

Focal point of the dispute is that no representative of the island's 64,000 colored people—two-thirds of the population—was invited to the dinner in Elizabeth's honor Tuesday night.

Questions have been asked in the island's Parliament. Hamilton newspapers are filled with the pros and cons of the question. E. T. Richards, MP, told the House of Assembly, "It is the biggest slip ever made in this century in this country."

OF NO PROMINENCE

A government supporter, J. E. Pearson, replied that if there had been a colored person of enough prominence, he would have been invited. There were colored people in attendance at the earlier garden party, where 800 of the island's elite assembled.

The Bermuda Recorder's weekend edition said in a front page editorial that the arrangements for the Queen's visit had turned it into "an ogre of racial discrimination such as no person could contemplate without a feeling of revulsion."

Ski Lift Bolts With Tourists

RENO, Nev. (AP)—A new 3,000-foot ski lift on windswept Slide mountain began to run away downhill Sunday night, then jammed, leaving 110 tourists dangling in bitter cold 10 to 40 feet above the ground.

They all got back safely, but not without plenty of trouble.

Two elderly persons adamantly refused to shinny down ropes thrown up over guide wires. They sat it out for 2½ hours until the lift was fixed.

Dozens of others were bruised and scratched while working their way down the rugged slopes, bare of snow.

Quick action by someone—no one knows who—saved scores from possible serious injury. As the lift, which runs from 8,100 feet to 9,600 feet, began to run away and gather speed, he jammed a 2 x 4 board into the gears. The lift stopped.

The double chair lift, advertised as the longest of its kind in the country, is part of a new $600,000 ski resort 15 miles southwest of Reno.

Learn To Evade Hook

College Education For Trout Two-Month Degree Course

ODEN, Mich. (AP)—With fishing getting to be more and more a science, a good trout needs a college education to keep off the hook.

And, at the state trout hatchery here, he can get it.

They've even hired a team of professional psychologists to staff the faculty. All a qualified trout has to do is pass a two-months course to get his degree.

Sounds screwy, but it works.

Object of the unique project is to teach hatchery trout, notoriously short-lived when released into streams, how to outwit the guy with a fishing pole and live longer.

A wild trout usually is a smart cookie. He's tough to catch. But a hatchery trout hasn't got sense enough to stay close to the bottom. He comes right up to the surface, looking for chow. He usually gets it—on the end of a hook.

Here at the hatchery, the trout learns to act more like his wild cousins. He is taught to feed on the bottom. His food is squirted through underwater chutes instead of scattered over the surface.

Hatchery undergraduates are taught not to come trustingly to the surface looking for a handout when somebody walks along the edge of the hatchery pond. They get a sharp little poke from an electric shocking device when they try it.

After it's all over, there's no blowout, caps or gowns for graduates. They're just tagged and dumped into lakes and streams where special regulations require fishermen to report every trout caught.

That's so the department of conservation will have a complete check on how the educated fish make out.

"The proof of the pudding will come next spring," says Joseph L. Bingham, a leading backer of the program for smarter fish. "If the educated trout show a better survival rate than the uneducated, we will have proved our point."

Drummond Collieries Resume Operations

WESTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The Drummond collieries resumed operations Sunday night and began hoisting coal today.

Back at their jobs were nearly 400 men, former employees of the Intercolonial Coal Company, which went out of business last month because of a shortage of markets.

Henry R. Thompson, New Glasgow auto dealer, bought the mine, the town's only industry.

The mine, bolstered by a 40,000-ton order from Canadian National Railways, is assured of staying in the black for at least another four months.

The mine was to have opened last week but was delayed because Thompson wanted written confirmation of the CNR order before reopening.

AWOL For 18 Months Given Fine Of $40

VANCOUVER (CP)—Airwoman Margaret Isobel Burton, 28, who surrendered to the RCAF recently after being absent for 18 months, Saturday was summarily tried, found guilty of being absent without leave and fined $40.

Wing Cmdr. D. C. S. Macdonald, commanding the RCAF Sea Island station, said he has recommended to Ottawa her release from the air force for unsatisfactory conduct. He said a decision from headquarters is expected early next week.

Airwoman Burton vanished from the RCAF station at Aylmer, Ont., April 15, 1952. All she has said so far is that she had been "all over the North American continent." She was arrested in Victoria a week ago.

Say Ho Offers Discuss Truce

PARIS (AP)—A reported offer by Communist rebel leader Ho Chi Minh to negotiate for an Indo-Chinese armistice set new fires burning today under the hard-pressed government of French premier Joseph Laniel.

Ho's purported statement, published Sunday in the Stockholm newspaper Expressen, touched off panicky and furious opposition among anti-Communist nationalist leaders in the Indo-Chinese capital of Saigon. Many demanded a break in relations with France.

But it also was expected to rally new support to strong segments of French political and public opinion which have demanded a quick end to the costly, seven-year Far Eastern conflict.

Officially, Laniel's government was cautiously noncommittal. A spokesman said until the cabinet studied Ho's message, the government could take no position. Previously Laniel has said France "will not refuse to negotiate if the occasion presents itself."

Premier Nguyen Van Tam, of the French-sponsored Viet Nam government under ex-emperor Bao Dai, said here he was agreeable to opening armistice negotiations on condition the Vietminh gave "the most serious guarantees" beforehand. He warned also that "any truce which might result should not be put to profit by the Vietminh to reinforce its military potential."

Will Propose New Rail Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — The Alberta government announced today it will propose a new scale of "equalized" freight rates for Canada before the board of transport commissioners.

Alberta counsel J. J. Frawley told the board the Alberta-sponsored rates will represent a compromise between scales proposed by the board itself and by the railways.

British Columbia's counsel, C. W. Brazier, indicated his province will support Alberta's scale, but it met with a mixed reception from spokesmen for other areas and for the railways.

While the details of the Alberta rates were not made known, counsel said they represent a straight arithmetic compromise between various scales now before the board.

Dean Refuses New Red Plan

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists today offered a broad proposal for a Korean peace conference, some of it new and some of it old, but most of it got a cold shoulder from U.S. delegate Arthur H. Dean.

Dean in turn offered the Reds a compromise plan to let Russia sit in on the conference as a "neighbor of Korea," taking part as a "third party" with full voting privileges.

Dean's suggestion was a revision of earlier UN demands that a conference include only the two belligerent sides with Russia on the Communist side if she attends. However, an Allied spokesman said:

"We expect the law of gravity will operate to take care of that situation and we would not be surprised if Russia would show up as the chief spokesman for the Communists."

Both sides agreed to take a day off to study the new proposals. They will meet again at 11 a.m. Wednesday (9 p.m. Tuesday, EST).

30 Villagers Battle Pack Of Wolves

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Wolves from the snowbound Kesrowan mountains tore a 15-year-old boy to pieces during an hour-long battle Sunday with 30 villagers north of Beirut. Four wounded persons were rushed to a hospital, including the wife of a shepherd who called for help when the pack of 19 wolves pounced on his flock. The slain boy was the shepherd's son. Villagers armed with guns, canes and knives finally killed five wolves and drove off the rest.

Papers, Union Plan Arbitration

NEW YORK (AP)—An agreement to submit certain issues to arbitration has been reached in the photo engravers strike that has closed six major New York city newspapers, a New York Times spokesman said today. But, he said, there was no agreement on basic issues.

Amory Bradford, assistant to the publisher of The Times, made the statement in clarifying a notice posted at the front entrance to The Times. The notice stated that "it is expected that agreement reached last night" will be presented to the union membership today.

Today was the first full day of effectiveness of the strike, which was called in a wage dispute Saturday morning.

Bradford said no agreement has been reached on any of the basic issues in the dispute over wages, pensions and welfare insurance. He did not elaborate on what he said was "an agreement to submit to arbitration certain issues."

Greatest Reception Yet Accorded Visitors

Panama Gives Queen Warm Welcome

By GOMER JONES

PANAMA CITY (Reuters) — United States Air Force planes today escorted the liner Gothic, carrying Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, as it sailed from here out into the Pacific to begin a 6,000-mile, 17-day cruise to the Fiji islands—next port-of-call on the royal tour.

There was no official send-off because the Queen was still in bed when the liner sailed at 7 a. m. local time.

During her brief stay, the pretty young monarch was accorded the most tumultuous welcome ever given a foreign visitor in Panama. Wildly cheering crowds have trailed her ever since the Gothic arrived at the Atlantic coast of the Panamanian isthmus early Sunday.

The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh ended another strenuous day's activities at midnight by returning to the Gothic following a state banquet.

Everywhere the royal car went here, police were hard put to keep back excited crowds anxious to get a better view of the Queen

CROWD CLIMBS TREES

When the Queen was being presented with the ceremonial keys to the City of Colon by the mayor, the crowd outside climbed palm trees and continued cheering throughout the ceremony, although they could see little of it.

Again, when the royal visitors were attending a reception to the British colony in the British embassy garden, many outside the embassy scaled the garden wall for a closer glimpse.

Thousands lined Panama City's brilliantly lighted main street—the Avenida Central—when the Queen and duke drove to the presidential palace for a state banquet.

There, in the yellow room of the palace, President Jose Remon presented the Queen with the gold collar of the Order of Manuel Amador Guerrero. It marked the first time the new order had been presented to a reigning monarch.

The duke was presented with the Grand Cross of the same order.

The Queen, in turn, presented the president with an honorary insignia of a Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire.

QUEEN CONTROLS LOCKS

Earlier, the Queen and the duke watched the Gothic being worked through the Miraflores locks. The royal visitors went to a control tower and the Queen worked a 5,500 ton American freighter, the Junior, through the lock by electric "mules" controlled by push-buttons.

When the Queen arrived in Panama City the people repeated the enthusiastic welcome given at Colon.

Charge Gouzenko Camouflage For Justice Dept.

WASHINGTON (AP)—With U.S. Senate investigators and Canada at a temporary impasse today over the questioning of Igor Gouzenko, political crossfire drummed on with a Democratic blast that the Harry Dexter White case was camouflage for a "serious situation" in the justice department. The Senate internal security sub-committee headed by Senator William Jenner (Rep. Ind.) apparently was faced with a take-it-or-leave-it proposition: Question Gouzenko on Canada's terms or not at all.

State Secretary Dulles told the committee Saturday the Canadian government was right in insisting that it, and not the committee, decide what part of Gouzenko's testimony should be made public.

Jenner said he would take it up with the sub-committee at a meeting Wednesday. He declined to say what course would be chosen.

Gouzenko, the one-time Russian embassy code clerk who exposed a Soviet spy ring in Canada eight years ago, is living in Canada under an assumed name and with police protection.

POLITICAL TEMPEST

Sunday, three Democratic leaders assailed Brownell and the Eisenhower administration for setting off what has become one of the hottest political wrangles in years.

Clayton Fritchey, deputy chairman of the Democratic national committee, declared in a television interview that Brownell launched the controversy to divert attention from many things, including "a serious situation within the justice department itself."

The program ended before Fritchey could explain this charge, but he later supplied details for reporters.

He said he referred to a recent statement by U.S. district judge Willis W. Ritter in Denver that the FBI refused to help the U.S. district attorney for Colorado in a jury tampering investigation. He said the attorney, Charles Vigil, won the case without FBI aid and was fired. A Democrat, Vigil was replaced by Donald E. Kelly, a Republican and fraternity brother of Brownell.

There was no immediate comment from the justice department. At Salt Lake City, Judge Ritter said he had no comment.

LET LOOSE BLASTS

Fritchey's immediate superior in the Democratic party, national chairman Stephen A. Mitchell, and a 1952 presidential aspirant, Averell Harriman, similarly let loose blasts at the Republican handling of the White case.

Mitchell told a Democratic rally at St. Albans, Vt., that the Republican party is neglecting the main battle against communism while 'they spend their energies chasing dead spies."

Harriman, on a television show from New York, said he believes "McCarthyism and Brownellism" will boomerang against the Republican party.

Fire Damage Totals $100,000

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Loss estimated to be between $100,000 and $125,000 were sustained in a fire of undetermined origin that swept through the Dutch laundry and dry cleaners building, Saturday night.

Investigation into the cause of the fire was started Sunday by London's fire inspector, James Fitzgerald.

The light of the fire reflecting off the white clouds illuminated the whole area, and was visible for miles.

Of the 17 firemen called three, including Capt. Hector Bishop of No. 1 company, received minor injuries. Four pumpers and a service truck were brought into service.

B. P. Cramer, manager of the firm, said he believed most laundry and clothing in the plant for service was lost. Business records were saved, however, and customers will be re-imbursed.

my family is not just a personal matter. Canadian and U. S. security is also involved."

Gouzenko said in his statement that he has no new information on any spy ring; that the major part of his suggestion to U. S. representatives would have been this:

There are many others in the Soviet spy networks, especially in Canada and the United States, who could be encouraged to do as he did if their fear could be removed. These people should be assured by the Western democracies of protection and security, citizenship, lifelong protection, material security, help in finding suitable work and a document acknowledging their services to the democracy to whose protection they fled.

Otonabee Gets New Reeve, Oppose Warden

Results from the first six of the 15 Peterborough county municipalities holding their nomination meetings show that there will be some new faces when county council meets next year.

Biggest surprise is the decision of Norman Wilson, reeve of Burleigh-Anstruther for the last nine years, to drop out this year. Sidney McCauley, of Apsley, the other nominee, becomes reeve of the township by acclamation.

Mr. McCauley, a car salesman, made his first bid for the reeveship this year. He had previously been a councillor for two years.

Another nomination meeting will have to be held Saturday to get four councillors. At the meeting on Friday, only four men were nominated. One of them was Mr. McCauley, and when he qualified for the reeveship, instead, it left only three — one less than required; so another nomination meeting will be 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday in the Apsley town hall.

The election, if one is needed, will be December 14.

ELECTION IN BELMONT

In Belmont-Methuen the veteran reeve, William E. Griffith, is being challenged by the 1953 deputy-reeve, George Newton. Both men had qualified by Saturday night so an election is assured.

Two of the 1953 council are contesting the deputy-reeveship vacated by Mr. Newton. They are Gardiner Gawley and Robert Wrightly who have three and seven years' experience on council, respectively.

The election will be December 7.

NEW REEVE IN OTONABEE

In Otonabee township, Norman McConkey did not qualify so David McIntyre, deputy-reeve of Otonabee for the last three years, became reeve by acclamation. He succeeded Dick Stewart who didn't run this time.

The new reeve has been in municipal politics for 10 years. He was a councillor for seven years before moving up to the deputy-reeveship.

Mr. McIntyre is following in the steps of his father, the late Fred D. McIntyre, who was deputy-reeve of Otonabee in 1927, 1928 and 1929. And he was reeve for the next three years.

Another newcomer to county council will be William Chambers, the 1954 deputy-reeve of Otonabee. Mr. Chambers and Gavin Shearer, both 1953 councillors, were nominated, but Mr. Shearer is stepping out of municipal politics this year and he didn't qualify.

Seven qualified for the three seats on council so there will be an election. And five have qualified for the three vacancies on the school board.

The Otonabee election will be December 7. Voting hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. and there are eight polls: Villiers, Grady's school, township hall, union hall in Lang, Woodview school, union hall at Mather's Corners, Stewart's hall, and Downer's Corners.

WARDEN OPPOSED

In Havelock, Ernest J. Leeson, warden of the county this year, is being opposed for reeve by Fred Pollock, a CPR engineer who was councillor in 1941 and 1951, and reeve of the village in 1946-47.

Both council and the school board were returned by acclamation.

Five were nominated for the four council seats but Bruce Curtis, a 1953 councillor, wouldn't be a candidate because of ill health. His place has been taken by a newcomer, Wesley Steenburgh. The other three—B. M. Bell, Jack Davidson and the political veteran, Richard Sanderson—were all 1953 councillors.

The election, for reeve only, will be December 7. There will be an advance poll December 5.

REEVES RETURNED

The reeves from the two most northerly townships will be coming back to county council again. Both Peter Pearson, of Galway-Cavendish, now beginning his ninth year as reeve, and Clive Hoard, of Chandos township, now beginning his fourth year as reeve, were returned by acclamation. So were their councils—and, in Chandos, the trustee. The nomination meeting for school trustees in Galway-Cavendish will not be held till the new year.

Here is a list of the municipalities and the results after the qualification deadline, last Saturday night:

Gold Shipment From Russia

LONDON (AP)—Nearly £1,000,000 worth of Russian gold arrived at London airport from Prague today, and was rushed off under heavy police guard to a secret destination in London.

The gold—three tons of ingots stamped with the hammer and sickle hallmark—was the final consignment of £5,500,000 worth of Soviet gold flown into London by three specially-chartered Royal Dutch Airlines planes. The first two plane loads arrived Sunday from Prague, where it had been flown from Moscow.

Airline officials refused to name the consignee.

Earlier this month London bullion dealers reported Russia was secretly selling gold in Western Europe in an apparent move to buy scarce sterling to finance the Soviet Union's imports of butter, wool and other goods from Commonwealth countries.

Polish Immigrant Charged With Wife's Brutal Murder

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Walter Okonski, 31, was charged with murder Sunday night shortly after his wife died of injuries authorities said apparently were caused by blows from a pressing iron. Police said they found Mrs. Marie Okonski, 47, fatally injured late Sunday in the bedroom of the Polish immigrant couple's three-room apartment. She was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital.

Neighbors quoted Okonski, a gold miner, as telling them:

"It is all over. I have killed my wife."

The Okonskis met in Germany while both were in a displaced persons' camp. They came to this northern Ontario gold-mining community three years ago.

Their eight-year-old son, Richard is being cared for by neighbors.

Police said they learned from neighbors that the Okonskis had been quarrelling periodically all Sunday. Late in the afternoon, the couple visited neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kwieciarz, in the next apartment and resumed their argument. Mrs. Kwieciarz said she asked Okonski to leave.

She said that a short while later he returned, picked his wife up in his arms and carried her to the Okonski apartment.

Mr. and Mrs. Kwieciarz, their two children, and some Polish countrymen who were visiting them, then began to eat supper. They said later that about 5:55 p.m. they heard a noise which they thought might be made by someone hammering nails.

TELLS NEIGHBORS

They said that soon afterwards Okonski came to the door of the Kwieciarz apartment kitchen and said he had killed his wife.

Police were called. They said they found Mrs. Okonski with a crushed skull and arranged for her to be taken to hospital.

Dr. E. F. Eddis, coroner, examined the body and said death was due to severe head injuries.

Police reported seizure of a blood spattered iron and a pillow.

Alberta Man Named Wheat Champ

CHICAGO (CP)—Canada wore the North American wheat crown today, having won the title back from the United States.

The new wheat king is Fred W. Hallnorth of Taber, Alta., whose "reward" variety of hard red spring wheat Sunday was adjudged best at the International Livestock Exposition and Hay and Grain Show.

Hallworth's victory gave Canada the wheat king title for the 25th time in the 31 years the competition has been held.

Hallworth's victory and a sweep of collegiate judging contest competition by Texas Technical College of Lubbock were the high spots of the day's events.

Texas Tech won both the 1953 collegiate livestock judging and the crop judging contests at this year's show.

NEW ALFALFA CHAMP

The alfalfa crown was taken from Canada when Niels Hansen of Los Snimas, Colo., won the top prize for his Buffalo variety. The reserve championship was taken by the Hon. John Bracken, former leader of the Progressive Conservative party of Canada. His entry was grown on his farm at Manotick, Ont., 15 miles south of Ottawa.

The field peas championship was won by Gustav Stein of Matheson, Ont., with a chancellor variety.

King Clancy B, shown by Lawrum Farms of Durham, Ont., placed second in the harness horse competition, and Golden Glow, shown by Dr. E. E. Foster and Son of Galt, was fifth. Golden Glow also finished third in the harness horse hitched to a gig event Sunday, and Fairview Pippen, owned by Ha-Sted Stables, Mount Forest, Ont., was sixth.

OTHER GOOD HORSES

Another horse owned by the Fosters, Mary Lee Guy, a bay mare, finished sixth in the roadster novice, stallion, mare or gelding event.

Two horses owned by ABC Farms of Brampton also took honors. Gray Velvet was first in the hunters and jumpers division and Crystal Lady took the No. 1 spot in the harness ponies attached to a two or four wheeled vehicle class.

Early Trading Brisk In Toronto Exchange

TORONTO (CP)—Price groups were mixed in brisk early afternoon stock market trading today

Papers, utilities, steels and refining oils were the principal industrial gainers but Brazilian traction showed a 25-cent loss. Foods and motors were lower with manufactures mixed.

All gold categories showed more losers than gainers. Yellow Bear and Frobisher were the strong holding companies with small gains. The biggest junior price change was Belleterre's 30-cent gain.

Western oil gains ranged to Pacific's and Canadian Colleries' 30 cents and outnumbered the small losses.

Base metal seniors were ahead led by Hudson Bay with a 1.25 gain. Juniors were also strong.

Uraniums and Bathurst - area base metals showed little change.

MOST NOBLE TASK

"He works on tenaciously, seeking the path to peace. The settlement of the conflict between the nations—this is his last and most noble task. And the birthday wish which goes out to him from all men is this: 'May you live, sir, to see the flowering of peace in your time.' "

The Conservative Daily Mail said Churchill was undertaking the trip to Bermuda "and this arduous task with the weight of the years upon him in order to try to win the 'greatest prize and greatest honor' of all—peace in our time."

The old man on his flight to Bermuda, said the Liberal News Chronicle, "will carry with him a great freight of human hopes."

"So far Sir Winston has attained his finest hour in plucking triumph out of tragedy," the News Chronicle said, adding, "it is possible, however, the greatest phase of a great career might now be opening before him."

"In the whole of recorded history," said the Conservative Daily Telegraph, "there heve been few men who could look back on a life of such varied accomplishments. . .

"He is still pursuing the last great ambition of his life, which is to see at least the birth of hope for a lasting peace throughout the world."

The birthday was chosen as the release date for two books. One was Triumph and Tragedy, the sixth and final volume of Churchill's history of the Second World War. The other was Churchill By His Contemporaries, 125,000 words of reminiscence by British and world figures who have known him in and out of the government.

Peace Package Rejected By UN Assembly

By OSGOOD CARUTHERS

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The United Nations General Assembly rejected today Russia's "peace package" demand for a ban on atom and hydrogen weapons and big-power arms reductions.

U. S. chief delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., used Hamlet's words to call the omnibus proposal —parts of which have been rejected in various forms during the past several years—"a weary, stale, flat and unprofitable business."

The assembly voted down paragraph by paragraph the resolution introduced by Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky. None of the operative paragraphs received more than 10 affirmative votes out of the assembly's 60.

The only portion of Vishinsky's resolution approved was the opening paragraph of the premable which noted that "cessation of hostilities in Korea is an important contribution to the reduction of tension in international relations, and that it has created more favorable conditions for further action to avert the threat of a new world war."

The Soviet package had called for an "unconditional" prohibition of atomic and hydrogen weapons.

Generals Talk Too Much-Bevan

CARDIFF, Wales (Reuters)—Aneurin Bevan Sunday night demanded that Britain cease co-operating with Washington unless the United States recognizes Communist China.

The left-wing Welsh Labor party leader also charged that Western leaders have used the "language of psychosis" in dealing with Russia.

He said Anglo-American relations would improve "if American generals learned to shut up a little bit more."

Bevan made his charges in a speech before 2,000 persons.

"The first major step towards a settlement of the world's problems must be based on the recognition of the people's government of China, and the United States should be told that further co-operation between us and them is contingent upon that fact," he said.

the Communist world in the UN today.

On a second front, South Carolina's governor James F. Byrnes went into the 60-nation social welfare committee for another effort to free German, Italian and Japanese prisoners missing behind the Iron Curtain for eight years. The UN wants to find out at least whether they died in the hands of the Soviets or their satellites.

SPECIAL COMMISSION

It is a problem the UN has been trying to solve through a special international commission since 1950.

The U.S. delegation made public here Saturday night part of the listing of 29,815 atrocity cases in Korea. The listing covered cases up to June 30, including 6,113 United States soldiers, more than 5,000 other UN military personnel, and 17,354 Korean civilians. The identity of 839 other victims could not be determined, the Americans said.

The United States documents given the assembly members covered eight incidents involving hundreds of victims. They recited mass torture and beatings, mass killings by burp-gun spraying at short range, buildings fired to burn the inhabitants alive, live burials, and death marches.

DESCRIBE 1950 CASES

Much of the testimony dealt with treatment of prisoners by North Koreans when the Communists retreated north in September 1950.

One U.S. soldier, Pte. Allen J. Gifford, of Pemberton, N.J., said Russians in civilian dress took photographs of his group.

Spokesmen for Britain, France, Australia and Turkey were to take the rostrum after Lodge to add their appeals for an assembly resolution, sponsored by all of them, asking condemnation of such atrocities.

The step is without precedent in international history. Neither the Versailles peace conference nor the League of Nations took such action after the First World War. The peace conference in Paris and the UN left Second World War atrocities to the Nuernberg war crimes court.

German Motorship Brought To Surface

SARNIA (CP) — The sunken German motorship Wallschiff broke surface in the St. Clair river unday as salvage operations which started two weeks ago continued.

The 822-ton vessel out of Hamburg, sank Oct. 2 after a collision.

A shore-anchored winch and two lifting barges have dragged her to within 200 yards of shore. Officials said they cannot estimate when she will be in water shallow enough to pump her out.

Carries Wounded Boy Through Forest

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Roddie MacDougall, 20, carried a companion, Jacques Dumais, 13, five miles through the bush Sunday after the youngster was wounded by a stray bullet.

Dumais was brought here for treatment of wounds in the right wrist and chest. The two were walking in the bush when someone fired a shot. The hunter wasn't seen.

$100,000 Damage In Hamilton Fire

HAMILTON (CP) — The Hamilton fire department fought their third major fire within a week, this morning, as smoke billowed out of the old City Hotel.

Damage to the hotel, known for years as the Dog and Gun, has been estimated at over $100,000. The owners, Michael Borden, and Tony Pryma, said renovations, completed within the last month, had cost $45,000.

Seven men living in the hotel escaped without injury.

Porter Sees Seaway Improving Business

NEW YORK (AP) — Attorney-General Dana Porter of Ontario said today development of the St. Lawrence seaway will bring an upsurge of employment and business in the area.

Arriving aboard the Cunard liner Britannic from London, Porter said of the seaway and power project:

"It looks very hopeful now. It's bound to cause a great deal of employment during the building and an increase of shipping to the Great Lakes. The power development will also service expanding industry."

He estimated completion of the project will take five years.

Porter had been in London representing Ontario at the Privy Council hearing of an appeal involving provincial control of interprovincial road traffic.

Named Solicitor Of Sudbury

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — John J. Kelly, 31-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Kelly of Campbellford, has been appointed to the full-time position of solicitor for the city of Sudbury.

Mr. eKlly took over his duties at Sudbury city hall a few days ago. He is the first full-time solicitor the city has employed.

After graduation from Campbellford High School, he joined the RCAF in 1940. He served as a navigator overseas until 1945, with rank of Flying Officer. After leaving the RCAF, he entered the University of Toronto graduating with his BA and later entered Osgoode Hall Law School, where he graduated in 1951.

Mr. Kelly has been in general practice with a Toronto law firm since his graduation from Osgoode Hall, but eft the firm this month to accept the position in Sudbury.

Canada Cattle

CATTLE REMODELED

Those remarkable cattle which are thriving in such torrid spots as the tangled wilderness of South Carolina have been remodeled to meet a different weather extreme. Ordinary cows have no sweat glands, cooling themselves instead by the exhausting and inefficient method of breathing hard and thus evaporating moisture from their mouths and lungs. When temperatures rise over 95 degrees, they actually develop a fever.

JOHN J. KELLY

The Indian zebu, or Brahman cow, however, has no such drawback and thrives in hot weather. As a meat or milk producer its rating is low, but the breeders have gone ahead and created a new animal with the productivity of American cows and the cooling capacity of its Oriental forebears. On the fabulous 900,000-acre King Ranch in Texas, a new breed of cattle, resulting from crossing Brahmans and Texas shorthorns, is also helping change the whole picture of how much meat southern and western ranges can produce.

AMAZING DRUG

The most startling developments in plant and animal genetics, however, may come from a substance nature herself has hidden in a common plant. It is a drug called colchicine which has already done something so amazing that staid scientists are stunned.

They have discovered that this chemical, extracted from the meadow saffron, has the power to increase the number of chromosomes, the bodies in each germ cell that pass on a species' hereditary traits.

A spectacular hint of what they may mean comes from Stockholm, where Dr. Allan Bane and other scientists have added colchicine to the sperms of rabbits during artificial insemination.

United Counties Get Poor Job

COBOURG—There was room for improvement in the re-assessment of Northumberland and Durham Counties, it was pointed out at the session last week of counties council. Some municipalities didn't pay their assessors enough to make it worth their while and some municipal councils apparently didn't realize that it was imperative that the new assessment be completed on time. There was also a lack of know-how on the part of some assessors, it was stated.

Counties' assessor, Garnet Shields, said that he valued the opinions of the rural assessors but, at the same time, he thought that the results would be better if the assessors could get together with him at a meeting early in the year in order to go over assessment problems and methods. There were also some points to iron out in regard to industrial assessments and he expressed the hope that the municipalities would pay the expenses of their assessors into Cobourg to the meeting he proposed calling.

Leslie Wilson of Cobourg, a man of extensive municipal experience, who is on the court of revision, bluntly told the council that the new assessment was only half-done and some of it would have to be done over. In regard to the work done by some of the assessors there was fault on the part of the municipality and fault on the part of the assessor. Some municipalities didn't pay their assessors enough money to justify the assessor in putting the required time to the job and some assessors didn't realize how important their work was in bring about the re-assessment of the counties, Mr. Wilson told the council.

BELIEVED TO BE the oldest family in Seymour township, five members of the Potts family, whose combined ages total 421 years, met at the summer home of James Potts on Bradley Bay to celebrate his 92nd birthday. Township's Oldest Family Help Celebrate Birthday

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Five members of the Potts family who live in Seymour township near Campbellford, got together on the weekend to help celebrate the birthday of one of their number, James Potts, 92.

James is the oldest member of the group of five, whose ages total 421. They are believed to be the oldest living family in the township. There are four brothers and one sister.

The birthday celebration was held at the home of James Potts on Bradley bay, about seven miles south of here. On hand to help him celebrate his 92nd birthday were his three brothers, George, 87; John, 85; Charles, 80; and his sister, Mrs. Lina Stephens, 77.

Mr. Potts enjoys good health and is very active. He and his wife spend their summers at their Bradley bay cottage and their winters with their family in Toronto. The couple have three daughters, Harriet of Buffalo, Grace and Helen of Toronto, and one son, John, also of Toronto.

He has lived in the district all his life, with the exception of a few years spent in Toronto.

Parents of the family were the late Stephen Potts and Harriet Stollery of Seymour township.

Top 3 Cobourg Officials Re-elected

COBOURG (ENS) — John D. Burnet was re-elected mayor at nominations held here. Re-elected also by acclamation were Reeve Jack Erskine and Deputy-Reeve Charlie Johnston.

There will be an election for council, ten having qualified as candidates by the close of the qualification period Saturday night. Running for the six council seats are Lilian Richards, Louis Caine, Otto Curtis, Roy Dodge, Harold Richardson, Alfred Perfect, Jeff Rolph, William Wenn, Alex McKinnon and Ray Bowen.

Mrs. Richards, Councillors Caine, Rolph, McKinnon, Curtis and Richardson were members of the 1953 council. The new aspirants are Messrs Wenn, Dodge, Perfect and Bowen. Messrs. Dodge and Wenn are veteran councillors and the former is an ex-mayor of Cobourg. Messrs. Bowen and Perfect have never sat in Cobourg council, although the former tried for deputy-reeve last year.

HEADED POLLS

Last year, Mrs. Lilian Richards headed the polls, the second woman to do so in Cobourg history. A close second was Otto Curtis, followed by Messrs. McKinnon, Rolf, Richardson and Caine.

Tonight, the candidates will address the electorate at a meeting in the town hall. The year 1953 has seen no contentious issues and it is not expected that tonight's meeting will produce anything even remotely sensational.

Seven Cities Face Fight For Mayoralty

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The coming week will see a fight for the mayor's chair in at least seven Ontario cities.

Qualifications Saturday gave mayoralty acclamations to W. A. Donovan of Chatham, W. Anderson of Galt and Graeme Gorrie of Brockville, but set up contests for the post of chief magistrate in Brantford, North Bay, Peterborough, St. Thomas, Stratford, Sudbury and Woodstock.

Most of the centres vote Dec. 7. North Bay's voting day is Dec. 14.

Another group of municipalities hold nominations today, with the qualification deadline 4 hours later.

TO BE CONTESTED

In most cities where two or more seek the mayoralty, the present mayor is opposed. One such case is Woodstock, where the 1953 mayor, Bernadette Smith, has H. J. Collins as her opponent.

A woman gained the reeveship by acclamation in the town of Durham Saturday. Miss Marion Calder, a councillor for the past year, is the first woman to hold the office in the Grey county town's history.

Ten men, including 1953 mayor Arthur Beattie, were nominated Friday for the mayoralty in North Bay. However only four Mr. Beattie among them qualified.

All municipal office holders were re-elected by acclamation Saturday in Brockville. It was the first time such a thing had happened in the St. Lawrence river town.

In Stratford, where 10 city council seats are at stake, 20 would-be councillors qualified. The same community has a three-way mayoralty battle as L. E. Feick campaigns for a second term.

The Mayoralty Contest

Although at one time it looked as though there might be three, or even four, contestants for the mayoralty of Peterborough in the civic elections, we now know that the decision must be made between Mr. Hugh Waddell and Mr. Norman Graham. About Mr. Waddell we have little to say, because for the past two years we have recorded his acts as Mayor and we think that his record speaks eloquently to every voter. He has brought to that office the unassuming dignity, the friendliness, the business efficiency and the wholehearted concern for everything connected with his city which characterize him. If he is chosen to be Mayor again, there is no doubt whatever that he will fill that office admirably.

* * *

However, The Examiner has long been opposed to acclamations for popular mayors, because we think that such acclamations kill public interest in civic affairs. Therefore we are glad that Mr. Waddell will be opposed in his bid for a third term. Such opposition means that if he is re-elected, he will know the strength of his support. If he is defeated, there is no disgrace in a defeat in an election, and we may hope that he will stand for office again.

* * *

Since the first of October it has been public knowledge that Mr. Graham will seek the office of Mayor. He resigned from the Council at that time, in order that he might be nominated for that post, although he still had fourteen months of his aldermic term before him. Mr. Graham made it plain in public statements that he considered the business of the city to be very laxly discharged, and attacked the Council in terms which were deeply resented. It was asked, and properly so, why Mr. Graham did not put his inside information and his business acumen at the public service when he was in the Council, rather than when he was outside it? He was twice elected, each time for two years, and chose not to complete either term as alderman. Mr. Graham, however, has made it clear that in his opinion it is only as Mayor that he can do the reorganizing, firing and disciplining which he believes to be necessary.

* * *

Mr. Graham is known to be a man of strongly individual opinions and fearless in attack. There are two elements in his mayoral campaign, however, which we think the voters should consider carefully. First, there seems to be a strong element of personal animosity in it. He has attacked a few people in the city service in terms which leave no doubt as to his attitude if he is elected. Now, this is permissible and sometimes admirable in any political campaign, but if a man takes office with too many feuds on his hands, we question how efficently he will be able to do his duties. A Mayor does not stand alone. He must work with his Council, of whom he is chairman, rather than boss. Can Mr. Graham work with the Council which will sit next year?

* * *

Second, Mr. Graham has promised to give information about what he thinks is amiss with city government in his own time—and we presume that he will make some statements this week. But it is not Mr. Graham's time, but the time of the citizens of Peterborough, which deserves first consideration. We must have time to think over what he has to say, and to decide calmly what weight can be attached to it. This city is ultra-conservative in all its movements, and we do not think it will be panicked into electing any man for any office who promises startling revelations at the last minute. Deep concern for the public good would not have dictated such secrecy. The charges made by Mr. Graham in his nomination speech were not grave, and were chiefly personal. We can only await his further divulgences with polite interest.

* * *

One things is plain. This is not going to be a dull campaign, and it is not going to be a walkover for either candidate. Voters will have to keep themselves alert for the next week.

The President Or The Secretary?

During at least one Congressional session of the Truman regime, the working of United States foreign policy often puzzled Europeans. The Administration would promise and announce legislation designed to help and reassure European nations. Congress would then delay or alter the legislation to suit its tastes, sometimes substantially modifying its potentialities. Europeans with imperfect understanding of the administrative and legislative division of Government in the United States were alternately hopeful and downcast.

Commentators on this continent were sympathetic, and tried to explain that no matter what Administration policy might be, it was subject in some ways to the approval of Congress. This, the commentators felt, was easy to understand, once the fields of authority were clearly outlined. When policy involved expenditure, for instance, Congress was in control. That was simple.

The commentators did not attempt to discuss what would happen if a Cabinet Minister took a policy line opposed to that announced by his President. They did not think this necessary, since the disciplining of Henry Wallace for this offence was fresh in memory. The theory was that no matter how wide a gap between the Administration and Congress, the Cabinet was one and indivisible in matters of policy.

It was, and is, an admirable theory, but there is evidence that it is not regarded as a "working theory" by some members of the present Cabinet. The latest bit of evidence was furnished last week by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks, in a speech made in New York. Despite the fact that President Eisenhower had persuaded Congress to extend reciprocal trade agreements for a year, and had appointed a commission to study the entire problems of reducing trade barriers, Mr. Weeks came out for higher tariffs. He sounded the old cry of protecting the standard of living of American labour, and was warmly applauded by professional tariff lobbyists, among others.

Mr. Weeks' concern about protecting the workers' standard of living sounds strange alongside the powerful C.I.O.'s advocacy of reduced trade barriers. His support of higher tariffs sounds strange alongside the appeals of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, its Advisory Council, industrial leaders generally and President Eisenhower for tariffs low enough to encourage international trade. But the high-tariff Republican minority and a minority among business leaders liked the sound of it, and for that reason or some other, the Administration has said nothing about the contradiction of Presidential policy.

We wish the commentators would tell us how to understand the division in the Administration.

An Indian And His Washing Machine

All newspaper stories about Indians in pow-pow or demanding some alleged treaty "rights" are colourful because journalistic plumes are always brought out and put on the heads of Mohawk braves, these noble savages go on legal warpaths, and their features are lit by the fires of old wars between white man and red man. Such a story came out of Exchequer Court hearings last week.

The Mohawk brave (plumed) in the case was seeking, through counsel, to get back duties extracted from him on goods he brought across the border. Louis Francis of St. Regis, Quebec (a reservation near the American border) was forced to pay $123.66 in customs duties on a washing machine, an oil heater and a refrigerator he bought on the American side. He is apparently distressed because the Department of National Revenue has treated him just like a white man in charging these duties. His lawyers not only want the money back, but also an assurance from the Exchequer Court that any of Canada's Indians can shop in the States without paying customs on any goods they bring back. He cited the Jay Treaty, named after George Washington's Chief Justice John Jay. By it Indians were absolved from paying duties on personal goods "not unusual to Indians".

We do not know what relevancy this Jay Treaty has to Indians in present-day Canada. That is for the Exchequer Court to decide. We are interested in the evidence being brought to show that washing machines, oil heaters and refrigerators have become essential parts of reservation living, and personally usual to Mohawk braves, plumed or dressed in natty business suits, living on bounty wheat on a reservation or dealing in new and used equipment.

One witness was a Kelvin Adams, described in the Ottawa news report as "a husky brave from Sarnia". To show how personally "not unusual to Indians" such household equipment is, he testified that his Sarnia home contains a television set, a vacuum cleaner, a pop-up toaster, an oil heater, a refrigerator, a washing machine, a portable electric oven and two radios.

We wait with envious eyes upon the decision of the Exchequer Court in the test case of Louis Francis of St. Regis, aged 31, a U.S. naval war veteran, and who now wants back his $123.66 customs duties on washing machine, oil heater and refrigerator. If he gets it back what a spending bee Canada's 136,000 Indians will have across the duty-free border.

Bonnie Brown Heady blamed whisky and love for her part in the Greenlease abduction. We yearn for the day when a criminal will blame his own weakness of character, inferiority of mind and spirit, and malignant viciousness for his share in a murder.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

I AM AFRAID I must confess that I cannot invariably regard music in an entirely serious light; cheeerfulness breaks in. The French regard music as a diversion, the English as a social occasion, the Germans as an expression of the cultural Zeitgeist, the Soviets as an illustration of Marxist dialectic, the Poles as demonstration of nationalism, and so on. The Canadian attitude towards music is mixed up with the odd idea that if a thing is good it must be unpleasant, and vice versa. There is also a confusion of the two ideas of moral and artistic goodness. Transcendentalists may argue that these two ideas merge on the highest plane: possibly, but taking individual works of art the theory that a good work of art is also morally improving does not stand examination. Moral improvement is in its turn linked too often with unpleasant memories of canings and lectures and is represented by a dreary code of "uplift." I think it is not unfair to say that a disturbingly large proportion of Canadians go to a concert in a "night-school" frame of mind. Consequently when anything of a gravity-removing nature happens in the concert hall a reaction of conscience-stricken mirth and even of outrage is apt to be elicited from a fair portion of the audience.

✧ ✧ ✧

SUCH was the case the other day when I attended a recital by a talented comedienne who has made it her business to poke fun at the art of music in its divers manifestations, from the French cafe chanson to the oratorio and madrigal. The parodies were sometimes devastatingly cruel, sometimes just high-spirited squibs. Pomposity was deflated, preciosity was clouted, and I enjoyed almost every minute of it. Yet there were some in the audience who evidently felt that such levity was out of place—like laughing in church. While I have the utmost respect for these people I cannot avoid feeling that their indignation was wide of the mark. If music is such a hot-house plant it cannot bear an occasional gust of laughter surely it is time that we forgot about it and took up something else instead. If the pretentiousness and mumbo-jumbo that surround so much of the world of music are exposed it would appear that the cause of music is benefited rather than otherwise.

ANOTHER entertainment in the shape of the film "Gilbert and Sullivan," which I saw recently, raised the same problem in a different guise. Sullivan was the son of an obscure London bandmaster. The boy showed great promise in music from an early age, and was a chorister under Helmore at the Chapels Royal. The climax of his student career was the award of the coveted Mendelssohn Scholarship, which enabled him to go to Leipsic to study at the shrine of the authentic German tradition.

Every sort of composition came easily to Sullivan. His fluent pen was equally at home in every genre. Yet from an early period it became obvious where his gifts were employed to the greatest advantage, in comic opera. The success d'estime gained by his "serious" music were overshadowed by the riotous applause which greeted each of his operettas. Of course it was really his so-called "serious" works that were mannered and derivative: Sullivan's true force and originality were displayed only in his comic productions. Misled by well-meaning friends into the pitiful delusion that he was prostituting his genius to unworthy aims he always hankered after a resounding success in the higher realms of music. In spite of the fact that Sullivan himself was three times as gifted as any of his contemporaries in English music until the advent of Sir Edward Elgar the public showed good judgment in rejecting "Ivanhoe," "The Golden Legend" and other equally impeccable monuments to Victorian respectability. Unfortunately the Lost Chord still survives as a specimen of Sullivanian religiousity of a singularly treacly and repellent nature. Surely it would be kinder to poor Sullivan's memory to give it a decent burial.

HUMOUR AND PARODY have always been a part of music. Even the African savages are said to take to it. I have been told that the only harmony (of a sort) ever to be found in true African folksong was a little ditty imitating the sound of a missionary's harmonium! Mozart wrote a clever little "musical joke" in which he made fun of the dreadful sort of music cooked up by the musicians in almost any little Austrian or German town in his time. This is the type of musical humour that is best played quite "straight"; the satire resides in the music itself, rather than in any exaggerated interpretation. Beethoven's gruff and abrupt humour deserves a book to itself. He revelled in that type of musical pun called "enharmonic change."

With the Romantic movement we can see a grimmer type of humour, as exemplified in the Chopin sherzi The Romantics took themselves more seriously than the Classics, who often quaked with merriment on the peaks of Parnassus. Schumann, it is true, displayed a whimsical humour, but it resided more in the esoteric connatations of the titles of his pieces than in the music itself. Wagner satirized his archcritic Hanslick on the stage in the creation of the odious Beckmesser of "die Meistersinger." It has occurred to me, however, how much more deadly Wagner's satire would have been if the Beckmesser music had been couched in the idiom of Brahms. Instead of that Wagner wrote a meaningless cacophony, dramatically plausible enough, but lacking the extra sting.

Good parody is more than imitation of some of the external cliches of a writer; it involves sharing to some extent the point of view of one's victim. The best parody is free of over-emphasis, because it must be near enough to the original to have the stamp of verisimilitude. Perhaps this is why the best parodies are written by men who have a genuine admiration for the works of their victims: living close to them, as it were, they see the spots and blemishes more clearly than others, but this does not prevent them from admiring them as a whole and with greater sincerity than those who say that they "adore" such-and-such.

Wagner's parody was half a failure because his vision was clouded by self-centred hatred and passion.

✧ ✧ ✧

I have long thought that the text "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear," is the soundest piece of advice one could give to performers, amateur or professional, and concert audiences. The more one thinks of its applications the more apposite it seems. The loud-lunged tenor who bawls, the thumping pianist, the out-of-tune fiddler; last, but not least the concert goer who forgets to listen, so absorbed she is in sartorial details, I leave it to the reader to continue the list.

To Churchill, on entering his eightieth year

When men are old they take to caves like bears,
And in this winter-mind they ruminate
Upon the sun-full days of active cares,
Making old shadows new substance of debate.

Some, sore with sorrow for the deeds undone,
Cry rankling tears and curse their envious shame;
More tell to heedless ears how high the sun
Shone in their firmament, and wait on fame.

But you, old Churchill, crowding years like sails,
Still drive before the wind your hopes for men;
New Ancient Mariner, whom nothing quails,
Unsound courses, nor old tasks again.

With cunning helm you use the years,
And while you steer we may forget our fears.

RICHARD EASTON.

Sir Winston Churchill is 79 today, and "The (London) Observer" offered £100 for a poem to mark the entering of his eigthieth year. The winning entry, published above, was chosen from 2,600 poems submitted from all parts of the world, including a number in German, French and Latin.

No Rejoicing In Tibet

By O. M. GREEN

A description of conditions in Tibet which is strikingly different from that provided by the flamboyant reports of Peking Radio is given me by a resident of Kalimpong, on the Indo-Tibetan border, who has recently returned to Britain. My informant lived for several years in Eastern Tibet and speaks Tibetan fluently. When the Chinese invaded Tibet in 1950, he escaped to Kalimpong, where he has since been in constant communication with high sources in Lhasa, the Tibetan capital.

So far from Tibetans rejoicing in "reunion with the Motherland"—as Chinese Communists claim—the nation as a whole, except for a small number of young Tibetans who have been educated in India and who favour Westernisation, remains obstinately uncooperative.

Chinese attempts to recruit Tibetans into their army have utterly failed; and no Tibetan girl would dream of marrying a Chinese. Tibetan feeling on this point is so strong that Chinese officers have given strict orders to their troops not to attempt relations with Tibetan women for fear of provoking a riot.

Tibet, says my informant, is full of arms—British, Chinese and Japanese— which Nationalist generals in West China sold to the Tibetans; and these arms the Communists have been unable to force the Tibetans to surrender. Country Tibetans are said to be excellent marksmen.

In May last year a national petition was presented to the Dalai Lama (the hereditary ruler) begging the God-King either to persuade the Chinese to withdraw or to allow his subjects to expel them. The Dalai's reply was that the Tibetans should remain quiet coupled with the curious statement that "in three years' time all the Chinese will be gone."

Although the Chinese have stripped the Dalai of a large part of his property, his authority among Tibetans remains paramount. He corresponds freely with those of his family who are abroad, the Chinese not daring to touch the royal mails. Now nineteen years old, the Dalai is described as an exceptionally shrewd and competent young man.

General Chiang Ching-wu, the Chinese administrator, managed some months ago to bring the Dalai Lama and the Panchen Lama (previously joint ruler with the Dalai) to a conference.

But he has utterly failed to persuade them (despite orders from Peking) to combine with the Chinese in forming a People's Political Consultative Conference on the Communist model.

Next to China, the Tibetans hate India, regarding her as the main cause of their troubles. When in 1950 the Chinese troops reached Chamdo, on the eastern border of Tibet, Ngabu, the Tibetan general on the spot (who had been forced to sign the peace treaty in Peking) begged permission from Lhasa to stop them advancing further, saying that he had seven hundred resolute trained men, enough to hold up any number of Chinese in the high passes to Lhasa.

But the answer came back that he was to do nothing since the Indian Government had informed Lhasa that its Ambassador in Peking, Mr. Panikkar, had been assured by the Chinese that they had no intention of taking Tibet.

Food is greatest problem of all, with thirty thousand Chinese troops added to a population which has never been able to grow more than enough for itself. My informant says that the Communist reports of Chinese soldiers having brought scores of acres of waste land under cultivation are nonsense. The Chinese did try to reclaim some land near their barracks at Lhasa, but the result was so feeble that it became the laughing-stock of the district. The simple fact is that apart from land already cultivated, the rest cannot and never will grow anything. The Chinese now buy all their rice from Bhutan.

If they ever decide to invade or infiltrate into Bhutan, Nepal or Assam (where Indian Communists are strong) nothing can stop them. This danger, already twice raised in the Indian Assembly within the past eighteen months, was strongly impressed on the Indian Premier, Mr. Nehru, when he visited the frontier last autumn.

The Ebb and Flow

(Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

Not many months ago lake levels in Ontario were a matter of great concern because the rising waters had caused considerable damage and threatened many more structures, especially summer homes.

Now, due to a dry fall, lake levels are low and in Lake Nipissing, surprisingly enough, the water level has dropped considerably and places where docks had two and three feet of water lapping against them are now dry. The lake bed is dry for a considerable distance into the lake. By next spring conditions likely will be normal again but nature keeps man guessing as to just what conditions will be over a span of years.

That the levels should be sharply reduced in Lake Nipissing, an inland lake, is surprising and indicates anything can happen to our lakes and rivers over a period of time. Remember, there used to be navigation on the Grand.

Liquor and Gasoline

(Ottawa Journal)

This tragic story came out in a coroner's court in Quebec province.

Four young men were riding in a truck. The driver had been drinking and gaily got his vehicle to a speed later estimated at between 80 and 95 miles per hour. One passenger urged the driver to slow down, said prophetically "You'll kill us all." A concrete abutment loomed up in the headlights and somebody in the car screamed. Then the truck hit the abutment with terrific force. One passenger was tossed out, landed 25 feet away, and was not badly hurt. The driver and the other two passengers were killed.

Alcohol and gasoline make a deadly mixture. If you drink, don't drive; if you drive, don't drink. There never was advice more sound, or founded on a larger body of evidence.

Heron In Flight

(The New York Herald Tribune)

A man has something better to look at than ducks when he sees a heron in flight. A heron, however wary he may be when he has his feet in the mud, doesn't have to be shy of folks when he rises to match his feathers with a grey sky and the river's steel-like surface. All of November seems to hang to a heron's wings. He travels alone and likes it. He is big enough to take care of himself. Let frost come to a river shore's dawn. Let buttonball bushes flutter down their dry leaves. He is headed toward a land where the branches won't be bare, nor the fish candidates for a January's deep-freeze system. The awkwardness of a heron's length of neck and legs vanishes when he flies. His undulating wide wings make lines few abstractionist artists would sponsor. But they are curves nature has long loved and consistently repeats. Nature is quite a traditionalist.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now a certain man was sick, named Lazarus, of Bethany, the town of Mary and her sister Martha . . . Therefore his sisters sent unto him, saying, Lord behold, he whom thou lovest is sick. When Jesus heard that, he said, This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby . . .

Then when Jesus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already . . . Then said Martha unto Jesus, Lord, if thou hadst been here, my brother had not died . . .

Jesus saith unto her, Thy brother shall rise again.

Martha saith unto him, I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection of the last day.

Jesus said unto her, I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live: and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. Believest thou this? . . .

Then they took away the stone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jesus lifted up his eyes, and said, Father, I thank thee, that thou hast heard me. And I knew that thou hearest me always: but because of the people which stand by I said it, that they may believe that thou hast sent me.

And when he thus had spoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth. And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave-clothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jesus saith unto them, Loose him, and let him go. (John 11:1, 3, 4, 17, 21, 23-26, 41-44.)

Not All Bilingual

(London Free Press)

Canadians consider themselves a modest folk. But evidently they have been guilty of some misleading propaganda about their own achievements.

A group of idealists in France are now setting out to advance the cause of bilingualism by urging that teaching of English as a second language be made compulsory in Fench-speaking lands, and French be placed on a similar basis in English-speaking countries.

That is a laudable aim, but where the group runs off the track is in citing the success of Canada as a bilingual nation. Officially that may be correct. In practice we fall deplorably short. It is true that in our English-speaking schools, particularly at the secondary level, French is the usual second language, and students are exposed to it over prolonged periods. But it would be misleading to infer from this that fluency in both languages is universal.

Time to Quit

(Fort William Times-Journal)

The land lubber posed a question to a lake boat captain the other day, one prompted by the summery weather and the open water as of the third week of November. If by a strange natural freak, the land lubber wanted to know, the harbors continued to be navigabe throughout December, would there be even a slight possibility some boats would keep plying the lake?

Well sir, the mariner replied, it wouldn't be his vessel. Quite apart from the matter of insurance, the master of the boat would have to navigate without benefit of radio, lighthouses and a few other modern guides. The sailing would be hazardous in the extreme.

RECEIVES PASS—Winnipeg Blue Bombers' Len Meltzer (87) receives pass from Indian Jack Jacobs (second from right), Winnipeg quarterback, in Saturday's Grey Cup game at Toronto against Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Pass was good for first down in first quarter of match.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The husky young men of the mountain toted the much-travelled Grey Cup back to the Ambitious City on Saturday evening and the Bombers flew sadly back to Winnipeg as autumn officially ended for Canadian grid fans. Christmas shopping looms and a lengthy session of hockey. It is now winter. But the football final will be long remembered as a stirring windup before more than 27,000 payees at Varsity Stadium—with millions taking it via TV or radio—on an ideal fall day. What more exciting finish could be imagined than Hamilton leading 12-6 with Winnipeg on Tri-Cats' four-yard line with one more play left in the game? It was that close to a tie. A lulu to win and a toughie to drop.

* * * * * *

Great work by the Hamilton line had a lot to do with their victory. The classy westerners couldn't dent that wall, and the easterners were getting through to crowd Indian Jack Jacobs as he filled the air with passes. He gave a nifty flinging display against a team with an excellent pass defence, but Hamilton too clicked well on forward heaves. The Bombers had several good chances to score, apart from their one touchdown and their last play thrust, but Hamilton held 'em out. It was a clean, hard-hitting, close contest, a first-rate football final between two very good clubs. Thus endeth the grid game in Canada for this year.

Listing the Winners

A windup OBA bulletin belatedly arrives to list 1953 winners. There were some provincial champs from Central Ontario the past season. Oshawa Merchants of the Lakeshore loop took the intermediate "A" title. Bowmanville was the runner-up to Listowel in "B" play. In junior "A", Belleville was runner-up to Hamilton. Port Hope captured the juvenile "B" crown. 'Tis a sad state of affairs when there was no championship series in senior "A" or senior "B". The OBA handled a record number of protests during the playdowns, and that's not so good. Peterborough hadn't anything higher than a junior club in baseball the past summer, but a pretty fair minor setup was launched.

Once in the ring in his boxing heyday, Jack Sharkey turned to protest to the ref that he was being hit low—and that's all Jack remembers. Dempsey knocked him kicking. Sharkey no longer looks away from combatants in the ring, and the ex-heavyweight champ fighter is kept busy refereeing pro grabbie bouts in Canada and the States. He comes here next Wednesday eve along with another ref to handle an outstanding tag team main bout. It features Whipper Bill Watson and Hombre Montana against Lord Athol and Fred Atkins. All four are main-eventers usually on mat cards. Hi Lee faces Johnny Harmon in the semi-final of this program, while Al Costello meets Bill Stack in the prelim.

Close But Yet a Loss

That was a hard one to lose, that 4-3 tussle in Bowmanville on Saturday night. The TPT Petes picked up where they left off the previous night and outplayed the league-leading Oshawa Truckmen most of the route but lost late in the scrap. Winning goal was tallied at 19:19 of the third period with Monty sitting out an elbowing penalty. He thought it was a pretty cheap sentence in such a tight tilt during the final minute of play. The Fryia-Leonard-Greenlaw lines shone on the attack for Ed Redmond's men, Jack Donlevy stood out again in goal, and the whole crew turned in a solid chore against the potent Truckers. Kingston beat Belleville 3-2 to keep the Memos back of Petes in the keen race. Kingston comes here Friday.

* * * * * *

A somewhat similar story came out of Lindsay after the Saturday night struggle when the leading Scugog squad yanked out an 8-7 verict o'er Red Creighton's junior "B" pack from this city. Gary Kearns was hotter than the lining of a hot-water tank to bang home three goals for the visitors, singles being chalked up by Bill Twist, Paul Doris, Bob Gardner and Murray Byrne. Leading the Lindsay offensive were Tommy Hutton and Bill Burns with a pair apiece, others going to Art Truax, Jack Graham, Dan Pearson and Bob Growden. It's tough dropping those close ones on the other guy's ice. Port Perry is here Wednesday e'en for an OHA junior "B" fixture.

18-Year-Old Cup Defeat Avenged 12-6 By Ti-Cats

By W. R. WHEATLEY

TORONTO (CP)—Hamilton Tiger-Cats, avenging a Grey Cup defeat of 18 years ago, stalled a gallant bid by Winnipeg Blue Bombers on the last play of the game Saturday and won the 1953 East-West football classic 12-6. In those spine-tingling seconds, as the hand on the Varsity Stadium clock moved to its final stop, Lou Kusserow became Hamilton's man of the hour. It was Kusserow, former Columbia University star, who raced from his position and rammed into Tom Casey as the Bomber half-back clutched the last of Indian Jack Jacobs' rifle-shot passes. The ball plopped from Casey's grasp, the only pass in five he had missed during the game, and there was a pile-up two yards from the Hamilton goal line.

The howl of 27,328 delirious fans suddenly subsided. Then a roar went up as the Tiger-Cats flung their arms in the air and ran from the field.

It was probably the most brilliantly-fought game of any East-West meeting since the Canadian final was first played in 1921.

The Ti-Cats went in front in the first quarter when Ed Songin went over on a quarterback sneak from one yard out. The Bombers tied it in the third quarter on Jacobs' passing and a line smash by Gerry James.

Tiger-Cats came back and the deciding touchdown was a long heave by Songin to Vito Ragazzo.

There were the inevitable ifs revolving about the last play, which culminated a magnificent passing exhibition by Jacobs. His right arm whipped the Bombers along from their 11-yard line in the desperate fight against both Tiger-Cats and time.

If Casey had been able to hang on to the ball and step over the line, if Jacobs had thrown to Neill Armstrong instead, if he had called a running play with James lugging the ball. . . no one knows what might have happened. It could have been an overtime game, 10 minutes each way in 20-minute periods until darkness.

The Tiger-Cats counted heavily on their big line, and the tough front wall was not found wanting. Songin mixed his passes with swiftly-striking ground plays by Bernie Custis, Merle Hapes and Kusserow.

Jacobs didn't always have the protection accorded Songin but he was adept at side-stepping, throwing while on the gallop and getting his shots away with no lost motion. The Bombers relied almost entirely on Jacobs' arm although several times James knifed into the line for good gains.

Indian Jack's big flipper set Grey Cup records. He tried 46 passes, 12 more than the previous high in attempted passes. Claude Arnold of Edmonton Eskimos tried 34 in Edmonton's losing bid last year against Toronto Argonauts.

Jacobs completed 28 passes, outdistancing the old Grey Cup record of Keith Spaith of Calgary Stampeders in 1949 against the cup-winning Montreal Alouettes.

Jacobs' average of pass-completions was .609, another record. Spaith's was .594. Jacobs moved the Bombers along for 326 yards with his passes. The closest to that in yardage passing was Arnold's 261 last year.

The Tiger-Cats' first touchdown followed a 54-yard drive by air and ground that started after Dick Brown ran back Jacobs' kick 14 yards to the Hamilton 54.

Custis went around end for four yards and three passes by Songin, to Kusserow, Ragazzo and Kusserow carried Hamilton to the Bombers' 14. Smashes through centre by Hapes and Custis left the ball only one yard out and Songin took it over.

Jacobs launched the Bombers on an aerial drive in the second quarter from deep in their own end with five successive passes—two each to Armstrong and Andy Sokol and the other to Len Meltzer.

On the Hamilton 13, and on first down, Jacobs faded back for another. He was smeared for a 15-yard loss on the next play. Ragazzo raced in to intercept a pass and end the threat.

Curtis' 30-yard run-back of a punt started Hamilton on the winning touchdown march of 74 yards. After Songin passed to Kusserow, Custis lost two yards when he tripped over one of his blockers. Then, with play at the Hamilton 55, Songin tossed a 15-yard pass to Ragazzo, who got behind the Bombers' Geoff Crain and romped for a major.

The Bombers' fourth-quarter bid that fell short started 11 yards from the Winnipeg goal line. In the drive to the Hamilton four there were only two line plays, a four-yard gain by James and a centre smash by Casey from the five-yard stripe. Casey made only one yard on his try.

The rest of that long stretch in the Bomber march before the famous last play resulted from Jacobs' target-finding. He nailed Keith Pearce, Casey, Bud Grant and Dick Huffman.

The win marked the fifth for a Hamilton team in the East-West series.

Oshawa Yanks Out 4-3 Win Over Senior "B" Petes With Goal In Last Minute

Oshawa Truckmen cashed in on a late Peterborough penalty in Bowmanville Saturday night to take a thrilling 4-3 victory over the TPT Petes in an OHA senior "B" fixture. It was a ding-dong battle all through between the well-matched squads before a good-sized crowd. The Petes had a 1-0 lead in the first period and were in front 3-1 going into the third of a speedy, clean fray. Oshawa drew five penalties while the Redmond men were tabbed with eight, the last one quite costly. The triumph tightens the Truckmen's grip on first place in the standing and leaves the Petes in third slot.

Petes broke fast from the barrier in Bowmanville after their neat win the previous night over Orillia. They pressed repeatedly and finally Toodie Greenlaw beat Goalie Courtney at the goalmouth on a passing play with Chum Fryia and Gus Leonard. This line looked good all evening for the Petes, Greenlaw and Leonard being in on all three Petes' goals and Fryia in on two.

Early in the second frame, the same trio tore in close again with Fryia firing a fast corner shot to make it 2-0. Truckmen got one back on a breakaway as Petes pressed, Etcher taking a pass-up from Thaler and going right in before pulling the trigger. Greenlaw got that one back later on combination with Bill McMaster and Leonard, the goalie being flat on his back after a save as Petes got their last tally of the evening.

The third period was a slam-bang one and quite even, though Oshawa outscored the visitors. They were both checking hard. Right off the bat Thaler counted from Dickens, and it then took more than 14 minutes before Truckers tied the score with Thaler cuffing home Etcher's pass. At 18.02, Keith Montgomery was waved over for elbowing and Truckers drove in desperately. Goalie Jack Donlevy kept turning aside red-hot stabs at point-blank range but finally Scott's screened shot on Peters' pass slithered through for the winning goal at 19.19 of the final frame.

Teams:

Petes: Goal, Donlevy; defence, Montgomery and Redmond; centre, Hill; wings, Collins and Crowley; alternates Leonard, Fryia, Greenlaw, Prentice Belisle, Peterson McMaster, Armstrong and Munroe.

Oshawa: Goal, Courtney; defence, Thaler and McBeth; centre Scott; wings, Samolenko and Wilson; alternates, Etcher, Williams, Yourth, Jago, Berwick, Hooper Holden, Dickens and Peters.

50,000 Fans Turn Out Greet Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers came home to a hero's welcome Sunday night as thousands of fans jammed Stevenson field and a six-mile parade route to cheer as if the team had won the Grey Cup.

Although Bombers lost 12-6 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the final Saturday, a crowd of about 50,000 cheered them home at an airport reception, along the parade through the city and at a wind-up on the grounds of the Manitoba legislature.

Another crowd greeted the players when they stopped at a suburban night club for dinner.

Everyone was looking for quarterback Indian Jack Jacobs, who almost fired the team to victory with brilliant passing.

"We want Jacobs," chanted the crowd.

"Just a minute," said coach George Trafton. "You don't want the meat before the potatoes, do you?"

It was so noisy, the usually talkative Trafton had to keep shouting for quiet.

"I can't hear myself think up here," he said.

Welcoming officials included Lieutenant-Governor J. S. McDiarmid of Manitoba and Mayor Garnet Coulter of Winnipeg.

Remember When—

Eddie Thompson of Toronto Balmy Beach was announced 14 years ago today as winner of the trophy for the ORFU player best combining sportsmanship and value to his team. The Sarnia Imperials that year—1939—won their ninth straight ORFU title, but Beaches broke the string the following season. Winners this year, Beaches lost to Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Grey Cup semi-final.

Keen Contests Seen In Church Loop Play

Park Street Midgets beat St. George's 3-1 Saturday at Civic to open the Church Hockey League schedule. Davis got all three markers for the winners, Walling, Cannon and Robinson each earning one assist. Moore got the losers goal. Teams:

ST. GEORGE'S: Steel, Hope, A. Warner, E. Warner, Quick, Moore, Busby, Stevens, P. Tushingham, Hunter, G. Warner, J. Tushingham, Laderach.

PARK ST.: Veavis, Cannon, Robinson, Walling, Grant, Davis, Scarfe, Londerville, Post, Lumbard, Gilles, Shearer.

George St. Midgets and St. John's drew 1-1 in their game. Floyd got one alone for George St. in the first frame, and Dunford finally tied it up in the third. Teams:

GEORGE ST.: Hayman, Reynolds, Roseborough, G. Milburn, J. Milburn, B. Dorrington, Lloyd, Frizzelle, Anderson, Mathews, Smillie, Dinsdale, Tetlock, Sorrie.

ST. JOHN'S: J. Lustic, MacFinaldy, Foster, D. Lustic, Dunford, Faulkner, Simpson, Parker, Graystock, Norris, Rishor, Park, Dunstan, Ellis, Riel, Wagester, Ray.

In bantam play, St. James and All Saints tied 1-1, Henwood scoring from Kelly in the third for St. James after Foy scored unassisted for All Saints in the second period. There were five penalties in the game, all the church contests being pretty clean in the opening round of the schedule. Referees were Batley, Woodcock Flint and Williams.

Curling News

Now that the Grey Cup final has come and gone, maybe curlers can give this curling business a little more attention.

The next big event coming up is the mixed rink bonspiel. It commences at nine o'clock sharp Wednesday morning. It looks as if we are going to have a capacity entry. All prizes are turkeys.

Dr. Edward wood and Mrs. Wood passing through to Ottawa after attending the Grey Cup game in Toronto, dropped into the rink Saturday evening. They were members of the club years ago, and were glad to renew old friendships.

Sullivan Scores As Bears Edge Reds 6-5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons saw their American Hockey League lead whittled down to two slim points as a result of two weekend defeats by the third-place Cleveland Barons.

Sunday Bisons were beaten 5-3 and Saturday they absorbed a 6-4 drubbing. In the only other Sunday game, second-place Hershey Bears edged Providence Reds 6-5 in overtime.

In Sunday's game at Buffalo, Bisons were ahead 3-0 on goals by Steve Wochy, Ken Hayden and Pete Babando—then things began to happen.

Two goals by Jack Gordon and another by Ray Ross put the teams on even terms. Then Chuck Blair scored with less than two minutes to play, to put Cleveland ahead. Cleveland's final goal was shoved into the empty net by Cal Stearns.

OVERTIME VICTORY

At Providence, Dunc Fisher's overtime tally broke a 5-5 stalemate and gave the Bears a gap-closing two points. Jack McIntyre led the Hershey scorers with two goals. Singletons were registered by Obie O'Brien, George Sullivan and Andy Branigan. Zellio Toppanzzini got two for the losing Reds. Other markers were credited to Ken Davies, Paul Gladu and Paul Larivee.

Saturday's scores were: Cleveland 6, Buffalo 4; Hershey 7, Providence 4; Syracuse 3, Pittsburgh 2.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

Once again, another Grey Cup football classic has been written into the colorful saga of one of Canada's most picturesque sports events, an epic struggle that annually attracts more far-flung attention and wider interest in these Dominions than perhaps any other sports event, possibly including the Stanley Cup finals.

And once again, this column raises a plaintive voice to enquire why and on what grounds the entire football populace of Canada's west, and a large proportion of the same hardy breed in the east, are excluded by mandate from viewing any part of this gridiron spectacle?

The answer to this is likely to be that Toronto's huge Varsity Stadium, with its 28,000 seats, can accommodate more people than any other bowl in Canada. If that's the answer, it isn't a good one because it contains two holes through which you could shoot a 250-pound line plunger.

The first gap in this line of thought, presuming it exists, is that in giving Toronto the monopoly on this game, several thousand Canadians, west and east, who couldn't afford a trip to Toronto, and probably couldn't secure a seat for the game if they got there, are shut out.

And these several thousand are the folks who, by giving their whole-hearted support to the teams of the Western Conference on the prairies, and the Big Four in the east, make the Grey Cup spectacle possible.

The second yawning gulf in the answer is financial. If the Grey Cup is to be made a medium for extracting the ultimate in dollars, then its practical proponents are missing a bet. If it were played on the same practical basis as the baseball World Series, or the hockey Stanley Cup, two ends would be served. Those who helped make the series possible would see the games, and the receipts of, say, a 3-game series, one east, two west, and vice versa in alternate years, would more than equal the returns from a single game.

There are those who urge that this is Canada's most gaudy, glittering and colorful sports drama of the year. We agree.

But we don't agree to the argument that it should be limited to one game, one city, or to the theory that it would cheapen the Cup finals to broaden the scope. It hasn't cheapened the world's baseball series or the Stanley Cup series in any noticeable way, and these give the fans who paid all season a chance to view not only the prologue, but the final drama. So it should be with the Grey Cup.

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Red Wings Lash Goalie Gelineau To Win 2 Games

By JIM BASTABLE, Canadian Press Staff Writer

If there was a place in professional hockey books for humiliated goalkeepers, Jackie Gelineau would be there. The big, strapping netminder, who left McGill four years ago for money and fame in the big time, was treated brutally by Detroit Red Wings in two National Hockey League games during the weekend. Chicagc Black Hawks probably are looking for another goalie. Gelineau, trying to make a comeback after one good year in the NHL, was beaten 18 times in the Chicago nets. The Red Wings, the murderers' row of hockey, beat the Hawks 9-0 Saturday and 9-4 Sunday.

In other league games, Montreal Canadiens lost 3-1 to Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday night and then travelled to New York Sunday where they dropped their first game this season against Rangers, 2-1. The Leafs lost 2-1 to Boston Bruins Sunday.

The outbreak of Detroit power against the weak Black Hawks was a staggering blow for the 23-year-old Gelineau. He was brought up to the Hawks last Friday from Quebec Aces of the Quebec Hockey League after Jean Marois, also of the Aces, let in 11 goals in two Hawk losses. They were substituting for goalie Al Rollins, out with chicken pox.

While fresh out of McGill University, Gelineau won the outstanding rookie award in 1949-0 season when he played for Boston Bruins. He was later traded to the Hawks and had been with Quebec ever since.

HOWE GETS TWO

It was a bonanza for the Wings. Gordie Howe, the league's individual scoring leader, counted two goals and an assist in the first game and a goal Sunday. That gave him 10 goals and 19 assists—29 points.

Defenceman Red Kelly scored two goals Saturday while John Wilson, Vic Stasiuk, Metro Prystai, Marty Pavelich and Bil Dineen got singles. Sunday, Dutch Reibel and John Wilson each scored two. Kelly added a goal, along with Pavelich, Prystai and Stasiuk.

The victories shot the Red Wings into the league lead with 31 points, one ahead of the Canadiens. The Black Hawks remained in last place with three wins and three ties in 26 games.

The Leafs, in third place with 29 points, were at their best for the game against Montreal, scoring two quick goals in the first period.

SCORED FOR LEAFS

Centre Rudy Migay, leftwinger Sid Smith and leftwinger Harry Watson scored for the Leafs. Defensive centre Johnny McCormack tallied the only Montreal goal when he beat netminder Harry Lumley at 12:38 of the second period.

It was a different story in Boston. The Leafs couldn't beat goalie Sugar Jim Henry until Migay poked the puck from Henry's gloves and slapped it into the nets at 15:09 of the third period. The Boston goals were scored in the second period by Leo Labine and Doug Mohns.

The Rangers, who have won seven games and tied three so far, whipped the Canadiens on second-period goals by Bones Raleigh and Camille Henry before 12,052 fans at Madison Square Garden.

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion rifled one past goaltender Johnny Bower at 17:39 of the final period on a three-way play with defenceman Dollard St. Laurent and leftwinger Dick Gamble.

In the Northern Ontario Association Senior A southern group, Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds took over first place with two week end victories over the Sault (Mich.) Indians. Saturday night the Hounds downed the Indians 4-2 in the Ontario city and Sunday night Johnny O'Flaherty registered his first shutout when the Hounds whitewashed the Indians 3-0 in the Michigan city. In the other game scheduled. North Bay Trappers downed Pembroke Lumber Kings 9-1 with Don Hogan scoring three for the winners.

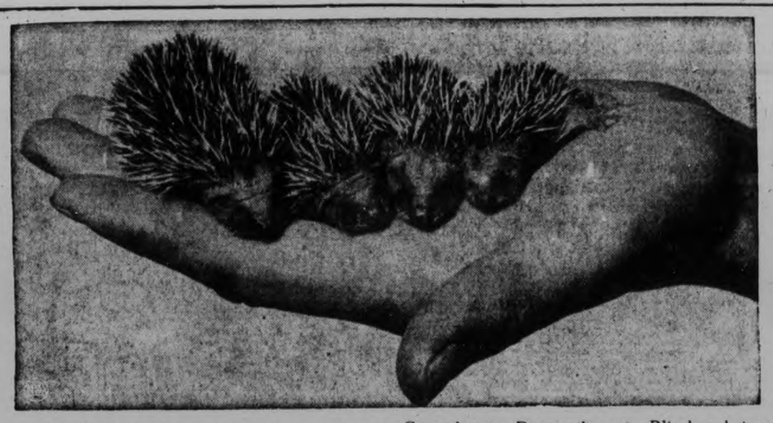
Drama Seminar Held By Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP)—More than 125 persons attended a Kitchener-Waterloo little theatre drama seminar here Saturday. Richard MacDonald, director of the Dominion Drama Festival, was guest of honor.

Delegates present were from little theatre groups in London, Chatham, Stratford, St. Thomas, Woodstock, St. Mary's, Galt, Elora, Guelph, Hamilton, Grimsby, Simcoe, Kitchener and Waterloo.

New Types Corn Now Developed

HARROW (CP)—Dr. G. F. H. Buckley of the federal government's experimental station here, says that during the last two years three types of hybrid corn were developed here. All are licenced for sale and production.



The varieties are harvic 485, hesco 427 and hesco 320.

Harvic 485 is a late-maturing hybrid suitable for grain only on certain areas of southwestern Ontario. It has been used for ensilage in central and eastern sections of the province.

Hesco 427 is a high-yielding hybrid of early to medium maturity, slightly earlier than Wisconsin 605.

Hesco 320 is a considerably early maturer coming between Wisconsin 416 and 531. It is suitable for grain corn in both eastern and northern sections of the province.

Seed of harvic 485 and hesco 427 are being produced commercially under designations of warwick 800 and warwick 650. Hesco 320 is not yet in commercial production.

1954 American Trucks Will Have "New Look"

DETROIT (AP)—The auto industry is glamorizing its trucks.

Eye-appeal is emphasized in all the 1954-model commercial vehicles so far introduced. Lavish use of chrome, in interiors and exteriors, and varying colors, including two-tones, are among the characteristics of the new vehicles.

They are even finishing interiors in two tones to complement exterior finishes. This extends through the seat and door upholstery.

There are sound reasons for the beauty treatment, truck makers say. Besides sales appeal there is prestige for owners and an incentive to drivers to give the attractive truck proper care.

Equally important, the manufacturers say, is the "family interest." They explain that many small business men and farmers need vehicles that can be used for both business and family transportation.

While refinement applies more to the smaller pick-up models, it has been carried through to the heavy-duty vehicles.

There is emphasis also on increased ease for driver and passenger. Seats have been designed for comfort. Instrument panels have been made more easily distinguishable for night driving. One-piece wrap-around windshields also have been adapted to trucks.

Engineering advances include wider adaptation of automatic transmissions and power steering, and increased engine horsepower.

GMC trucks now have the "silent power" muffler. Two years in the making, it eliminates objectionable exhaust noise, long one of the foremost problems of the trucking industry, without reducing engine power.

Truck manufacturers this year probably will make close to 1,200,000 vehicles of varying sizes and hauling capacities.

Large-volume producers include Chevrolet, Ford, International, GMC and Dodge.

LEAKING AMMONIA

A defective electric refrigerator at J. R. Boyd's home, 696 Park St. N., began to leak ammonia fumes late Sunday night and firemen were called. They carried the refrigerator outside and threw open the doors and windows to give the house an airing.

SNOW OUTSIDE CITY

Automobiles coming into the city on Sunday night between eight and nine o'clock were covered with snow while in the city there was no sign of snow. Apparently there had been a fall between Bewdley and Peterborough.

OPEN HOUSE PLANNED

An open house for the inspection of the Cameron St. public school is being planned by the board of education for Wednesday evening. This school completed this year is a four-room building which has received much favorable publicity in all parts of Ontario on account of its low cost per classroom.

RURAL NOMINATIONS

Three more towns in Peterborough county are holding their nomination meetings today. They are Dummer and Harvey, 1 p.m. to 2 p.m., and North Monaghan, 7.30 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. Present reeves are Stewart Clysdale, of Dummer, Charles Flynn, of Harvey, and Willard Waterman, of North Monaghan.

CORRECTION

In the account of Friday night's nomination meeting, The Examiner on Saturday quoted Norman Graham, mayoralty candidate, as saying the son of the parks department superintendent was paid $1.50 an hour. This was a misquotation. Mr. Graham said the youth was employed by the parks department at 95 cents an hour and then transferred to the department of works at $1.10 an hour.

ARBITRATION CONTINUES

The arbitration case between Thomas Hughes and the city, over the land expropriated by the city for the building of Kenner collegiate, resumed today with Judge John de N. Kennedy presiding as arbitrator. The lengthy hearing began more than two years ago before the late Judge S. L. Smoke. W. J. Arthur Fair, QC, is counsel for Hughes and Wilfrid Huycke, QC, is counsel for the city.

Car, Truck Collide; Four Injured

Couple, Child Suffer Head Injuries North of Bancroft

BANCROFT (ENS)—Four people were injured in a collision Sunday afternoon between a half-ton pickup truck and a late-model car on the Papineau Lake road, 17 miles north of here.

Malcolm Prentice of Maple Leaf was driving north in his truck at 3.30 p.m. and as he rounded a slight bend in the road he came into headon collision with a southbound car driven by Lorne Kuno of New Carlow.

Mrs. Prentice was the most seriously injured of the four people involved. She was taken to the Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, where she was found to have undetermined hear injuries. Her condition is good.

THREE TREATED

Three others received outpatient treatment at the hospital: the Prentices' four-month old baby head injuries; Mr. Prentice, head injuries; and Kuno, chest injuries.

Both the car and the pickup truck were heavily damaged.

Opp Constable John Hawkins of Bancroft investigated.

Reduce Charge When Evidence Drinking Given

After hearing evidence the accused drank "only two or three ounces" of rum November 15 before being arrested for drunk driving, Magistrate W. R. Philp reduced the charge to driving while impaired against Stanley Kostoff, 23, of Port Hope today.

Kostoff was fined $75 and costs of $5.00 after the magistrate commented the case was one of many in which it is "always somewhat difficult to determine the extent of intoxication."

PCs Edward Patterson and Arthur Beardsmore stopped Kostoff's car the early morning of November 15 after seeing and hearing it screech around the corner of Hunter and Water Sts at a "high rate of speed" and watching it zig-zag along Hunter.

When Kostoff was stopped, he was found to stagger noticeably and smell strongly of alcohol.

Kostoff who had come up from Port Hope with a friend, Andrew Murphy, said they had consumed a part bottle of rum while parked by the roadside west of Peterborough. In transferring the liquor from the bottle to a pop bottle, some spilled on the accused's clothing, he said.

He admitted having the habit of screeching his car wheels on corners but didn't agree with officers who said his driving was erratic and he staggered in walking

His friend, Murphy, corroborated his testimony regarding the alcohol and driving and said Kostoff's actions were normal at all times.

On that evidence, the charge was reduced and the accused convicted.

Nassau, Bahamas Interested In City's Parking System

City Engineer E. A. Chalmers is receiving an enquiry from the chairman of the public works department of Nassau, Bahamas, for details of Peterborough's central parking system. "A friend of mine was here from Nassau some time ago," Ford Warren, manager of the Bank of Montreal, told The Examiner today, "and was so impressed by Peterborough's parking arrangements that he decided to report his impressions to the chairman of the public works there on his return."

"The information they want is a general outline of how we have developed a parking area in the centre of the city, with details of the number of parking spaces, a design of the parking layout, the location in relation to the centre of the city, cost to the public, and generally an outline of the project."

Mr. Warren said that other cities nearer home have been impressed by Peterborough's establishment of parking accommodation.

"Probably the reputation of Peterborough for progressive planning of parking accommodation has now reached the farthest distance from the city in the plans which Nassau is now to consider when the plans prepared by Mr. Chalmer reach the island's public works department," Mr. Warren said.

Piano Dedicated At Trinity Church

During the Sunday morning service at Trinity United Church, a piano was dedicated to the memory of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Skitch. The piano was a gift of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Skitch, who died in May and June, 1951, were both members of Trinity choir, Mr Skitch sang in the choir for more than 50 years and was a member of the church board. Mrs. Skitch was a member of the Woman's Association and of the Women's Missionary Society of the church

The piano is an upright grand model and is finished to match the woodwork of the church. Mrs. Robert Baker played the piano, which was used during the service in conjunction with the organ and during the dedication ceremony.

The Minister, the Rev. Gordon Maxwell performed the dedication.

Envious Fiction On Rural Life

A somewhat envious fiction of rural life is the notion that when November disappears from the calendar and snow begins to fall, farmers relax until spring is near.

"This has been a wonderful season for farm work," F. C. Paterson, agricultural representative, said today. "There is practically nothing left of the crop, except perhaps a few stocks of corn. Young cattle were still in the fields no later than Sunday. Fall wheat has a strong green top and is going into the winter in good condition, as are also the meadows, old and new.

"Maybe some people do think that nothing else faces the farmer. He has been working for weeks on all kinds of jobs, ditching and draining, fixing up stables and barns, lanes graded or otherwise improved, wood cutting, although quite a number are now burning oil."

HE IS NEVER DONE

Farm work is just never done, especially for the enterprising farmer who tries to rate value on his time and put it into the repairing and maintenance of his farm plant and property.

Part of the general chore has been trying to kill weeds. Some of the farmers of Wellington county have been over their land two or three times in their effort to destroy weeds. Growth has been co-operative. Fine weather stimulated weeds surprisingly until they were vulnerable to soil operations.

Cattle in the Peterborough district have been out in the weather every day this month with the exception of Saturday, November 14, the weekend the snow came.

$412,879 Flood Aid On Way To Holland

TORONTO (CP)—The largest individual shipment of relief supplies for Dutch flood victims, $412,879 worth of farm equipment, today left the port of Toronto for Rotterdam.

Charles LaFerle, honorary secretary of the Canadian National European Flood Relief Fund, presented the shipment to the Netherlands ambassador, A. H. J. Lovink. It consistes of 250 tractors, 10 combines, 10 tandem disc harrows and 57 cases of wrenches for farm areas inundated by last February's flood.

To date, $2,469,523 of $3,102,004 contributed in Canada has been spent for flood relief supplies in the Netherlands and England, the Canadian Red Cross said in a statement.

Housing Discussed At Ottawa Meeting

Executive officers of seven study groups, representing more than 90 Peterborough families, attended a two-day housing conference in Ottawa during the weekend.

The conference was sponsored by the Institute of Social Action. There were 300 delegates, representing member groups of the institute in Toronto, Hamilton, Peterborough, Thorold, St. Catharines, Lindsay, Kitchener and Cobourg.

The conference was held to study new developments in co-operative home building.

ARSON TRY FOILED—Quick arrival of Lakefield firemen resulted in a minimum of damage to the Coronation Inn after an unidentified arsonist set fire to basement joists Sunday night. Police and Fire Chief Allan Clarke inspect damage (top) and the crude methods used in attempting to fire the restaurant. Wood, normally piled on the floor, is seen stuck between pipes and a window. Although one series of matches were ignited, the six shown stuck between beams (bottom) remained unlit as evidence of the amateurish attempt. Police at top are Lakefield Chief Price Morris and OPP Corporal Jack Munroe.

City Trust Closes Books With Tribute To Chairman

Peterborough City Trust Commission closed its books last week as a final formality preceding its dissolution after nearly a century of service to the municipality. The members present were: Vincent Eastwood, chairman; James Hamilton, T. E. Ephgrave and James E. Gillespie.

The Commission ceases to exist on December 31, and in returning their trust to the ratepayers they passed a resolution recording their appreciation of the leadership and chairmanship of Mr. Eastwood.

RESOLUTION PASSED

The resolution by Mr. Hamilton, seconded by Mr. Ephgrave, was as follows:

Whereas Mr. Vincent Eastwood was appointed by the city council of Peterborough as a member of the City Trust in 1909 and since then continuously as a commissioner of the trust;

And, whereas Mr. Eastwood was elected chairman of the trust by his fellow commissioners in January 1920 and has served continuously as chairman for the past 33 years;

And, whereas by Mr. Eastwood's wide knowledge and experience in financial and business affairs, more particularly his wisdom in investment principles, has contributed most effectively to the marked success of the trust and its operations each year since his first association with the trust;

And, whereas Mr. Eastwood has been most zealous in guarding and assuring in all the many transactions of the trust the best interests of the trust and the financial interest of the citizens of Peterborough;

Therefore, it is resolved that the sincere thanks and appreciation of his fellow commissioners of the Peterborough City Trust be extended to Mr. Vincent Eastwood at this time, in recognition of the great service and leadership he has always given to promote the best interest of this trust, and has thus aided so effectively the progress and security of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough."

City Firemen Get 3 Calls

City firemen were busy around Saturday midnight as they received three calls in three quarters of an hour.

At 11.55 p.m. an overheated oil heater was reported at Stanley Murduff's home, 599 Aylmer St. No extinguisher was required.

Then at 12.35 a.m. Sunday the firemen went to Roland Johnston's home at 188 Rubidge St. A discarded cigarette butt had fallen on a chesterfield and a hole was burned in one of the cushions. The house was filled with smoke. Again, no extinguisher was required.

At 12.40 a.m. they drove to the Hunter St. bridge where they flushed away some gasoline that had drained from the gasoline tank of a car owned by Neil E. Sinclair, 509 Braidwood Ave. Sinclair's car was in an accident and overturned on the bridge, causing the gasoline to spill out.

Crude Attempt Made To Fire Lakefield Coronation Inn Early Alarm Saves Building

Unlit Matches Found Placed Between Joists In Basement of Restaurant; Wood and Paper Are Stacked Nearby

LAKEFIELD (By Staff Reporter)—An unknown arsonist fired Lakefield's Coronation Inn Sunday night, then fled what must have been only minutes before an alert upstairs apartment resident notified firemen. Only slight damage was sustained by basement joists and the restaurant wall before firemen doused the blaze. Inspectors from the Ontario Fire Marshal's office are expected to make investigations today. After preliminary investigations immediately following the fire, police said: "If it is an arson attempt, it's a very poor one."

FIND UNLIT MATCHES

Unlit matches were stuck in between basement joists, wood piled in a window, paper stuck in wall crevices and a can of cleaning fluid left nearby.

At about 7.20, half an hour after proprietor Gratton Harris left for his home in Peterborough, Mrs. David Webster, a second floor apartment resident, smelled smoke and called Fire Chief Allan Clarke.

When the chief arrived, he traced the odor as coming from the downstairs store and turned in the fire alarm.

With other firemen, he broke in through the rear door and they quickly extinguished the flames. It was then the chief discovered the unburnt matches and other signs pointing to a deliberate attempt to set the fire.

POLICE SUMMONED

He summoned police and Lakefield Chief Police Price Morris, OPP Corporal Jack Munroe and Constable D. K. Ross arrived to inspect the crude arson try.

Wood had been taken from a pile on the floor and jammed on a window ledge where it was held in place by a plumbing pipe.

About seven inches from the wood the first set of a series of matches were stuck in between double ceiling beams about an inch apart. They were unlit. Two other rafters, about 40 inches distance, had 33 matches, ignited and burned.

Further on unlit paper was jammed between the beams. About four sets of joists were damaged by the flames which then crept up the wall into the restaurant, sending warning smoke up to the second floor.

Proprietor Harris who was summoned when the fire was discovered said he left the building about 6:50 for Peterborough. For a space of five minutes at 6:30, he was absent to take an employee, Mrs. V. Crowe, home.

Just prior to taking her home, he visited the cellar but noticed nothing amiss.

There was no sign of damage, other than that caused when firemen entered, to indicate a forced entry by the arsonist. The firefighters replaced the window they broke in entering after extinguishing the flames.

The wood in the window belonged to a pile on the floor, Harris said. He said he "hadn't any idea" who set the blaze or why.

The building and contents are insured.

About five or six years ago, a fire in the same building was caused when a gasoline stove exploded, forcing residents out and resulting in extensive damage.

Causeway Cost $192,000 At Pigeon Lake

Engineering estimates on the cost of building a causeway across Pigeon lake and replacing the Kinmount bridge were heard at the closing session of the county council. No action was taken and both reports were referred to the incoming 1954 county council.

The two reports were a joint engineer effort by Jack Kean of Peterborough and H. D. Wilford, his opposite number in Victoria county.

$19,200 FOR EACH COUNTY

Total cost of the causeway was estimated at $192,000. Assuming the department of highways gave their approval and granted the usual 80 per cent subsidy, each of the two counties would have to raise $19,200.

"This estimate is exclusive of any cost which might be entailed by federal requirements, such as a swing span or high-level bridge," said County Engineer Kean, "but it is reasonable to assume that anything such as this would be financed by the federal government."

Victoria county workmen took some sounding in 1949, along the centre line of the proposed causeway, which corresponds with the centre line of the old floating bridge that was broken up many years ago. The soundings indicated an average depth of 12 feet over the 5,000 foot distance between the Ennismore and Emily shores.

HOW COSTS FIGURED

A breakdown of the costs: rock fill (132,000 cubic yards at $1.10 a yard $145,200; clay top dressing, six inches deep, $1,680; gravel wearing surface (2,800 cubic yards at 90 cents a yard) $2,520; 10,000 feet of guide rail at $1.50 a foot, $15,000; and outlet pipes (200 lin. feet at $50 a foot), $10,000. Plus 10 per cent for contingencies, $17,000. Total, $192,000.

Mr. Kean said that, if council wanted, further sounding could be made with a diamond core drill this winter, after ice had formed over the lake.

"A few extra holes could also be drilled at other points to see if there is anything to be gained by choosing a slightly different centre line," said Mr. Kean.

Merchants and residents in Bobcaygeon village and Verulam township are the strongest advocates of a causeway that would

Ralph Toohy (77), Hamilton flying wing, stands between goal posts.

Teepees Blank Marlboros In 3-0 Triumph

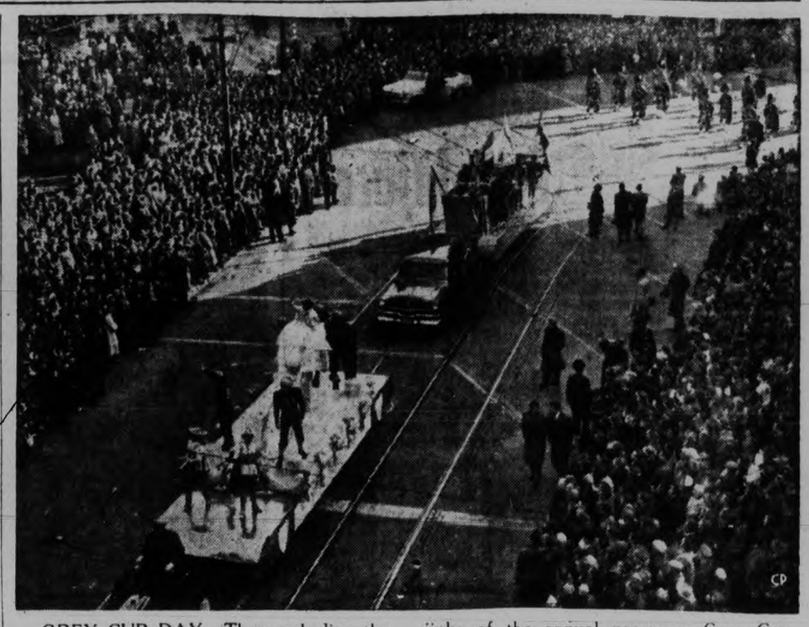
By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Catharines TeeFees continued their domination of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scene Saturday night with a convincing 3-0 victory over the fifth-place Toronto Marlboros.

While the Teepees were whitewashing the Maple Leaf farm club, Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts and Hamilton Tiger-Cubs fought to a 6-6 overtime deadlock.

Sunday, Marlies scored a 3-1 victory against Greenshirts and St. Michael's College Majors downed Guelph Biltmores 7-2.

Hugh Barlow led St. Catharines in the Saturday win with a pair of goals. Pete Korval notched the other.



SPARKS GREENSHIRTS

Garry Collins' three goals sparked Kitchener-Waterloo Saturday and Greig Hicks, Graham Joyce and Glen Cressman added singles. Ted Reid scored twice for Hamilton, his feat equalled by Ed Louttit. Joe Zorica and Mark McAlendin added the others.

Tom McCarthy tallied twice for Marlboros Sunday, Wally Maxwell getting the third goal and Paul McPherson scoring Greenshirts' lone marker.

Dick Duff, Paul Knox and Bill Colvin led the St. Michael's attack with two goals each. Defenceman Marc Reaume fired the other. Bob Fornhan and John Gillis notched the Guelph goals.

Tuesday night Guelph is at St. Catharines; Marlboros at Kitchener; and Galt at Quebec.

GREY CUP DAY—Thousands line the streets to watch the floats, bands and hijinks of the annual pre-game Grey Cup parade to Toronto's city hall.

Orioles Will Get Choice Of 4,100 Minor Players

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Baltimore Orioles, sole heirs to the estate of the late St. Louis Browns, get first pick of about 4,100 eligible minor league players today as the major league opens a five-day series of meetings.

All indications point to a light draft, comparable with the 1952 selections when only 11 players were grabbed for $120,000, the lowest since 1945.

Baltimore, successor to the Browns who finished last in the American League and thus first in the draft, is expected to dig into the player reservoirs of Brooklyn, New York Yankees or the St. Louis Cards.

The Dodgers have loaded talent on their Montreal roster in the International League with other choice material available at St. Paul, Ft. Worth and Mobile. However, only one man can be taken from any one club unless he happens to be on the unrestricted list.

SURE CHOICES SEEN

Rumors around the hotel lobby already swarming with baseball men for the 52nd annual convention of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (Minors), hinted an early pick would be outfielder Wally Moon, a 23-year-old lefthanded batter who hit .308 for the Cards' Rochester farm last season.

Second baseman Forrest Jacobs, a .283 hitter at the Dodgers' Ft. Worth link, now on the Montreal list, was believed sure draft bait. The Yankees had such men as Harry Schaeffer, Johnny Kucab, Jim Finigan and Jim Engleman among others on their Kansas City eligible list.

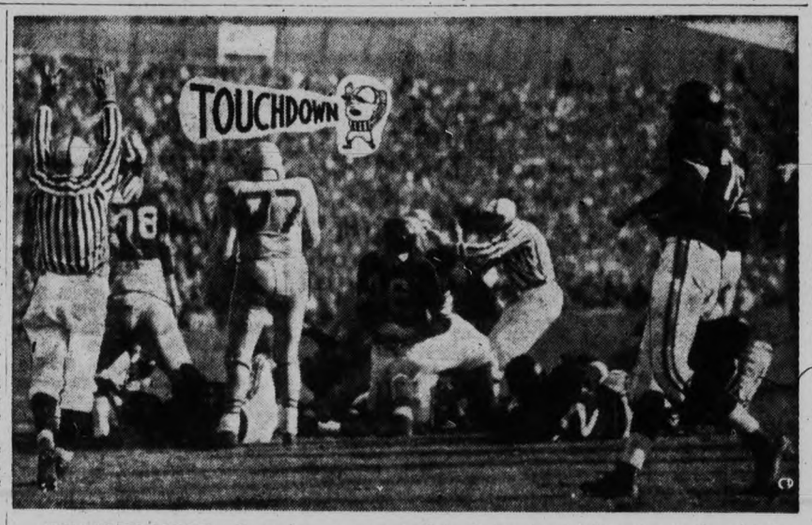
More Traffic

EDMONTON (CP) — Automobile passages through Alberta customs points showed an increase of more than six per cent in the first eight months of 1953. At Coutts, Atla., the gain was almost 10 per cent.

City Celebrates Ti-Cat Win With Dances

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's happy citizens thronged the downtown area here until the early hours Sunday, celebrating their Tiger-Cats Grey Cup victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday.

Police and firemen were kept busy as spontaneous street dances and snake chains tied up traffic and small bonfires were set in and around the heart of the city.



Trash cans were set afire and rolled into the street. Cars were rocked and bus trolley poles were unhitched from the overhead wires.

Most of the celebrants were teen-agers whom police let burn out their energy. No arrests were reported.

FIGHTS BREAK OUT

Several minor fights broke out as automobile drivers jumped from their cars to grapple with youngsters trying to tip the vehicles. Firemen at times threatened to turn hoses on the crowds.

Police blamed much of the demonstration on the part of the Tiger-Cat team which failed to show up for a planned civic celebration in honor of their 12-6 victory.

1953 Cup Match Sets Records For Individual, Team Passing

By ED SIMON

TORONTO (CP)—The 1953 Grey Cup game was the "passingest" Dominion football final in history.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Hamilton Tiger-Cats threw more passes, completed more and dropped more than any two cup finalists before them. Indian Jack Jacobs, Winnipeg's rubber-armed quarterback, set four individual passing records.

Jacobs threw 46 passes, 12 more than Edmonton's Claude Arnold tried against Toronto Argonauts last year. He completed 28, erasing the previous mark of 19 set in 1949 by Keith Spaith of Calgary Stampeders. His completion average of .609 compared with Spaith's 1949 mark of .594 and he gained 326 yards on passes to Arnold's 261 in 1952.

Between them, the two clubs tried 69 passes, compared with 53 in the 1952 final. They completed 39 against 30 in the 1949 Calgary-Montreal game and they missed 30, just one more than went astray in last year's Edmonton-Toronto game.

MISSED ONE RECORD

Jacobs' 18 unsuccessful throws matched Arnold's 1952 mark. The only individual record he missed was the average gain of 29.4 yards a pass set by Toronto's Nobby Wirkowski last year. His average of 11.6 fell far short.

The Indian's passing display wiped out his dismal showing in the 1950 final against Toronto when he completed only two in 11 tries for 21 yards. In Saturday's first quarter, his poorest of the game, he netted 44 yards on four successful efforts in nine attempts.

Neill Armstrong, Winnipeg's offensive end, was the busiest of Jacobs' receivers. He was the target for 14 throws and caught eight for a total yardage of 123, topping both clubs in all three departments. His average gain of 15.4 yards was topped by Hamilton's Vito Ragazzo with 28.3 and Winnipeg's Keith Pearce, 21.5.

SONGIN'S PASS LONGEST

Hamilton quarter Ed Songin's 56-yard touchdown pass to Ragazzo was the longest gain of the day.

The game's emphasis on passing showed up in the statistics on ground plays. Not since 1946, when Toronto defeated Winnipeg 28-6 with a running attack that netted only 82 yards, has a club been held to anything resembling the 96 yards gained by the Bombers on ground play.

The total ground yardage of 254 for both clubs is another low since 1946, when Winnipeg and Toronto combined for 228.

Saturday's busiest ball-carrier was Winnipeg's Gerry James, whose combined yardage on 23 plunges, passes and runbacks was 167. Next were Hamilton's Bernie Custis with 124 yards and Armstrong with 123.

Tiger-Cat fullback Merle Hapes was tops on running plays with 51 yards, a yard more than Custis. James picked up 103 yards on runbacks to 51 for Custis and 45 for Hamilton's Dick Brown.

A 21-yard gallop by Custis and a 20-yard run by teammate Royall Bailey were the best gains on the ground. James had the longest runback of a kickoff, 33 yards, while Brown ran back a Jacobs punt for 16.

HAMILTON (CP)—Three soccer teams were honored Saturday by the Southern Ontario Soccer League during its annual meeting here.

Ti-Cats Key Man Tells How It Was Done In Last Play

TORONTO (CP)—Lou Kusserow, Hamilton Tiger-Cats' key man in the last play of Saturday's Grey Cup final, told about it in a matter-of-fact way in the noisy Hamilton dressing room.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers, on the short end of a 12-6 score, were only four yards out. Indian Jack Jacobs, whose passing had put the Bombers there, went for another pass on second down. Tom Casey was his target.

"Neill Armstrong was my man," said Kusserow. "But somehow I figured Jacobs would throw to Casey. Then as he made ready to throw I left Armstrong and went for Casey. I hit him just as he touched the ball. If Jacobs had switched and thrown to Armstrong, Winnipeg would have had a touchdown."

The pass was incomplete, the ball spurting away from Casey. There was a pile-up on the ball short of the goal line and the game was over.

Coach Carl Voyles, smiling broadly, said: "I think we had the edge all the way. We were never behind. I think we should have had two or three more touchdowns in the first half."

BOMBERS DEJECTED

The Bombers appeared to have taken the defeat hard as they moved slowly and wearily into their dressing room. Tackle Buddy Tinsley appeared to be hardest hit.

Clipping tape from his ankles, the big lineman rubbed already-red eyes, looked up and said:

"I think we could have won if there had been one more play. That clock seemed to go awful fast in that last quarter."

Several other players also remarked on how fast the time seemed to go. Neill Armstrong remarked:

JUST SEEMED THAT WAY

"I guess the clock wasn't going any faster than usual. It just seems that way when play is so close."

Neill was holding his side as he undressed. He suffered either broken ribs or a torn cartilage early in the second quarter.

Coach George Trafton called the injury "the turning point" in the game.

"We had to take him (Armstrong) off defence and that's when they scored the winning touchdown over Geoff Crain," said the burly Trafton.

"It was quite a spot to put a rookie in, but you've got to put them in some time. Let's not take anything away from Crain though, he played a great ball game and redeemed himself later by intercepting a pass."

Cancer Causes Death Of World Judge

ZURICH (CP)—Sir Benegal Narsing Rau of India, a judge of the world court at The Hague, died of intestinal cancer in a hospital here early today. He was 66.

Sir Benegal reached the peak of his career as India's spokesman at the United Nations during the tense early days of the Korean war.

After serving as Security Council president in June, 1950, he delivered one of the most controversial speeches of his career when the United Nations debated crossing the 38th parallel.

Echoing Prime Minister Nehru's warning that crossing the parallel would provoke Red Chinese intervention, Sir Benegal eloquently pleaded India's stand against any action "destined to widen hostilities."

SERVED AS CHAIRMAN

During a three-year UN career which ended with his elevation to the world court in May, 1952, he served as chairman of the UN atomic energy sub-committee and won General Assembly election to the UN international law commission.

The Indian jurist was one of the candidates for the 1952 Nobel prize.

He played an important part in the constitutional arrangements which led up to India's independence in 1947.

Life Of Moses Topic At Club Meeting

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Herbert Hoard of Havelock was the guest speaker at a meeting of the Rush Point Community Club held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Cora Curtis.

Mr. Hoard gave a synopsis of Moses' life. He dealt with three (40-year periods), the first: Moses' birth and education; second: God's call and Moses' training period, and third: his great leadership and law-giving. In closing Mr. Hoard read the poem, "The Burial of Moses".

Cartoonist Dies On Ship Going Home

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP)—Milt Gross, cartoonist and author famous for his "Nize Baby" and "Dunt Esk" stories and drawings, died Sunday aboard the liner Lurline, en route home from Hawaii, a son here said.

Gross, 58, succumbed to a coronary occlusion, according to word received by Jerrold Gross, one of three sons.

Jerrold said his father and mother, Mrs. Anne Gross, were returning from a two-week vacation in Honolulu.

The elder Gross' cartoons were widely circulated and his books were best sellers some 15 years ago. He had been drawing since he was 12.

ONCE OFFICE BOY

Once an office boy for a New York newspaper, he graduated as a syndicated cartoonist almost overnight, and his stories for years influenced American slang. His books of humor were written in Jewish dialect.

In 1945 he retired as a cartoonist but in recent years he spent much of his time painting.

Gross' last cartoon strip for newspapers, some eight years ago, was "That's My Pop."

American Creator

Tinker, Taylor... Everything He Helps Makes Life Easy

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — If you haven't been touched by the creative works of Raymond Loewy you probably live in a cave and wash at a spring. Even then, take a look at the soap. Loewy may have designed the wrapper.

A handsomely groomed man who falls far short of looking his 60 years, Loewy is listed in "Who's Who" as an industrial designer. But the definition is as incomplete as describing the world as a planet.

Loewy is an engineer, artist, planner, stylist, philosopher, cook, gourmet and admirer extraordinary of beauty in everything from women to locomotives. He directed his dreams into practical channels and—in an off-hand manner, as if it didn't really matter—made a fortune.

A DECEPTIVE CALM

See him in the offices of Raymond Loewy Associates, high above Madison avenue, and you receive a benedictory sense of well-being. There are designing boards up there somewhere, but largely it seems to be a place of glass and light and doorless, lagoon - like rooms in which are suspended shapely objects, some inanimate, but others beautifully feminine. They are employees. The atmosphere of relaxation is deceptive, however.

For in the last 26 years Loewy and Associates have designed or redesigned nearly everything. Styling trains and locomotives, styling buses and kitchen equipment, making ships more beautiful, more comfortable and safer; designing at least 28 department stores.

Loewy's fame sprang from a deep aversion to following orthodox advice. Born in France and a decorated veteran of the First World War, he had some art and engineering training when he arrived in the United States in 1919, dead broke. A good position with the General Electric Co. awaited him. Instead, he launched into a field in which he was totally ignorant—fashion illustration. He succeeded to the tune of $40,000 a year.

In 1928, firmly established as a fashion illustrator, he suddenly dropped everything and became an industrial engineer, a line also unknown to him—or to anyone else. He was one of its pioneers. The great depression didn't hurt him, because those were years when good ideas to sell slow-moving products were at a premium, and Loewy had them.

Recently his specialty has been automobiles. Since 1937 he's been designing for Studebaker, which this year introduced his low, rakish "continental" model.

He visualizes a three - wheeled taxi that can turn on a dime as the answer to city traffic congestion.

Truck popularity is no accident. It is the result of year-after-year of faithful service, and of meeting the complete satisfaction of every user. Then, the users get excited enough to tell their friends. They try, buy and tell their friends. Next thing you know, that truck becomes the fastest selling make on the road.

And that's what happened with Chevrolet trucks. Word got around the trucking industry that from the standpoint of economy, dependability, power and comfort, Chevrolet trucks are tops. As a result, Chevrolet has outsold all other makes year after year, and today it still is the top selling truck in Canada.

Why not discover the reasons behind Chevrolet's outstanding popularity for yourself? Ask your dealer about the great features and the amazing value. Then ask a Chevrolet truck owner about the penny-pinching economy and mile-after-mile dependability. You'll find that you're missing a money-making bet, if you're not using a Chevrolet truck.

Experts Feel All Russian Gold Could'nt Crack Official Market

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Well-qualified Canadian experts feel it would take more than all the gold in Russia to crack the official market for the yellow metal.

But increased shipments of Russian gold, particularly into European centres, have aroused curiosity in Ottawa and other world capitals.

Reports are that heavier supplies from Soviet vaults, combined with other economic developments have resulted in a sharp price drop in the so-called free and black markets overseas.

Prices in these markets, which cater mostly to private hoarders, ran as high as $60 an ounce in postwar years. Recently prices dropped to about a fraction of a dollar higher than the official price of $35 an ounce (U.S. funds).

DISCOURAGED EXPORTERS

This decline has discouraged Canadian exporters. The federal government allows exports of de-based non-monetary gold into free markets, but mines involved are ineligible for subsidies.

Most mines which gave up the subsidies for the high-priced free markets now have returned to their former status.

Canadian experts say these factors are involved in the sharp price drop:

1. Easing of international tensions. Some hoarders are attracted to gold when they fear the destruction of national currencies through war.

2. Fewer buyers. China was once a big black market for gold. Apparently the Red regime is cracking down on hoarders.

3. Increased world supplies, including that from Russia.

NEW POLICY

The movement of Russian gold into western Europe coincides with Russia's reported new policy of concentrating on heavier production and imports of consumer goods.

Though the exact extent of the Soviet gold stockpile is unknown, it has been reported repeatedly in the Western world as possibly among the world's largest.

She may be using the gold to buy currencies of other countries in order to import more consumer goods. Or she may be using the gold as a tool to depress the western economy as part of basic Communist policy to overthrow capitalism.

Qualified Canadian experts are inclined to the former view.

'It would take more than all the gold in Russia to break the basic price," an expert said.

May Overhaul Parliamentary Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — Rules governing the daily business of Parliament may be overhauled this session.

The revision will be investigated by an all-party committee established last week and expected to start work in January.

A similar committee met last session and one recommendation was adopted. This changed sitting hours from 3 p.m. to 11 p.m. to 2:30 to 10 p.m., with a dinner recess from 6 to 8 p.m.

This step cut weekly sitting hours from 27 to 25½. The House does not sit Wednesday nights.

The committee also suggested the Commons should hold morning sittings if the throne speech debate is not concluded in two or three weeks after the opening of Parliament. This suggestion was not approved.

MORNING SESSIONS?

However, the government may ask the House to sit mornings if the current throne speech debate continues much longer.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said last Friday he understands all parties want the rules studied to ascertain if modifications can be made to expedite business.

Opposition leader Drew urged a revision to bring about orderly presentation of government legislation. He suggested that committees be set up early in the session and given greater power to conduct investigations. He also urged that departmental estimates be referred to committees for detailed examination.

Only external affairs appropriations now are referred t oa committee for study.

POINTS OF STUDY

The committee is expected to consider:

1. Whether the present 40-minute limit on speeches should be cut to 30 minutes.

2. Adoption of fixed maximum periods for major debates.

3. Elimination of debates on government resolutions preceding introduction of money bills. The debates would take place on second reading—approval in principle—stages of the bills.

4. Adoption of one day a week to table written replies to questions placed on the order paper. Questions now are answered three times a week.

Mr. Drew indicated he might oppose any move to cut the length of speeches.

Attack On Disease

Air Force Unit Always at War Shoots Bugs, Not Airplanes

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

WIESBADEN (AP)—There's a United States air force unit stationed near here that will never shoot down an enemy jet or bomb an enemy target.

The USAF Fourth Epidemilogical Flight has one mission: to prevent disease.

A little outfit with a big name, it always has planes at its disposal to spray DDT or to carry flight personnel to danger spots where epidemics threaten to cripple the defence effort.

U. S. personnel at Nourasseur, French Morocco, were having malaria trouble recently. The Fourth went to work. A short time later Arabs in the area were kicking up a fuss about minnows in the water wells.

The fourth sprayed a mixture of DDT and oil over mosquito-breeding potholes, but native wells were another problem because DDT isn't potable. Harmless minnows were the answer. Stocked in the wells by the air force, they snapped up mosquito larvae, thus killing off the greatest source of malaria before it got started.

STICKY END

Arabs are accustomed to the minnows now. But another problem has come up: a lot of minnows are ending up in Arab stew pots.

Meanwhile the Nourasseur malaria problem has been whipped.

The Fourth is a powerhouse of scientific talent. Capt. John O. Wells, Jr., flight commander, holds a medical degree from Tulane University and a master's degree in public health. Lieut. Lawrence A. Irvine, a graduate bacteriologist, is working for his doctorate in Germany. Lieut. Donald H. Hamburg is a veterinarian. Other ranks are made up of trained technicians.

Their regular area is continental Europe, but they are called in wherever needed. Some time ago a U. S. airbase near Manchester, England, was having too much dysentery. Officials suspected food handling was the cause.

The Fourth flew to England and put on a touring show to demonstrate how food should be handled, checked dish washing and plumbing facilities, talked with civilian employees and made pointed recommendations.

The dysentery problem disappeared.

London Critics Praise Young Canadian Actor

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A young Canadian actor stepped into the unlikely role of a slum-district barrow boy—and the London stage had a new candidate for stardom.

So convincingly did 24-year-old Neil McCallum of Saskatoon fit the part that one of London's well-known critics, Harold Hobson, paid him the compliment of a lengthy review.

McCallum, a hard-working Scots Canadian, appeared in "The Dance Dress," a play about a poverty-stricken young couple whose groping after the finer things in life leads to murder. Critics found the story thin but nearly all, including the reviewer of the Communist Daily Worker, had a word of praise for McCallum.

"SURPRISING MERIT"

Hobson was the most enthusiastic. Writing in the Sunday Times, he called McCallum's performance as the barrow boy one of "surprising" merit.

". . . from the moment of the entrance on the stage of this diffident, unobtrusive young actor," wrote Hobson, "one felt in the theatre that indefinable change which comes from the arrival of a personality.

'McCallum is quiet, unassertive, his compulsion is almost diaphanous, but it is real . . . He creates with unclouded lucidity all the young man's good and evil qualities."

Other favorable reviews appeared in The Times, News Chronicle and Daily Telegraph. The Daily Worker critic said McCallum and the female lead Helena Hughes "distil the essence of charming young love and then the hideous tragedy of love balked."

BY NEW AUTHOR

"The Dance Dress," by a new author, Michael Voysey, was shown at the Embassy, a small, unpretentious theatre just outside the west end. Plays there run two weeks only but critics keep a close watch on its productions as a pointer to new talent.

McCallum grew up on a farm at Hanley and spent two years in mental nursing at Weyburn, Sask. He is a slender, shock-haired young man who came to London in 1949 to study music—a specialty he has turned to good account. He wrote the incidental music for "The Dance Dress."

Some months ago McCallum played a small part in "The Man," understudying Bernard Braden of Vancouver. Earlier he played in "Lady Godiva," with Joan Miller of Vancouver in the lead.

Since coming to Britain McCallum has also had parts in radio plays directed by Andrew Allan of Toronto, appeared in London's open-air Shakespeare theatre in Regent's Park and in repertory at Birmingham.

Famous Comics Miss Out In New Film

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Two young actors, one a night club comic and the other a specialist in film villains, are filling the celebrated shoes of Abbott and Costello.

The lucky players are Buddy Hackett, 29, and Hugh O'Brian, 28, an actor who is known as the eager beaver of the Universal-International lot. He is so anxious for film roles that he even allowed his head to be shaved for a part as a treacherous Indian chief.

The pair fell into their good fortune as the result of some bad luck for the veteran comics, Bud Abbott and Lou Costello. A couple of weeks ago, the strain of doing movies, live and filmed TV, benefits and other appearances finally struck Lou, who only a few years back was in bed for a year with rheumatic fever. Doctors now say his heart will not allow any activity for three to six months.

IN A TIZZY

This threw U-I in a tizzy. The studio was all set to start "Fireman Save My Child." Location scenes had already been shot in San Francisco, and Spike Jones and his music-wrecking band had been signed. At first the picture was indefinitely postponed.

Then studio officials mulled doing the film with another team. O'Brian and Hackett were tested, and the new team was given the go-ahead signal by producer Howard Christie.

"I'm still catching my breath," said handsome Hugh. "I tested only a week before the picture started. I wasn't told to report for work until the morning the picture started.

I asked Hackett how he felt to be filling Lou Costello's shoes.

"I'll tell you a story," said the roly-poly funnyman, who speaks in the unmistakable tones of his native Brooklyn. "When I started out as a comedian six years ago, the first review I ever got compared me to Lou Costello. Ever since then, I have worked hard to avoid being similar to him."

PURE RAPTURE—A brand-new doll and the gaiety in the streets around her enrapture this little Indian girl. She was watching high-spirited celebrants during the traditonal Hindu Festival of Light in Delhi.

1,000 European Jews Leave Promised Land

HURSTPIERPOINT, Eng. (AP) Dr. Ernest William Barnes, 79, former Anglican bishop of Birmingham and frequent storm centre of religious controversy, died Sunday.

Until ill health forced his resignation last May, Bishop Barnes was an outspoken advocate of unorthodox views.

He rejected belief in miracles—"The Bible is wrong," he once said.

He campaigned for euthanasia—mercy killing—and sterilization of unfit persons.

He urged church leaders to cut out from the Bible its story of the creation as related in the book of Genesis. Science had proved it could not be accepted as fact, he said.

He doubted validity of the virgin birth and Christ's physical resurrection. "The time has come," he said, "when the mistaken assumptions of the pre-scientific, re-critical era must be repudiated."

Sarnia Couple Arrested

NORTH BAY (CP)—Police said Sunday they were escorting a young Sarnia couple to Sarnia to face car theft charges. Arrested for the Sarnia police were Robert Dunn, 19, and Elsie Smith, 17.

Muscovite Pedestrians Stage Battle Of Wits With Russian Cars, Trucks

By BILL BOSS

MOSCOW (CP)—A Canadian traffic policeman would go crazy in this Soviet capital. Jay-walking seems to be one form of deviationism a people's democracy will tolerate. In glaring defiance of a red traffic light, an Intourist guide made me join several hundred Muscovites in a battle of wits and legs against automobiles and trucks. One thing about Moscow traffic is that it hugs the edges and leaves the centre clear. Pausing breathless in the centre of the road, I said: "In some cities of my country you'd never get away with this. You might even have to pay that policeman a fine."

TOUGH ON MOTORISTS

"Well," she said, "in my country we don't have fines. Only motorists have to obey traffic lights."

It's a noisy, running battle in this classless democracy between the "haves"—with cars—and the "have nots." Neither side of the battle is pleasant. In one half-mile drive the chauffeur stopped three times to shout unprintable Russian at pedestrians who had their own ideas about the right-of-way.

Veterans here say Moscow's traffic increases daily. Most vehicles are trucks and the Russian version of 1950 American cars. Three years ago the state-operated taxi stand outside the Metropole Hotel had three cabs. Today it has 23.

Everybody seems in a hurry. There is a visible purposefulness, almost a severity, about the people in the streets, the underground, the restaurants and stores—especially so working days.

RELAX ON SUNDAY

But on Sundays Muscovites take time off to stroll the streets and window-shop. They look relaxed. Soldiers, uniformed civil servants and the ordinary citizens, wife on arm and children by the hand, jostle good-humoredly in throngs that recall an Easter Sunday in Canada.

Clothing style seems to emphasize utility and warmth, not smartness in the Western sense. The temperature last Sunday was 30 degrees, and there was snow on the ground. A guide supplied by the government's Intourist bureau asked me to notice that everyone was warmly clad.

Most men wore black or navy-blue overcoats, apparently of a standard substantial weave. Some had leather jackets or windbreakers, others quilted jackets like those worn by Allied prisoners of war released by the Communists at Panmunjom, Korea, last summer.

SHOES AND BOOTS

Footgear ranges from ordinary shoes to black calf-length Cossack boots. The usual hat in this weather is of black cloth with tied-up fur ear-flaps, but there are also peaked cloth caps and some fur shakos.

Most women wear woollen cloth coats and some have furs. Variety shows most in headdress, which varies from felt and fur hats to peasant-type shawls or "baboushkas" tucked around the head and under the chin.

Moscow's main streets, linking a series of plazas and squares, are impressive. They are incredibly wide: The width of Ottawa's Confederation square, half as wide again as Portage avenue in Winnipeg or Victory square in Vancouver.

AMAZING FIGURES

The guide gave astronomical figures for the number of houses and streets of old Moscow demolished to make way for the new thoroughfares. Dominating several areas are stylized skyscraper office buildings and apartment blocks, each topped by a spire supporting a gigantic hammer and sickle. More are under construction.

Finding one's way about Moscow is an acquired skill. All the signposts are in Russian. Policemen give foreigners the same matter-of-fact help they give Russians.

Near the Kremlin one must walk in prescribed paths. A blast of a militia man's whistle and a wave of his arm bring errant walkers back into line.

Militia men guard public buildings and police street intersections. They stand watch in mid-block, too, and usually seem to have a telephone handy.

As far as I know I have not been followed anywhere.

Critical Bishop Dies In England

MUNICH (AP) — This Bavarian city, a chief centre of anti-Semitism in the Hitler era, today is an unwilling haven for hundreds of Jews.

In little more than a year, almost 1,000 East European Jews have come here from Israel—dissatisfied with life in what they once regarded as the Promised Land.

They hope Munich is only a temporary stopover on the way to North or South America.

The refugees, most of them Polish-born, say they were unable to fit in with Israel's present-day "pioneer conditions."

Driver Races Home To Check On Fire

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Three Londoners had what was probably the fastest bus ride of their lives Saturday night, but none of them complained.

Ken Couper, driver of a London Transportation Commission bus heard a laundry was on fire and made a beeline for home. Home was only about three feet from the blazing laundry plant.

"I just shoved the accelorator to the floor," he said. "You would have thought I was one of the fire trucks."

After finding out that the house was in no danger of catching fire, he climbed back behind the wheel of the bus.

Car Plunges In River Driver Identified

MONTREAL (CP)—Police have identified Paul Tetreault, 29, Montreal, as the driver of a car that plunged into the St. Lawrence river off Laurier pier Saturday night.

They said Tetreault had not yet been located.

Two harbor employees told police they saw the automobile plunge into the water Saturday.

Police said they think two or three men were in the car and that their bodies may have been carried downstream by the current.

Stock-Graham Nuptials

White chrysanthemums with ferns decorated the Lakefield United church for the wedding Saturday afternoon of Ruth Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Graham of Lakefield, to Gerald Albert Stock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Stock of Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. J. Wolfraim. Organist Mrs. E. Rath played the wedding music and accompanied soloist Mr. Delbert Coward of Keene, who sang "Because" before the bride entered the church, and "Ah Sweet Mystery of Life" during the signing of the register.

White chiffon velvet was fashioned over faille taffeta in the bride's gown, the skirt falling softly into a short train. The neckline was scooped and the sleeves came to points over the hands. A cap of the velvet held her fingertip veil of tulle illusion and she was carrying a bouquet of white gardenias with stephanotis and pink roses.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her sister Miss Barbara Graham as maid of honor and her cousin Miss Betty Cockburn and Miss Donna Edwards were bridesmaids. The flower girl was also a cousin of the bride, Brenda Nutt

The maid of honor and bridesmaids were gowned alike in sapphire blue velvet with contrasting pink feathered bands and matching gloves, and the flower girl was in pink velvet with matching mittens and wore a bandeau of flowers in her hair. Each carried a nosegay of white 'mums and pink roses.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Your Christmas Fruit Cakes

NOTE TO WRITING READERS: It is too late now to write to me and expect answers to your letters in this column before Christmas. If you must have answers before Christmas be sure to enclose a stamped envelope and your name and address. This way I can get in touch with you directly by mail.

The folk who do not do Christmas baking or who simply do not have time to do it may become bored with all this fruit cake talk, but I promise to give you a good meat and vegetable and dessert menu on Wednesday and that will restore us to ordinary weekday matters. Tomorrow I have a griddle cake recipe for you. That's plain enough for everybody.

I promised a reader a small moist perfect white fruit cake recipe this week. Mrs. H. Z. would like an uncooked fruit cake. Yours to command, my friends. First recipe is for "Mystified Me".

PERFECT MOIST WHITE FRUIT CAKE

(one 3½-lb. loaf)

Three-quarters lb. blanched almonds, ¼ lb. candied citron, 2 oz. each candied pineapple and candied cherries (white or green or 1 oz. of each), ¼ lb. light gold sultana raisins, 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 eggs, ¾ cup butter or margarine, 1 cup sugar, ¾ cup milk, 2 tablespoons pineapple or other fruit juice, ½ teaspoon almond extract, ½ teaspon cream of tartar. Cut the blanched almonds in about 3 pieces. Cut the cherries in halves and the citron and pineapple in thin strips. Mix them in a bowl with the raisins. Sift the flour and measure it. Sprinkle half a cup of flour over the fruits and mix it through them to flour them. Cream the butter or margarine until they are creamy and light, then add the sugar gradually while you are creaming. Add the yolks of the eggs and beat them in thoroughly. Mix together the milk, fruit juice and extract, and add them alternately with remaining 1½ cups flour. Beat the 3 egg whites until they are foamy, then sprinkle the cream of tarter over them and beat until whites are stiff enough to hold their shape, but not so stiff they will cling to the bowl when it is tipped. Pour the batter over the fruits and mix in the egg whites. Carefully line your loaf pan (or small tube pan)—the size that would hold one regular size loaf of bread, with brown paper, and butter it thoroughly. Press cake batter in with the hands to make sure there are no holes, and to make a compact cake that slices well. Put a shallow water pan in the bottom of oven. This must not be so big it covers entire bottom of oven. Bake cake at 275 deg. Fahr., having heat coming from bottom only. This cake requires about 2 hours and 15 minutes.

I hope this cake is the one Mrs. H. Z. is referring to:

UNBAKED FRUIT CAKE

One pound each graham crackers, seedless raisins, died figs, marshmallows, 1 cup nut meats, ½ cup maraschino cherries, 2 cups whipping cream. Roll graham crackers so finely that they may be sifted. Chop cherries, figs, nuts and marshmallows finely. (You may prefer to grind the figs.) Leave raisins whole unless they are very large. Mix all the fruits and nuts and marshmallows with the crumbs very well. Whip the cream until stiff and fold it in. Line a loaf pan with wax paper and press the mixture into pan, making top smooth. Chill in refrigerator 24 hours. Cake should be stored in refrigerator at all times. Some hostesses slice this cake, then dip the cut surfaces in powdered sugar.

DOROTHY DIX

About Getting Married Bold In Business, Reticent

DEAR MISS DIX: Two years ago I met Ernie who was 28. I was 25 at the time. I'm certain he never had a steady girl friend. He was a college graduate with a fine position, but, though he was self-confident in business, he was extremely reticent in matters romantic. Through a mutual friend, I learned that he was interested in me, but I never received any encouragement from him. Then, after a year of dating Ernie, I was introduced to Chris, who had an entirely different personality. We became engaged recently. However, when it came time to announce the engagement. I was reluctant to do so. I realized that my sincerest interest still was Ernie. I broke the engagement. When Ernie learned I was free, he began dating me again, though on a somewhat spasmodic basis. I am certain now that I love him, but still he maintains the same noncommittal attitude towards me. That he likes me I know, and I feel his interest goes deeper than mere liking, but how can I draw him out?

Olive

HE PONDERS TOO LONG

ANSWER: To be brutally frank, I don't think Ernie is thinking of marriage. Certainly there's no reason, if he does care for you, why he shouldn't tell you his intentions rather than to a mutual friend. He likes feminine company; he particularly enjoys yours, but he also has a strong disinclination to being tied down. His tendency to call you just a day or two before he wants a date is proof enough of that. A man seriously in love wants to know where he stands with the object of his affection, and will have her pretty well lined up for steady dates, or he will at least make plans when he sees her. By the time a man is 30 he could have a draft of his future—so should a girl of 27. Building a family is a job for the young years, not middle-aged ones.

You can't let the situation stagger along in an uncertain fashion, or you may find yourself as a partner in one of these never-ending courtships. You must ascertain your beau's intentions. Also, you must be subtle about it. He may be reassured by a strong argument that marriage won't destroy his personality. Don't avoid the subject of marriage; bring it out into the open on an impersonal basis to find out his reactions.

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife and I are professional people, maintaining separate offices. Recently at a convention she met several persons in her particular line, and spent most of her time talking with them. I felt she was neglecting me. In fact, she even permitted some of the men to hug her in greeting.

Martin J.

ANSWER: Your wife's only guilt was in thoughlessness. As for the greeting, she scarcely could be expected to anticipate that these gentlemen, in their exuberance, would be so demonstrative. I'm sure you have nothing to worry about, so put the incident out of your mind.

DEAR MISS DIX: I've been going steady for the past few months, but my sweetheart has never invited me to come to his home. His family knows he goes with me, since they frequenty drop him off at my dwelling when we have a date. Also, they let him have the car to take me out.

Laura G.

ANSWER: It is surprising the boy's parents haven't asked him to bring you home. Perhaps they'll think of it over the holidays.

The attention of all motorists is called at this time to the fact that the City of Peterborough has in its traffic by-law regulations prohibiting motor cars and other vehicles to be parked overnight on city streets. Under these provisions no vehicle shall be permitted to park or stand on any city street for a period longer than four consecutive hours between the hours of 12 o'clock midnight and 8 o'clock in the forenoon. The strict enforcement of this provision by the Police will be necessary in order to permit the operation at night of the snow and ice removal equipment.

KINMOUNT BRIDGE

Mr. Kean said the bridge at Kinmount is too narrow and carries only a 12 to 15-ton load.

"The people of Kinmount want something wider and stronger than what's there," he explained.

"After further consultation with Mr. Wilford it was mutually agreed that a suitable replacement of the existing bridge would be a 110-foot steel superstructure on concrete abutments . . . a 24-foot concrete deck with a sidewalk," said Mr. Keen.

"The estimated cost of such a structure is $60,000. If the (department) will approve this expenditure, their share of 80 per cent would be $48,000, leaving Victoria and Peterborough counties to raise $6,000 each.

"If this bridge is rebuilt there will be some salvage value from the present two-span structure, which could be used as a whole unit or a two separate spans on lesser travelled roads."

The Kinmount bridge crosses the Burnt river, joining Galway-Cavendish township in Peterborough county and Somerville township in Victoria county.

Landslide Win For Unionists In Sudan Vote

KHARTOUM, Sudan (Reuters)—The pro-Egyptian National Unionist party has won a landslide victory in the Sudanese elections and political observers here said today it will form the country's first government.

With only two more results still to come in, the Nationalists—who favor the Sudan's union with Egypt—have gained 44 seats in the 97-seat House of Representatives. Polling was for only 92 seats; five will be elected later.

Their nearest rivals are the Umma party—standing for independence from both Egypt and Britain—with 20 seats.

Other party standings: independents, 13; Southern party, nine; Socialist Republicans, four.

MONTH-LONG ELECTION

Elections in the 1,000,000-square-mile territory have been going on for a month. Voting for the 50-seat Senate—30 seats are elected by municipal councils and other corporate organizations and 20 are appointed by the governor-general—will end Dec. 5.

The elections in this territory, ruled jointly by Britain and Egypt for 54 years, are being held under the Anglo-Egyptian agreement of Feb. 12. The agreement provides for a new constitution and a three-year transitional period during which the newly elected government will decide whether to form a political union with Egypt or establish an independent republic.

As late results indicated a sure win for the National Unionists, big crowds gathered outside the home of party president Ismail El Azhari. They cheered and killed sacrificial rams.

Two-Way Trade In Gas Builds Markets

TORONTO (CP)—John R. White, president of Imperial Oil, Ltd., said today that two-way international trade in natural gas will help build markets and keep a pipe line full.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club he gave this as one of three principles which he felt essential to a satisfactory solution of the problem of marketing Canadian western gas.

The other principles were:

"Large volume is essential to moving gas long distances at low cost; and markets should be built up in advance if a large-volume pipe line is to be launched effectively."

He said neither he nor Imperial are backing, financially or otherwise, any specific pipe line proposal.

NEW PROPOSAL

After outlining a proposal for an all-Canadian pipe line supplying only Canadian points, and with no additional natural gas allowed into the eastern are from Canadian sources, Mr. White said a new proposal "has found favor with a number of economists."

This would involve a 36-inch instead of a 30-inch pipe. It would run from Alberta through Regina, Winnipeg and northern Ontario to North Bay, where it would divide, sending branches to Montreal via Ottawa and to Niagara Falls via Toronto.

"A spur line would run from Winnipeg to the Minneapolis area. This line, and that to Niagara Falls, would permit the export of gas, on an 'interruptible' basis, to the United States. Import of gas from the United States would take place until the pipe line was completed."

Restricting Trade With U.K. Forces

CAIRO (Reuters)—The Egyptian minister of commerce, industry and supply, Helmy Bahgat Badawy, today issued a ministerial order restricting Egyptian trade with British forces in the Suez canal zone.

The order bans the transport of food commodities and various raw materials to any city, town or village within the limits of the canal zone, "except with permits from the ministry."

Food supplies and raw materials carried by Egyptian workers for their own personal use are exempted from this restriction.

Also today, an Egyptian military tribunal sentenced 11 persons to two years' hard labor and fined them the equivalent of $14,436 each for supplying "contraband" food to British forces. A 12th man was acquitted.

Until today's ban was announced, the Egyptian government had repeatedly denied that there was a food blockade.

Need For Good Sense In Canadian Trading

BROCKVILLE (CP) — L. N. Thompson, vice-president and general manager of Verney Corporation of Canada, said today Canada is displaying more enthusiasm than good sense in her international trade policies.

The Montreal textile executive told a service club that many domestic industries now are in trouble as a result of steady reduction of tariffs and easing of customs regulations. Canada had not obtained reciprocal advantages from the many trade concessions she made.

He said the time has come "when the interests of those Canadians who live by export trade must be more evenly balanced against the interests of those who live by domestic industry and a compromise arrived at that will be in the best interests of the nation. . . ."

Month In Jail Theft Of Purse

Pleading guilty to stealing a change purse from a woman's handbag, Clarence King, 44, of 756 Chamberlain St., was sentenced to one month in jail today by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

PC John Conlin told the court the purse, containing $36, had been taken from Mrs. Elizabeth Teasdale's handbag while King was using the woman's phone in a cleaning store. When he was picked up a few hours later, the accused was carrying $35.

ADMITS RECORD

King admitted previous criminal charge convictions in court after his record was produced. He was convicted in 1931 on a charge of committing an indecent act; 1936 for uttering, 1940 for indecent assault and 1945 for bigamy.

The accused promised Magistrate Philp in court today that he would "never do it again" if given a suspended sentence.

The cadi said, however, in giving him one month in jail, he was being "extremely lenient."

Plan 2,000 Homes Built On Mountain

HAMILTON (CP) — Plans for a $15,000,000 to $18,000,000 housing development, largest in the city's history, for the building of 1,500 to 2,000 homes on the mountain, were announced today by Hon. William K. Warrender, provincial minister of planning and development.

The project is a joint federal-provincial "land assembly" plan involving about 250 acres of present Ontario Hospital farm property and 150 or more acres of privately-owned land.

Hunger Strike Peters Out

Mossadegh Enjoys Chicken Forgets His Plan To Die

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—A hunger strike by Mohammed Mossadegh petered out in a giant chicken dinner Sunday, and the former premier capped the performance by making two important admissions at his trial before a military tribunal.

Mossadegh announced the hunger strike Saturday and shouted in court, "I'll be dead in three days."

The outburst came during an attempt by the court to make the defendant stick to one point—whether he gave the order for pulling down statues of the shah two days before the Aug. 19 revolution which swept the nationalist premier from power. Mossadegh is being tried on charges of trying to overthrow the monarchy.

But Sunday, with a good chicken dinner tucked away, Mossadegh walked into court for the first time without being helped since the trial began. It was the 18th day of his trial.

He finally admitted he gave nationalist mobs orders to pull down the statues of the shah. Many believe that the razing of the statues ignited the mass uprising which finally unseated Mossadegh.

On this question, Mossadegh declared, "I gave the nationalist groups the order to pull down the statues before the left-wing parties did it."

He also admitted giving the order for the arrest of Gen. Fazollah Zahedi, the present premier, who was designated by the shah as Mossadegh's successor.

South Korea Invites Anti-Red Union

SEOUL (AP)—The secret talks between Syngman Rhee and Chiang Kai-shek began unfolding today with a South Korean invitation to the free nations of Asia to form a united anti-Communist front.

South Korean Foreign Minister Pyun Yung Tai said plans for such a union were started last week-end in the Formosa meeting of the presidents of South Korea and Nationalist China.

"The offer is open to the free nations in Asia to sponsor a conference to materailize the Rhee-Chiang Plan," Pyun said in an interview. "We are waiting for response. . . ."

BROAD PLAN

There had been speculation that Rhee and Chiang were forming a two-party alliance to oppose communism, but Pyun's invitation indicated a much broader program.

Pyun said the conference should be held as soon as possible.

He said it could be held in any Asian country—as a sponsor—that has proved it was anti-Communist.

Pyun noted that Japan has not "outlawed" the Communist party. However, he would not specifically exclude Japan from any parley, he said.

Pyun proposed that the Asian nations draw up political and mutual defence agreements, but made no mention of economic or trade pacts at this time.

Suez Deadlock Easily Surmountable

CAIRO (Reuters) — President Mohammed Naguib said today that the gap between Britain and Egypt in the Suez canal deadlock is "very narrow and easily surmountable."

Naguib told a press conference he is confident that with the conclusion of the Sudan elections the Anglo-Egyptian talks on a settlement of the Suez canal problem will be stepped up very soon.

Naguib said he was looking forward to the early return to Cairo of the British ambassador, Sir Ralph Stevenson for resumption of the deadlocked canal talks.

TWO ISSUES IN DISPUTE

He added that Stevenson's return would be "a good sign to further negotiations."

"It all depends on Britain . . ." he added.

He said two "absurd" issues are holding up a settlement: Uniforms of British technicians who will assist in maintenance of the canal base after evacuation, and the availability of the canal base in case of emergency.

Naguib said the technicians should wear civilian clothes.

Jordan Plans Increase In Military Defences

JERUSALEM (AP) — Jordan announced plans today to step up her defences against neighboring Israel.

Dr. Fawzi el Mulki, the country's premier and defence minister, said Jordan would turn her national guard into a "baby Arab Legion' 'and give military training to the 500,000 Arab refugees from Palestine who are living in the kingdom.

He said the national guard, previously used only in defence of border villages, will now support the main league forces in direct, overall defence of the frontier. Arab Legion uniforms will be supplied to guardsmen, and they will be paid fixed wages.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The machinists union at the Dominion Chain Company here voted Sunday to accept a five cents hourly wage increase offered by the company. Union officials declined to release figures of the vote.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow Officially Opens Harwood's New Public School Building

By LOTTIE DROPE

HARWOOD (ENS) — The new Harwood public school was officially opened Friday night by the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, MLA, Ontario welfare minister.

Chairman was Major R. E. Drope, who welcomed visitors to the ceremonies. William Ramsay accompanied the singing of O Canada.

Major Drope introduced four ex-pupils of the old public school, all of whom were more than 80. They were Alex Johnston, John Young, Henry Murney and Mrs. J. Sandercock. Two former teachers, R. D. P. Davidson and Mrs. Stillman were present. Major Drope read a telegram from two former pupils now in California, Candace (Drope) House and Lettice (Drope) McKenzie.

The school pupils sang a choral number under the direction of William Ramsay.

GOLDEN KEY

Denton C. Johnston, contractor, thanked the board for their co-operation and especially Board Chairman R. S. Johnson. The contractor then presented the golden key to R. Brennan who, in turn presented it to the board chairman.

School Inspector W. H. Carlton thanked Mr. Drope for his gift of land and complimented the architect. He then introduced Col. Watson, assistant superintendent of elementary education for Ontario, who said 2,000 more classrooms must be built in the province next year.

"Education costs a lot but ignorance costs more," Col. Watson said.

Miss Patricia Zufelt played a piano solo.

Reeve Charles Burrison spoke on behalf of Hamilton township and introduced Deputy-Reeve Melville Sandercock and Councillor Jamieson. Mr. Findlayson, sanitary inspector, spoke briefly.

FORMER TEACHER

R. D. P. Davidson, who taught school in Harwood 45 years ago, remarked that, at that time, there were 45 pupils on the roll and he taught them all at a salary of $175 a year.

Mr. Carlton, on behalf of the Ontario Trustees Association, presented the school with a Bible, which was accepted by Mr. Crews, the principal.

Those in attendance inspected the school after the ceremonies.

Three contributing factors led to building the new school. The water supply was always poor on the hill and water had to be supplied to the school in cans. The playground was poor on the side of a hill and rolling land. The floor space in the school was inadequate. Too much repair work was needed and the building was draughty.

The 1½ acres of land for the new school was a free gift from Major Robert Earle Drope, whose great-uncle provided the property for the old school. Construction of the new school was started in June. The surveyors were Donevan and Richards, Oshawa. The architects were Brennan and Whale of Toronto. The contractor was Denton C. Johnson, Peterborough.

The new school is a modern, red brick building. In two classrooms, the decorations are carried out in yellow, blending to light green for the shelves and darker green for the woodwork. The rooms are well lighted and the floors well suited to wear and tear.

The pupils' clothing is hung off the classrooms in cupboards, the doors conveniently and efficiently operated. Each cloakroom is ventilated. The classrooms are assured of ample lighting, because of windows all along the east wall in the senior classroom, and along the west wall in the junior classroom. In the teachers' room, the windows face the south.

OIL HEATED

Each classroom is fitted with an electric clock. The building is heated with an oil-burning furnace.

The present teachers are: Principal Ronald Crews; assistant, Miss Doris Robins. The inspector is W. S. Carleton, BA, Cobourg. There are 50 pupils in the new school.

The cost of the school is $41,000 which was raised by debentures covering 20 years.

The pupils have no further than a mile and a half to travel, most of it within short walking distance. William Baker picks up pupils each morning on the Harwood-Gore's Landing road; then they walk home, or are picked up by their parents at 4 p.m. Although the old school was in the centre of the farming district, now the traffic runs mainly east and west.

OLD SCHOOL

Harwood public school was built in 1871, on the hill overlooking the village. Alex Johnston, who is now 84, says the trees seem to be the same height as they were when he went to school.

The old frame school was clapboard and painted white. It was then a two-room school. The senior room had a row of seats down the centre that seated five or six in each seat. On each side, close to the wall, were two rows of seats that seated two in each seat. The seats in the junior room were all double and smaller. The bell has been there from the beginning.

The first teacher that Alex Johnston remembers (from the age of about five or six) was Mr. France, who taught the senior room. He says Mr. France was an excellent teacher. The junior room was taught by Mr. France's son. Both father and son boarded at the old Phoenix Hotel, the ruins of which are to be seen to this day, between Baker's and Mitchell's stores.

Mr. Johnston remembers that Mr. Scarlett was inspector. The early settlers' children who attended Harwood school were the Farrs, Carruthers, Merriams, Hoggs, Youngs, Johnstons, Corkerys, Huffmans, Murneys, Blastorahs, Pinches, Kominsky, Keans. The school was in the centre of the village and the outlying farming district, and it served them well.

In 1899, it was changed into a one-room school, because of the closing of the mills and people moving away. Then, in 1938, the ratepayers of SS 18 changed it back into a two-room school.

EARLY SALARIES

The earliest financial statement available shows the teachers' salaries in 1893 were: senior room, W. J. Carruthers, principal, $440 a year; junior room, Miss Billings, $225 a year. Dr. Sands was paid $10 a year as health inspector. Children from other school sections were charged 25 cents each a year.

The deed of the school is dated the 20th day of November, 1871. It was a free gift rom Robert Drope, deed without dower, which is worded: "To have and to hold the same, in trust and for the use of a common school and teachers' residence, in and for School Section No. Eighteen, in the township of Hamilton and the county aforesaid, according to the provisions of the School Act of Upper Canada, and or the education of the resident youth of said school section."

The first trustees of SS 18 were John Harstone, Peter Glover and Thomas Slowman. The 1953 trustees are Major Robert Earle Drope, Mr. Russell S. Johnson and Mr. Glenn E. Hogg.

Among the families attending school in 1893 were the Blaikies, McAuliffes, McCulloughs, Buttars, Clappertons, Johnstones, Blastorahs, Haverys, Dropes, Farrs, Youngs, Rogers, Hunters, Edminsons, Ctevensons, Carruthers, Corkerys, Watsons, Isaacs, Leans and Sherwins.

NOTED STUDENTS

The old school has turned out students who later in life attained national importance. They include four doctors: the late Dr. Kean, the late Dr. Bill Ross, the late Dr. C. Edminson, and Dr. William Blastorah; one Member of Parliament, Major R. E. Drope, MM; the late George Rogers, who became a United States senator and maintained his summer home here; the late Richard Merriam, a United Church minister; William P. McCullough, now resident in New Jersey, who has spent the greater part of his life in recruiting missions for the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A.; the late Mrs. Adams, the former May Lean, who became a trained nurse; Mrs. Dwayne Trew, RN, the former Jessie Lee; Mrs. George Lang, the former Ina Rosevear, music supervisor.

Also among the graduates are a number of public and high school teachers, including Mrs. William McKee Bingham, who was music supervisor of Cobourg public school and collegiate. Men who served in His Majesty's forces and paid the supreme sacrifice were Bruce Drope and Alexander Young, Jr.

George Kennedy Reviews Havelock Hydro

HAVELOCK—(ENS) — Hydro Commissioner George Kennedy who was re-elected by acclamation at the municipal nomination meeting Friday gave a detailed report of the activities of the local commission. As the report for 1953 will not be available until the first of the year, some of the figures are based on 1952 records while others refer to this year.

The highlight of the report was that despite the expensive change-over in the entire system plus a considerable increase in the cost of power by the HEPC the commission has been able to supply power at no increase in cost. The old rates have been maintained when other municipalities have had to raise rates.

CONSUMPTION OF POWER

Consumption of power has almost doubled since 1945 when the new distribution system was started. Operations have been carried out on a 4,000 volt system. Now the local commission is undertaking a betterment program to stabilize voltage conditions throughout the village which means a change from 4,000 volt system to an 8,000 volt system.

To make this change-over, it will be necessary to replace some equipment. This will necessitate interruptions at intervals, for a period of about three weeks, Monday to Friday inclusive.

FINANCES

For the financial picture, Mr. Kennedy gave the following: total debenture as of 1950-51, $41,025. Paid in two year $5,047, leaving the total debenture of 1953 as $35,978. The cash assets for 1953 were: Bonds $10,000, bank balance $8,315, a total of $18,315.

Assets per operating report ending December 31, 1952 were as follows:

Total plant	$ 65,405.73
Total assets	108,314.21
Total liabilities	28,863.69
Total reserves	36,089.22
Earnings for 1953, total	24,388.66
Expenses for 1952, total	22,040.30
Net Surplus	$ 2,348.36

The purchase of power for 1953 shows 274.5 K.W. per month at a cost of 45.75 per K.W. per year. The collection of billing of power by the local commission amounts to approximately $3,000 every two months. The number of consumers served in the village is 415. In addition to 93 street lights, there are three in the park and one flasher.

ALL BUT THREE USING HYDRO

Mr. Kennedy said there are only three houses in Havelock not consuming hydro. Comparisons were made with Hastings in regard to hydro equipment as follows:

	Hastings	Havelock
Distribution system	$26,552	$37,768
Transformers	7,210	11,353
Meters	7,588	9,726
Street lighting equipment	1,577	6,124
Total Plant	$42,929	$65,405

In regard to changing bulbs in street lights, Mr. Kennedy said the man in charge of this received $225 per year and made 104 trips.

Street lighting had been improved by tree trimming, higher voltage and additional three or four-way lights.

For 1954 the commission has planned the reconstruction or revising the street lighting on Concession street. This it hopes to do early in the year.

In closing, Mr. Kennedy said through the close supervision of Chairman William Hitchins, the secretary-treasurer, Gerald Buchanan, and the other members of the commission the affairs of hydro have been kept in all respects in a most up-to-date and admirable position.

Burn Effigy Of McCormick

VANCOUVER (CP)—Col. Robert (Bertie) McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, was burned in effigy at the University of British Columbia late Sunday night.

The effigy was a hollow store dummy, filled with old Chicago Tribune newspapers purchased from news stands.

More than 300 students of both sexes turned up in a car parade, hoisted the mannequin aloft on a crude gallows, soaked it in gasoline and lighted it.

The burning was in protest against a recent Tribune editorial attacking External Affairs Minister Pearson. Students stood in the rain while the dummy burned, chanting: "Don't molest our Lester."

An effigy of United States Senator Joseph McCarthy was burned two weeks ago at the University of Toronto.

Light Snow Causes Minor Accidents

COBOURG (ENS) — About two inches of snow fell here on Saturday morning compared with heavier falls to the east and west in lakeshore centres.

Friday night the snow fall was heavy and visibility on the highway was limited to about two car lengths. There were several minor accidents.

One of the new rear bumpers for trucks, designed to prevent the front of a car from sliding under the back of a truck, proved its worth on Saturday morning a few miles east of Cobourg. A car slammed into the rear of a transport but was stopped from going under by the rear truck bumper and serious injury to the driver was averted.

Mild weather on Saturday and Sunday removed most of the snow that fell in town.

Baby Gives Birth To Own Twin

HEREFORD, England (AP) — The parents of three-year-old Howard Davies disclosed today that he gave "birth" to his own twin at the age of seven weeks.

Soon after Howard was born in 1950 his mother, Margaret, noticed his stomach was distended.

"He was always crying for more food and I had to give him twice as much as normal," she told a reporter.

REMOVED BY SURGERY

An x-ray revealed a human embryo in a cavity on the right side of the baby's abdomen. It was removed by surgery. Howard made a complete recovery but kept a seven-inch scar.

A doctor who took part in the operation said the baby within the baby was a malformed boy.

Little is known of this kind of phenomenon," she said, "but it is thought to have been an 'included twin.'"

This means that Howard was intended to be one of twins, but something went wrong during the period of prenatal development.

TV Kiss Extra Not In Script

LONDON (Reuters)—John Roy, 42, said to have Britain's biggest handlebar moustache, delighted millions of television viewers Sunday night by giving an unscripted kiss to attractive Canadian movie actress Barbara Kelly in a quiz type program.

Roy was appearing in a regular feature called "What's My Line" in which a team of established television personalities try to guess the occupation of guests by "yes" and "no" questions.

Miss Kelly, after staring at Roy's 16½-inch moustache asked him: "How do you kiss your wife?"

Roy looked at Miss Kelly for a moment, walked quickly across the stage and demonstrated.

Roy's wife who was watching in Glasgow said: "Was my face red."

Miss Kelly's husband, radio and television comedian Bernard Braden said: "I am going to look for a bearded lady."

Guards Go To Bermuda

KINGSTON, Jamaica (reuters)—Sixty British troops of the Royal Welch Fusiliers, advance party of 240 assigned to guard duties at the "Big Three" conference, left here Sunday for Bermuda.

Roberts—Human Dynamo

"Pocket-Sized Diplomat" Key Man At Bermuda Talks

By DON DALLAS

LONDON (Reuters)—A pocket-sized diplomat who has talked to Stalin twice and to Molotov more than a dozen times will be a key figure in the British delegation to the Bermuda talks this week.

Urbane Sir Frank Kenyon Roberts (height five-feet-four, weight around 130 lbs.) is accompanying Sir Winston Churchill as leading foreign office expert on Germany. He also has more experience of direct negotiation with the Kremlin leaders than almost any other British diplomat.

Roberts has helped to draft several recent British notes to Russia and may be called on to do so again in Bermuda.

"HUMAN DYNAMO"

Roberts, 46, has been called a "human dynamo" because of his ability to work up to 20 hours a day. As minister in Moscow from 1945 to 1947, he rarely went to bed before 3 a.m. and was up again soon after 7 a.m.

He speaks German and French fluently and Russian reasonably well.

Roberts came to prominence in the summer of 1948 when he represented Britain in the Western negotiations with Stalin and Molotov aimed at ending the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

SECRETARY TO BEVIN

When Roberts left Moscow as minister in the summer of 1947, he became principal private secretary to the late Ernest Bevin, foreign secretary in the last Labor government.

Bevin sent Roberts back to Moscow the following summer to argue the Western case on Berlin with the men of the Kremlin. Roberts had temporary ambassadorial rank in the absence at that time of the British ambassador to Moscow, Sir Maurice Peterson

In 1949, he was appointed deputy high commissioner in India, retaining this post until his appointment in 1951 as assistant undersecretary at the foreign office, in charge of German affairs.

Mrs. Wm. R. Nicholas

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A resident here since the turn of the century, Bessie Maude Hannah, wife of Reeve William R. Nicholas, was buried in Mount Pleasant cemetery on Friday.

Mrs. Nicholas died in Campbellford Memorial Hospital quite suddenly. Born in Brighton, daughter of the late William J. Hannah and Alvina Haynes, she suffered a stroke about two and a half years ago.

Surviving besides her husband are four sons and a daughter, Bert, Douglas and Claude, of Campbellford, William Jr., of St. Catharines, and Beryl, of Campbellford. She also had two sisters, Mrs. Norman Meehan, of Toronto, and Miss Dora, of Peterborough, and two brothers, Herbert, of Smithfield, and Harold, of Harrowsmith.

Mrs. Nicholas was quite active in church work and was a life member of the Baptist Mission Circle. The Rev. W. J. Bingham, of Norwood Baptist Church, conducted services from the Baptist Church here, assisted by Walter Brightman, student pastor, of Toronto.

Pallbearers were Messrs. Douglas Maybee, F. M. Rutherford, Tony Yenta, Bob Parry, Harry Townsend and Wesley R. Sweet.

Bearers of the many floral tributes included Donald and Douglas Lloyd, Mayor R. J. Locke, P. H. MacMillan, Peter Wilson, G. I. Blair, Ward Archer, Sam Diamond, Eric Gillespie and Francis Ellis.

Nixon Visits New Delhi

NEW DELHI (AP) — Vice-President Richard Nixon of the U.S. arrived in New Delhi today for informal talks with Prime Minister Nehru. Questioners in parliament tried in vain to pin down Nehru on whether he would take up with Nixon the hot issue of possible American military aid to Pakistan.

The official attitude of the Indian government toward Nixon appeared to be cool but correct. Cabinet ministers made no secret of their lack of enthusiasm for the visit from the globe-girdling vice-president. India's press mirrored the ministers' attitude.

Nixon, his wife and their party came by plane from Bangalore in southern India.

28,600 Laid Off

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another 28,600 civilian workers were dropped from the federal payroll during October, the U. S. Civil Service Commission reported today. It said this brings the net cutback since January to about 176,600, leaving a total of 2,372,100 federal employees.

JAPS REPORT BIG RUSSIAN JET FORCE

WHO WILL WEAR THIS CHAIN IN 1954? This is the question which will be answered at the polls next Monday when voters cast their ballots in favor of Mayor Hugh Waddell (left) or ex-alderman Norman Graham. The chain was given to the city by Gordon Monkman the occasion of the centennial. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

POWs Spend 14 Years In Siberia

General Warns Reds Have Large Forces Based In East Russia

MAIZURU, Japan (AP) — Laughing and waving, 811 former Japanese soldiers who were captured by the Russians trooped ashore today from a ship which brought them from Soviet prison camps. Some had been prisoners in Siberia 14 years.

The highest-ranking officer among them, Lieut-Gen. Yoichi Hitomi, who commanded the 135th Division of the Kwantung army in the Second World War, reported a tremendous build-up of Soviet jet air power in eastern Siberia.

Hitomi said 80 per cent of the aircraft now flying in the area of Khabarovsk, north of Vladivostok, are jet fighters similar to the MiG-15, and bigger twin-jet planes.

He said there also is a vast jet base at Ivanov, 180 miles northeast of Moscow, which he believes is for the direct defence of the Soviet capital.

Unlike Japanese prisoners freed by the Russians several years ago, the repatriates appeared not to have been indoctrinated by the Communists. There were no red flags and none sang the "Internationale."

The former prisoners were the first of 1,247 Japanese PoWs and civilian internees in Russia whose release was negotiated by the Japanese Red Cross. Some were captured in 1939, when Japan and Russia fought an undeclared border war in Manchuria.

Election Too Costly

TIMMINS (CP) — This northern Ontario mining town will not have an election this year—its too expensive. Mayor, council member and school trustees were elected by acclamation. They said they want to save the expense of an election when strikes have left many out of work in the area.

Wed 3 Days, Groom Killed In Car Crash

SHARBOT LAKE (CP) — A newly-wed husband and his cousin were killed Monday night and the 28-year-old bride of one of the men critically injured when their automobile skidded and was pinned under a transport truck near here.

Dead are Donald McNaughton, 28, of Merritton and Ottawa, who was married Nov. 28, and his cousin George McNaughton of Coxvale, Ont., driver of the car.

Mrs. Donald McNaughton was critically injured. She arrived in Canada from France less than three weeks ago to marry Donald.

TWO TRUCKS INVOLVED

The three were on their way to Sharbot Lake to visit George's expectant wife when the accident occurred. Police said the transport jacknifed after the crash, spilling kegs of beer about the highway. A second transport following the first piled into the wreckage.

Neither truck driver was injured.

The accident, at the intersection of highways 38 and 7, 40 miles north of Kingston, tied up traffic for more than 1½ hours. Police said beer and blood mingled on the highway.

Donald met his wife, the former Anne Weisig of St. Avold, France, while with the RCAF in France. They were married in Merritton.

Howe Predicts Prosperity For Canada In '54

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe has offered two predictions: A tougher job of selling goods abroad next year; but a generally prosperous year at home. Mr. Howe's economic review of 1953 and forecast of 1954 highlighted the throne speech debate Monday in the Commons. Mr. Howe said: 1. Overseas trade volume appears to be "firmly" based" after some adjustment this year. Increased world wheat supplies likely will bring a reduction from the record export levels of the last two years.

2. "Sales prospects are probably firmer at home than in export markets."

3. There is every reason to look forward to a continued high capital spending.

4. A prospective shift in investment toward housing, commercial and institutional building will mean increased employment.

5. Government spending for defence and other purposes will continue to stabilize the economy

6. Personal spending and income should remain near 1953 levels.

STABLE MARKET

"To sum up, continuation of generally-stable market conditions in the period ahead is indicated. It must be taken into account, of course, that capacities are expanding and larger outlets are necessary to absorb the increasing volume of production.

"With the emergence of increasingly-competitive conditions on an international scale, marketing problems will be encountered in some industries . . . but as for the general level of economic activity I predict the pessimists are going to be wrong again."

Referring to 1953, Mr. Howe forecast increases would be evident in production, the physical volume of consumer purchases and a record increase in spending to increase productive facilities.

INCREASE PLANT

These capital outlays, he said, may reach $6,500,000,000, nine per cent higher than the record in 1952. Because prices of capital goods were reasonably stable, the outlay meant an equivalent increase in plant.

He said some of the problems of the textile, electrical appliance and farm equipment industries were unavoidable despite general prosperity. It was important to realize that the sellers' market has given way to the buyers' market.

That meant that many Canadian industries will experience more intensive competition both domestically and internationally. This competition could not be avoided if Canada wished to enjoy the broader benefits of free international trade.

Longshoremen Won't Work, Fight Clean-up

NEW YORK (AP)—Longshoremen refused to work along the New York waterfront today as a new law aimed at cleaning up dock racketeering went into effect

One of the numerous picket lines stretched for a full mile.

The pickets were led by men who had been refused work permits by the New York-New Jersey bi-state waterfront commission.

The permits were refused in cases where men either had criminal records or were being investigated for possible criminal connections or using false names.

Longshoremen who had received work permits refused to cross the picket lines.

The work stoppage developed first at pier 86 where the huge liner United States was docking.

It spread then to other so-called "luxury liner" piers dominated by "pistol" Local 824 of the International Longshoremen's Assn., then to lower Manhattan, Brooklyn and piers of the New Jersey side of the Hudson river.

The AFL recently ousted the ILA for failing to rid itself of racketeers.

The AFL, which has formed a new ILA in an effort to gain control of the docks from the old union, quickly exploited today's work stoppage.

It distributed handbills saying: "The old ILA is responsible for you longshoremen having to register to work."

Under the new bi-state commission, longshoremen must register and then seek work through employment centres.

Troops Bolster Bermuda Guard

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (CP)—A planeload of British troops bolstered the security guard gathering today for the Big Three conference of President Eisenhower, Premier Laniel and Prime Minister Churchill.

The latest reinforcement, a unit of the Royal Welch Fusiliers who recently kept order in troubled British Guiana, arrived here Monday night from Jamaica. About 240 other fusiliers previously had joined Bermuda forces on guard duty.

An army of carpenters and painters meanwhile is setting the scene for the conference. The Mid-Ocean Golf Club is closed as the workmen put finishing touches to the air-conditioned suites the Western leaders and their delegations will occupy.

Churchill will be the first to arrive. He leaves London tonight in the Stratocruiser Canopus.

Laniel and his staff are expected Thursday afternoon, and Eisenhower will arrive Friday.

Red Chinese Start Rationing Of Food

HONG KONG (AP) — Persons arriving from Shanghai and Canton say the Communists are rationing food for the first time since they took over in China. Private letters from China contain the same information.

Recent arrivals did not know how widespread the shortage was, but pointed out that Shanghai, Canton and other big cities are usually the last to feel the pinch.

The causes are believed to be threefold: the Korean war, a short crop this year, and too heavy food exports to Russia, the Russian satellites and Ceylon.

Noted Doctor Shot Was Wrong Victim

DETROIT (AP)—Dr. Edward D. Spalding, a noted heart specialist, left his office in Detroit's professional building and stepped into the rush of persons hurrying home from a routine day at work.

A few violent minutes later he lay dead on the pavement, shot, police said, by a former mental case who got the wrong man.

Barely half an hour later, two rookie patrolmen grabbed John Sherback, 51, a few blocks away. In Sherback's pocket was a list of persons he had condemned to death, they said. Spalding's name was not included.

Sherback had waited in the building lobby Monday. When Dr. Spalding left, a witness, Mrs. Madelaine Robinson, 49, saw Sherback walk up and fire one shot. The 60-year-old doctor fell.

Dr. Spalding was considered one of the six top heart specialists in the United States.

Europe Enjoys Spring Weather

LONDON (AP) — For the fourth straight day Britain and most of western Europe basked today in spring-like weather. Many areas reported confused spring flowers coming up in profusion.

Londoners stretched their lunch hours to loaf on the benches along the Thames. Deck chairs were brought out of storage in some south coast resorts.

Kew observatory said the mean temperature in the London area was 48 degrees during November, more than four degrees above normal.

Sweden experienced its warmest, driest November in more than 30 years. Roses were blooming in Stockholm gardens.

The mercury climbed to 55 in Hamburg Monday, the warmest Nov. 30 the city has seen in 75 years.

Royal Children Buy Presents

WINDSOR, Eng. (Reuters) — Prince Charles and Princess Anne went to town today to do their own Christmas shopping.

With their "Nanny," nurse Helen Lightbody, they drove from the Royal Lodge, Windsor, where they are staying, to a toy store in the shopping district.

There five-year-old Prince Charles solemnly explained to a clerk that he was doing his shopping early so that his friends would have their presents in time for Christmas.

He had little trouble making up his mind—books and toy soldiers.

But curly-headed Princess Anne, 3, who prefers rough-and-tumble boys' games herself, apparently realizes that her little girl friends may enjoy more-conventional playthings.

So the rest of the morning was spent in another shop which specializes in dolls. The tiny princess chose several large dolls for her best friends.

Need Common Sense In Keeping Markets

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Labor Minister Daley Monday night urged labor to use "good judgment and common sense" to avoid "pricing ourselves out of the market of world competition."

He said he often saw tenders for a contract from Sweden or Britain that "made the bids from Canadian companies look sick." Mr. Daley spoke to a dinner for long-service employees of the Ontario Paper Company.

"Canada is an exporting nation and a great deal of our prosperity depends upon our export trade," he said.

Trans-Ocean Phone Cable Planned By 3 Countries

MONTREAL (CP)—Canada, the United States and Britain have signed an agreement providing for the construction of the first trans-atlantic telephone cable system, it was announced today. The new system will eventually replace the transatlantic radio-telephone circuits now in use. The announcement was made simultaneously in Montreal, London and New York on behalf of the Canadian Overseas Telecommunication Corporation, the British post office and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The announcement said the construction and installation of the telephone cable system is considered "to be of equal or perhaps of even greater importance and significance than was the laying of the original transatlantic cable in the middle of the 19th century."

At New York, the American Telegraph and Telephone Company estimated the cost at $35,000,000.

NO INTERFERENCE

The new system is designed to give better transatlantic telephone service. The cable system will not be affected by atmospheric conditions that sometimes interrupt the radio-telephone service.

The transatlantic portion of the cable system between Scotland and Newfoundland will be approximately 2,000 nautical miles in length. The Canadian end will land on the east coast of Newfoundland. From there another 350 miles of cable will be stretched to Cape Breton island. A micro-wave system will connect the overseas circuits with Canadian and American telephone systems.

GUIDED THINKING

Douglas F. Bowie, president and general manager of Canadian Overseas Telecommunications Corporation, said in commenting on the new agreement:

"The better quality of service normally given by cable communication has guided thinking for this newest development. This is the culmination—up to the present time at least—of engineering vision of a quarter of a century ago, even at the time when the first radio-telephone circuits were being opened between this continent and the United Kingdom."

The system will also provide a number of telegraph channels for use between Canada and the United Kingdom

Railways, Union Ask Conciliation

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian railways and brotherhoods representing non-operating employees have been unable to settle contract differences and have asked for appointment of a federal conciliation officer, it was announced Monday.

The announcement was made jointly on behalf of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways.

Representatives of the railways and the brotherhoods started discussions last week on terms of a new contract to replace one due to expire today. The brotherhood sought "fringe benefits" rather than an increase in salary.

The brotherhoods, representing some 150,000 men in shops, stations and offices of the railways, asked for improved pay for work on statutory holidays and Sundays, extended paid vacation and more generous sick-pay provisions.

The announcement gave no indication of what points caused the break-down in negotiations.

Won't Attempt Bluster-Dulles

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles, in an evident retort to Senator Joseph McCarthy, said today that President Eisenhower and he "do not propose to throw away" the assets of Allied cooperation "by blustering and domineering methods.

Dulles did not mention McCarthy by name but he said he was commenting on widely publicized criticism to the effect that the United States speaks in too kindly a manner to its allies and has sent them "perfumed notes instead of using threats and intimidation to compel them to do our bidding."

McCarthy used the words "perfumed notes" in criticizing administration foreign policy in his radio-TV address of Nov. 25.

REJECTS METHODS

In a press conference statement, Dulles said the administration rejected "arrogant" methods and the use of demands which the United States would turn down if such demands were made upon it.

He said bases shared with allies make possible the peace-keeping threat of atomic retaliation by the United States "against the vitals of Russia."

The secretary of state said he spoke with the support of the president who was aware of the statement he made.

Dulles had a conference with the president at the White House only an hour or so before his meeting with reporters.

When talking of U. S. bases abroad, Dulles said that without them and without Allied warning systems, suct centres as Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago and Milwaukee would be "sitting ducks for atomic bombs" in event of war.

On another aspect of McCarthy's speech, Dulles announced that career diplomat John Paton Davies whose continued employment under the Eisenhower administration has been attacked by McCarthy, is undergoing a new security investigation which will be completed in about a month.

Vishinsky Says Charges False

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Russia's Andrei Vishinsky today branded U. S. charges of Red atrocities in Korea a "flagrantly concocted falsification."

The Soviet delegate told the 60-nation UN General Assembly that charges detailed Monday by Henry Cabot Lodge Jr of the United States were brought out to "dynamite" peace negotiations in Korea.

He called the Lodge report "cynical," "cowardly," "a manoeuvre to cover the worst crimes of all perpetrated by the American military circles in Korea," and "redolent of slander."

Vishinsky was the first speaker at this morning's session, called to debate the American charges that some 38,000 persons were victims of atrocities committed by Communist Chinese and North Korean soldiers.

All Big Papers Shutdown In N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP)—News-hungry New Yorkers were without a major city newspaper today as the Herald Tribune suspended publication in sympathy with the six big dailies closed down by a photo-engravers' strike.

The shutdown of all the principal newspapers was the first in the city's publishing history.

Representatives of the AFL photo-engravers union and of the publishers of the six affected newspapers scheduled resumption of negotiations this afternoon.

When negotiations were recessed Monday night, a federal mediator said there was no change in efforts to settle the dispute over wages and other issues. Union and publisher representatives had no comment on the course of the talks.

Fruitless Search For Lost RCAF Pilot

WHITBY (CP) — RCAF officials said today a floating object in Lake Ontario, at first thought to be the Mae West of a lost RCAF pilot, FO. Richard W. Russell of Toronto, turned out to be a buoy.

The search for the young reserve officer, who disappeared in his Vampire jet fighter Sunday, was carried out today by a dozen RCAF aircraft concentred three miles off the shore from Whitby, 20 miles east of Toronto.

Local fireman James Corner told police he saw a billow of smoke from the vicinity of Whitby harbor Sunday.

UK Hopes To Increase Trade With Red China

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain hopes to increase her trade with Communist China and other countries of the Soviet bloc, a board of trade spokesman says.

Derick Heathcote-Amory, state minister for the government trade bureau, told the House of Commons Monday night British officials have been engaged in consultations with the United States and other Western powers aimed at broadening the classifications of non-strategic goods.

But he emphasized that the government is more concerned with keeping strict control over trade with Communist countries than with expanding its volume.

Jonah! — He Came Out Alright

Wrestler's Head Caught In Jaws Of Alligator

DANIA, Fla. (AP) — William McLellan, 20, knows how it feels to have his head caught between an alligator's jaws

McLellan had the experience Monday while wrestling an alligator at an open-air show.

Orman Dennis, master of ceremonies, and William's younger brother, James, 17, leaped into the pit and pried open the jaws to rescue the injured performer.

Sixty stitches were required for the cuts on McLellan's face—40 for the deep gash on his left jaw and 20 for the cut on his right cheek.

The injuries apparently resulted when the alligator clamped his jaws shut on McLellan's head and rolled over while the wrestler struggled to free himself.

En route to hospital, McLellan said he will go back to wrestle the 'gators again.

Chinese Junk Sunk With All Hands Aboard

HONG KONG (AP)—Fishermen of Macao reported today that a Macao-bound junk with an unknown number of men aboard was sunk with all hands by gunfire from Communist Lapsamei island Monday night when it ignored a Communist "halt" signal.

It is not known whether the junk was carrying cargo or was fishing. The island is 25 miles southwest of Hong Kong.

Two Men Have Narrow Escape

ORILLIA (CP) — Two Orillia truck drivers had narrow escapes near here today. One truck was hit by a freight train and the other turned over in a ditch after skidding on ice.

Ray M. Raaflaub said an oncoming freight engine, hidden by a string of box cars, struck the rear of his truck. Raaflaub was unhurt.

Murray Emmons, Bell Telephone driver, escaped with only a bruised shoulder but his vehicle was damaged in the ditch spill.

Dollars Needed For Arms

Must Sacrifice Tourism For Country's Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal-provincial tourist conference has been told that heavy defence expenditures will prevent expansion of federal efforts in 1954 to attract more tourists to Canada.

Resources Minister Lesage, who reports to Parliament for the Canadian government travel bureau, said Monday that "defence expenditures next year will not leave much leeway for additional expansion." Defence expenitures again would be heavy because of Canada's international commitments.

R. Gordon Robertson, deputy minister, said that defence expenditures during the next fiscal year will be about the same as this year. Prospects for obtaining more money were not good.

Mr. Lesage and Mr. Robertson were commenting on suggestions by provincial delegates that the federal government increase the travel bureau's appropriation. The bureau received $1,528,450 for the 1953-54 fiscal year, two-thirds earmarked for advertising and publicity.

The provincial delegates and representatives of transportation companies reported they plan to spend more money in 1954 on tourist promotion, particularly in the United States. They warned that Canada faced increased competition for the American tourist dollar, especially from Mexico.

"We can't increase tourist traffic with the tools we have been using for the last few years," said D. Leo Dolan, director of the travel bureau. "The United States is Canada's best tourist market and we need more promotion and advertising to attract Americans."

Thought Roar Of Train Airplane Overhead

TRENTON (CP) — A woman driver said Monday she thought the roar of a diesel locomotive approaching a level-crossing was that of an airplane.

Mrs. J. Wallace of Trenton, driving the automobile in which she and her husband were riding, said she could not see the train because of a rainstorm.

The car was more than half way across the tracks when the train hit it in the rear.

The impact threw the car off the tracks Neither Mrs. Wallace nor her husband was injured.

U.S. Won't Bargain Away Rights Red Slave Lands

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles assured Soviet enslaved countries Monday that Americas never will bargain away their chances for freedom just to gain "illusory safety for ourselves." Soviet despotism, Dulles said, "cannot indefinitely perpetuate its rule over hundreds of millions of people who love God, who love their country and who have a sense of personal dignity." While the secretary suggested two specific steps for liberating countries behind the Iron Curtain, he did say:

"The captive peoples should know that they are not forgotten, that we are not prepared to seek illusory safety for ourselves by a bargain with their masters which would confirm their captivity."

Dulles was the first witness before a special House of Representatives committee set up to investigate Russia's seizure and subsequent treatment of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia. The committee hopes the information it obtains will be used, if Congress wishes, in laying the plight of the Baltic countries before the United Nations.

SOVIET PATTERN

Committee chairman Charles Kersten (Rep. Wis.) said the tragedy of 6,000,000 Baltic people was the blueprint for what happened elsewhere later. Dulles and diplomatic representatives of Baltic countries agreed that the pattern was:

Treaties of peace and non-aggression, mutual assistance pacts dictated by Russia, then invasion and the setting up of puppet governments, and incorporation of the countries into the Soviet union.

Dulles, saying that some 15 once-independent countries now have been Sovietized, noted that Soviet leaders still ask free people to accept and rely on Russian mutual security pacts.

"We should know by now," he said, "that when the Soviet rulers use the word 'security' they mean an opportunity for the Soviet Union to secure new victims."

Counsel Asks To Be Relieved In Seaway Case

WASHINGTON (AP)—John Coffman, counsel for a firm that has sued to halt New York state's participation in constructing a St Lawrence river power project, project, asked today to be relieved of his assignment.

Charles M. Goetz, lawyer for the power authority of New York, said Coffman filed such a motion in the U. S. court of appeals. Goetz said he received a copy of the motion.

Coffman, Goetz said, is the Washington lawyer for the Public Power and Water Corp., Trenton, N. J., a private engineering firm that applied unsuccessfully to the power commission for a licence to join with Canada in constructing the estimated $600,000,000 project.

The licence was granted by the FPC to the New York authority. Subsequently, Public Power and Water petitioned the court to rescind the order or have it reviewed.

RECEIVED NO PAY

Goetz said that Coffman said in his motion that he had received no compensation for his services.

He also told the court, Goetz said, that payment had been stopped on a $500 cheque sent him by Hugo A. Spilanski, president of Public Power, to pay for printing expenses incident to the filing of briefs in the current litigation.

Coffman told the court there was no understanding between him and Public Power as to the compensation he would receive.

Two other litigants have petitioned the court to bar New York's participation in the project. They are the Pennsylvania Coal Producers Association, and the Lake Ontario Land Development and Beach Protective Asociation.

The court has directed the litigants to file exchange briefs by Dec. 16.

Four Children Die In Burning House

GREENVILLE, Mich. (AP) — Three brothers and a sister suffocated early today when trapped in an upstairs bedroom as fire raced through the first floor of their frame home.

The oldest boy gave his life in a vain effort to save his two brothers and a sister. One sister escaped by jumping from a second-storey window.

The victims were James McAllister, 13, his brothers Ronnie, 8, and L. D., 5, and a sister, Laura, 7

Two sisters who escaped the flaming dwelling were Reba, 11, and Reve, 12.

Police said the father William McAllister, a scrap dealer, was at a tavern when the fire broke out shortly after midnight. The mother was working as a waitress at a downtown restaurant.

UN Interviewers Talk With Non-Returnees

PANMUNJOM (AP) — United Nations interviewers start talks Wednesday with the first of the Allied prisoners-of-war who have refused repatriation. The South Korean non-returnees are first on the list.

It is expected explanations to the 328 South Koreans will take about 11 days. Then the Allied teams will face the 22 Americans and one Briton who have elected to remain with the Reds.

The Communists wooed back only about three per cent of the 2,500 Chinese and Koreans they have interviewed — a humiliating propaganda walloping.

How many Allied prisoners will return is anyone's guess. Speculation based on information from some already returned indicates a high percentage will choose home.

Delbert Rowe of Holloway topped Hastings county exhibitors for the county medal while Murray Heath of Campbellford took five county class awards. T. O. Heath of Wilton won the Lennox and Addington county prize, a summer cheese award. George Davis of Roblin was first in the United Counties fall cheese showings.

Two Contesting Reeveship North Monaghan

For the first time in four years Willard G. Waterman is going to be opposed as reeve of North Monaghan township.

Walter Brown, a farmer who lives at Lot 2, Concession 10, qualified at the nomination meeting Monday night in the county courthouse. Mr. Brown has served on the North Monaghan council for six years and is making his first bid for the reeveship.

There will be no contest for council. Harold S. Matthews, Lloyd Whittington. Fred Stinson and Roy Locke were all returned by acclamation. All but Matthews, who is a newcomer, were on the 1953 council.

Trustees on School Area Board No. 1 were both given two-year acclamations. The two 1954 trustees for that area are Eric Johnston and Charles Ross.

SCHOOL QUESTION

The real stuggle is over School Area Board No. 2. Five candidates are contesting the two vacancies and a group of the ratepayers — particularly along the built-up section bordering Highway 28—are promising to make it tough going for two of the trustees up for election—George Whitfield and Henry Batten.

The ill feeling stems from the decision of the No. 2 board to build the new Brailey's school beside the old one—in the northeasterly corner of the township, instead of in a central location. Besides that, the critical faction are bitter because the board decided on the location without calling a meeting of the ratepayers.

"Undemocratic!" was the commonest charge hurled against Messrs. Whitfield and Batten. The argument ran the gamut from angry denunciations to a form of low rural comedy.

At one point, John Lillico, one of the most persistent critics, charged that Mr. Whitfield wanted to get on with the construction of the school so it would be an accomplished fact and so there could be no reneging on the choice of the site.

"How do you know?" demanded Mr. Whitfield.

"That's my business," said Mr. Lillico with a smirk.

"How do you know?' insisted Mr. Whitfield.

"I heard you say so," said Mr. Lillico. "I was listening on the party line while you were talking."

"So was I," volunteered a colleague. The exchange was drowned in laughter by the 60 North Monaghan electors who had come early and crowded the benches, anticipating a blow-up.

This confession of eavesdropping was too much for Mr. Whitfield. He joined the spectators in laughter and sat down.

CANDIDATES NAMED

Running against Messrs Batten and Whitfield are two newcomers, William P. Gray and Grant Clark. The fifth candidate is Joseph Stenton, a former trustee, who was one of the severest critics of the two encumbent trustees.

Mr. Whitfield, in his nomination address, said, "We've built a new school and we're proud of it." Then he was cut short by persistent questioners.

Courtland Lillico accused Mr. Batten of saying, to other board members: "If we do have a ratepayers' meeting I'm beat before I start . . . and I won't abide by the decision."

"I don't think I ever made that statement," replied Mr. Batten. "I said if the school board called the meeting I'd abide by the decision." Later, he strengthened his stand: "I deny it. I wouldn't make such a statement."

Mr. Lillico quoted Inspector Anderson as saying that it was a "mistake" not to have called a ratepayers' meeting.

Mr. Batten said he couldn't remember Inspector Anderson saying that. He added: "Regardless of the meeting, the school board would have had to make the decision."

"The fact remains that we didn't have democracy," said Stanley Miller, one of the group who wanted the school in a central location.

SECURED COSTS

John Lillico, who had been doing most of his verbal sniping from a sitting position, then got up, pointed at the two trustees and said: "You didn't use democracy. You didn't use the golden rule."

Questioning disclosed that the school cost $24,100; the 1⅛ acres of land cost $1,200; and the board members didn't look for other sites.

Moreover, the critics pointed out, tenders weren't called for. The contract was awarded without established builders being given a chance to make a bid on the job.

One of the critics said that already there were cracks in the school. But he refused to be more specific.

"Where are the cracks?" asked Mr. Whitfield.

"You find out," snapped the critic.

"We wanted a school on the highway so the children wouldn't have to walk across the swamp," said John Lillico.

While the argument raged for 45 minutes, township clerk Bruce Johnston sat quietly at his desk, inking in the qualification forms. When a temporary lull came in the cross-talk, he looked up and said, quietly, "Steam all gone?"

Then he adjourned the meeting.

Ford Co. Claims $905,101 In Damages

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Claims totalling $905,101 are involved in legal actions launched at Toronto today on behalf of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, against 12 insurance companies. They arise out of a strike in December, 1951, when strikers forced a shutdown of the company's power house, which provides essential services, including heat, to Ford of Canada's plants and offices in Windsor. All Ford's buildings were left without heat during a period of cold weather and extensive damage was done.

Two actions have been instituted against each of the 12 insurance companies with which Ford of Canada is insured, making 24 actions in all. One set of actions claims indemnity for property damage loss, totalling $217,478, and the other for loss resulting from the interruption or interference with the company's business amounting to $687,623.

The actions hinge mainly upon the interpretation of the "riot" clauses of the policies.

Some time is expected to elapse before all the pleadings are filed and the actions come to trial in the Supreme Court of Ontario, Ontario, probably at Toronto.

Three-Car Crash Costs $78 In Fines

LINDSAY (ENS)—A Downeyville man, Earl Murtha, was fined $60 and $18 costs Monday, for driving while his ability was impaired and illegal possession of liquor. Murtha pleaded not guilty to the first charge.

The driving count was laid after a three-car crash on County Road 5 November 13. According to the evidence, Murtha and two friends, Gerald and Fabian O'Neill, were on their way to their homes in separate cars, after helping with the threshing at the farm of Ray Perdue on the county road south of Bobcaygeon.

The three cars were following one another, with Gerald O'Neill leading the way and Murtha bringing up the rear, after they had left the threshing, which had wound up with some six of the helpers finishing 36 pints of beer, and, allegedly, a bottle of whiskey.

When Gerald O'Neill slowed down to enter his driveway, he said, he heard a crash behind him, then felt his cousin's car being driven into his.

SKIDED 48 FEET

Fabian O'Neill told the court he was unaware of Murtha driving behind him, and had slowed down when he saw his cousin doing so. Murtha apparently was unprepared for the braking and skidded 48 feet before crashing into the rear of the O'Neill vehicle. Damage to Gerald O'Neill's and Murtha's cars was set at about $250 each, while Fabian O'Neill's, sandwiched between the two, was damaged to the extent of $1,000 front and rear.

OPP Constable James Hall said Murtha was staggering and smelled of liquor. He also said his eyes were glassy, but Defence Counsel H. E. Richardson claimed this was due to the dust of the threshing operations.

Magistrate E. A. Gee found Murtha at least partially responsible for the accident, and also that the accused had been under the influence at the time. He also found the accused guilty of having liquor in an illegal place, since a bottle of beer had been found in his car. A third charge of "following too closely a car ahead," was dropped by the crown.

Ontario Man Acquitted On Federal Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An Ontario man was acquitted by a federal court jury Monday of transporting a 24-year-old woman from Seattle to San Francisco for immoral purposes

Victor Sorochan, 26, of Cornwall, charged with violation of the Mann Act, was accused of bringing Pauline Lavictorie, also of Cornwall, to San Francisco.

Miss Lavictorie, testifying as a government witness, said she had given Sorochan more than $75,000 from her earnings as a prostitute in San Francisco, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, New York and Philadelphia.

Sorochan testified he left Seattle a week before Miss Lavictorie came here.

Both face deportation to Canada.

Ex-Governor Dies In Crash With 3 Others

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—Silver-haired Kim Sigler, who took over the Michigan governor's chair seven years ago on the strength of a sensational grand jury expose, died late Monday in a fiery plane crash. Three companions died with him.

Sigler's private four-place plane, threading its way through a dense fog, snagged onto a guy wire supporting a 540-foot television tower. The impact sheared off one wing and sent the fuselage hurtling into a woods three-quarters of a mile away, where it crashed and burned.

The 59-year-old Republican presumably was at the controls. He was a veteran and enthusiastic flier.

OTHER VICTIMS

The other victims were Sigler's secretary, Mrs. Ruth Prentice, 41, her sister, Mrs. Virginia Schuyler, 28, and Mrs. Schuyler's husband, Harold, 37, of Lansing, Mich.

Sigler and his party were returning from a combination business-pleasure trip to Louisiana

It was believed that because of the fog Sigler might have been coming in for a landing at Kellogg field, only three miles from the tower, when tragedy struck.

In the mid-1940s, Sigler, as special prosecutor for a one-man state grand jury, was responsible for indictments against more than 100 legislators and lobbyists. Many of them went to prison. Bribe-taking to influence votes was exposed.

After a bitter feud over continuance of the grand jury, Sigler took a fling at politics in 1946, and by a majority of 340,000 votes, defeated Democratic incumbent Murray D. van Wagoner.

But after one two-year term, Sigler was unseated by the present Democratic Governor, G. Mennen Williams, by 164,000 votes in a surprising political upset.

Believe Third War Near Gouzenko Tells U.S. Reporter

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Igor Gouzenko, whose disclosures led to the Canadian espionage trials in 1946, told the St Louis Post-Dispatch today he believes a third world war is near.

Donald Grant of The Post-Dispatch, in a copyrighted dispatch from Toronto, reported Gouzenko "does not believe the atomic bomb provides any real security for the West."

"He believes it is deathly important for the Western allies — including the United States and Canada — to stop bickering and stand together," Grant reported.

WIFE PRESENT

The Post-Dispatch reported Gouzenko's wife was present during the four-hour interview at an undisclosed location. Gouzenko, the former Russian code clerk, has built a new life under an assumed name in an Ontario village for personal security reasons.

In the interview, Gouzenko said "he most definitely does not believe in a preventative war against Russia."

"What he does believe," the article continued, "is that communism must be fought seriously and well by a West that is strong, vigilant and morally right . . .

"Gouzenko said he is interested in catching Russian spies — not in 1945, or at any other date in the past, but now, before it is too late."

Hint Gang Warfare In Toronto Beating

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today that a shooting and beating here Sunday night may reflect internal warfare in an organized drug ring.

William McGraw, 25, turned up at hospital early Monday morning with all his front teeth knocked out. He said he had been beaten up in a school yard and shot at by a gang of youths.

Thomas McDermott, 26, arrived at hospital a few hours later with a bullet hole in his foot. He said he was attacked and shot at in the same school yard.

Police, however, charged McDermott with shooting at McGraw with intent to maim and said they believe McDermott was wounded by his own gun. McGraw is being held as a material witness.

Turns Cold Shoulder To Truce Feelers

SAIGON (AP)—Bao Dai, Viet Nam chief of state, turned a cold shoulder today to a purported offer by Communist leader Ho Chi Minh to negotiate for an armistice in the seven-year-old Indo-China war.

A statement from Bao Dai also appeared to criticize the French, saying Ho's armistice proposals seemed to be in reply to feelers "that weren't formulated by Viet Nam officials."

The ex-emperor said the only way to end the war is to inflict a decisive military defeat on Ho's Communist-led Vietminh rebels.

The Stockholm newspaper Expressen published a cable Sunday in which the Vietminh chief was quoted as saying he would be ready to meet an armistice proposal from the French. He demanded an end to hostilities and that France "really respect the independence of the Viet Nam."

Reserve Forces Said Weak For Emergency

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC—Esquimalt-Saanich) said Monday in the Commons that Canadian Army and RCAF reserve forces are so weak they could not be relied upon in an emergency.

He urged builtup of army and RCAF reserve manpower RCAF reserves didn't have sufficient personnel to fulfil their given role. The 12 auxiliary squadrons were not equipped with the latest planes and thus would not have the required technical training in case of Soviet air attack.

The Progressive Conservative military critic also said Defence Minister Claxton in his speech to the Commons last week had not outlined what steps, if any, were being taken by the government to maintain army reserves.

The free countries could not place intolerable strains on their economies by maintaining regular forces to match the Russian Army division for division. For this reason, the government must put emphasis on reserve army manpower.

IGNORE RESERVES

It had been traditional Canadian policy for years to regard the reserve as the backbone of the land forces. But "very little attention" had been paid of late to army reserves.

Gen. Pearkes said Mr. Claxton had given no assurance that all joint defence agreements with the United States had been put into force.

The minister had made a "half-hearted response" to President Eisenhower's call for action on all agreed measures for joint defence. If any agreed measures had been held in abeyance, such as standardization of arms and equipment, the government should give reasons.

Lloyd Burrows, A. E. Hick To Run For Mayor's Seat

LINDSAY (ENS)—A race for the mayoralty, and possible fights for the deputy reeve's and council seats was seen following Monday night's nomination meeting held in Lindsay.

Seven nominees were named for the six council seats, two for the deputy-reeveship, and two mayoral candidates, A. E. Hick, and Lloyd Burrows, indicated their intention to run for office. Reeve Richard Butler, former Victoria county warden, was acclaimed to that post for another term.

Two members of the 1953 aldermanic ranks will not be back in 1954. Alderman W. D. Stevens indicated he would run for deputy-reeve, the post left open by the moving up of Mr. Hick to the mayoral race. The seat may be contested by James Kingsborough, a council veteran who did not state Monday night whether or not we would qualify.

Another Alderman John L. Baker, a veteran of 16 years service on council, withdrew from the race, leaving two vacancies.

Nominated to fill these posts were Harry Peirce, a former alderman, Wm. H. McCrae and James H. Hood. If one of these fails to qualify an acclamation for the six aldermen would be a fact.

Another nomination for deputy-reeve, that of former councillor Miss Ada Greaves, was not confirmed or declined, and her name will stand until the end of qualifications at least.

A battle for one of the seats on the Board of Education was also forecast. Nominated for the north ward post were Walter Peel the former chairman of the board, and K. W. Keith, a veteran of 55 years teaching service and an active community worker in the town. Both indicated they would run for position. The south ward seat, wen tto Lawson Blakely, by acclamation, as did the east ward post to Reginald Vickery.

The two hydro board seats were again filled by incumbents by acclamation. They were George Baldwin and A. J. Brennan. The single seat on the water board to be filled was taken by D. A. Sinclair, retiring member by acclamation. The election date in Lindsay is next Monday, Dec. 7.

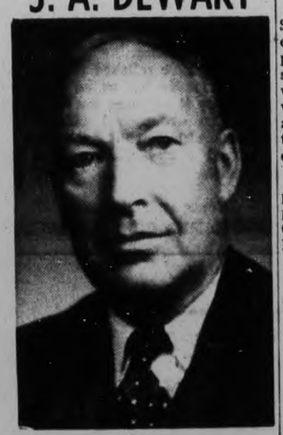
Calls For Reduction On Cigarette Tax

OTTAWA (CP)—Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) Monday called for a reduction of the excise tax on cigarettes to permit a price of 25 cents for a package of 20.

Speaking in the throne speech debate, Mr. Nesbitt said the present tax had encouraged smuggling of cigarettes from the United States and thus reduced the amount of government revenue from the cigarette tax.



Mr. Nesbitt also proposed government purchase of milk concentrates for shipment to countries of south and southeast Asia. It would help the hungry people of those countries and also reduce the surplus of milk concentrates in Canada which now stood at 15,000,000 pounds.

Re-elect Mayor By Acclamation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls is the latest Ontario city to re-elect its mayor by acclamation.

Ernest M. Hawkins was returned Monday for his fourth term. Nominations raised the prospect of contests for the city's three council seats and the four spots on the board of education, for which candidates qualify today. The five-member separate school board went in by acclamation.

Aldermen C. L. Hyde and John Both qualified to contest the Belleville mayoralty.

In the north, Timmins, the province's largest town, gave J. W Spooner an acclamation for another term as mayor. The gold-mining community has a population of about 30,000.

Other mayors of towns elected by acclamation for 1954: W. E. Cowley, Tilbury; Lawson Cross, Listowel; George A. Mickle, Ridgetown; Dr. E. A. McMaster, Seaforth; G. Creasy, Webbwood

Princess Margaret Views Own Portrait

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret came face-to-face with herself in Piccadilly today, and liked the encounter.

At the exhibition of the Royal Society of Portrait Painters she examined long and approvingly a portrait of herself painted by the society's vice-president, Simon Elwes. In person, Margaret was wearing a cerise-colored fitted coat and black velvet hat. In the picture she was wearing a black evening gown.

Queen Mother Elizabeth accompanied the princess, and among portraits they saw was one of the Queen Mother painted by Edward Halliday.

King Of Buganda Banished Arrives In U.K.

LONDON (Reuters)—The King of Buganda, his leadership over 1,000,000 subjects in the African colony revoked Monday by the British government, arrived by air today.

Banishment of the king (kabacka), Mutesa II, was announced in the House of Commons by Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttleton.

Lyttleton said the 29-year-old African ruler had repudiated his obligations, under an agreement of 1900 which provided for his "loyal co-operation" with the British administration, by backing an independence movement.

FEARS BLOODSHED

The colonial secretary said there would be "very grave danger of bloodshed" in Uganda's Buganda province if the kabaka remained, now that Britain has withdrawn her recognition of him.

A state of emergency has been declared in Buganda

The kabaka arrived in London today after a flight in an RAF transport.

Lyttleton said he would be willing to see the kabaka if the exruler desires.

SECOND EXILE

The kabaka is the second African leader exiled by the British government in recent years. Seretse Khama, banished chief-designate of the Bamangwato in Bechuanaland, went into exile in England in 1950 after his marriage to a white English girl had split his tribe.

The kabaka is accused of having opposed the British government's policy by demanding a self-governing status for Buganda, independent of the other three provinces of Uganda.

The banishment of the kabaka drew expressions of concern today from The Times and the Conservative Daily Mail. Both papers questioned whether Britain had shown sufficient patience with him.

Duke Of Windsor Sees Churchill On Birthday

LONDON (AP)—The Duke of Windsor made a birthday pilgrimage today to one of his best friends and staunchest allies—Prime Minister Churchill.

The two chatted for 30 minutes at 10 Downing St., Churchilul"s official residence. Then Churchill, who was 79 Monday, saw the duke out to his car.

The duke wished Churchill bon voyage on his trip to Bermuda for the Big Three talks.

The duke and duchess arrived here unexpectedly Monday for a short visit.

The rank of field marshal was introduced in the British Army by George II in 1736.

Ordnance Depot To Pay Cobourg Up To $35,000

LAKESHORE (ENS) — An amount which will be between twenty five thousand and thirty five thousand dollars will be paid yearly to the town of Cobourg by the Department of National defence, in lieu of taxes on the ordnance depot, it was announced last night at a public meeting by Mayor John D. Burnet.

The mayor, re-elected by acclamation, told a town hall audience, gathered to hear the candidates for town council, that he and the town treasurer and been to see the Department of National Defence a few days ago and were empowered to state that the department grant could be regarded as an account receivable for 1953 as it would be covered by the grant which would be made within a few weeks.

The exact amount is not known as there remains yet to be done a balancing up of what the towns assessment department would regard as the value of the buildings, and the appraisal by the Department of National Defence The current grant will be for 1953 with the 1954 grant coming next year, the mayor said.

There was an audience of only about 50 people to hear the candidates Monday night, about the poorest attendance in history. However, there were no contentious issues during the council year just concluded to arouse any public interest.

Councillor Otto Curtis, Finance Chairman for 1953, said that he was glad to hear the mayor's announcement regarding the grant from the Department of National Defence because all the committees had gone over their estimates and without the extra grant, the 1954 budget would have to include a 1953 deficit.

James Mason To Take Lead In Shakespearean Festival

STRATFORD (CP)—James Mason, star of stage and screen, will be the leading actor in the second annual Shakespearean festival here next summer.

The board of governors of the festival foundation made the announcement following a meeting here Monday night.

The festival opens June 28 and will play for eight weeks.

Mr. Mason will play the role of Angelo in "Measure for Measure," and Oedipus in "Oedipus Rex." The third play will be "The Taming of the Shrew."

This program is an enlargement on last year's production when two Shakespearean plays were presented "Oedipus Rex" and "The Taming of the Shrew" will be directed by Tyrone Guthrie, who directed last year's festival. "Measure for Measure" will be directed by Cecil Clarke, art director of the festival.

Designs for all plays will be by Tanya Moiseiwitsch.

This will not be Mr. Mason's first appearance in a Shakespearean production. He has played parts in Dr. Guthrie's production at the Old Vic. His most recent role was that of Brutus in the Hollywood film of "Julius Caesar" and one of his most notable successes was that in the role of Rommel in "The Desert Fox."

Mill Operators Need License

Operators of small flour, grain and feed mills will not be allowed to fumigate their own establishments unless they possess a licence. This requirement will take effect after January 1, 1954. The restriction comes under the general ruling of the Ontario Division of Industrial Hygiene, which requires all commercial fumigators and exterminators to have an operating licence after the new year.

The new ruling controls almost all the effective substances used in fumigation and extermination, said MOH Dr. J. P. Wells.

Application for a licence must be submitted to the Toronto office of Industrial Hygiene before December 14, which is the date on which examinations will be given to applicants from this area.

To procure an operator's licence after 1954, one year's apprenticeship is necessary.

CIO-CCL Criticizes Church For "Sitting On Fence"

TORONTO (CP) — C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), Monday criticized the church for standing on the sidelines in labor-management disputes.

He spoke at a conference of the Religion-Labor Foundation here, after a report read to the conference said that ministers of two churches in Timmins felt it would be unwise and unnecessary for them to take sides in a strike of 5,000 gold miners in the area.

The miners, members of Mr. Millard's union, struck during summer and fall months for higher wages and the checkoff.

Mr. Millard said he has been active in many important strikes in Canada and "was always amazed to see where the church stands."

He said: "I have been unable to find any group of local ministers, when a struggle takes place, who have identified themselves with that struggle."

The church should speak out, whether labor or management is at fault, he said

"Whether the labor movement will be able to stem the tide remains to be seen. There is a move on foot," he claimed, "to keep the strikes going until the unions are exhausted financially."

The foundation, mainly a Toronto organization of religious and labor representatives, Monday urged the federal government to appoint a royal commission to investigate northern Ontario gold mines.

Communist Markets For Canadian Goods

Canada fattens by exporting her goods —a paradox which is nevertheless true in the present economic framework of expanding capitalist countries. Thus Canadian industry and business — and agriculture — are in constant need of new and bigger foreign markets. Some of the biggest are Communist countries and their satellites: China, Russia, eastern European nations. There is nothing immoral about doing business with them, nor harmful, if the trade is not in armaments or other strategic materials. After all, not one of them is an enemy, technically. Canada is not at war with them.

* * *

The United Nation's Economic Commission for Europe reports that in the last six months all the Russian satellite countries except Poland have shifted the emphasis of their economic plans away from heavy investment in basic industries and towards greater production of food and consumer goods. This UN commission sees signs that Communist eastern European countries are interested in buying consumer goods from Western Europe. Thus an East-West trade revival is forecast.

* * *

There is no good economic reason why Canada should not be able to take a slice of this new trade. There is no sufficient moral reason why Canadian business and industry should not deal with Communist countries. Germany, Britain, France, Denmark and other politically democratic nations are dealing with them. Trade agreements have recently been concluded between several European countries on both sides of the Iron Curtain. For instance, France has a new agreement with Russia for the exchange of goods worth seventy million dollars. Russia has also negotiated new agreements to expand trade with Greece and Denmark. There is a new Soviet-Argentine agreement providing for an exchange of 150 million dollars worth of goods. The Soviet Union is also interested in buying butter from Australia and New Zealand.

* * *

Are these eastern European countries willing and able to deal only with European and soft-currency countries, and on a barter system? Is it financially impossible for Russia to buy Canadian wheat and other goods, because there is nothing Russia has to offer Canada in exchange, and because Canada is a hard-currency country? We think not. For instance, the Soviet Union is offering to buy butter, meat and television sets from anyone who will sell them, and will make payments in gold or in strategic materials.

* * *

Last year's trip of some Canadian businessmen to Russia, and the recent restoration of ambassadorial connections between Ottawa and Moscow may result in some beneficial expansion of trade between the two countries. At the same time the opportunities for effective trade with east European countries other than Russia should not be overlooked. The bulletin of UN's Economic Commission for Europe, published last Thursday, shows that the markets are available.

The Queen And The Methodists

Our editorial commenting on the public disapproval of the Queen's attendance at horse-races, expressed in a newspaper article by Dr. Donald Soper, a prominent English Methodist, has brought two defences of Dr. Soper, which we print in our letter columns today. We cannot agree with our correspondents that Dr. Soper showed any courage in this matter; we cannot see that the mantle of Knox or Luther has fallen upon him. To attack a monarch in the days when a monarch possessed great power was a courageous act, no doubt, but in our time monarchs need protection far more than popular clergymen, for they are forbidden by custom to make any reply to what is said about them.

We think that the writer who suggests that the Queen is surrounded by complacent ecclesiastics, seeking her favour, has a short memory. Most of them are men who had some part in driving Edward VIII from the throne, when he flouted their beliefs. Further, we think that Dr. Soper's remarks about the Queen, which appeared in a newspaper article, were in a tone which Luther, Knox and Wesley would have thought impudent, and which certainly did not suggest that Dr. Soper, worthy man though he undoubtedly is, ranks as one of God's prophets.

Our point is this: the Queen cannot be expected to live in a way which will accord with the religious beliefs of all of her subjects, some millions of whom, by the way, are not Christians at all. If the position of the Monarchy is to be made intolerable, we shall shortly find that no one will wish to be a Queen or a King. If the Queen's racing, Princess Margaret's cigarettes, and the Duke of Edinburgh's driving, as well as the upbringing of the royal children, are to be topics of endless tut-tutting, we should understand and support a move on the part of the Royal Family to retire to private life. There is a limit to what even our dutiful monarchs can endure.

Death of Eugene O'Neill

Eugene Gladstone O'Neill was the greatest dramatist to appear thus far in the literature of the U.S.A., and the only American playwright whose work has received widespread and serious attention abroad. It is sad to record his death, but it is unlikely that, if he had lived longer, he would have written more plays. For many years he had been victim of a form of palsy which made writing, and many of the most ordinary acts of daily life, impossible to him. Indeed, his whole life was a struggle with ill-health. Considering the difficulties under which it was done, the mere volume of his work is extraordinary.

It is not by volume, but by quality, that posterity will judge him. Considering his plays in chronological order, it is strange to find how many of them were failures in the theatre. Surely no man ever built so great a reputation on so small a number of successes. Yet these failures were not the result of ineptitude; O'Neill was the son of a famous melodramatic actor, and there was not a trick or a rule of the theatre which he did not know. He could write plays of conventional construction and sure-fire popularity when he chose, as he proved in Ah, Wilderness. But he was a tireless experimenter in the theatre, and he was driven by a necessity to explain himself and his philosophy through his plays.

His experiments were often taxing to the audience. Strange Interlude with its nine acts, Mourning Becomes Electra with its three plays in one, The Great God Brown with its masks — these were endurance tests for the auditors, and the intellectual stimulation they provided was not always commensurate with the demands they made on attention and physical patience. O'Neill's plays became perennial subjects for satirists; in solemn literary circles he was discussed as if he had brought down new tablets from Sinai. In particular there was a great deal of talk about his pessimism.

O'Neill was not, in actual fact, a thoroughgoing pessimist, and there are passages of sweetness, of sentimentality, and of great humour in many of his plays. His outlook on life was grave, and his opinion of mankind was not that of a Pollyanna, but to think of him as a gloomy or hopeless writer is to show a very poor understanding of his work. He faced, honestly, the predicament of mankind caught between birth and death, and he described it as he believed it to be. Sometimes his work is flat, sometimes dull; he seemed to have no spirit of poetry in him. But his work is never thin, never trivial, never written merely to please the unthinking. Its quality is not so much philosophical as theological; moral problems engaged his attention at all times and inspired his best work.

It is impossible now to say what his place will be when the man himself is forgotten. The fortunes of playwrights are even more unpredictable than those of poets or novelists. But he cannot be ignored, for his work dominated the American stage for two generations.

Disarmament An Error

The American Secretary of State said last week that the United States made a mistake in totally disarming Germany and Japan after the last war. Mr. Dulles seems to be right in this statement, judging by the course the former allies, Russia and the United States, have taken in the last six years. Yet at the end of a war the logic of war, not of future history, determines what men do. When Allied nations wage the greatest war in history against the two most heavily-armed and powerful enemies who have ever fought, the logical conclusion of that war is that the defeated enemies should be disarmed. Why leave them armed to fight again?

Why? History now enters its logic. You leave your enemies armed so that they can join you as allies and fight against a new set of enemies you manage to acquire.

NOTES AND COMMENT

World Peace Council

Doves And Cynics

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

FOR the Soviet Government the World Peace Council is simply one instrument of its foreign policy. It has a single purpose: to exploit the universal desire for peace in the interests of the Soviet Union. This is simply one aspect of the Kremlin's ceaseless struggle to divide and demoralise the Western world.

Some years ago, at the time of the notorious Stockholm peace appeal, it was clear that the Kremlin set a high value on this particular instrument. Then, for a time, it was comparatively neglected. Now it is being revived. The council is meeting in Vienna this week to bring its policy up to date, and to consider plans for a new full-dress congress.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE GENERAL OBJECT is to capture imagination at a time when Western Europe is finding itself more critical than usual of United States policy, and when the spirit of revolt in colonies and dependencies everywhere is running high. The particular and urgent object is to hinder the ratification of the European Defence Community treaties, and to inflame opinion in Europe against the rearming of Germany. The council is repeating the Soviet demand for abolition of atomic weapons, for a five-power conference which will include China and for the removal of United States bases throughout the world.

✧ ✧ ✧

FROM its inception the World Peace Council has appealed to hatred rather than to peaceful sentiments; hatred of the United States. At this Vienna session, hatred is more evident than ever before. Pretty blue banners with Picasso's white dove of peace line the walls of the glorified indoor beer garden where the four hundred delegates from all over the world are meeting. The word "peace" punctuates every speech like a magic incantation. But the spirit of peace is not there: what is there is the spirit of venomous conspiracy.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE IS NO exaggeration. Fundamentally this bogus peace movement has always been a conspiracy — one aspect of Moscow's conspiracy against the free world. But it could always be argued that while the real, anonymous conspirators hid in the background, the men and women who made the speeches were no more than dupes, or misguided idealists. No doubt some of them are just this; but many are not. And listening to the speeches and watching the faces of distinguished men in their own line—the bigwigs on the platform, many of them scientists, lawyers, writers—it is interesting to speculate on what is really going on in their minds.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS one thing for men of peace and goodwill to grow angry about certain aspects of U.S. policy and convince themselves that Whitehall and Washington are no less to blame than Moscow for continuing world tension. It is possible to believe this without being a Communist. But the present session of the World Peace Council has revealed a cynical opportunism worthy of the Kremlin itself. For what the speakers have been doing is to appeal in the name of peace, but in the interests of the Soviet Union, to emotions of that blind and intolerant nationalism which has been the despair of true peacemakers from the beginning of time.

✧ ✧ ✧

THUS Signor Pietro Nenni, in a speech aimed not at the Vienna delegates, but at the Italian voters, shamelessly plays on Italian nationalist feeling about Trieste—the last subject to bring up at a peace conference. He does this for no other reason than to inflame Italian feeling against the U.S.A. and Britain. And he is not alone in this behaviour. At all costs, in the eyes of the Soviet Government, Europe must be turned against the United States, and the coloured races everywhere must be turned against the whites—to kill all attempts to establish unity and concord in the outside world. And faithfully, with unerring precision, in speech after speech, delegates to what amounts to a council of hate pick on the thing best calculated to arouse suspicion, distrust and hatred of the United States among their own countrymen.

✧ ✧ ✧

THEY ARE unscrupulous in the means they use. Perhaps one of the most remarkable performances was the speech by Mr. D. N. Pritt, Queen's Counsel, who is president of the British Peace Council, and who passes as an ardent Socialist, a devoted peace lover and an internationalist of the loftiest kind believing passionately in the brotherhood of man. But do we find Mr. Pritt preaching concord and amity among men? No: we find him preaching nationalism of the most rabid kind, a sort of neo-jingoism, in tones which would do credit to a diehard reactionary.

✧ ✧ ✧

HIS SPEECH revealed an interest in inflaming opposition to "American policies which strike at every fundamental British interest: our independence, our security, our trade." We find him talking of U.S. bases not only as a threat to the Soviet Union, but also as a direct threat to Britain itself. Britain, he says, is "an atom bomb base and an occupied country." Further, it is "threatened by the ring of U.S. bases which is primarily aimed at the Soviet Union and not so constituted that they cannot also be used against Britain."

FINALLY, for good measure, we find this champion of Socialism and Soviet Russia, this ardent hater of capitalism and big business, invoking, in the name of peace, the interest of that same big business; and counting among the most valued potential allies of the peace movement "growing numbers of industrialists and business men, who see their legitimate personal interests endangered by the banning of trade with the East."

The conference is now in its fourth day. So far not one of the speakers has made the slightest attempt to preach tolerance and sweet reason. All give the impression that they have never heard of those words. What they are preaching is nothing less than peace through submission to the Kremlin.

Letters To The Editor

TROUBLE AT THE MARKET

SIR: On Saturday, November 28th, the Women's Guild of St. John's church, Emily, organized a Bazaar and Home Cooking Sale in the Public Market. The same was advertised in the Public Press, as well as over the radio.

On the ladies' arrival at 8:30 of that morning, with their goods and home cooking, they were turned off the market, by the Caretaker, Mr. Gabbutt. This he did, on his own authority, in spite of the fact that many stalls were vacant. Soon after, permission was obtained from the City Clerk. Still the caretaker refused a stall, on the excuse that there two more churches had stalls that day. But he also added that they could return next Saturday, though there would be six stalls occupied.

One of the ladies, aged seventy-three, had been coming to Public Sales since she was a girl, and had never before heard of such awful treatment.

Much loss was suffered with no sales; much food ruined; and the ladies were nearly frozen for a time in the outside market. The public were disappointed too: and it seems high time that such dictatorship of such an impolite, man-handling Caretaker be stopped.

(Rev.,) A. W. SMITH,
Christ Church Rectory,
Omemee.

P.S.: The ladies hope to return next Saturday for their bazaar.

UNJUST TO SOPER

SIR: Your "Letters to the Editor" are read with a good deal of interest, and at times genuine amusement, and we must commend your paper for presenting all sides of an argument fairly. Just at present, however, you must be scraping the bottom of the barrel to waste practically a column on a letter written without rhyme or reason and quite evidently by a person suffering from an intense persecution complex. Probably that is the reason for your editorial on "The Queen and the Sport of Kings." When an article of that kind fails to promote discussion, then the church will have indeed lapsed into a state of slumber.

When Dr. Soper appeals to the Queen to withdraw the influence of her name from a practice that has been the downfall and ruination of many a family, he does not appeal to her as a member of the Methodist faith, as you suggest, but as a Christian, which has far wider implication. He also appeals to her as the Queen to whom all of his parishioners look for guidance. To those of us who know Dr. Soper personally for his untiring efforts both with his large London congregation, and with factory workers and frequenters of Hyde Park, your sarcastic pronouncement on his sincere attempt to nip one of the great evils of his land at the head is not only uncalled-for but unjust. The Queen is human, and no matter how dedicated she may be to her task, she not only needs, but has asked for the prayers of all her people and not of her church alone.

It was exactly the attitude expressed in the above mentioned article, sir, that cost the Israelites their kingdom through spiritual improverishment. When any monarch turns a deaf ear to God's prophets, the empire is in a bad way.

In closing, might I point out how difficult it is at times to follow your logic? You say that Dr. Soper has no right to criticize the Queen's participation in a sport to which a terrific amount of gambling which may have an adverse effect on some of her subjects is attached, even though she professes to be Christian, because she is wealthy and can afford it. You also say that Dr. Soper has no right to any comment on the subject because the Queen is not Methodist. Yet you speak of the powerful preaching of John Wesley against the social evils of his day in what can only be interpreted as praise. You admit that John Wesley did much good for the British Isles. Surely you are aware, sir, that before the Wesley brothers started preaching there were no Methodists in England or anywhere else.

Sincerely yours,
REV. ALVA S. ROBLIN
(Baptist.)

THE QUEEN AND GAMBLING

SIR: I am a regular reader of the Examiner and have consistantly admired the form and content of the Editorials and have often thought them to be in the same class as those of The Manchester Guardian and The Spectator. It was therefore with the deepest disappointment that I read the article on Donald Soper and 'The Sport of Kings'. The Examiner appears to have joined forces with the 'Daily Herald' and the 'Daily Mirror' in an unworthy attack on the Methodist President. Such company the Examiner will not always find congenial. Other Editorial comment has been more dignified and less confused.

I do not belong to the Methodist Communion and cannot be accused of denominational bias, but in all fairness to the Methodist people it is galling to find a man of such stature in the religious life of England referred to as a Donald Soper. Dr. Donald Soper is known all over the British Isles as a fearless thinker with a fiery social passion. His open-air meetings at Tower Hill and at Hyde Park Corner have attracted thousands. His own Mission "down the river" never lacks the crowds.

Few men are btter qualified to judge the effects of betting and gambling on the lives of a vast number of people for he is up against it every day and his life has been dedicated to the social uplift of the people. He was one of those consulted when the Royal commission on betting was doing its work.

The comment "we do not think the Queen need it, she is immensely rich" is surely beside the point. There must be a higher motive than the effect on her life personally. There is the Royal example. A great New Testament thinker refused to eat meat that had been presented first at idol shrines not because the meat was bad but because his action might cause a weaker person to think he condoned idol worship. "If meat make my brother to offend I will eat no meat." That surely is the Christian attitude and in a very real sense the Queen is her brother's keeper.

Few people will deny the unethical and anti-social nature of gambling. Even Julian Huxley who never claims to be a Christian has proclaimed over the B.B.C. "The spirit behind lotteries, sweepstakes and the pools is a sign of national decay." Others with little church bias have been deeply concerned by the degrading effects of gambling on football and the delightful sport of horse racing. Dr. Soper is well aware that a few flutters by the "grey toppers" will not effect their standard of living but the working out of the principle in the lives of others will mean less boots for little feet and less food for little bellies.

The editorial goes on to accuse Dr. Soper of "Professional impudence" when he presumes to advise the Queen on spiritual matters. That smacks of the Anglican Mind or the Primose League but Scotsmen will not readily agree. They have not often had cause to thank the mitre and the crown. Andrew Melville once reminded James VI that there were two kings and two kingdoms in Scotland. "There is King James head of the Commonwealth and there is Christ Jesus head of the church whose subject King James is and of whose Kingdom he is not a king, nor a lord, nor a head, but a member."

As loyal subjects of the Queen we have an even deeper loyalty and if Queen or Princes violate the principles of that kingdom the humblest member of it may exercise the right to rebuke or advise them. Donald Soper is in good company. John Knox may have been guilty of professional impudence to Queen Mary and Luther in his relations with the Pope. John Townsend a layman in the reign of Victoria after reading that the Dean of Westminster had told her that there could be no certainty about ultimate salvation, wrote to her pointing out from Scripture that it was possible to have that certainty. The Queen was evidently pleased with his "professional impudence" for she wrote that she had read the passages quoted in his letter and was happy to tell him that she now possesses that assurance.

Kings and Queens are apt to be surrounded by ecclesiastics who are only too ready to purr at the stroke of any Royal hand, to be the apologists by word and pen for any royal action however it conflicts with the faith they were ordained to proclaim. It is therefore good to find one man who will stand up and speak out despite the sneers and slights of the secular mind.

Dr. Soper would have relished the task of replying to your leader but as he is never likely to see it, so it remains for one who neither shares his theological outlook or his ecclesiastical affinity but who sees a principle involved in the attack against the stand he has taken to say a good word for him.

Yours very sincerely
"NEC TAMEN CONSUMEBATUR."

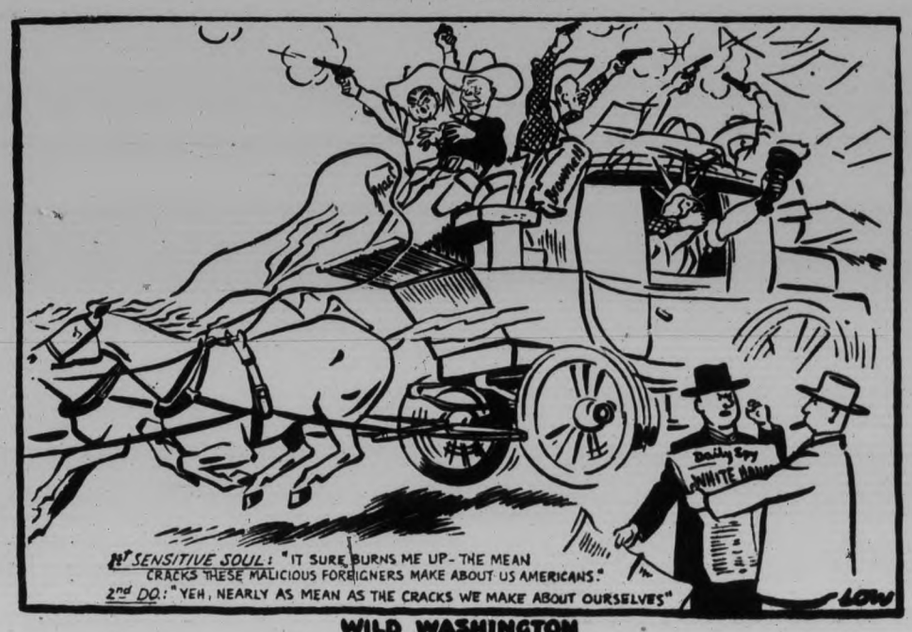
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)



Blessed is the man that trusteth in the Lord, and whose hope the Lord is. For he shall be as a tree planted by the waters, and that spreadeth out her roots by the river, and shall not see when heat cometh, but her leaf shall be green; and shall not be careful in the year of drought, neither shall cease from yielding fruit . . .

O Lord, the hope of Israel, all that forsake thee shall be ashamed, and they that depart from me shall be written in the earth, because they have forsaken the Lord, the fountain of living waters. Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved: for thou art my praise. (Jer. 17:7, 8, 13, 14.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For the word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart. (Heb. 4:12.)

Only Five Men In Korea Unit Ottawa Says

OTTAWA (CP)—Only five men among 10,000 who joined Canada's special force for service in Korea still retain their identity as members of that unit

Army headquarters said Monday that about 7,000 former special force soldiers accepted their discharge and now are back in civilian life. Another 3,000 chose to enlist in the regular army, of whom many have returned to Korea.

But five men technically are neither civilians nor members of the regular army. Four of them are returned prisoners of war now on leave in Canada, and the fifth is still in Japan.

GIVEN CHOICE

An official spokesman said those on leave would be given the choice, as were all members of the special force, of joining the regular army or accepting their discharge.

The fifth man is a special case. The army, who would not identify him, said he is married to a Japanese girl and having difficulties arranging the latter's immigration to Canada. This man, too, would be given the same choice as his former comrades when he returns to Canada.

The special force, as such, became officially defunct last October.

Star System Not Finished MGM Boss Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The star system fold up? Not on your life, assures MGM boss Dore Schary.

There has been a lot of speculation about Hollywood's star system going to pot. When a doll like Betty Grable is allowed to free-lance, what else can you believe? And with a studio like Warners down to four players!

Schary scoffed at the notion that the studio was scuttling the stars.

"Not at all," he commented "The star system may be undergoing a period of transition at the present time. But it will always be the foundation of the movie industry.

"Metro since its inception has always held to that theory. We have built more stars and made them last longer than any other studio."

HAVE FEWER PLAYERS

"Of course, we have fewer players under contract than we did five or 10 years ago. We found that it was not economically sound to maintain the huge list we had in the past. At present there are about 40 names under exclusive contract—and we prefer exclusive picture deals because we can build and control careers that way.

"We cannot carry as many stars because are making 22 pictures a year, compared to 46 in the past. But I think the size of our star list now is economically sound. We will make enough pictures to keep them busy, and we can also lend them to other studios."

PROVES HIS POINT

To prove his point, Scary rattled off most of the names on the MGM roster: Tracy, Turner, Garson, Gardner, Liz Taylor, Robert Taylor, Kelly, Williams, Charisse, Caron, Angeli, Eleanor Parker, Calhern, Blyth, Keel, Jane Powell, Lionel Barrymore, etc., etc. What about Clark Gable?

"He is a question mark. He is now making his last or next-to-last picture under his contract. We hope he will sign again. The same is true of Van Johnson, whose contract is also up soon."

Schary admitted that the future is not so bright for young players seeking a break in the movies. "Since we are making fewer pictures, we can't afford to take as many chances with newcomers," he explained.

Study Older People For Industry

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors must learn to measure the physical and mental capabilities of the increasing old-age group to enable its utilization by industry, says Dr. Harold N. Segall, president of the Canadian Heart Association.

In a speech prepared for delivery today at opening session of the 34th annual meeting of the Health League of Canada, Dr. Segall said the problem was a "challenge to medicine."

"As the numbers of men and women over 60 increase," he said, "the need for their remaining at gainful work becomes imperative."

Dr. Segall said it would be advantageous to microfilm medical records of employees or arrange for them to keep their own technical medical records.

"To live within space available many firms destroy these valuable records after a given number of years," he said.

Lakefield And Port Hope Battle To 5-5 Draw In Overtime Puck Tussle

In a fast-stepping OHA intermediate "A" lakeshore league fixture before a fair-sized crowd at Civic Arena last night, Port Hope and Lakefield drew 5-all in overtime. Cam Wasson's crew took a 5-2 edge in the first period and, after a scoreless second stanza, Ned Vitarelli's pack rammed home three goals without a return to send it into extra innings. But there was no further lamp-lighting. Each side drew seven penalties in a fairly clean but hard-hitting struggle, with fights threatening to break out once in the penalty pew and again on the ice as the game finished. Lakefield had a good margin on play the first half, but the Hopers finished stronger in the drawn duel.

GOAL SCORERS

Lakefield markers were by Cam Wasson, Dean Wasson, Tom Birch, Lonsberry and Dick McCracken. An assist apiece went to Neil Wasson, McCracken, Birch, Doug Hunter and John Richlark. For Port Hope, Frenchy Racine, Coon Medhurst, Ab Buckton, Freeman and Red Robinson tallied. An assist apiece was marked to Evans, Downey, Hogan, Robinson, Handley, Buckton, Racine and McKeen.

Each team boasted several former local players, a few of them having senior "B" experience. The goaltending was good on both sides, with Ray Harding busier than Red Wasson in the late stages of the speedy and keen contest. The point apiece gained by the teams on the tie left Lakefield in third place back of the leading Crono team and the second-spot Lindsay Muskies, while Port Hope is fourth, in front of Cobourg. Lakefield plays at Cobourg this Friday. Teams:

Port Hope — Goal R. Wasson; defence, Evans and Fennell; centre, McKeen; wings, Freeman and Racine; alterates, Turner Medhurst, Downey, Robinson Buckton Handley, Hogan and Douglas.

Lakefield — Goal Harding; defence, Richlark and Wilson; centre, Reid; wings, Carravaggie and Hunter; alternates, D. Wasson, McCracken, Birch, Floyd Lonsberry Sabatino N. Wasson, C. Wasson and Quigley.

JackSharkey To Referee

Jack Sharkey, former heavyweight boxing champion of the world, will be the special referee for the outstanding tag team wrestling feature at the Brock Arena on Wednesday night, when the combination of Hombre Montana and Whipper Watson will oppose the twosome of Lord Athol Layton and Fred Atkins.

Montana is the 325-pound South American champion and along with Watson, figure to give the judo-chopping English lord and the rock-ribbed Atkins duo plenty of trouble. With the ready-fisted Sharkey to keep order, the outlook is for plenty of action.

Johnny Harmon of Atlanta will test Sky-Hi Lee, the Ozark giant, in the semi-final. Al Costello, of New Zealand, will wrestle Bill Stack, of Oshawa, in the opener.

Peterborough Players Enter Badminton Match

TORONTO (CP) — About 160 competitors from Oshawa, Bowmanville, Woodstock, Stratford, Kitchener, Peterborough, Niagara Falls, Hamilton and other Ontario centres have entered the fifth annual invitation B badminton tournament which starts at the Carlton Club tonight.

The tournament, designed to encourage newcomers, is open only to B-calibre players. About 250 events, including men's and women's singles and doubles and mixed doubles, will be held during the competitions, which end Sunday.

BROOKLYN DODGER CATCHER Roy Campanella wears broad smile after learning he has been voted the National League's most valuable player for 1953 as he celebrates his 32nd birthday. Standing on a ladder in his Harlem store in New York City, Roy points to photo mural of presentation of the same award for 1951. With Roy in the photo are National League president Warren Giles and Charley Dressen, then Dodger manager. Campanella, who batted .312, slugged 41 homers.

GOOD NEWS—Al Rosen, Cleveland Indians' third baseman, and his wife feel very elated as they receive the news on the telephone, in their Cleveland home, that he was named the most valuable player in the American League. Rosen is the first player to receive a unanimous vote since the MVP award was started.

Valdes No. 1 Contender In Heavyweights

NEW YORK (AP)—Nino Valdes the lanky Cuban who holds the Central American and Cuban heavyweight crown, has taken over the No. 1 position among heavyweight contenders in Ring Magazine's world ratings.

Valdes, first foreign heavyweight in years to become No 1 contender, proved his right to a shot at Rocky Marciano's title recently by knocking out European titleholder Heinz Neuhaus in Dortmund, Germany.

The rise of Valdes to the post previously occupied by Roland La Starza is the major change in the ratings released today by editor Nat Fleischer. Neuhaus has been dropped from fifth to seventh place and Earl Walls of Windsor, Ont., and Edmonton, Canada's top heavyweight, has advanced from seventh to fifth.

CHARLES THIRD

La Starza dropped to second spot. Ezzard Charles is third.

Randy Turpin of England still tops the middleweight challengers to Bobo Olson's crown, with Rocky Castellani ranked second.

Other ratings include:

Light Heavyweights: Champion, Archie Moore, St. Louis; contenders—1. Harold Johnson, Philadelphia; 2. Joey Maxim, Cleveland; 3 Yolande Pompee, Trinidad.

Welterweights: Champion, Kid Gavilan, Havana; contenders—1. Carmen Basilio, Syracuse, N.Y.; 2. Johnny Bratton, Chicago; 3. Johnny Saxton, Brooklyn.

Lightweights: Champion, James Carter, New York; contenders—1. Wallace (Bud) Smith, Cincinnati; 2. Orlando Zulueta, Havana; 3. Ralph Dupas, New Orleans.

Armand Savoie of Montreal is ranked eighth among the lightweight contenders and Arthur King of Toronto, Canadian champion who now fights out of Philadelphia, ninth Featherweights: Champion, Sandy Saddler, New York; contenders—1. Teddy Davis, Hartford, Conn.; 2. Willie Pep, Hartford; 3. Percy Bassett, Philadelphia.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Hockey Moguls and other sports' officials express some envy and much astonishment at the ballyhoo attending the Grey Cup final. They note the buildup by the press from late summer until it reaches a peak when the classic is unfolded at November's end. And they certainly notice that Varsity Stadium is a sellout for the game and that a great many people (many of whom know little or nothing of football) try unsuccessfully to obtain the prized tickets for the cup contest. It is the biggest sports' spectacle by far in Canada, something similar to he famed annual Rose Bowl game in California. All this causes both envy and wonderment by puck moguls and others.

* * * * * *

How come it goes over so big? Well, football is a colorful fall spectacle, a sport bridging the brief gap between Canada's summer and winter. And it is an east-west senior Dominion contest between great teams. Mayhap the approaching Christmas spirit enters into it, too. But probably the best reason for all the fuss is, as the Kitchener columnist points out, that the whole business is staked on just 60 minutes of play. No home-and-home playoffs, no best of three, five, seven or nine games in the series. Just one sudden-deather—one knockout tilt. In one hour of combat, one team is the Canadian champ and the other is out. It differs from all other major sports in this respect, the World Series, Stanley Cup set, and so forth. Just one game.

* * * * * *

Not Best-of-Nine

The suggestion has been made at times that the Grey Cup final should be a two-game series, but we doubt if there'd be the same interest. Maybe there would, who knows? It is unlikely the powers that be will change the present one-game final playoff. Our own grid Orfuns felt after their loss in Montreal that a home-and-home series might have seen them roll better in the return match to take the eastern title. They point to the fact that in the group playoffs they lost the first game here to Ghosts but won the round in Cobourg next try. Some sports' officials hate the sudden-death playoff as a team being a bit off that day is suddenly very finished. Also they don't make as much money as in a prolonged series. Yet Grey Cup day is always a big financial success.

But now it's hockey as the main sport for the next several months. Let's see what's cooking on the local burner the rest of this week. Port Perry, fresh from an OHA junior "B" triumph o'er the leading Lindsay team, comes here Wednesday to do battle with the young Petes. These two clubs have staged a couple of stirring scraps to date, and Red Creighton's crew hopes to hang up another win at the Oshawa (by way of Port Perry) team's expense. Locals go to Collingwood on Saturday. And Lakefield plays at Cobourg on Friday. The Petes (after losing that heartbreaker 4-3 at 19:59 to Oshawa on Saturday) take on the second-place Kingston Goodyears here this Friday and go to Belleville next night.

* * * * * *

'Tis a Redhot Race

A sizzling race in the senior "B" setup these weeks. Kingston and Belleville beat the Petes in their last meetings, we take Orillia and then Orillia on Saturday dumped Belleville 5-3. To make it more confusing, Belleville last night yanked out a 4-3 win over the second-place Kingston crew. It leaves Oshawa well in front—but they were mightly lucky to edge Petes 4-3 in the final second of play Saturday—with the K's safely in second spot for the time being. Petes are third with seven points, Belleville just one point back of 'em, and Orillia only a point behind the Quinte club. Couldn't be much closer, eh? Orillia and Oshawa have a couple of clashes this week, Kingston is here Friday, K's go to Orillia next night, and Petes trek to Bella Villa on Saturday.

* * * * * *

Port Hope finished strong here last eve to gain a 5-5 overtime draw with Lakefield in a speedy OHA intermediate "A" lakeshore fray. The northerners counted all five goals in the first period while the Ports tallied two in the initial inning and three more in the third, neither side being able to fool goalies Red Wasson or Ray Harding in the extra heat. They were bumping hard enough at times in a lively tussle, and Dean Wasson once caught Downey with a legitimate bodycheck that flattened him like soup in a saucer. He had to take time out to get over that shaking-up. Four Wassons saw action in this one, three for Lakefield. Birch and McCracken were each in on two for Lakefield, as Buckton, Robinson and Racine figured in on a brace each for the Hopers. Lakefield is at Cobourg Friday.

City Carpetball

The schedule for the week of December 7 is: Fire Hall No. 4 vs. Legion No. 7; Legion No. 9 vs. Orphans No. 8; LOL No. 12 vs. Lawn Boys No. 2; Legion No. 1 vs. Red Patch No. 13; Legion No. 3 vs. Fire Hall No. 10; Legion No. 11 vs. Legion No. 5; Post Office No. 15 vs. Glens No. 6.

The result of last week's play: At the Fire Hall. What is this? The fire-fighters dropped both games to that red-hot team from the Legion. The first game saw Legion No. 9 take an 11-5 victory over No. 4. In the second game No. 9 made it three-all in the fifth frame and gradually pulled away until No. 4 grabbed a big five end in the 11th end to make it 10-all, but again No. 9 proved the better team by scoring a single in the final end to take the game 11-10.

The Orphans' No. 8 scored a big six and seven ends in the first game to take a 19-7 game from Posties' No. 14. The second game was a different tale as No. 14 jumped into the lead with a three end and while No. 8 made it three-all in the fourth frame, No. 14 crept ahead again and stayed in the lead by only allowing No. 8 to score singles when they lost an end, finally winning by a close 10-6 score.

Legion No. 1 went into the lead against Legion No. 5 and stayed there as they won 13-3. The second game was nip and tuck all the way; it was tied twice at three-all in the fourth and seven-all in the seventh end and the final score was 11-9 in the Legion No. 5 favor.

BEST GAMES

The two best-fought games of the week resulted when Lawn Boys' No. 2 met Glens' No. 6. The first game was tied twice and No. 6 had to come from behind both times to tie it; the score was 11-10 in No. 6 favor going into the final end and No. 6 protected their lead by scoring a two to take a 13-10 victory. In the second game, No. 2 captured the first four ends and only scored once more the balance of the game as No. 6 won on the rest of the ends—but mostly by singles, and these did not prove sufficient. No. 2 won a 12-10 contest.

At the Legion Hall, Red Patch No. 13 met Legion No. 3. In the first game No. 13 tied the score and then went into the lead and were never headed as they scored to four ends and won a 16-10 victory from No. 3. Those four ends proved the difference between victory and defeat.

DECIDED EARLY

The second game was decided in the first two frames when No. 13 scored a big five and then a four end and while No. 3 fought back, that lead by No. 13 proved ample to win a 15-10 contest.

LOL No. 12 against Legion No. 7 had to come from behind twice to deadlock the score the last time in the eleventh frame to make it 9-9 and then they squeezed a single in the final frame to win a close 10-9 victory. The second game was another close struggle as again the Orangemen came from behind four times to tie the score and the last time tying it at eight-all in the 11th end and then they smashed through for a three end in the final, to grab the game in the closing moments by an 11-8 score.

There are two postponed games on the files: Legion No. 1 and Legion No. 7; also Legion No. 11 vs. Fire Hall No. 10. These games must be played this week.

Major Leagues Invest $132,500 For 13 Players In Minors

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The major leagues dipped into the minor league talent pool for 13 players at an investment of $132,500 Monday in the annual sale that opens winter baseball meetings.

Baltimore Orioles, heirs to St. Louis Browns' No. 1 pick, took second baseman Vinicio Garcia, a .305 hitter at Shreveport in the Texas League. They also took 30-year-old outfielder Chuck Diering, former Giant and Cardinal, from San Francisco.

Detroit, Cleveland, Chicago White Sox and Baltimore each drafted two men and Philadelphia Athletics one for a total of nine by American League clubs The National League picked only four, one each by Pittsburgh, Chicago, Cincinnati and St. Louis. Seven clubs passed when their names were called, including the world-champion New York Yankees and pennant-winning Brooklyn Dodgers.

Five pitchers, five infielders and two more than the 1952 draft of 11 players for $120,000.

Branch Rickey, Jr., of Pittsburgh picked a bright young New York Yankee prospect in outfielder Gerald Lynch. Lynch led the Piedmont League in hitting with a .333 mark at Norfolk last season and had 21 home runs.

CLAIM "SLEEPER"

Cleveland may have grabbed a "sleeper" in shortstop Tom Korczowski, a New York Giants farmhand off their Minneapolis list.

The Indians went down to class A to get the infielder, who played with Wilkes-Barre, Pa., of the Eastern League last year and batted 285. Cleveland's other selection was right-handed pitcher Don Fracchia, a 15-12 performer in the Texas League.

The Dodgers lost two men when the Athletics selected second baseman Forest Jacobs from Montreal Royals and Cincinnati took right-handed pitcher Jim Melton from St. Paul. Jacobs played at Fort Worth and hit .282 before the Brooks moved him up to Montreal.

The draft session was the only big business of the day. The International League failed to solve its dilemma about its 1954 setup after listening to representatives of Havana and Richmond.

The meeting was adjourned until Wednesday.

Red Wings Take Over Lead In Greatest Scoring Spree Of National Hockey League

MONTREAL (CP)—The five-time champion Detroit Red Wings may have set some sort of National Hockey League record when they scored 18 goals in their last two games to take over the leadership from Montreal Canadiens. In both games the lowly Chicago Black Hawks were at the humiliated end. The Wings blanked the Hawks 9-0 Saturday and came back Sunday to hand the tail-enders a 9-4 shellacking. Thursday, Detroit blanked Toronto 2-0. It was the greatest scoring spree of the season.

The triumphs boosted Detroit's point-total to 31, one more than last season's Stanley Cup winners. Toronto Maple Leafs remain in third place with 27 points, three more than the improving Boston Bruins. New York Rangers are fifth with 17, while the Hawks have nine.

HOWE TOP SCORER

Official NHL statistics, released today, show Gordie Howe of the Wings still leading the individual scoring race. He scored three goals and assisted on two to increase his total to 29 points, four more than line-mate Ted Lindsay, who remains in second spot.

Howe's total includes 10 goals, putting him on top with Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion and Maurice (Rocket) Richard as the league's top goal-getters. Howe's 19 assists also tops the league.

Lindsay has seven goals and 18 assists. Geoffrion and Dutch Reibel, the remainder of the Howe-Lindsay line, are tied for third position with 21 points apiece.

Another Detroiter, top-scoring defenceman Red Kelly, picked up eight points last week, three goals and five assists, to move into a tie for fifth place with Boston's Eddie Sandford Both have 19 points.

Tod Sloan of Toronto dropped from a third-place tie with Geoffrion to seventh position, a point behind Kelly and Sandford.

Terry Sawchuk of Detroit recorded shutouts over Toronto and Chicago in successive games to tie Montreal's Gerry McNeil with most shutouts among goalkeepers. Both goalies have four.

Bill Gadsby and Gus Mortson, Chicago defencemen, are the most penalized players with 44 minutes in the cooler each.

Madoc, Batawa Take Wins In Trent Games

MARMORA (ENS)—The second pre-season TVL doubleheader was played in the Marmora arena on Monday evening with 200 in attendance.

In the first game Madoc beat Havelock by 6-3.

Reynolds, Sherry and Woods were outstanding for the winners while Gooley (who got three goals), Lang and Brown showed up well for Havelock.

Batawa beat Bancroft 10-4 in the second game, pulling away in the last period. Cooke, Farmer, Wright, Rankin and Graham had the chief part in Batawa's victory.

Green, Ramsbottom and the two Broughs tried hard for Bancroft to lower the margin but the northerners found it hard to get accustomed to the artificial ice.

Gravelle Tops Quebec League

MONTREAL (CP)—Leo Gravelle of Ottawa Senators remains in the lead in the Quebec Hockey League's individual scoring race, but his position is by no means firm.

Official QHL statistics show Gravelle with 27 points—14 goals and 13 assists—one point more than Chicoutimi's Bucky Buchanan who paces the goal-getters with 15 tallies.

A point behind the Sagueneens ace is Rip Riopelle of the Senators, who has eight goals and 17 assists. With 24 points is Moe Irving of Sherbrooke Saints. His total includes 10 goals

Fern Perrault of Chicoutimi holds fifth position with 23 points—five goals and 18 assists. Seven players are tied for sixth spot with 21 points apiece.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Cup Final One Of Greatest In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The sports writers were virtually unanimous Monday on their Grey Cup post-mortems: Saturday's East-West final was one of the greatest in the history of the annual football classic.

They picked the champion Hamilton Tiger-Cats the better team and Indian Jack Jacobs, Winnipeg Blue Bombers' quarterback, as the best player.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson thought the Bombers, defeated 12-6, "wasted valuable seconds in long huddles when they seemed to be debating tactics among themselves."

"About 40 seconds of that last speeding minute were used up in huddles, when plainly, their weapon was the Jacobs pass. . . Briefly we think that three of the four eastern teams could have beaten the Bombers, game and tenacious as they were. . . ."

JACOBS MEMORABLE

Milt (Toronto Star) Dunnell described Jacobs' 28 completed passes as "a terrific afternoon's work, one that will be remembered long after the Indian is gone from football."

Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller said it was a "tremendous thrill to watch a game, hard-fighting bunch take an early lead, wrest leadership once more after the score had been tied and then stave off a magnificent closing finish by a brilliant foe, the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, in the final seconds It was a superb ending to a battle between teams that fought with different weapons, perhaps, but which fought the good fight, going all out every inch of the way. . . There were many striking features. . . One that impresses us most is that (Hamilton) coach Carl Voyles proved himself right on so many counts."

Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll said the Tiger-Cats won because "they were just a little more versatile than the Blue Bombers, especially on attack. Tom Casey is a speedball, but Jacobs didn't make enough use of him."

Bill (Ottawa Journal) Westwick said Tiger-Cats "conceded in advance that Jacobs at his best would propel an aerial offensive of most spectacular proportions. He did that, and a little more."

KICKING LACKING

Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve said one thing was lacking "and that was good kicking. The reason for that was fairly obvious; Jacobs had so much to do and big (Merle) Hapes had his line-smashing chores so it was a wonder to us that they got the ball away at all."

Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara said of Jacobs' performance: "You won't see anything like that again in our football if you live to be an octogenarian. Still you wonder if he didn't overdo that phase of the game. Why didn't he cut Casey loose in the first half as he did in the third period? Why place so much reliance on (Gerry) James, use him up on so much in ramming attacks?"

Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Vipond sayd Voyles "accomplished the coach's dream of a lifetime when he brought his team to peak efficiency at the right time. That's an achievement all the more amazing when it is recalled that he was beset with tremendous grid difficulties at the outset."

Tommy (Ottawa Citizen) Shields: "In future years when footballers get around to talking about Grey Cup games, they probably will refer to the 1953 final as the outstanding Canadian final in gridiron history. Personally this one was the best of them all that it has been our good fortune to see."

DEFENCE WEAK

Jack (Winnipeg Tribune) Matheson: ". . . One point the Bombers didn't bring up (after the game) was the weak defensive play on their own line in that first quarter. The best line in the West was a poor second on the field, and Tiger-Cats chargers were picking up a lot of yardage. The promised explosion which was to occur when Huffman and Mazza came to grips was nothing but a mild tremor. . ."

Bob (Winnipeg Free Press) Moir: "Kusserow, Dick Brown, Vito Ragazzo and Ray Truant in the Hamilton backfield all played well. Their line, led by the two guards, definitely outplayed Winnipeg's strong front wall over the route."

Doug (Windsor Star) Vaughan: "Two factors which contributed most heavily to the 12-6 Hamilton victory were line play and pass defence. The Tiger-Cat line has long been rated one of the finest, if not the best, in the East."

Notre Dame Half Rumored For BC

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Province said Monday that all-American half Johnny Lattner of Notre Dame is "an odds-on bet" to join British Columbia Lions football club next summer.

In a dispatch from Los Angeles, the Province also says Tom Nickoloff, big Southern California end, has been offered a provisional contract with the Lions, slated to join the Western Interprovincial Football Union next fall.

The story says Lions' coach Annis Stukus and Don MacKenzie, player committee chairman, are on a scouting trip in California and refused to comment on the report.

The newspaper says Lattner, ranked the top backfielder in the U.S. will turn professional when his college career finishes next week and will discuss terms with the Lions before talking to other clubs. He was reported to be anxious to play in Canada because he felt he would have a better chance to get a good job.

Bag Many Moose

PRINCE GEORGE, B.C. (CP)—Number of moose killed by hunters in British Columbia this season was estimated at 1,600 by officials of the B.C. game commission. The figure is 630 lower than last season.

Olympic Head Resigns After 25 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Avery Brundage retired Monday as president of the United States Olympic Association, after serving 25 years in the post. Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, commissioner of college football's Big Ten conference, was elected to succeed him.

Brundage told a press conference he was giving up the American post to devote his full energies to the International Olympic Association. Brundage was elected president of the international group last year and will serve in that capacity until 1960.

Brundage, 66, withdrew from the U.S. association for the additional reason that he wanted to forestall any possible charge of bias in holding the two jobs at the same time.

ELECTED UNANIMOUSLY

Wilson, who formerly held the post of vice-president in the U.S. association, was elected unanimously. Asa Bushnell of New York was re-elected secretary.

Douglas F. Roby of Detroit, who retired as president of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union, was chosen vice-president and R. Max Ritter of Philadelphia was named treasurer.

Hartwig Defeats Trabert Of U.S.

MELBOURNE (AP)—Australia's Rex Hartwig defeated United States champion Tony Trabert 6-4, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 today in the quarter-finals of the Victorian tennis championships.

The defeat of the second American ace within 24 hours cast a dark cloud over U.S. hopes of recapturing the Davis Cup from Australia later this month. Wimbledon champion Vic Seixas was beaten by George Worthington Monday.

Greenshirts May Withdraw From Junior OHA

KITCHENER (CP)—The Kitchener-Waterloo Record said Monday that Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts may withdraw from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series

The Record said in a newspage story that none of the club's executive would comment on the report, but that a reliable source indicated the third-place team would not last the week.

The club was purchased recently by Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League. Representatives of Quebec Junior League clubs were said to be in Kitchener Monday making arrangements to obtain players when the Greenshirts folded.

LOST MONEY

The story says the Greenshirts have lost money steadily since they joined the league in 1951.

In Midland, George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said he has had no official notification of the Greenshirts dropping out.

Dudley said the Canadiens "apparently" would not violate CAHA regulations if they chose to transfer Kitchener-Waterloo players to Quebec junior teams.

Red Sullivan Leads League In Scoring

NEW YORK (AP) — George (Red) Sullivan of Hershey Bears, continuing his prolific scoring spree in the American Hockey League, leads his closest rival by seven points.

Sullivan gathered 10 points last week, according to official statistics. The 24-year-old centre has 10 goals and 28 assists for a total of 38 points. He leads the league in assists

Team-mate Dunc Fisher is in second place in scoring with 31 points on 16 goals and 15 assists.

Harry Pidhirny of Syracuse Warriors added one goal last week to make his league-leading total 17.

Jacques Plante of Buffalo continued as top goaltender with an average of 2.73 on 60 goals allowed in 22 games.

WALLY HAYWARD, of South Africa, didn't ruffle a hair making this terrific world record run over 159 miles, 562 yards in 24 hours. The 45-year-old runner, however, admitted "never again" as he described the race as "awful" from start to finish. Six men started at the London University track in Surrey. Only three completed the route. Hayward's ardent followers seem more worried than the champ as he nears the end of the line.

Canadian Champion Loses Split Decision

QUEBEC (CP)—Don Webber of Roanoke, Va, Monday night won a split decision over Canadian bantamweight champion Fernando Gagnon of Quebec in a 10-round, non-title bout.

Webber weighed in at 118¼, one-quarter of a pound more than the Canadian.

There were no knockdowns. Webber held an advantage almost throughout as he slammed home hard body punches and made full use of his longer reach in the jab exchanges.

Webber scored a unanimous decision over Gagnon about two months ago.

Trotter Wins Heats

TORONTO (CP) — Hillcrest Adam, owned by W. S. Sharpe of Oshawa and driven by Dick Smith, Monday won both heats in the BB class trot, the secondary feature, at Dufferin Park.

In 1938 she married Meredith, who came from Ottawa and was then a journalist in London.

From One Cook to Another

by Mary Blake
Carnation Home Service Director

"PICK-UP" FOR TIRED MEALS

It's apt to happen to the best of cooks. Comes a day — or a week — when meal-planning becomes a bore. But that needn't happen to you. One little, inspired touch can give a meal — and you — a wonderful "lift". For instance — there's a trick I have with cheeseburgers that I think you'll like. Actually, it's two little tricks. For one thing, I put the cheese right in with the hamburger . . . so you get cheese in every single bite. Then, I make my special cheeseburgers with a special milk . . . Carnation Evaporated Milk. No ordinary milk, mind you — but Carnation. You see, Carnation is double-rich — and it's specially heat-refined. That's why it gives such delicious moisture and goodness in my

NEW-STYLE CHEESEBURGERS
(Makes 4 servings)

1 pound ground beef
½ cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup crumbled Canadian cheddar cheese

Mix ingredients lightly together. Shape as patties. Brown on both sides in hot fat, in heavy frying pan. Serve on toasted buns — with favorite relish.

Only water is taken out of Carnation Evaporated Milk — all the good sweet cream is left in. Mix Carnation with an equal amount of water for all whole milk purposes — try Carnation undiluted for cream purposes.

NEVER A DULL MEAL — in homes where good coffee tops off the menus! Well — here's the easiest, surest way I know, to make coffee wonderful. "Cream" it with undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk. This double concentrated milk that pours like cream and whips like cream, makes coffee delightfully golden in color . . . gives it richly satisfying flavor. And — sh-h-h! — family and guests will never suspect how thriftily you "cream" their coffee with Carnation. Though millions of coffee lovers prefer Carnation, it costs only half as much as cream. Try it. You'll enjoy your coffee more, with Carnation.

LISTEN to the delightful Saturday radio show, "Stars Over Hollywood". A complete half-hour play every week — specially written for this entertaining programme. See your newspaper for time and station.

FREE: Carnation's NEW booklet, "One-dish Meals" . . . thrifty, tempting recipes. Write Carnation Co. Limited, Toronto or Vancouver. 1003

AN AWFULLY GOOD WAY you can give a "lift" to breakfasts, is to serve a freshly-made coffee cake. Economical, too, and it's really very easy, if you use one of the packaged biscuit mixes . . . and really very good, if you use Carnation Milk in the recipe.

QUICK COFFEE CAKE
(Makes 12 servings)

2 cups biscuit mix
¼ cup sugar
¾ cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
1 egg

Combine biscuit mix with sugar. Beat Carnation and egg together. Add to dry ingredients, and mix lightly until all is moistened. Turn into well-buttered 8-inch square pan. For spicy topping, combine 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup brown sugar. Sprinkle over top of cake. Bake in moderate oven (375°) 25 to 30 minutes.

IT HAPPENS EVERY DAY

Somebody says, "Tell me — why should I use Carnation? Is there really a difference?" Well, I could tell these ladies about the famous Carnation Farms . . . about the many world champion cattle that help to improve the source of milk supply, and so maintain Carnation's high standards . . . about Carnation quality that has made this milk the year-after-year leader — the evaporated milk that is used more in Canada than all other brands combined. But I don't tell them any of this. I simply ask them to compare Carnation with other brands, and with bottled milk, in their own kitchens. And one try convinces them. For it's results that count. If you haven't discovered how much better Carnation makes food taste, try it in your home.

MP Suggests Exchange Of Governors

OTTAWA (CP)—Wallace Nesbitt (PC—Oxford) suggested Monday night an exchange of governors-general among Commonwealth countries to strengthen Commonwealth unity

As an example, he said in the Commons, Prime Minister Nehru of India might be a future governor-general of Canada and Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey be governor-general in Australia.

Such exchanges would show Commonwealth countries they are all equal, said Mr. Nesbitt. Unity also would be encouraged if the Queen were present at the opening of Commonwealth Parliaments.

ONLY ORGANIZATION

The British Commonwealth was the only organization which had held together during the last half century. Now there were signs of it breaking up because of the misguided nationalism of some member countries.

Some countries were deliberately encouraging the "wrong type" of nationalism and Pakistan and Ceylon were considering becoming republics.

Tobacco Sale Prices Increase For 1953 Ontario Crop

CHATHAM (CP)—At a meeting of the directors of the Burley Tobacco Marketing Association here Monday, the market appraisal committee agreed upon an average price of 30 cents a pound for the 1953 burley crop. The price has been accepted by the marketing board.

The negotiated price is half a cent a pound higher than last year's price and it is expected to bring an amount an acre slightly more than the 1952 return because of a higher yield.

J. Fred Thomas of Malden township, Essex, chairman of the board said the 1953 crop was of excellent quality, better than it had been during the last 18 years.

Book On Stratford Festival Said Notable Achievement

By JEAN THOMPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A Canadian's idea brought to fruition by a British director culminated in the significant and exciting Shakespeare Festival, 1953.

In "Renown at Stratford" (Clarke, Irwin) the director, Dr. Tyrone Guthrie, has joined forces with two Canadians, Robertson Davies, author-playwright, and Grant Macdonald, artist, to recapture the festival in print.

As the story of a great achievement in Canadian theatre, the book is notable. But it has another distinction. It is the first book in Canada to be produced without type by a photographic process.

Dr. Guthrie, considered by able critics the greatest living director of Shakespeare, tells the behind-scenes story of the festival. From his first meeting with Tom Patterson of Stratford, who originally conceived the idea, he follows through strenuous weeks of planning, rehearsal and tent-raising to opening night, July 13, 1953.

NATIONAL EVENT

The success of the Canadian festival was in Dr. Guthrie's opinion "greater than could have been achieved anywhere else in the world. It was a national event."

The four-page essay on Dr. Guthrie by Robertson Davies reveals to how great an extent the director was master of the situation, of Shakespearian scholarship and of creative theatrical production.

Twenty-three colored plates of characters in "Richard III" and "All's Well That Ends Well" are "evocative records" of the two festival plays that no one who attended performances can see without recalling whole scenes. With each plate Robertson Davies has commented on the plays and performances both critically and historically.

DRAWING OF STAGE

The last drawing, in black and white, is of the stage designed by Tanya Moiseiwitsch. Of modern design, at the same time it conforms to the conventions of the Elizabethan stage for which Shakespeare wrote.

The mechanical process by which the book was produced combines typesetting and automatic photography. Instead of each letter or character being cast in hot metal, it passes before a camera lens, is recorded on film and assembled into words along with punctuation marks and figures. The photographic negative is then used directly for etching a lithograph plate.

Ont. Honey Crop Below Normal

TORONTO (CP)—J. W. Haberer president of the Ontario Honey Producers Co-Operative Limited, said Monday night Ontario's honey crop is at least 40 per cent below normal this year.

Mr Haberer told the co-operative's 30th annual meeting that the company has received 2,000,000 pounds of honey and may receive another 1,000,000 pounds this year. Last year it received 4,000,000 pounds. Top price in 1952 was 13¼ cents a pound for light honey.

The president said that the industry might find itself short of honey long before a new crop is available. He said the beekeeping industry is in an unhealthy condition because of the decreasing profits for beekeepers.

CUSTOMS RECEIPTS DOWN
Customs receipts for the Port of Entry of Peterborough were down almost $300,000 for the month of November this year compared to the same month a year ago. The figures are, $681,720.89 for November, 1953, and $919,698.78 for November, 1952.

WINTER'S FIRST DAY
Most remarkable weather this morning, for the first day of December! The sweet alyssum border still alive and blooming across the street from the Examiner, and the odd dandelion in the Raybestos lawn. Blue sky, sunshine and unfrozen turf underfoot. Those were accompaniments of the first day of winter.

TRUCKER'S CONDITION GOOD
Civic Hospital authorities said today the condition of Herb Payne, Romaine St., operator of Herb Payne's transport, is "good." Payne was injured in a fall while repairing garage doors. He sustained a compound fracture of the right wrist and required 54 stitches to close a head gash.

CHRISTMAS LEAVE
Three servicemen from the Peterborough area will celebrate Christmas at home this year, after a year or more service in Germany with the 27th Canadian Infantry Brigade. They are, Pte. D. M. Lemoire, Hastings; Cfn, E. M. Perrow, Cobourg, and Pte. L. E. Schriver, Brighton. They arrive at Halifax today.

EDUCATE PEOPLE ON WEEDS
Melville H. Johnston, Peterborough county's weed inspector, was active this year in alerting urban and rural people to the menace of weeds. He visited 85 schools, attended 11 meetings, gave three radio talks, and went to three fall fairs with weed displays. Some 300 miles of county and township roads were sprayed, and the total crop area sprayed, including pastures, is estimated at 80 acres. Working 74 days, Mr. Johnson received $792 in wages, $18 in travelling expenses, and $3 for postage and telephone. The Ontario department of agriculture grants $500 on the weed inspector's salary.

Still Friends?

It doesn't matter who you are in Campbellford—you get it just the same. Chief of police, Charles M. Lockwood will never know for sure whether constable Sam Baird was conscientiously doing his duty, or getting a crack at the boss, when he issued a particular parking ticket. The Chief had just bought a new car, but, unfortunately, had not introduced it to his constabulary. He parked it in a restricted zone and got the call. Two dollars on the line, same as anyone else.

75 Home Owners Appeal Assessments

Assessment Commissioner J. E. Davis announced that he had received about 75 assessment appeals to the court of revision when he closed his roll Monday and turned it over to the city clerk.

Of these, however, only about 80 per cent were from property owners appealing against their assessments. The other 20 per cent were for changes in the description of the property, where a portion of it had been sold off, or there had been a change of owner or tenant.

More than 400 property owners from the city's east ward crowded into the city hall Monday night to have the re-assessment explained. Mr. Davis first of all discussed the basis of the re-assessment. Then members of the assessment department staff each conducted scores of personal interviews.

They looked up the assessment of each property-owner interviewed. The assessment was checked for possible errors and was then compared with assessments of similar properties.

REASONABLE

"The public were certainly taking a very reasonable attitude tonight," Mr. Davis told The Examiner. He said he was pleased with the results of the first meeting.

"There are definitely going to be appeals by some of the people who were here tonight," he stated. "In fact, I encouraged those whose assessments were in error or were over-assessed to make appeals."

Similar meetings will be held the rest of the week at city hall, between 7.00 p.m. and 10.00 p.m., as follows: Claraday Ward, tonight; North Ward, Wednesday; West and Centre Wards, Thursday; South Ward, Friday.

Mr. Davis suggested that anyone dissatisfied with his assessment attend one of the meetings before making a formal appeal to the court of revision.

Inn Owner Charged With Arson

Gratton Harris Held 24 Hrs. After Try Made To Start Fire

Gratton Harris, proprietor of Lakefield's Coronation Inn, was charged with arson this morning in magistrate's court as a result of a fire at his restaurant Sunday night.

No election or plea was taken and the 50-year-old resident of 239 Princess St., Peterborough, was released on $5,000 bail. He is scheduled to appear in court next Tuesday.

Harris was arrested Monday night, 24 hours after a fire was discovered at the restaurant. He was jailed overnight in city police cells.

After Lakefield firemen extinguished flames which had crept from the basement into the restaurant, burned and unlit matches were found between ceiling joists, paper crammed in wall crevices, boards piled in a window and a can of cleaning fluid discovered nearby.

Harris told the Examiner he had left the restaurant at 6:50 Sunday night for his home in Peterborough. The fire was discovered about 7:20.

He declined comment today.

Investigating the crude attempt to fire the building Monday was Inspector Ray Simmons of the Fire Marshal's Department, Toronto.

Preliminary investigations had already been carried out by Chief Price Morris of Lakefield, OPP Corporal Jack Munro and OPP Constable D. K. Ross. Chief Morris made the arrest.

During the day, Harris is employed as a metal polisher in the city.

Accident Leads To Jail Term

Pleading guilty to a charge of drunk driving today, Bernard Hewie, 34, of R.R. 3, Keene, was sentenced to 10 days in jail as a result of a motor vehicle accident at Downer's corners Monday evening.

Hewie's car smashed head-on into a second vehicle driven by Delwyn Stinson, 16, of R.R. 1, Norwood which in turn was hit from behind by a third car driven by William Dolan, 30, of 771 Water St. Damage totalled over $500.

Damage was set at $150 to a truck which struck the rear of a stopped car on George St. Monday in front of the Civic building. The truck, driven by Carl Doughty, 24, of 636 Donegal St., skidded into a car driven by Donald Chambers, 17, of 295 Townsend St.

An intersection collision Monday morning resulted in $150 damage to cars driven by Mrs. G. Chambers, 615 Ay[illegible]r St., and Ron Wood of North [illegible]ay.

Mrs. Chambers was driving north on Benson Ave., when her car collided with Wood's westbound on Bennett St.

Do Other Cities Have Mobile Lunch Posers?

Before deciding what to do about lunch wagons, the city is going to find out how they are allowed to operate in other communities.

The board of works Monday night instructed the city clerk to make a survey and report on his findings.

City council received two petitions on the matter a week ago. One petition, from 42 restaurant and lunch counter proprietors, asked the city to cancel the licences of "mobile vending units". The other petition, submitted by Percy J. Harrison, supported him in his operation of one of the units and was signed by restaurant owners and other businessmen.

Spokesman for the first petitioners, Edward Fanjoy, their legal counsel, told council a week ago he had written to cities comparable in size to Peterborough and found that only two other cities in Ontario allowed such units to operate on the streets but under greater restrictions than in Peterborough.

Council at that time held the matter over until Monday night's board of works meeting. The board quickly decided to find out for themselves what the situation was elsewhere.

Oil Co. Drops Application For Gas Station

The Imperial Oil company have withdrawn their application for a building permit to erect a service station on the McGregor property on Hunter St., next to Mark Street United Church.

The board of works was informed of the company's decision Monday night by T. J. Carley, spokesman for a group representing the company.

When the permit was requested two weeks ago, the finance committee recommended that it be granted but instructed the city clerk to inform the church authorities that the recommendation would be presented at the subsequent council meeting.

When council met a week ago Monday night, a delegation from Mark St. congregation was on hand to oppose issuance of the permit. The pastor, Dr. N. D. Patterson announced that they were prepared to pay a sum equal to that offered by the oil company, to purchase the lot for expansion of their Sunday school facilities. Council thereupon deferred action on the request for a week.

Mr. Carley reminded the board of works Monday night that the Imperial Oil Co. had owned a service station on the present site of the city hall but "the needs of the public became paramount and the site was taken over."

TOOK OPTION

In their search for a substitute site they had learned that the McGregor property was for sale and had obtained an option on it. When they endeavored to place a service station there two years ago, the church had objected and nothing was done about it.

In view of the fact that the church was going to buy the property and, he believed, pay the same price as the company, he had been instructed to say that the company would not, in any way, oppose the church and would be forced, at considerable expense, to locate other property.

Mr. Carley added that the company hoped the fact that they had co-operated with the citizens would mean they would "not be pushed around too much, because my original instructions were that the church would have been allowed free parking on the hard surface of the proposed service station lot."

Dr. Patterson, on behalf of the Mark Street congregation, expressed appreciation of the company's action.

"I felt all along that many of the supporters and directors of the Imperial Oil company were good United Church folk." Dr. Patterson said, "and I wasn't at all surprised when their spokesman withdrew their offer tonight."

Dr. Patterson asked Mr. Carley to take the congregation's sincere thanks to the company and to assure them that "until we build, the sign advertising their products would remain on the property."

The pastor added a word of thanks to council for affording the congregation an opportunity to oppose issuance of the building permit.

Await Health Dept. Tests To Send Water To Downer's

The supply of water through the new main to Downer's Corners awaits only a positive report on tests made by the health department before it is turned on, an official of the waterworks department announced today. About a dozen services have been connected, it was said, and these will be turned on as soon as the result of the test is known.

The final progress certificate on the contract with Cornish Construction Ltd. for construction of the 12-inch main was presented to the utilities commission Monday and the final payment of $3,327.72 was ordered paid.

Man Admits Kept Liquor For Sale, Jailed 2 Months

A 46-year-old father of seven children was jailed for two months by Magistrate W. R. Philp when he pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping liquor for sale today.

Claude Gray, an R.R. 2, Lakefield, carpenter, admitted the offence to OPP Corporal A. Gaudry after the police office found nine pints of whiskey, one quart and one part quart of brandy, two quarts of wine and 30 pints of beer, on his premises November 15.

Gray asked the magistrate to be lenient in giving sentence, explaining he was the father of seven children. He received two months in jail for the offence, however. Maximum penalty is six months.

FOUND IN RAID

Also appearing this morning, Elmer Jacobs, 25, of Burleigh Falls, pleaded not guilty to a charge of being a found-in. He had been found in the home of Arthur Henderson of Burleigh the night of October 17 when police raided it.

Henderson was convicted on a charge of illegal possession of liquor earlier.

Jacobs explained to the court, police had already made the raid before he arrived and he entered the house just in time to have his name listed as being in there all the time.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw admitted there was "an element of reasonable doubt" in the matter and the charge was dismissed by Magistrate Philp.

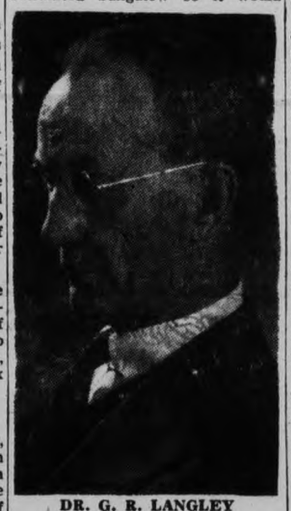
Resignation Of Dr. Langley From Utilities Commission After Acrimonious Debate

Commissioner Says Efforts Failed To Have Commission Operate In More Business-Like Manner

Dr. G. R. Langley submitted his oral resignation to the utilities commission Monday and, after an hour-long, acrimonious debate, walked out of the meeting. Dr. Langley charged that all his efforts to persuade the other commissioners to operate in a more business-like way had failed. He described a resolution by Commissioner Dick Raines as "particularly atrocious." Commenting that he was tired of having the matter "drag along," Mr. Raine had proposed that the general-manager's report and recommendations on the proposed electrical substation on Bellevue St. be adopted.

According to legal advice obtained by The Examiner, it is understood that, if a resignation is tendered orally by a member of the Peterborough Utilities commission or the city council and is accepted by a resolution of the remaining commissioners or councillors and recorded in the minutes, the resignation becomes effective. The member resigning has no right to vote with respect to the resignation tendered.



When the resignation has been recorded in the minutes, then it is the duty of the council to appoint a successor to the member who has resigned, for the balance of the term.

COMMISSIONERS PROTEST

Amid protests from Chairman Fred Hills and Mr. Raine, Dr. Langley claimed that the general manager's report had been "wrongfully witheld" from the commissioners.

"There is no report about anything," Dr. Langley maintained. "A diagram was submitted but I said at the last meeting I was unable to interpret it. I haven't the foggiest idea what is being proposed."

It was decided some months ago to house the new substation in a simulated bungalow so it would harmonize with the surrounding buildings. General-Manager W. Howard Powell recommended a metal-clad switch-gear in place of open-type

DR. G. R. LANGLEY

Dr. Langley told the commission Monday that there was "no need of putting an outdoor metal-clad type switchgear in a bungalow-type substation."

"You can't deny you wanted your own open-type," Mr. Raine challenged.

"I refuse to be misquoted by you," Dr. Langley said. "It could be one of several types. As an engineer, I refuse to comment on what is proposed until I've had a chance to consult with the general-manager on what he proposes."

ENGINEERS CONSULTED

Mr. Raine countered that he had consulted with professional engineers and discovered that, although 100 per cent of the switch-gear installations in 1930 were open-type, fewer than five per cent of them were today. He maintained the metal-clad installations would be less expensive

"I'm not here to take instructions on electrical engineering," Dr. Langley said.

"The least you can do is listen to what I have to say," Mr. Raine answered. "The advantages of metal-clad switch-gear are way above the open type. We have five metal-clad installations in the city and I find that every one had the stamp of your approval as CGE works engineer.

"There's at least a 50-50 chance that I could save the citizezns 10, 15 or 20,000 dollars," Dr. Langley said. "I have asked the general-manager not once but several times to be called in for consultation but I never have been."

"If it's necessary for engineers to be on the commission, we might as well get rid of the general-manager," Mr. Hills said

"In the past, on questions of insurance, the commission and the general-manager have deferred to your broad knowledge of insurance," Dr. Langley told the chairman. Mr. Hills objected that he had never dealt in insurance with the commission and Dr. Langley said he had made no such inference. "But I think it might be a good idea to have a couple of engineers on the commission," he added.

"When that time comes, we might as well get rid of the general-manager," Mr. Hills re-iterated.

"I am quite willing to look over the plans in detail with Mr. Powell and offer suggestions which would mean quite substantial savings," Dr Langley persisted.

"You did give your opinion," Mr. Raine said. "You wanted to put in the open type."

"I am not against metal-clad," Dr. Langley insisted.

"Then you've changed your mind," Mr Raine retorted.

"Metal-clad is an excellent type of installation in a number of cases—not in all," Dr. Langley said. "I am bitterly opposed to anything like this motion. You're closing the door against any saving."

BIG OLYMPICS PREDICTED

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Australian ambassador to the United States predicted Monday night that the 1956 Olympics "down under" will be the greatest ever despite 'the mental anguish" involved in the preparations.

Sir Percy Spender, in a speech before a banquet meeting of the United States Olympic Association, gently spoofed the extravagances of athletics in relating the difficulty the Australians encountered in turning the renowned Melbourne Cricket Club Arena into a field for Olympic competition.

"So hallowed an Australian sporting arena had the MCC become," he said, "there was hesitation at one time to accept the need to regrade for the Olympic Games the historic turf where Trumper and Bradman once smote the English bowling."

"In due course," Spender added, "it was decided that there was no alternative site in Melbourne so admirably suited for the Olympic Games as the MCC and the supreme sacrifice was made."

Spender explained the Australians' mental anguish in disturbing the MCC by asking "How Americans will feel some day if the diamond of Yankee Stadium, where Babe Ruth once trod, must be torn up to stage an international cricket match."

CLEARS RECORD

LONDON (CP)—Harry Llewellyn leading British equestrian who has just returned from riding in Canada and the United States, hastened Monday to clear up his views on the relative abilities of Ottawa's 18-year-old Shirley Thomas and Britain's Pat Smythe

In a letter to the Daily Telegraph, he emphasized that he had not described Miss Thomas as the world's best. What he had said was that her horse, White Sable, is tops.

Then, to take the sting out of that statement, he added:

"Miss Thomas is young and inexperienced and shows considerable promise, but I would not rate her in the same class (with Miss Smythe) at the present moment."

Llewellyn was quoted on his return from riding at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto as saying that Miss Thomas was the world's best lady rider. He said in his letter that he had been 'misheard" and wanted to stand by his numerous previous tributes to Miss Smythe as the top woman rider.

SIGNS WITH CHISOX

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Marty Marion, who managed the last-place St. Louis Browns in 1953, has been signed as coach of Chicago White Sox, it was announced Monday night.

Marion, who had piloted St. Louis Cardinals to a third-place finish in 1951 before joining the Browns as a player-coach the following season, was dropped by Baltimore Orioles after they inherited the Browns last month.

Roger Creamer, who coached the White Sox last season, was dropped to make room for Marion Cramer has been offered another job in the organization but has not yet made his decision.

Marion's salary was not disclosed but it will fall far short of his $35,000 salary with the Orioles. It was expected that the Baltimore club will make up the difference.

DISCUSS JOINT SKED

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The American Association Monday discussed a proposal for an interlocking schedule with the International League but took no action due to the uncertain condition of the International League makeup.

It had been proposed that each club take one swing around the eight cities of the other triple A league. A league spokesman said, however, it probably would be impractical if Havana should be granted membership in the International.

Under the proposed interlocking schedule, each American Association team would make one swing around the International League. Each International Club would make a similar trip. All games would count in the league standings

RETURN TO RUBBLE—South Koreans rummage through the charred remains of buildings which were once their homes before a wind-whipped conflagration cut a mile-wide swath through port city of Pusan, Saturday. More than 3,000 homes and a number of United States Army installations were demolished during the 24-hour blaze, which left 45,000 people homeless, killed four persons and injured 44 others.

27 In Marriage Cult Plead Guilty To 4 Charges

KINGMAN, Ariz. (AP)—Twenty-seven defendants, accused of being the driving force behind the Short Creek multiple marriage cult, pleaded guilty to four charges of conspiracy Monday.

Similar charges against 69 other defendants—seven men and 62 women—were then dismissed in court.

Judge Robert S. Tullar set next Monday, Dec. 7, for pronouncing sentence.

At that time the 27 could be directed to serve up to one year in prison or pay a $1,000 fine on each of the four counts. They also could be given suspended sentences.

The developments were writing a final chapter to the story that began with a pre-dawn raid against the tiny Short Creek community, astride the Arizona-Utah border, last July 26

Police seized virtually every man, woman and child. The adults were charged with conspiracy to commit adultery, bigamy, open and notorious cohabitation, contributing to the delinquency of minors, marrying the spouse of another and statutory rape.

Upon recommendation of the state, the counts of contributing and statutory rape were stricken.

Lindsay Boys Take Close Junior Fray

Lindsay took an 8-7 OHA junior "B" victory on home ice over the Young Petes on Saturday. Announcement of this game appeared in Monday's paper, but the lineups and summary were not sent in from Lindsay on time for the paper, and therefore are being published on Tuesday. The win kept Lindsay atop the group.

Jack Graham got the winning goal with just 27 seconds left of play in the third period after Lindsay overcame a 7-4 deficit at the end of the second frame. Gary Kearns starred with three goals for Petes while Hutton and Graham each got two for the victors. In the clean tilt, Kearns, O'Brien, Doris, Heffernan, Byrne and Frizzelle looked tops for the Petes, as Graham, Hutton, Art Truax, Pearson, Burns and Growden led Lindsay. Teams:

Petes: Goal, O'Brien; defence, Byrne, Frizzelle; centre, Heffernan; wings, Coyle, Twist; alternates, Pue, Ball, McDougall, Doris, Gardner, Uren, Kearns, Hook.

Lindsay: Goal, Kemp; defence, O'Neill McGill; centre, Hutton; wings, Packer, Truax; alternates, B. Williams, Crawford Lucas, Graham, Growden, Pearson, H. Williams, Burns Teal.

Expect Lively Election For Hamilton Mayoralty

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton's 121,000 voters this year have a choice for mayor between a printer promising economy and a baker who says "You can't stop a city growing."

They will also vote on the two-year term and a grant of $250,000 to Hamilton College of McMaster University.

Hugh McIntyre, a former controller and a master printer, is running on an economy platform. He contends that Mayor Lloyd D. Jackson's four-year rule has raised the civic debt to alarming heights.

Mayor Jackson, proprietor of a successful bakery, says high expenditures were demanded by the city's growth, and adds that civic debt is lower per capita than in most of the years when Mr. McIntyre was a member of the board of control.

BOTH SUPPORT GRANT

Both candidates, however, support the grant to McMmaster University. The two-year term has been defeated before, but this year has the support of labor bodies and the Chamber of Commerce.

Voters have eight choices for the four board of control seats The present members—Leslie Parker, Jack MacDonald, Sam Baggs and Sam Lawrence—want back in, but Alderman F. W. Partridge, former controller Mrs. Helen Coulson, Miss Ethel Fagan and Roy Aindow are trying to take their places.

Mrs. Coulson is one of two Communists running in the election. The other is Alderman William Walsh, seeking re-election in ward six.

32 CANDIDATES IN RACE

A total of 32 candidates are in the race for 14 seats on city council. Two seats have already been filled by the acclamation of W. F. Thompson and J. T. Lewington.

In contrast, all the board of education seats were filled by acclamation except in ward six where D. A. McPherson and C. H. Gage are contesting the office

Mayor Jackson took office in 1950 when Sam Lawrence retired to board of control after being mayor for many years.

Colored Slides Of Coronation

SPRINGVILLE — Beautiful colored slides, taken by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fisher of Bensfort, on their trip to the Coronation, were shown at Springville Friday evening under the auspices of the Women's Association.

Mr. Fisher gave a brief but interesting descriptions.

Not only did he show beautiful pictures of the Coronation but he and Mrs. Fisher visited the Cavan Monaghan and Bailieboro section of Ireland where so many of the ancestors of their namesake district here come from. Mr. Fisher saw in one of those ancient churches the record of his great grand father's wedding, beautifully preserved even though probably written with a quill pen in those days.

Scottish scenes showed the beautiful heather on the mountain sides.

Scenes of their landing at Liverpool port and the surrounding countryside introduced the audience to the pictures of the landscape of England with the large stone walls, the old castles with their drawbridges and their protected gates for defence in the early days. Scenes were taken in the Kew Gardens where every kind of plant known in the world is grown by England's gardeners.

After picturing the beautiful royal castles, Shakespeare's home and the London Bridge, Mr. Fisher presented pictures of the flooded areas of Holland as they still appeared at the time of the Coronation.

Mr. and Mrs. Fisher had the happy knack of choosing the pictures that would be most interesting to the folks back home who have never had the opportunity of an ocean voyage or visiting the lands overseas.

The Misses Doreen and Betty Stevens gave a piano and violin selection and the Rev. A. E. Larke on behalf of Mrs. Elwood Johnston, president of the WA, spoke the appreciation of the Springville organization.

The Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville has been invited to address the annual meeting of the Victoria County Federation of Agriculture, following their dinner in the Community Hall, Cameron, on Tuesday.

London's Most Attractive Aspect Found In Manners Of Londoners

By KENNETH HARRIS

LONDON — (OFNS) — Until I returned to Britain after three years in the United States I had never lived in London; and now that I have stled down to do so for a few months at least, living in London has a great deal of novelty for me.

This is all the more so because the other two cities in which I have lived— I was brought up in a small market town— have been New York and Sheffield in Yorkshire. I lived for several months in Washington, but I don't really count that as living in a city. Washington is not really a city — it is big, beautiful dormitory and office block for the politicians who run the United States and the diplomats who represent foreign countries there.

At first London seemed to me to have most of the disadvantages of being smaller and older than New York, as well as most of the disadvantages of being bigger and more sophisticated than any of our provincial cities. There is a good deal more traffic in New York than there is in London, but on the other hand the whole of New York is laid out in a regular grid of wide streets, with wide pavements on either side, so that except at rush hours, movement is a good deal freer.

In London, the curling, winding streets, many of which —in the interests of efficiency at any rate —should have been pulled down and rebuilt ages ago, make moving about by road a positive nightmare.

In more provincial cities I have visited you need waste far less time in transit, whatever you want to do. You can get to your work reasonably quickly, and at the same, living within reasonable distance of the countryside —with which, in spite of their size and industrial importance, all our provincial cities are in remarkably close contact. In London you have to have a pretty good job to be able to do this.

But this is not the whole story of London. London is a beautiful city, in a way unlike any of America's cities —with the exception of San Francisco.

Right in the heart of London, where traffic is most busy, you have the House of Commons, Westminster Cathedral, the Horse Guards Parade, Whitehall, and so on. There are the parks and the garden's squares', among the finest in the world.

The river itself, which passes through the heart of London, is a thing of great beauty and romance. And although London sprawls across the map more untidily than New York or Sheffield, it has managed to preserve within its entity some of the historic townships which provide little enclaves with traditions and personalities of their own. Hampstead and Barking for instance, or Chiswick and Putney down on the river, stand near their Churches, and you might think you were in an old market town.

I think the most attractive aspect of London for a stranger coming from America or the Commonwealth lies in the manners of some sections of oLndoners as a whole. I say a whole because the manners of some sections or groups of oLndoners are really the worst I have ever experienced.

I would have thought, for instance, that the rudest people I had ever met as a group were the people in the box offices of New York theatres; but I think the manners of their London counterparts outdo them.

EXTREMELY CONSIDERATE

But on the whole, Londoners are extremely considerate. The other morning I was crossing Berkeley Square, when a woman stopped me and asked the way to an hotel. I was explaining to her where I thought it was when two middel-aged women, who I imagine were waitresses, turned back to us, one of them saying: "Did you say you wanted the . . . ." and proceeded to enlighten us. That does not happen every day of the week; but it is characteristic of what I have found in the last few months.

You don't find much of it in New York. There, people seem to be in such a hurry that they do not have time to go out of their way to be helpful. If you stop them, on the other hand, you nearly always find them prepared to be helpful to a degree that is almost embarrassing. All the generosity of the American people comes out when they are asked to help someone they feel is in difficulty, however slight.

Nor, in my experience, do you find the quick, immediate helpfulnss of the Londoner in Britain's provincial sities. Again, however, this has nothing to do with the desire to be helpful, but is concerned, I think, with the slower, more solid pace at which virtues of the North Countryman go into action.

This recalls something about the difference between Londoners and North Country people which occurred to me when I was looking at a football match a few weeks ago. This match was the first top class soccer match I had watched from amid a London crowd. All through the game I found myself in the middle of a running commentary to which about thirty people near me were contributing. They seemed to be very open-minded, criticising their own team as well as the opponents and conducting the discussion with crackling wit.

Before the match was over, however, and in spite of the good humour and open-mindedness, a brisk little fight had broken out; and though it was soon suppressed and forgotten, quite a few feelings—and people—were left somewhat bruised. In the North Country, where I worked for two years some time ago, I watched, I daresay, between forty and fifty good-class football matches. I never heard any crackling humour, nor very much of a commentary, and I thought the North Country crowds were rather partisan — everything their team did was right and everything the other team did was wrong. But it so happened that I never saw anything approaching a fight.

HAS SOMETHING

What London has which none of our other cities can very well have—again with the exception of Edinburgh—and which no American city can have is the joint quality of being both a huge community and power centre,, and the political and cultural capital of a country. Going home at night one sees a light above Big Ben which shows that the House of Commons is sitting, discussing the laws which govern a great country, and to some extent a great Commonwealth. Driving past a theatre — the concentration of theatres in London alone gives it a "something" which no other British city can have—one sees a dozen policemen and a couple of large cars and a small crowd outside, and deduces that the Queen or Princess Margaret, has paid a suprise visit to the play.

Here are the headquarters of the national newspapers, and the London offices of provincial newspapers, headquarters of the national societies, and the London offices of some of our greatest industries. These, and a dozen other phenomena which any Londoner can see on his day off at the price of bus fare, give one that feeling of being at the hub of a great modern and historic community, which is of the essence of living in London. It is worth the congestion in the Underground Railway trains, the queuing, and the crowding for buses. And that is saying something.

LIVES HIGH IN JAIL — "Man's gotta have a little amusement, even if he is in jail," thought Oliver Stout when he was sentenced to 30 days for bootlegging in dry Oklahoma. So he bought himself a nice television set and had it installed in his cell. The jail's a fourth--storey penthouse atop the county courthouse and Stout, shown above turning in, says he gets better TV reception than he does on his set at home. Stout has T-bone steaks and pork chops sent in and cooks meals and pastries for himself and Jailer Bill Johnson. Sheriff Emit Petete says he searched the statute books, but could find nothing to prohibit Stout from importing the TV set or buying his own food.

Township Rate Cut 4.8 Mills Monaghan Voters Told

Since 1950 the township rate in North Monaghan has been reduced 4.8 mills, Reeve Willard Waterman told a meeting of ratepayers Monday night.

"As the new municipal subsidy of $1.50 per capita become payable next year we should be able to make a further reduction in our township rate," said Mr. Waterman. "Some of the decrease in the township rate can, of course, be attributed to an increase in the number of ratepayers. In other words there are more people to carry the load."

COUNTY RATE UP

The county rate, however, is going in the opposite direction. It is up 8/10th of a mill, caused by a small increase in several items, among them the Children's Aid appropriation and the hospital deficit on indigent patients.

"The increase in population, while helpful in reducing the township rate, is a drawback when it comes to school taxes. In No. 1 school area in 1950 the public and high school rates were 33 per cent of the total taxes; this year they are 63 per cent. In No. 2 school area in 1950 they were 37 per cent; this year they are 49 per cent . . . This is not a local condition, but it is common throughout the province and is particularly noticeable in areas that are close to our larger cities."

Mr. Waterman mentioned the cut in the approved roads appropriation from $8,000 to $7,200. Two pieces of road were oiled during the year: 7/8th of a mile on the Smith boundary, and the road from Highway 7 to the city dump. The cost was $1,600 and the experiment has so far been good.

The cost of oiling the road to the city dump will be partly offset by grants, amounting to $700, from the Warren Paving Co., the Redi-Mixed Concrete Co. and the city of Peterborough. If the township were assured that these grants would be forthcoming over, say, a 10-year period, it would be good business to pave this road, said Mr. Waterman.

HEAVY TRAFFIC

He also said that Wallis Drive is taking a lot of heavy traffic and he would like to see the suburban area commission take it over.

"A dangerous corner on the 10th concession where it crosses the quarter road has been cut back to give better visibility, and our thanks are due to Mr. Stenson and Mr. Hill for granting us sufficient land to make this improvement possible."

This year the township roads received 3,500 cubic yards of gravel, costing 90 cents a yard. The county and suburban area roads in North Monaghan were all gravelled this year by the county and are in much better shape than they have been for a number of years.

Coming up: paving of Sherbrooke St. west to Hrailey's school corner unless the department drastically reduces the county's road appropriations.

"This year we were able to persuade the city to level the dump ground and discontinue the burning of refuse," said Mr. Waterman, "and I think we can all agree that there has been a vast improvement in that area since this time last year."

EXEMPT FOR TAXES

The North Monaghan reeve also pointed out that Peterborough has bought 40 acres beside the present dump ground for land fill purposes.

"While we congratulate Mr. Patterson on making a good sale of this property, we don't appreciate the fact that this piece of land will now be exempt from taxation. It would seem to me that there should be some limit to the amount of land a city can purchase in another municipality for speculative or other reasons, and still be exempt from taxes.

"In a large township these property exemptions may not be a problem but where the land area is small, as it is in our township, it means an added load on the other property owners."

Mr. Waterman said that North Monaghan had already lost one piece of property to the city this year: the Hugh Stewart farm. The council reluctantly agreed to this, he said, because they were unable to provide the necessary sewer connections.

"This matter of annexation by the city is going to be more and more of a problem as time goes on," Mr. Waterman stated. "It is my personal opinion that, unless the property is already exempt from taxes, we should oppose any further annexation by the city . . ."

The problem of fire protection still remains to be settled and the council are looking for suggestions.

"An agreement with the city would be the best solution, but if they won't enter into an agreement some other solution will have to be found."

A hint of some plans for fire protection was given by Fred Stinson, beginning his fourth term on council: "I think we'll have something to offer the ratepayers before nomination day, next year . . . If we look after it ourselves —pumper and crew—it would run into too much money."

PLANNING BOARD

Norman Gainer suggested a plan to forestall future annexations: "What would be the feeling of council toward setting up of a township planning board? It would be the logical step toward preventing annexation. It blocks one argument in annexation's favor—the hodgepodge development of the area . . . We could set up our own plans and bylaws and enforce them."

This suggestion drew favorable comment from several ratepayers.

Township Clerk Bruce Johnston said that the city planning board already has a say in developments up to 10 miles beyond its borders.

Urge Safety Belts In Cars To Save Lives In Crashes

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Safety belts in automobiles could save thousands of lives in highway accidents, an American Medical Association exhibit suggests.

It found that 453 out of 633 persons killed in one year in Indiana probably could have survived by some safety changes.

They were not killed by accordian collapse of their cars. They died from being thrown. Safety belts, crash helmets or safety changes within cars apparently could have given them a new ticket on life.

The exhibition is presented by Sgt. Elmer Paul, head of the auto crash injury research section, Indiana state police, and trooper John B. Klein. It is part of a symposium on prevention of highway deaths at the AMA's midwinter meeting opening today.

It is not just high speed which kills, Paul said. Two little girls were killed by being flung out the door of the back seat when their car, moving at 20 miles an hour, was hit obliquely by another machine.

FALLS FROM CAR

Another car skidded, struck a pole, and suffered only $150 damages. A man slid across the seat and out the opened door. He died when his head hit a pole.

Safety belts, as just one means of saving lives, are being installed now by some car owners, Paul said, and 25 Indiana state police cars now are equipped with them A harness-type belt, holding the chest and shoulders back, is better than the airplane seat-belt type, he added.

The right front seat is one of the greatest danger spots. A study of passengers only found that 70 per cent of passengers killed were riding in the right front seat, and 23 per cent in rear seats.

Canada Needs More Engineers To Build Expanding Economy

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada needs more engineers to build and operate its expanding economy, the Royal Bank of Canada says in a monthly letter.

"The most important single factor in our national economy in the past 30 years has been the rising influence of engineering," it says.

The need for engineers is more appreciated today than it used to be. The letter points out that in 1923 the general secretary of the Engineering Institute of Canada told the institute's Montreal branch the profession "is overcrowded, and becoming more so every year."

He advised youths to look for jobs elsewhere.

ENGINEERS SOUGHT

Today, the bank points out, graduating engineers are eagerly sought.

"Not only does industry keep increasing its needs and the armed services their demands, but opportunity is opening new doors. Many small industries that have never before used engineers are finding that they can get better results and can meet competition more successfully when they employ engineers."

"One company numbers 350 graduate engineers among its 8,500 employees," the letter says.

There are also openings in government service.

"More than 50 per cent of the professional staff of the National Research Council and the atomic energy control board are engineers, and about 75 per cent of their budget is spent on applied science or engineering development work."

45 PER CENT JOBS HELD

In the United States, surveys show 45 per cent of all administrative posts in industry are held by engineers, the bank says.

Today's engineer requires an increasingly higher standard of scientific training, the letter continues.

"To be successful in whatever field he chooses the engineer must think logically, visualize clearly and evaluate in terms of reality He needs to reject the thought that so-and-so is final, that such-and-such a thought process is perfect."

Weed Inspector Sprayed 300 Miles Roads

Melville H. Johnston, county weed inspector, has reported that 300 miles of county and township roads were sprayed this year. He also said that two weeds are spreading—yellow rocket and wild carrot.

His report was made to the county council at the November session, the last session this year.

"I warn you all to be on the lookout for yellow rocket," said Mr. Johnston. "It is increasing rapidly and is going to take over if we aren't careful."

Mr. Johnston also told council that he saw more than weeds as he toured the rural roads.

"People from the city, as well as others, have been dumping garbage and trash by the roadside. Take them to court," he said. "Make an example of them. Every township is suffering from this."

Here are a few extracts from his annual report:

Provincial highways — "The highways were all sprayed and mown. They have considerable yellow rocket, goat's beard and wild carrot."

FAIRLY EARLY

County roads — "County roads were sprayed fairly early, for approximately 100 miles, and spot-sprayed for wild carrot and mown."

Township roads—"These were sprayed fairly early and spot-sprayed for wild carrot. Very little mowing done except in one township."

Railroads—"Road beds were sprayed and the right-of-way mown rather late."

Townships where little or nothing was done in weed control on roadsides — "Belmont-Methuen, Chandos, Burleigh - Anstruther, Galway-Cavendish and Harvey. The county road in Belmont was sprayed."

New weed infestations found this year — "One patch of bed straw (near Hiawatha)."

A word of praise—"Ennismore did a splendid job on goat's beard on a short piece of road—the best I know about. One plot of field bind weed sprayed last year and again this year, although it had been weakened."

"We didn't do much with barberry and buckhorn this year but the treatment of 1952 was quite successful," he said, commenting on the program to eliminate barberry, buckthorn and leafy spurge. He added that no leafy spurge was seen in the county.

Summing up, the weed inspector said:

"There was a noticeable increase of yellow rocket over 1952.

"We have a number of infested farms that should be either sprayed or cultivated. I approached some of the owners and indicated that some action will have to be taken if we are to be able to control these weeds. I speak especially of wild carrot.

"There are a number of cemeteries that need attention but we are getting some co-operation in this respect.

"The CGE company are co-operating with their property at Nassau. We called on them and they asked that the county do the spraying and send the bill to them. We sprayed several acres that were badly infested with goat's beard."

Mr. Johnston said that this year the CGE arranged and paid for the planting of 15,000 trees in the northern part of their Nassau property.

He ended his report on an optimistic note: "I believe our ratepayers are becoming more weed conscious all the time."

22,000,000 Lbs. Canned Pork Sold Germany

OTTAWA (P) — Canada has sold about 22,000,000 pounds of government-held canned pork to West Germany within the last few weeks, a government official said Monday.

He said the pork was sold in two lots of about 11,000,000 pounds each and some of it now is being loaded for shipment to Europe

The canned pork is part of the 98,000,000 pounds which the government purchased and canned during the 1951-52 outbreak of foot and mouth disease when Canada's meat export market to the United States was closed.

The average cost to the government was 60 cents a pound. No figures have been issued on the selling price, although it is known the government had been forced to take a loss on its stocks.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner reported in the Commons last week that 20,000,000 pounds was still in the government's hands at Nov. 25.

U.S. Politicians Accused Of Corruption

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Powerful political lobbies in the United States are protecting racketeers, the former counsel of a congressional investigating committee says.

William F. McKenna, Los Angeles lawyer who resigned his post with a House of Representatives sub-committee on racketeering Friday, said a congressional inquiry on "the political mantle that protects racketeering in this country" is essential.

McKenna resigned following a hearing in Detroit on the AFL Teamsters Union. His statement Monday was prompted by remarks in Detroit by a Committee member, Rep. Clare Hoffman (Rep. Mich.).

Hoffman, in announcing McKenna's resignation to return to private practice, said the conduct of the chairman, Rep. Wint Smith (Rep. Kans.), at the hearing "caused McKenna to leave with a bad taste in his mouth rather than a good feeling."

Hoffman said McKenna was "humiliated in not getting more support from Smith in his efforts to get the story out of Hoffa (James R. Hoffa, head of the Michigan teamsters)."

"SKIMMED THE SURFACE"

McKenna in his statement said the House government operations committee began investigating racketeering last spring, conducted hearings in Kansas City and Detroit but had barely skimmed the surface in those cities.

He said he, as counsel, and the investigators made it their business to stay out of politics but "we would, however, have been deaf, dumb and blind investigators to be oblivious to the pressures exerted by certain powerful lobbies to stop the inquiry into racketeering."

Haymes Fails Attend Deportation Hearing

His lawyer, David Marcus, appeared before the United States immigration and naturalization service however, and finally obtained from hearing officer Joseph A. Dummel an adjournment until Dec. 17.

Americans Have Little Knowledge Of Foreign News

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP)—A poll of American newspaper readers shows that 40 per cent of those questioned couldn't identify Georgi Malenkov as Russia's premier a month after he took office, the International Press Institute has disclosed

The summary was contained in a 266-page book called "The Flow of News," published by the IPI. An organization of editors in 32 countries, its study was financed by the Ford and Rockefeller foundations.

Discuss Methods Used By Game Overseers

Modern methods employed by game overseers was the subject of a talk by regulations inspector of the Department of Lands and Forests, Gordon Buie, Lindsay, to 75 members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association on Monday evening.

To raise funds for club conservation programs tickets among club members had been sold during the past month. Net proceeds of the draw amounted to about $150.

Want To Stress Gun Laws For Tourists

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's tourist experts decided Monday to study new methods to inform American tourists of laws governing the possession of firearms.

D Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian government travel bureau, told the federal-provincial tourist conference he has received complaints from Americans fined for illegal possession of weapons.

Many entered Canada without knowing they must have special permits to carry rifles during the summer. Others purchased the required permit when they entered Canada but ran afoul of the law when they visited another province.

POSTER DISPLAYS

L. H. Taylor of the customs division of the revenue department said booklets on firearm regulations are placed in racks at points of entry. However, customs officers were not permitted to distribute them.

The conference decided to investigate the possibility of poster displays at border points outlining regulations.

Rev. Siscoe Preaches Millbrook Anniversary

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The Rev. A. L. Sisco of Warkworth was the guest speaker for the anniversary service of St. Andrew's United Church. Mr. Sisco had served as St. Andrew's minister for 11 years leaving the charge eight years ago. The church was filled almost to capacity. It had been planned to hold the service in St. Andrew's, but since the renovation of the church was not complete the congregation was again indebted to St. Thomas' Anglican for the use of their church.

Mr. Sisco took as his text "I was glad when they said unto me 'Let us go unto the house of the Lord' ". He compared the church to the ark in which Noah and his family took refuge. He said the church today is an ark, a place of safety in this crazy world. It was a place of peace, of joy, of worship. The church sends beams, like a lighthouse, to a stormy world. It reveals the rock of salvation.

There were vocal solos by Mrs. Lawrence Winslow and Fraser Carr and anthems by both senior and junior choirs. The junior choir members were wearing their new long black gowns, white surplices, stiff white collars, and soft black bow ties for the first time. Materials for their robes were supplied by the senior choir, and they were made by Mrs. G. A. Spicer, choir leader and Miss Ellen Kent assisted by the children's mother.

Says Scots' Example Way To World Peace

KINGSTON (CP)—Senator Wishart Robertson, speaker of the Senate, Monday night told a St. Andrew's Society dinner that Western countries should base their policies on the traditions that made Scotland revered, loved and respected

He said the West could lead mankind to permanent peace and progress by adopting the Scots' reverence for the supreme being, faith in the individual's dignity and passionate conviction of the need for unity.

Armaments, though necessary at the moment, at best could buy only time to build on surer foundations. The Western countries should combine their resources to give effective leadership in the world.

Clark, Mr. and Mrs. H. Perry, and Mrs. A. Beasley; bridge, Mrs. G. Cheatle and Mrs. G. Coleman; fish pond, Mrs. V. G. Murdoch and Miss J. Haddow.

Three children's films were shown by Mr. W. Dawson with Mrs. R. Bell, Mrs. L. Bateman, Mrs. N. Giles and Mrs. G. McKinnon in charge of the theatre.

Added features to the program were weight guessing by Mrs. Arthur Black and fortune telling by Mrs. Kingdon.

A cake decorating contest in charge of Mrs. O. Axford, assisted by Mrs. C. Foster and Mrs. R. Selby, brought out some original decorative ideas. Judges Mrs. J. D. Cochrane and Mrs. R. Stacey decided that the winner was Mrs. E. Gordon.

A bean guessing contest was in charge of students Clara Hayward and Anne Hutchinson, and the prize, a dainty fairy doll, went to Mrs. B. Calhoun who guessed the exact number of beans in the jar, 1,950.

Popcorn was sold early in the evening by Mrs. Cheatle and Mrs. Coleman. There were free girfts for all the small children, handed out by Mrs. C. E. Potts and Mrs. C. Murkar.

A book and magazine table was in charge of Mrs. G. Garfield, Mrs. W. Turner and G. Norris.

Students of Mr. Dawson's grade 6 class operated a coat check room.

Scully-Craymer Wedding

At St. Peter's Cathedral on Saturday morning, Sylvia Vivian, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Craymer, became the bride of James Joseph Scully, son of Mrs. Wm. Scully and the late Mr. Scully, all of Peterborough.

The marriage was performed by the Rev. L. M. Dubbery, who also said the nuptial mass. Organist Mrs. R. G. Aman played wedding music and during the signing of the register played "Ave Maria." White 'mums were decorating the altar table.

The bride's gown was a waltz-length model of French embroidered net over white taffeta, the strapless bodice covered by a matching fitted jacket. The full skirt featured a redingote effect. She wore a coronet veil of net and lace and carried a bouquet of red roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. Maurice Leal as matron of honor wore a waltz-length gown of turquoise net over taffeta with dark green velvet jacket and turquoise feather headdress. Mrs. Gerald Blodgett as bridesmaid was in a similarly styled gown of pink mauve net and a purple velvet jacket and purple feather bandeau. Each carried a bouquet of yellow and white roses. Flower girl Diane Galvin was in rose net over taffeta, also waltz-length, and wore a flowered headdress and carried yellow roses.

Groomsman was Mr. Maurice Leal and the ushers were Donald Craymer, brother of the bride and Gerard Blodgett.

At the reception at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club, the bride's mother received in a navy and white ensemble and wore a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was in navy and wore black accessories and a red rose corsage.

To go away the bride donned a pale blue suit and light blue topcoat with white hat and gloves and black handbag and shoes.

After a wedding trip to United States they will live at 230 Dublin street.

90 Women Attend Special Meeting On Cancer

Ninety women attended the meeting "for women only" held Monday evening at the YWCA by Peterborough Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society. This was a most encouraging response to the local workers.

President Mrs. Maurice Holt supplied forms on which to signify willingness to give voluntary service in the Society's work, explaining to them first the various phases to be covered: telephone, clerical and office; transportation; public speaking; dressings; home and hospital visiting; gift cupboard; and the lay education program of which this meeting was a part.

A message of hope was held out to cancer victims by the two doctors who spoke—if they will learn to recognize early symptoms, will treat them with an intelligent viewpoint, not fearfully, and will go immediately to their family doctor.

Dr. G. A. Lewis, a gynaecologist who has been on the Peterborough clinic staff the past five months, explained the functions of a woman's body, stressing parts where cancer usually strikes. He then explained some of the operations that can be performed.

A percentage breakdown of cancer in women showed that 40 per cent arises in the breast; 40 per cent in uterus; 10 per cent in ovaries; the other 10 per cent in other parts of body. It usually occurs in women of 45 to 55, but is found to be no respecter of youth or old age, or marital status.

Dr. R. K. Magee's remarks were directed toward doing away with the "fear of cancer." He said people must educate themselves to be conditioned against this fear. "There is nothing to be feared—only to be understood. Early detection is most important for a possible cure" he added.

The only methods of cure mentioned by this doctor were surgery, or radio therapy, or a combination of the two.

Mrs. John A. Bradshaw introduced the two doctors who came owing to the absence through illness of Dr. Agnes Moffat. They were thanked by Miss Harriet McGeary. An invocation was given by Mrs. Claire Stuart.

The audience plied both speakers with questions following their addresses. Surprisingly, there were no duplications in the questions.

Educational films on cancer, "From one cell" and "To save these lives", were shown.

Woman Barber Makes Good In Ottawa Job

OTTAWA (CP)—Four years ago, when Mrs. Alide Vainu answered an advertisement for a barber, veryone thought it was a mistake —everyone, that is, but Mrs. Vainu. She got the job and today owns her own three-chair tonsorial salon.

An Estonian, Mrs. Vainu arrived here from Europe five years ago unable to speak English. But she had completed a three-year course in a barbering school at Tallin, Estonia, and gained a good deal of hair-cutting experience during four years in a German concentration camp.

So, after serving one year as a domestic as required by her immigration contract, she answered Joseph Girard's ad for a barber in June, 1949.

ORDINARY BARBER

"You must be looking for a job in the beauty salon at the back," Joe told her, but Mrs. Vainu explained in halting English that she was an ordinary man's barber and simply wanted to cut hair. She was hired.

Now she has two assistants—men—working for her and she can carry on a line of barbershop patter with the best of them. But, and this may be her secret formula for success, she only uses her gift of gab when the customer starts a conversation; otherwise, just the drone of clippers, the gentle snipping of scissors—and silence.

MR. AND MRS. PETER YZEREEF, the bride formerly Miss Clara Walsh, were married on Saturday at St. Joseph's Church in Douro. —(Roy Studio Photo)

Yzereef-Walsh Douro Rites

St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church in Douro was the scene of a lovely wedding Saturday morning at 10 o'clock when Clara Teresa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Walsh of Indian River, became the bride of Peter John Yzereef, son of Mr. John Yzereef of Marienvelbe, Holland, and the late Mrs. Yzereef.

The Rev J. J. McCarthy, rector, performed the ceremony and said the nuptial mass. Mrs. Victor Kennedy played the wedding music and also sang "O Lord I am not worthy." During the service and the signing of the register Miss Helen Cummings sang "Panis Angelicus" and other hymns.

The church was decorated with rust and yellow 'mums.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was in a gown of white nylon tulle and lace, the long sleeved basque fashioned with a double Queen Anne collar. Lace petal inserts extended into the full, billowing skirt which fell in three tiers. Her veil was of Belgian lace and tulle and held by an Elizabethan cap edged in lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Jean Walsh was her sister's only attendant, wearing a gown in muted tones of white, blue and pink nylon tulle over a crinoline. A blue velvet jacket covered the strapless bodice and she wore matching velveteen gloves and a bandeau of white feathers. Her bouquet was Talisman roses.

Mr. John Yzereef was groomsman for his brother. Ushers were Richard Cavanagh and John Moher, nephew and cousin of the bride. Mass was served by Patrick Towns and Ray Ayotte.

The reception was held at the Empress Hotel. The bride's sister Mrs. Joheph Cavanagh, received, wearing navy crepe with a navy velvet hat and corsage of white 'mums, and the groom's sister, Mrs. Joseph Dunford assisted, dressed in blue grey satin with a blue velvet hat and corsage of white 'mums.

Leaving on their wedding trip to St. Anne's, Quebec, and points east, the bride wore a grey wool pleated dress with red accessories and a grey kid fur jacket.

On return they will live at Indian River.

Young Designer Enters Fashion's "Inner Sanctum"

By MURIEL PENN

LONDON (Reuters)—A young designer with a flair for creative use of jersey has become the 12th member of London's "inner sanctum" of fashion.

The successful candidate, Scotsman Ronald Paterson, 35, joined the "big 11" through being elected to the exclusive Incorporated Society of Fashion Designers

Paterson started in from scratch just over 4½ years ago, and rapidly won a reputation among couturiers, especially for his dazzling use of jersey.

As a young man waiting to enter Edinburgh University, Paterson's career has changed by winning first prize in a design competition run by Schiaparelli, the famed Parisian fashion maestro.

He went to Paris where he quickly learned, to his dismay, that he could not enter the world of dress designing without some basic training. He returned to London to enter a school of design, and had just finished his course when the war came.

RETURNS TO DESIGNING

After 6½ years in the army, Paterson returned to London to begin serious work on designing theatrical sets and costumes. But on a vacation in Paris he saw two dress collections, and these awoke his youthful dream of designing dresses alone. He took a job sketching for the top French magazines while he studied the art of dress designing. During this period he met his wife, better known as Stevie Stephenson, a Canadian fashion journalist.

Together they came to London and started their own business in February, 1949.

Women In Quebec Using Most Lipstick Survey Shows

TORONTO (CP)—Sixty per cent of the women of St John's, Nfld., bake their own bread, while only seven per cent of the women of Toronto perform this homely task.

This is just one of scores of bits of information about the buying habits of Canadians which may be gleaned from 202 pages of tight tabulation contained in the Canadian consumer survey of 1953, compiled by Canadian Opinion Company and published by Canadian Daily Newspapers Association.

The survey is based on replies from varying numbers of people in 56 cities and towns, according to usual public-sampling techniques.

The figures cover replies dealing with usage of 225 classifications of products bought by individual consumers.

Brandon, Man., racks up the highest percentage of margarine users, with 91 per cent; but, as in the case of all such percentages, this doesn't indicate the amount they consume or how much butter they use.

CATSUP GENERALLY USED

All Canadians pour on the catsup, with French - language users of Sherbrooke, Que., the lightest at 72 per cent.

Whatever the reason, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., seems to be the biggest buyer of chest rubs, at 85 per cent, and Belleville, with 76 per cent, also uses more than the fairly heavy users of the Atlantic seaboard

The women of Quebec province use most lipstick, at 88 per cent, and British Columbia the least, at 79. A minority of women acknowledge corsets, ranging from Quebec province's 41 per cent to British Columbia's 15. Brassieres range from 89 per cent in the Maritimes and Newfoundland, to 77 in British Columbia.

The men of Windsor and Sarnia conduct the most valiant battle against the receding hairline, if 61 per cent usage of hair tonic indicates anything.

North Bay and Sault Ste. Marie claim the biggest headaches with 96 per cent purchases of headache remedies.

The 1953 survey is the fifth in a series of biennial studies. CDNA said in a press statement that it is a "unique piece of research on the North American continent."

Electric Table Grill For Housekeepers

We have a new electric table grill and griddle to experiment with.

Pete's first reaction was to lament not having it during the summer when he prepared his own breakfasts at 6.30 A.M. You see he reads the morning paper when he eats alone and it was a nuisance jumping from breakfast table to stove to serve hot cereal or bacon or eggs or French toast or whatever huge breakfast he was currently eating.

This grill makes it possible to sit still through the whole meal and merely keep one eye over the edge of the paper to watch cooking progress. It's slick. At one sitting prepare four eggs and eight rashers of bacon, for the cooking surface measure 15 x 8 inches.

Of course, you can cook almost any top-of-stove item on it including the cereal in the double bolier and the coffee in the percolator, but, the reason I am enthusiastic about the thing is the lovely evenly golden pancakes it turns out. Have you ever watched that Mammy-like demonstrator flip pancakes at a Fall Fair? Everyone is evenly golden. Never a burned one and no sign of fat on the griddle. This electric plate does just that and here's the recipe. Now just because the batter is thin don't change it. It is exactly right.

GRIDDLE CAKES

One and one-half cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder (2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder), ¾ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg, 1¼ cups milk, 3 tablespoons soft butter or shortening, ½ teaspoon vanilla. Sift the dry ingredients together. Beat egg, add soft butter or shortening and beat, add milk. Add dry ingredients and beat until smooth. Transfer to a pitcher and stand this on a plate on the table. I heated our grill for 5 minutes at No. 4 setting. I poured on the batter in about 4-inch rounds and made 3 cakes at one time. As soon as they were full of bubbles I flipped them over. The evenness of the golden brown surface was a delight to behold, and the second side was just the same. Pete ate eleven, I had three. What they did to a plate of butter and a pitcher of maple syrup you can guess, and don't count the calories.

Plans are afoot in the Moore household to have a dessert party and serve Crepes Suzette made on this grill where the drooling guests watch. (Crepes Suzette are rolled thin pancakes served, as the French do, with hot pungent orange sauce.)

QUESTION: I am writing again and this time will try and give a few details (of husband's ulcer diet). We certainly do expect a lot of you to be a mind reader along with all the help.

For meats on my husband's diet he can have roast beef, lamb and chicken, boiled beef, steak and broiled scraped beef balls, broiled liver, stewed lamb or chicken. I have tried broiling liver but have never had any success. It always has such a hard outer crust, that George never liked it. He can also have fresh fish except salmon. The vegetables are potatoes, carrots, cauliflower, spinach, squash, vegetable marrow, parsnips, strained peas or strained string beans, beet, asparags tips. Milk puddings, such as rice, sago, tapioca custard, junket, bread puddings, blanch mange, gelatins such as Bavarian cream etc. It is mostly the meat that I would like help with . . . it is too bad they don't have a cookbook for ulcer patients. They send you home with a sheet of paper stating what you can and cannot eat, and I must admit I'm not that good of a cook yet. Doris W.

ANSWER: There is such a book Doris: "The Special Diet Cookbook" by Marvin Small, Greystone Press, N.Y. It contains a chapter of 43 pages on The Bland Diet, which is frequently prescribed in treatment of peptic ulcers. In school we were taught to broil calves' liver cut in 1-3-inch slices like this: Brush 2 such slices with ¾ teaspoon melted butter mixed with ¾ teaspoon lemon juice. Place 1 inch from very hot broiler and broil on both sides until juices are just set—never overcook until surface is crusty. Serve this on mound of noodles cooked in chicken broth or diluted canned consomme. It's a delicious dish. My best advice is to buy the book I mention. Actually you husband's doctor has allowed him a fine variety of food, for his ailment.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

DOROTHY DIX

Husband Tells Widow Wife Failed In Obligations

DEAR MISS DIX: My problem is a delicate one, and is too close to my own heart to be seen objectively. I'm a middle-aged widow, self-supporting, with a married son. A year ago I met a married man, the father of two children in their late teens. His job takes him to various parts of the country for a year at a time. For the last several years his wife has refused to accompaany him, though with a good dwelling and every comfort no matter where he was located. He can spend only a few days a year with his family. His children have come to regard him only as a source of income; they never write to him and are disrespectful to him when he is at home.

He turned to me as a confidante, and our friendship has developed into love. I have no wish to take him from his family, but would like to help him in some way. Can you suggest something?

ALMA

A WIFE WHO'S FAILED

ANSWER: There might be another side to this tale, but I doubt if it could be substantial enough to change your story. I've seen the pattern before. The wife has failed in all her basic marital obligations, and deserves very little consideration from anyone. Her place is with her husband, if it's at all possible for her to be there. In this case, it's more than possible. She has further estranged herself from her husband by actually turnng his children against him with her constant belittling. The youngsters certainly would have more respect and affection for their father had they not been set against him by their mother.

There's no question, however, but that all talk of love and marriage between you two should be shelved until the propitious time. The wife is fortunate that you have been chosen as her husband's confidante rather than an unprincipled woman. This wife is getting a much better deal from fate than she deserves. I think your friend should put all his cards on the table, tell his wife to make a choice between him and the home surroundings that she apparently prizes more than the welfare of her family. Her decision should determine his future.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a woman of 35, and have been going out with a man 20 years my senior. I thought I could learn to love him, but know now that it is impossible. He's asked me to marry him; I refused, and my mother said I'm very foolish to throw away a chance of security. He has deceived me about many small things, and I don't think he'd make a reliable husband.

FLORA K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You were quite right turn down the proposal. Security isn't worth the loss of personal dignity, much less the chances of a miserable future.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My mother-in-law is comfortably well off, yet she insists on financial aid from her six children. Some can afford it, others can't. I worked until two months before our baby was born, and we live in an attic apartment, while my mother-in-law owns a comfortable home.

HAZEL D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Under the conditions you outline, I don't believe your mother-in-law is justified in assessing all her children for support. Apparently she is well able to get along without any aid from them; she owns property, has an income, and is in good health. In your case, particularly, the added financial strain is unfair.

VATICAN CITY (AP)—The Pope has authorized celebration of midnight masses on the opening and closing days of the Marian year, which begins Dec. 8.

In a decree issued by the Vatican's Sacred Congregation of the Sacraments, the Pope authorized bishops to permit celebration of such masses in cathedrals, parish churches, chapels and Marian shrines, beginning half an hour after midnight on the night between Dec. 7 and 8 The bishops are given the same right for the same day in 1954, closing date of the world-wide Catholic observance in honor of the Virgin Mary.

The Marian year will commemorate the 100th anniversary of the dogma that proclaimed the Immaculate Conception of Mary.

Resignation

"Against any loss," Mr. Raine suggested.

"I know you have a very low opinion of my ability," Dr. Langley said.

"No, I haven't," Mr. Raine protested. "You're advocating an old-fashioned type of installation"

EFFORTS HAVE FAILED

"I came on this commission with the idea that I might be of some value to the citizezns and to stay on indefinitely if they so wished," Dr. Langley said. "But all my efforts to persuade the other commissioners to operate in a more business-like way have failed. This motion has put a closure on my efforts to make myself available in a consultative way.

"I hereby tender my resignation. In doing so, I will certainly list before the public the things on which I have been turned down and they will not look good.

"When you are starting on a program involving the expenditure of millions of dollars, I don't think you should do it without planning. In installing underground wiring, I have advocated a survey to determine the cost of a program for a community of 60,000 people by a competent engineer. Our staff is not competent to do it; the manager will admit that.

"We have been told there is no-one in the country competent to frame such a plan. And yet we go ahead installing wiring underground here and there without a program"

"You're just bewailing the fact that everyone is out of step but you," Mr. Raine charged.

"Not everyone—just the commission," Dr. Langley said.

SECOND TO NONE

"My experience is that this commission is second to none," the chairman interposed.

"Now you're slamming other commissions," Dr. Langley charged. "There have been some atrocious things done. At one of the first meetings, I said that it was not customary to include the cost-of-living bonus in the regular pay of employees. When the cost of living dropped below 187½ points, $4,500 or $5,000 was paid out to employees that they weren't supposed to get.

"I can hardly credit this with being a well-regulated business when we have no rules or regulations Why aren't these in writing?"

"We're endeavoring to get them," Mr. Hills said. "But it's going to take a long time."

"It's very difficult," the general-manager agreed with the chairman.

"Incidentally, I think things are much better now than they used to be," Dr. Langley admitted. "A lot of these things have been remedied."

"If that's the case, why don't you stay with them?" Mr. Raine asked. "If I thought you were right, I would be with you."

"I may be sticking my neck out," Mr Hills said. "But I've been satisfied with the way things are run. Problems come up from time to time that have to be solved in any organization."

"But this resolution is a particularly atrocious one," Dr. Langley said. "You and Mr. Raine are preparing to go ahead with the installation of this type of switchgear, regardless of the views of the other commissioner."

Mr. Raine re-iterated that the open-type switchgear would be more costly than the metal-clad and was out of date.

PROBABLY MAKE A SAVING

"I have not said that I advocate the open-type switchgear," Dr. Langley insisted. "I have said that when we study this bungalow-type installation, we can probably make a radical saving by using the open type

"You have checked with someone," he told Mr. Raine. "But I want to check with the manager, not one of the manufacturers. I don't know what kind of open-type you're talking about; neither do you.

Mr. Powell said that Dr. Langley had seen the switch-gear in the Romaine St. substation and the proposed equipment was a duplicate of it. "I assumed you knew what it was," he said.

After a silent pause, the discussion switched to another item of business, while Dr. Langley sat with his face averted from the table After about five minutes, he rose quietly, put on his hat and coat, and walked out of the room.

Ray Bothwell Returned Reeve S. Monaghan

Ray Bothwell was elected reeve of South Monaghan township for his second term at the township nomination meeting at Centreville town hall on Monday.

He said that the meeting was attended by some 75 ratepayers a great majority of them junior farmers. There were no women present.

Four councilmen were also elected by acclamation; Reg Atkinson, Charles Barnard and Murray Thompson, each with five previous years on the council and Norman Willan with two years of service.

Two school trustees were reappointed for a two-year term, Robert Dawson with eight years in the same capacity and George Moncrief who had just completed a four-year term.

Chairman of the nomination meeting was O. B. Johnston who, on Monday, entered his 41st year as township clerk.

Reeve Bothwell said the only political issue of any importance discussed at the meeting was the unanimous decision by all present to approach the provincial government to take over the development of a four-mile stretch of road east of Bailieboro.

Among the many priests attending were: the Rev. J. F. McGuire, rector of St. Peter's Cathedral; the Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant, Peterborough; the Rev. W. C. McCarney, Otonabee; the Rev. C. J. Carroll, Norwood; the Rev. J. J. Garvey, Hastings; the Rev. J. C. Moloney, Campbellford; the Rev. J. V. Masterson, Lakefield; the J. J. McCarthy, Douro; Rev. Dr. Rev. V. J. Gillogly, Port Hope; the Rev. F. K. Malane, Cobourg; and many others of the city and farther parishes of the diocese.

Many friends of the late Mr. Hickey and of his bereaved family were present at the funeral from his residence, 633 Gilmour St., W. The pallbearers were: Fred J. Overend, T. J. Cavanagh, N. DeCarlo, Edward M. Finn, Dr. W. S. Fitzpatrick and J. J. Crowley. Members of the Knights of Columbus formed a guard of honor.

Prayers at St. Peter's cemetery were offered by Father Hickey assisted by Monsignor Butler.

Coronation Medal Added To Array

Chief Petty Officer George Lee of the Lakefield Preparatory School was presented with the Coronation medal

Grain Production Increased Over 1952, Lower Than 1951

A fairly satisfactory crop year is the final estimate of the Ontario Department of Agriculture for the work and investment of 1953.

Total grain production is approximately 178,761,000 bus., as compared with 172,406,000 bus. in 1952 and 186,946,000 in 1951. Acreage of grain crops this year showed a decline of about 187,000 acres.

Fall wheat was up in acreage to 723,000 acres as against 650,000 acres in 1952. The yield per acre is estimated at 35.8 bus., as compared with 32 bus. and the total crop at 26,206,000 bus. as compared with 20,900,000 bus.

Yields of oats, mixed grain and barley were all higher this season than a year ago, with oats averaging about 44.3 bus. an acre as against 39; mixed grain 46.1 as against 42.5; and barley 36 against 33 last year.

The acreage of these crops was down considerably from 1952, but total production of the three crops is estimated at 121,616,000 bus. as compared with 122,219,000 bus last year, the higher yields offsetting the decline in acreage.

Fodder supplies are more than ample in all sections of the province. Hay crop was heavy, and more grass silage was put up than in any previous season. Corn average was somewhat lower than in 1952, but, with more grass ensiled, farmers have ample fodder for winter feeding.

The report from Durham says barns are full and granaries overflowing in many cases. Hay, corn, grain and roots couldn't have been much better.

Northumberland: Hay is selling below labor cost of handling. Cattle are at the lowest figure in recent years. . . Ontario county: Roughage feeds are in good supply and should carry all livestock through the winter . Peterborough: Silage supplies are average; there is more hay than usual.

Briton Rewrites Poems Of Scotland's Robbie Burns

By ARCH MacKENZIE

LONDON (CP) — A 66-year-old Englishman who has never lived in Scotland calmly asserted Monday that Scots cannot understand many of the words of Robbie Burns, "although they will not admit it," and told how he's translating some poems of the bard into the Queen's English.

His translation, to be published in January, makes short work of such Burns phraseology as "pint-stoup," "painch, tripe or thairm," and "bousing at the nappie."

The translator is William Kean Seymour, who plans to brave the possible wrath of London Scots Jan. 25 when he attends the Burns night dinner at the Caledonian Club.

WILLING TO RECITE

What will that be like? Well take "Auld Lang Syne," for example.

As Burns wrote it, the last verse goes:

'And surely ye'll be your pint-stoup.
"And surely I'll be mine;
"And we'll tak a cup o' kindness yet
"For auld lang syne."

Seymour's version comes out this way:

'And ye shall stand a round or two,
'And surely I'll do mine;
"And we'll take a cup of kindness yet
"For auld lang syne."

Seymour, one-time London bank manager, has depended on the dictionaries of the lowland Scots dialect for his translations.

SCOTS PHILOSOPHER

Speaking for Scots, Dr. John Oliver of Edinburgh, president of the Burns Federation, took a philosophic view

"I don't really think he can fully succeed, but in a way I'm glad he tried it.

"It is better that the people of England should get even a watered down version than nothing at all."

Social Credit MP Defends McCarthy In Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) Monday completed in the Commons what he said was a defence of Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin.

He was replying to an attack made by David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) last week against "McCarthyism" and "McCarthyites." Mr. Blackmore was still speaking at the 10 p.m. adjournment Friday night and completed his speech Monday.

Mr. Blackmore said Senator McCarthy is a "dynamic personality," a man of "great courage and sincerity" with a great "intellectual capacity" and "understanding of world affairs."

"SYMPATHIZERS SCREAMING"

Because of McCarthy's work, Communist sympathizers were "gnashing their teeth" and "screaming."

Another reference to Senator McCarthy was made later in the throne speech debate by John Decore (L—Vegreville), who said the senator is like ventriloquist Edgar Bergen, whose dummies are named Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd.

"In Canada he has little McCarthys—Charlie McCarthys—and there's a Mortimer Snerd for good measure."

CHARGED IN SHOOTING—Constable G. E. Barclay has been charged with manslaughter in the death of 14-year-old Garfield Belfon who was shot in the basement of a Toronto dental supply company. Barclay said he was investigating a burglary in the basement of the buiding Sunday night when a crate was apparently pushed toward him, knocking him backward. As he fell his gun discharged. Three alleged companions of the boy have been remanded on charges of breaking and entering.

CONFESSED — M/Sgt. Maurice Schick, described as a "model soldier," has confessed to the strangling of nine-year-old Susan Rothschild, daughter of a U.S. Army colonel. The strangling took place in Japan. Asked why he had murdered the child, Schick replied: "Just because she was there."

Will Investigate Rumors Bad Treatment

LONDON (Reuters)—War Minister Antony Head Monday promised to conduct an official investigation if he finds there is reason to suspect that unjust treatment of Africans by the British Army in Kenya has been widespread or might recur.

He was answering questions in the House of Commons arising from the Nairobi court martial last week at which Capt. Gerald Griffiths was acquitted of murdering an African with a machine-gun during an anti-Mau Mau terrorist roundup last June.

Charges were made at the trial that some British Army units kept "scoreboards" of terrorists killed and that soldiers were offered a cash reward for each "kill."

The war minister said he had wired urgently to see the colony for the proceedings and could make no comment until they had been examined—"particularly as other proceedings may be taken arising out of the facts disclosed."

Earning Living Hard Says Canadian Writer

TORONTO (CP) — If Canadian authors depended on their literary work alone, they would have a standard of living lower than Toronto street cleaners, Kenneth McNeill Wells, Medonte, author said Monday.

Addressing a publisher's luncheon, Mr. Wells said the plight of the writer in Canada resulted from lack of support from Canada as a whole.

"There is not one writer out of 100 in Canada who can hope to support his wife and family on the earnings from his writings," he said.

VICTORY KISS—George Gregory, 37-year-old Victoria lawyer, upset British Columbia's Social Credit government attempt to obtain a legislature seat for Finance Minister Einar Gunderson by defeating him in a by-elecion. The by-election was called when Social Crediter Percy Wright resigned his seat to make way for Mr. Gunderson who was defeated in the June provincial election. Mr. Gregory is shown receiving a victory kiss from Cathy Shaw.

Health League Campaigns For Milk Pasteurization

TORONTO (CP) — The Health League of Canada has pledged itself to continue its campaign for compulsory pasteurization of milk everywhere in Canada.

"It is a matter of regret," Dr. Gordon Bates said Monday in his report as general director of the league, "that there are still only two provinces in Canada which have managed to institute province-wide legislation for compulsory pasteurization of milk. They are Saskatchewan and Ontario."

Miss Anne Grant, education consultant for the Canadian Tuberculosis Association, said during a panel discussion federal grants to voluntary health organizations can have harmful effects.

She said the necessity of canvassing for funds gives impetus to the work of voluntary organizations.

The report revealed that only 50 per cent of Canada's children drink the minimum amount of milk needed for good health. They also do not average "three or four eggs a week," the recommended number. Nor do they eat the required number of greens or citrus fruits.

ROAMS WIDELY

The iguana, a tropical lizard, has been found as far north as British Columbia and south to Patagonia.

Male Shoppers Being Lured To Supermarkets

TORONTO (CP)—Supermarkets are working a slow, subtle charm on men and turning them into reckless buyers, a trade magazine editor said Monday.

B. T. Huston, editor of the Canadian Grocer, told the annual convention of the Canned Foods Association of Ontario that the percentage of male shoppers in supermarkets is increasing.

Of 102,347 shoppers checked in a recent survey, he said, 35.9 per cent were men.

Men are more reckless on extras than their wives, Mr Huston said. If women realized how reckless their husbands were with extras they might do all the shopping themselves.

R. B. Graham, vice-president of the canners' group, said high prices of some field crops are costing Ontario packers a large portion of their markets to other Canadian and foreign producers.

Uncontrolled Quebec tomato prices were "so far below those in Ontario that the canning industry is suffering severe, if not disastrous losses."

Advance Poll Small

TORONTO (CP)—The city's one advance poll for the Dec. 7 municipal election closed Monday night after being open three days. Twelve ballots were cast officials said. Last year there were six advance polls and 80 votes

New School Opened

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Sherrin Sandulac, 7, a member of the fifth generation of her family to attend public school in nearby Allanburg, was among the guests Monday night at the opening of a new $50,000 two-room school. Enrolment at the school is 104.

Youth Held; Charged Dangerous Driving

KITCHENER (CP)—A 20-year-old Linwood youth was arrested on a charge of dangerous driving Monday night after police said he pushed a car through the nearby village of St. Clements at 65 miles an hour.

Police said Frank Friedman pulled up behind G[illegible]chlueter of Heidelburg just outside St. Clements and pushed Schlueter's car through the village at 65 miles an hour. Schlueter burned out his brakes trying to stop.

When they reached the other end of the village, Friedman drove down a side road.

Bail set at $5,000 property or $1,000 cash. He will appear in court Dec. 8.

Admits Break-Ins

KITCHENER (CP)—A 15-year-old boy was given suspended sentence Monday after admitting nine break-ins. He was trapped in the Kissner Milling Company last week and said he needed the money because he "owed a lot of guys." Largest theft of any of the break-ins was $15.

Lloyd Hooton Acclaimed Reeve Of Cavan

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Lloyd Hooton was elected by acclamation as reeve of Cavan township at the nomination meeting in the council chambers on Monday afternoon. The chambers were filled to capacity. Mr. Hooton has served for eight years on the council and has been deputy reeve for three of the eight years. Recently he has been appointed for a four-year term on the county road commission. He is first deputy reeve to be appointed to this commission and first representative from Cavan to be given a four-year appointment. Mr. Hooton said that a great deal of the credit for his appointment should go to Delbert Olan, the retiring reeve.

Mr. Olan was the only other man nominated for reeve. He has served nine years in the council and as reeve for three of the nine years. Mr. Olan thanked those who had nominated him, and the many who had spoken highly of his work during his term of office, but refused to stand for re-election.

Three were nominated as deputy reeve. Joe Thorn withdrew his name for deputy to stand as councillor. He has already served three years on the council. J. H. McKnight and Harold Bradburn also nominated as deputy reeve have each had five years experience on the council. They have until 9 p.m. Tuesday night to qualify.

Councilors nominated as well as Joe Thorn were J. Kinsman, G. Howden, Don. Cathcart and Aubrey Bland, all four new men. Three councillors are to be elected.

SOUTH CAVAN BOARD

Nominated to the South Cavan area public school board were Ernest Brackenbridge, the present chairman, who has been on the board for four years, Dick Hutchinson, who served on the board formerly but who has been off it for three years, R. Bonner, who has served four years, and Herbert Patton who has given eight years of service having been one of the original members when the school area board was formed. Three are to be elected and they have until Tuesday, 9 p.m. to qualify.

Nominated to the North Cavan area public school board were Donald Hayes who has served for four years, Hubert Lowes on two years, Morris McGee on two years and Norman Earle, a new man.

Robert Armstrong, a former reeve, acted as chairman for the meeting. Delbert Olan thanked the ratepayers for their confidence in him in the past and for again nominating him as reeve but declined to stand for election. He said the nine years on which he had served on council had been prosperous ones, due to the times, and to the co-operation of the council. The forming of public school areas had been a step forward. Taxes were higher where there were no area boards. He quoted mill rates to prove his point. School trustees he felt, had done a good job. After losing north Cavan to Peterborough suburban high school area, he thought it had been a good move to join the Durham high school area. Recently they had given consent to the building of a new high school in Port Hope and an addition to the one in Bowmanville. This had been necessary since the board had given such whole-hearted support to maintaining a good Grade A high school in Millbrook. The raise in South Cavan taxes as a result had been very small whereas increases on the new assessment had been large in Port Hope and Bowmanville.

Mr. Olan said that when elected it had been his aim "a road for everyone." He had tried to do that and succeeded in every case except one stretch of road on the 13th Concession which council had asked the department of highways to take over. County roads have not improved the way township roads have. The council had bought a grader and the township roads have been better ever since. Where formerly 3 or 4 thousand yards of gravel were used, now it was never less than 5,000 and this year it had been about 10,000.

Lloyd Hooton said that Mr. Olan had reviewed the past year's work very thoroughly. He added details about the mile stretch of road constructed west of Centreville at a cost of $2,500 which it would cost $4,400 to pave. One mile of hard surface had been spread through three different hamlets. In ten years' time it would prove just as cheap as to use calcium chloride. He hoped another mile in Cavan would be paved this year. It would not be possible to pave the Millbrook-Cavan road until Argue's hill was cut down. They had tried to get the McFarlane Construction Co. to use the material from the hill for fill, but it had been found unsuitable for this purpose.

Mr. Hooton pledged himself to serve to the limit of his capabilities both as reeve of Cavan township and as representative to the county road commission.

Mrs. David Edwards

KEENE—Funeral services from the family residence in Keene were held Friday for the late Mrs. David Edwards, who died Tuesday at her home in Keene. The Rev. H. B. Herrington of Keene United church officiated.

Pallbearers were James Shearer, Angus Adamson, William Drummond, Stanley Taylor, Wilbert Taylor and Clayton Jory.

Burial was in Keene cemetery.

HISTORIC PROJECT

The cornerstone of the Cologne cathedral was laid in 1248, and the structure was completed in 1880.

LEFT BEHIND—Violette Elvin, 26, of London, ballet star with Sadlers' Wells Ballet Company, was left behind when the company passed through Vancouver on tour. She suffered a torn ligament while dancing the "Coronation Ballet." Miss Elvin, who will be out of action for two months, is shown looking at photos of herself in a magazine while resting in hospital.

Urges Strapping As Cure For Delinquency

TORONTO (CP)—A "woodshed" attached to courts would solve the juvenile delinquency problem, CCF House Leader W. J. Grummett told the Ontario legislature's select committee on reform institutions Monday.

The woodshed, for obvious purposes, would eliminate the glory that seems to hang over youths who have spent time in jail, Mr. Grummett said.

"When these boys get out of jail they return to their gangs and tell tall stories of how they acted in jail," he added. "There wouldn't be any talking if they were given good strappings."

FAVOR PUNISHMENT

Professor G. E. Reaman of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph and a former head of the Bowmanville Boys' Training School agreed with Mr. Grummett. He said public opinion is in favor of corporal punishment for young offenders.

He urged legislation to permit magistrates to order strapping and said juvenile courts are hamstrung by a lack of discipline in homes.

Clergyman Dies

TORONTO (CP)—The Rev. Wm. Lorne Findlay, 75, pastor emeritus of First Presbyterian church in Medina, N.Y., died here Sunday. He was moderator of the Niagara, N.Y., presbytery and the Rochester presbytery. Surviving include a daughter, Mrs. D. S. Charlton of Galt

Firemen Get Increase

STRATFORD (CP) — Stratford's 25 firemen Monday were awarded a $325 yearly wage increase by a board of arbitration. The increase, retroactive to Jan. 1, brings to $3,350 the salary of first-class firemen. A hospitalization plan was also set up.

Omemee Council Given Acclamation

OMEMEE (ENS)—There will be no election in Omemee this year. Nominees for reeve Wilson Ellis and Mrs. T. E. MacPherson, and for councillor Hector Fisher did not qualify. This left the present council to carry on for 1954, namely, reeve, Harry Deyell and councillors, Wilson Ellis, George Stephenson, L. M. McKenzie and Walter Mitchell.

Mrs. George Stephenson, Mrs. R. J. Kenny and Mrs. Larry McQuade will serve on the Board of Education, and T. Chester Best and C. R. Vaughan on the Hydro Commission. Other nominee who did not qualify were Harold Lennox and Mrs. Ross Rehill for Board of Education, and Clifford Elliott and Melville Jones for the hydro commission.

Dummer Voters To Elect Reeve

WARSAW (ENS)—There will be an election on December 7 in Dummer township.

Walter Sloan, who was deputy-reeve in 1953, is challenging Stewart Clysdale, reeve for the last four years. Dummer got a second seat in county council last January when their assessment polls showed more than 1,000 electors.

Before becoming deputy-reeve Mr. Sloan was councillor for a number of years. In an election last December he defeated Allan Olver by 50 votes and won the newly-created deputy-reeveship.

A 1953 councillor, Harold Clifford, succeeds Mr. Sloan as deputy-reeve of the township, by acclamation.

Two of last year's three councillors are among the three 1954 members. They are Ralph Hamilton and Russell Tedford, both beginning their third year of office after receiving an acclamation. The other member is Howard Darling, a newcomer.

The school board is also returned by acclamation—Chester McCracken, Lloyd Montgomery and A. P. Sole. Archie Crowe was nominated but declined to stand for office.

Qualification deadline is 9 p.m. Tuesday.

Seventy five electors went to the Warsaw town hall Monday afternoon to take part in the annual nomination meeting and ratepayers' meeting. After short addresses from the reeve and other members of council they adjourned shortly after 3 p.m.

Reeve Clysdale predicated that the township accounts would show a surplus this year.

Expect Harvey To Return 1953 Council

Reeve Charles Flynn of Harvey township and his council are expected to be returned for 1954 by acclamation.

Others were named for reeve, deputy-reeve and council, but they indicated they would not stand.

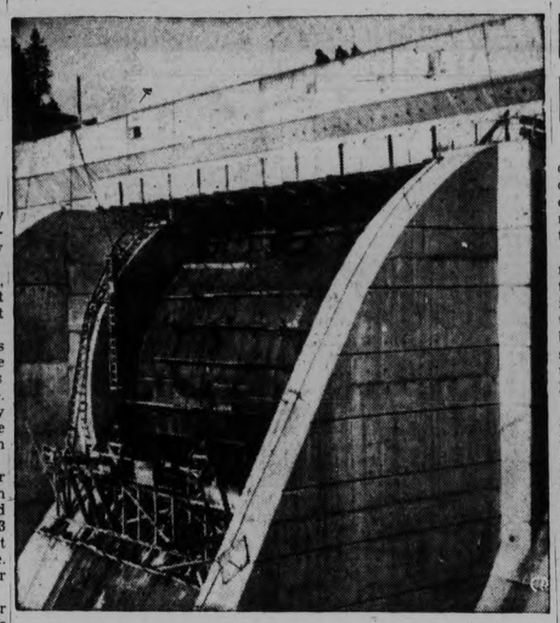
Biggest item of interest this year in Harvey—apart from the Gannon's Narrows causeway—is the new office of deputy-reeve. This is the first year that Harvey has had sufficient electors to be eligible for the second seat on county council.

James Irwin, a councillor for two years, seems headed for an acclamation. Kenneth Hunt and Thomas Gordon, two of his 1953 colleagues, were nominated but both said they would decline. Irwin headed the polls last year in the election for council.

Kenneth Junkin, a former councillor, will likely be the third councillor. Thomas Traynor, an unsuccessful candidate last year, was nominated but indicated he would not be a candidate. However, he said he would wait till the qualification deadline, 9 p.m. Tuesday, to see that there are no dropouts among the other three councillors.

Gale Elliott, former reeve of Harvey, was nominated for the reeveship but he said he would not oppose Mr. Flynn, who has been 17 in years in municipal politics and reeve of Harvey for the last four years. Last year Mr. Flynn defeated Tom Mason and Charles Johnson at the polls in a three-way contest.

Elections for the school board will be sometime in the new year.



About 50 electors turned out Monday afternoon to hear the speakers in the Buckhorn community hall and discuss township affairs.

No Election For Manvers

BETHANY (ENS)—There will be no municipal election for Manvers township this year. At the nominations Friday on motion of Henry Jakeman and George Smith all the 1953 members were returned to office.

Later in the afternoon on motion of Charles McNeil and Clifford Curtis, Mr. Robert Brown of Pontypool was proposed as a new member of the council and on motion of Orme Miller and Fenton Fallis, Mr. Henry Jakeman was also nominated. Both the nominees qualified and an election was expected.

However, just before the deadline, both Mr. Jakeman and Mr. Brown announced they would not cause an election, so the first motion being in order the council remains as last year with Allan Beer of Bethany as reeve; Earl Argue, Pontypool, deputy-reeve; John Payne, Pontypool, Ralph Malcolm, Yelverton and Addison Scott of Bethany as councillors.

DOORWAY TO POWER—A massive drum gate, which will control the flow of water through the $18,000,000 Cleveland Dam, nears completion across Burrard Inlet near Vancouver. Only 20 more yards of concrete are left to pour of the 140,000,000 yards used since construction started in May, 1951. Note how the giant drum compares in size with the three workmen leaning over the parapet.

Agree Clean-up Canal After 20 Years' Talks

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — An agreement between the federal government and St. Catharines, Merritton and Thorold, providing for the clean-up of the old Welland canal has been signed after more than 20 years of negotiations.

The canal, passing through the three communities, is little more than a repository for sewage and industrial waste.

The government-owned land bordering the canal has been given to the three municipalities, along with grants of $200,000 for sewers and $136,500 for clean-up.

Once sewage has been diverted from the canal, land will be utilized for industrial, parking and residential sites.

Memory Work, Study Of Classics Important In Child's Education

G. Winder Smith, headmaster of the Grove School in Lakefield, discussed the value of traditional education in comparison to the modern progressive methods, at the Rotary weekly luncheon.

He advocated the old school in many ways. Memory work and the study of classics is a most important division in the education of a child, but today it is being replaced by methods which stimulate brain activity. He cited the case of an American boy just leaving elementary school.

"This young lad had hardly ever read a book and was not able to read at more than a Grade 6 or 7 level, whereas a boy at an English public school would have had three or four years of Latin, maybe Greek, and read a great deal of Dickens, Scott and some Shakespeare."

Mr. Smith also disagreed with the modern education system with regard to its method of discipline. Mr. Smith believes in firmness, but not brutality. The punishment reinforces the child's respect for law, develops his moral insight, and teaches him to work.

The strong emphasis placed upon social adjustment today, as compared to the development of character in the old school, is where the moderns have made their greatest contribution to education.

"Many of us, who belong to the older generation and who remain a little diffident and awkward on all too many social occasions, look with envious eyes upon the easy confidence of the modern young."

Most of Mr. Smith's address was concerned with reminiscence of his life both at Grove School and the Royal Military College at Kingston. Many of Peterborough's exceptional men have been a product of either school, or in some cases, both, he said.

In concluding, he stated that "it is my theory that some boys should be brought up under the progressive methods of education, and others under the traditional methods. The best method, of course, is the way between."

Meetings To Adjust Assessment Complaints

To assist property owners in understanding the change between the assessment last year and for this year, of their properties, the staff of the Assessment Department has planned a series of meetings in the general office at the City Hall.

Each Taxpayer is invited to attend these meetings in order that their new assessments may be checked for them for accuracy, equity, and all other particulars.

In order to give the best personal service to the property owners taking advantage of these meetings, the meetings will be held by wards as designated below:

Claraday Ward - December 1
North Ward - - December 2
West and Centre Wards - - - December 3
South Ward - - December 4

These meetings will be held between the hours of 7 o'clock and 10 o'clock in the evening.

It is hoped that as many property owners as possible will take advantage of this special service.

We suggest that anyone dissatisfied with their assessment might properly attend one of these meetings before exercising their right of formally appealing their assessment.

Frost Fails To Break Deadlock

Premier, Minister Spend Two Hours With Union Officers

TORONTO (CP)— Premier Frost of Ontario met top officials of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) today over the wage and checkoff issues which have resulted in strikes of 7,000 gold miners in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec.

The meeting began about 10:30 a. m. and was still on 2½ hours later. Representing the union were C. H. Millard, Canadian director, and Arthur Goldberg, general counsel for the international union from Washington.

There was no statement on progress of the talks.

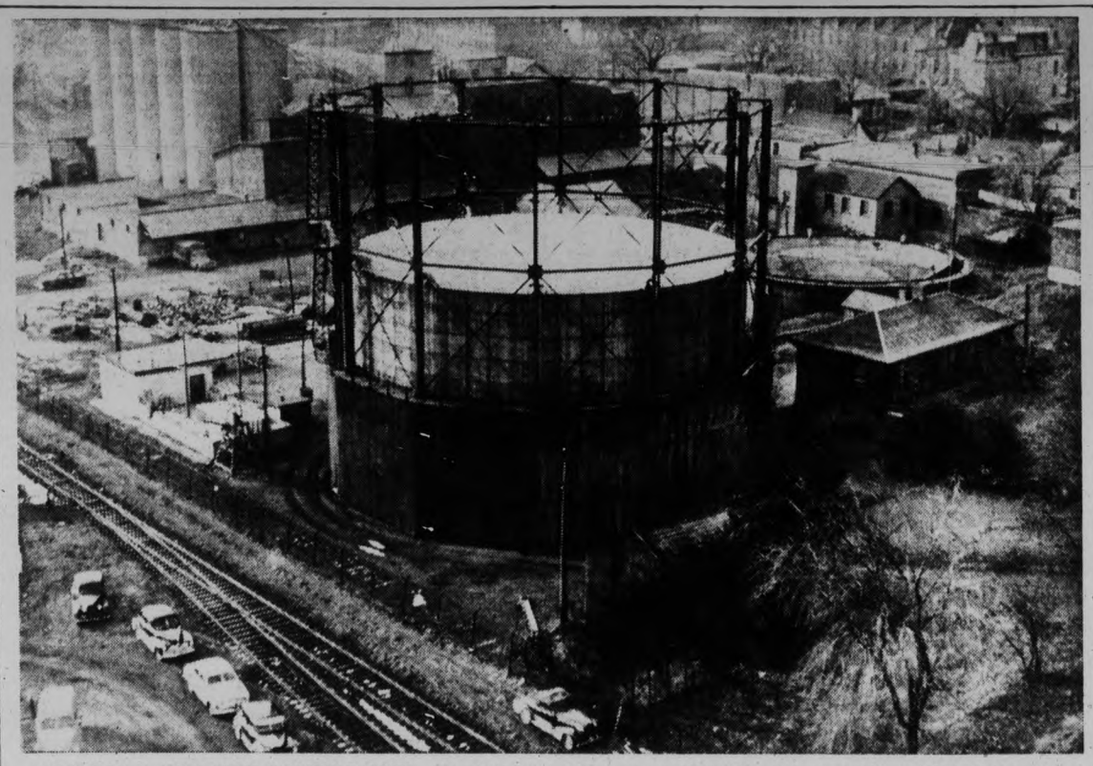
MET TUESDAY

Mr. Frost and Labor Minister Daley of Ontario met union officials and a delegation of Hollinger consolidated gold mines executives Tuesday. The mine, which employs 1,500 members of the union, has been strike-bound since Sept. 24.

Jules Timmins, Hollinger president, sat down at the bargaining table for the first time since the strike began Sept. 24 over wages and the issue of union dues checkoff.

Mr. Frost and Labor Minister Daley met for two hours in the premier's office with Mr. Timmins and C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL). Arthur J. Goldberg, general counsel for the union, was at the talks.

The discussions switched to the premier's office after a morning session in Mr. Daley's office. The premier called Mr. Timmins, Mr. Millard and Mr. Goldberg to meet with him.



The morning discussions were a resumption of the talks last week with Mr. Daley and the chief conciliation officer, Louis Fine. Mr. Timmins did not attend last week's sessions nor the one Tuesday morning.

Except for Mr. Daley neither Premier Frost, nor the union and mine representatives would comment on the discussions.

HOPE PATTERN SET

The negotiations were called in the hope that a settlement of the Hollinger dispute would set a pattern for ending strikes of seven other mines in northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec which

SITE FOR A NEW CITY PARKING LOT? Members of the city council would like the utilities department to consider moving the present propane gas plant and storage tank property bounded by the CPR tracks, Simcoe St. and the west end of the Hunter St. Bridge. They think it would make an excellent downtown parking lot but the idea is only in the tentative stage and would only be a definite consideration if the utilities could find ground for their gas plant elsewhere in the city. The above photo was taken from the roof of the Quaker Oats Company mill.

Shift Gas Plant To Allow Parking Board Suggests

City council would like to see the gas department's huge gasometer taken down. If possible, they'd like to see the whole gas plant moved to a new location to make way for a parking lot.

The gasometer is about 85 feet in diameter and stands about 75 feet high. It is situated just south of Hunter St. bridge on the west bank of the Otonabee river. It is used to store gas from the utilities commission's propane plant and maintain a constant pressure in city gas mains. It has a capacity for 300,000 cubic feet.

The board of works Monday night approved a request from the utilities commission to issue debentures for $29,000 to cover the cost of converting the present mechanical system to a completely automatic system. In a letter to council, General-Manager W. Howard Powell said the work would take about three months and suggested the debentures would not require to be sold until June.

The commission propose to construct a new building in the vicinity of the present propane storage tanks and bottle-filling building, to take the place of the three existing buildings. The new equipment will be designed so that it can be placed in operation and carry the city load while the old gas plant equipment is moved into the new building.

RELOCATE BOILER

The steam-heating boiler will be relocated in a small building adjacent to the new gas-making plant.

The Gas Machinery Co. of Hamilton have designed a plant to generate 125,000 cubic feet an hour of propane air gas with a calorific value of 710 British thermal units. The equipment for this plant will cost $22,000. The building in which the plant is to be housed will cost $4,000. Installation of the equipment by the PUC staff will cost an estimated $3,000.

When the request for a debenture issue came before the board of works Monday night, Ald. A. B. Burrows wondered if the utilities commission might be persuaded to take down the gasometer and place the new gas plant in a new location. He termed the huge structure

Investigate Sarnia Police

TORONTO (CP)—Commission E. B. McNeill, Ontario provincial police, said today an investigation will be held into operation of the nine-man detachment at Sarnia. However, he denied a report that the investigation was ordered in connection with the death two months ago of a girl found in a Sarnia hotel room with a new revolver nearby. The hearing, to be conducted in private by deputy commissioner W. H. Lougheed, will deal only with "administration of the Sarnia detachment and general law enforcement in the Sarnia district," Commissioner McNeill said.

A public hearing into the death og Louise Blackhall, 24, may be held after the police investigation. An inquest was also expected.

The revolver found near the girl's body was a .38 calibre police-positive, a type issued by some police departments.

Commissioner McNeill said he did not know if this was the type used by Sarnia provincial police. However, he said the revolver was a common type manufactured for sale to the public as well as to some police departments.

No date for the investigation was announced.

N.Y. Longshoremen Return After One-Day Stoppage

NEW YORK (AP)—Longshoremen were returning to work today after a one-day stoppage Tuesday which marked the start of commission control of the harbor area. Regular gangs were reporting for work in routine fashion while hundreds of others were checking in at waterfront commission information centres to receive casual assignments.

The commission, which was established to rid the harbor of racket abuses, predicted there would be a rapid return to normal except at some upper North river piers where Tuesday's stoppage originated.

The refusal to work started early Tuesday as the two-state employment supervision program became fully effective.

Many longshoremen, refused employment registration cards by the commission because of criminal backgrounds, set up picket lines outside the piers. Many registered longshoremen joined the picketing men in sympathy, and others with cards refused to cross the picket lines.

VIOLATION CHARGED

The shipping association charged the stoppage violated the Taft-Hartley injunction issued Oct. 5 which ended a strike on the waterfront. The federal court restrained any strike during an 80-day period expiring Christmas Eve.

Federal district attorney J. Edward Lumbard said: "If there has been a deliberate work stoppage there is a possibility that the court's injunction has been violated and this possibility is being actively investigated by this office."

William V. Bradley, president of the independent International Longshoremen's Association, said:

"I have called no strike for any time. On the contrary I am trying to get the men back to work. No order for a general strike has been issued and no order will be issued."

Demand Kremlin Stop Threats

KARACHI (AP)—Pakistan officials said today they are preparing a note to Moscow requesting the Kremlin to stop making threats against this predominantly Moslem country.

That was the reaction here to a Soviet note requesting that Pakistan clarify press reports that Karachi is negotiating with the United States to trade air bases for arms.

A government spokesman said Pakistan has no aggressive intentions toward any power and added: "As far as any alliance, Pakistan will act according to her own lights and she will not tolerate any interference with her domestic or foreign policy from any quarter, whatsoever."

Government circles were reported extremely annoyed over the Soviet note, delivered here on Monday, and added that a counter-protest is being sent to Moscow asking the Soviet Union not to indulge in threats.

Ask Union Submit To Arbitration In N.Y.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today asked the union involved in the New York newspaper strike to submit the dispute to arbitration—or decision of a neutral party.

The request was made in a message sent by federal mediation service director Whitely P. McCoy to Edward J. Volz, president of the striking Photo-engravers Union (AFL).

New York's seven daily newspapers have not been published for four days because of the union's walkout on six of the papers. Other unions respected the engravers' picket lines.

Lake Wreckage Missing Plane

TORONTO (CP) — The RCAF said today there is no doubt that wreckage found in Lake Ontario Tuesday is from a jet Vampire which disappeared Sunday on a training flight over the lake.

Officials said there was no trace of the body of the plane's pilot and sole occupant, FO. Richard Russell, 20, of Toronto. The craft had taken off from Downsview airport here and disappeared from another pilot's view while flying in formation.

The wreckage, including parts of a wing and fuel tanks, carried markings which established them as being from the missing plane, officials said. Boats patrolled the spot 12 miles east of Whitby, 29 miles east of Toronto, today in a search for further wreckage and Russell's body.

Ten planes scheduled to resume an air search were grounded this morning by heavy clouds.

500 Toronto Workers In Sympathy Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Five hundred employees of three Continental Can company plants here left their jobs today although strike action was not authorized by local officials of United Steelworkers (CIO-CCL).

The walkout came several hours after steelworkers in the United States announced a strike against Continental and American Can Co., North America's two largest can manufacturers.

Employees here are included under a master contract covering 33,000 employees. However, under the Ontario Labor Relations Act, a legal strike cannot be called until the dispute has been submitted to conciliation.

A spokesman said only the three plants here and one in Vancouver are involved. The American Can Company plant in Montreal is covered under a separate contract, he said.

Tradition Topples!

Girl Masquerades As Man Crashes Oxford Dinner

OXFORD, England (Reuters)—It's an early school "vacation" for pretty Felicity Cooper, a co-ed who titillated this tradition-bound university town by posing as a young Frenchman and sneaking into dinner in a forbidden men's college dining hall.

Felicity's identity remained gallantly concealed until Tuesday. Her host, Jeremy Rundell, had been suspended by Oxford University authorities for having an unidentified woman in his all-male college after 7 p. m. But gossip caught up with her, and university officials ruled the co-ed should share Rundell's fate and be sent home for the rest of the term.

For her escapade she donned slacks and used eye-shadow on her chin to give it "five o'clock shadow." She is a student in one of the university's all-female colleges.

To preserve her role as Rundell's French cousin, she asked that her dinner table neighbors repeat their jokes to her in French. But her reaction to the singing of bawdy songs in the undergraduate bar after the meal eventually gave the girl away.

Man Throws Woman To Ground

Employee Hangs On To Brief Case Till Knocked Down

TORONTO —(CP)—An unarmed man grabbed a briefcase containing $3,500 from a woman today, threw her to the ground and escaped.

Police said Mrs. George Newnham and Miss Virginia Aboud were taking a payroll from a bank to Ontario Boys' Wear where they worked, when the man, six feet tall, about 25 and wearing dark glasses, jumped from a car and ran toward them.

They were about to enter the firm's offices in downtown Toronto when the man grabbed at the briefcase in Mrs. Newnham's hand. She refused to let it go and he threw her down. She suffered bruises and cuts on the right wrist.

The man fled to the car which bystanders said contained two other men, and the car sped away. Police said the vehicle had been stolen and was abandoned a few blocks away. The three climbed into another car and escaped.

Rail Conciliator To Be Appointed

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal conciliation officer likely will be named today to help negotiations in the contract dispute between the railways and unions representing 150,000 non-operating employees, labor department officials said.

Labor Minister Gregg received a request from the unions for the appointment of a conciliator following a deadlock in negotiations for a series of "fringe" benefits sought for the employees.

The latest phase of negotiations ended at Montreal Monday, a day before Tuesday's expiration of the railway-union contracts. The current negotiations involve no request for a general wage increase, for the first time in many years.

Identify Agent As Steinberg

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet agent operating in U. S. Admiral Ernest J. King's office in 1945 may have been Dr. Arthur Steinberg, an American geneticist who at one time lectured at McGill University, Montreal.

Washington dispatches report U. S. Senate investigators as saying the scientist-agent, identified only as "Mr. X," may have stolen secrets on the hush-hush proximity fuse.

Canadian officials today declined to comment on the Washington reports, but the investigators' description of the agent's activities appear to fit the activites of Dr. Steinberg, named in testimony by Igor Gouzenko before the 1946 royal commission on espionage.

The royal commission in its 1946 report said that a page torn from a secret notebook of Lt.-Col. Motinov, an assistant Russian embassy attache, also referred to Dr. Steinberg, identifying him by his cover name of "Berger."

Man In Car Said Murdered

HUNTSVILLE (CP) — Police said today they believe a 23-year-old Huntsville man whoee body was found on a little-used side road here Tuesday was murdered.

The body of Kenneth Secord, married and father of a 10-month-old child, was found lying on the seat of his car. An autopsy showed he died of a broken neck. Police said the vehicle had not been in an accident and there were no marks or bruises on the body.

Officers suggested no reason for foul play. Secord was a handyman who toured this district 60 miles south of North Bay doing odd jobs for farmers. At first it was thought he died of a heart attack or carbon monoxide poisoning.

An officer of the criminal investigation bureau of the Ontario provincial police at Toronto was expected here today to investigate the man's death.

New Type Tie Worn By Duke

LONDON (AP)—The small-talk circles of Mayfair chattered today about the bow tie the Duke of Windsor wore with his dinner jacket at a theatre Tuesday night.

It was a black, rectangular affair, twice as wide as the conventional tie, and there didn't seem to be any knot to hold it together.

There was speculation as to whether the duke was touching off a new fashion. He did some trail-blazing in the necktie department several years ago by popularizing the wide Windsor knot worn with lounge suits.

"Every duke has a right to his idiosyncracies," said a spokesman of Tailor and Cutter, slick magazine which dictates British men's fashions, "but our cautious appraisal is that this right-angled necktie has no future."

The Duchess of Windsor, who has a permanent place in most best-dressed lists, wore a short brocade evening dress-and-coatee.

BULLETIN

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent indicated today there is no prospect of a national health insurance plan in the near future. He turned down a Trades and Labor Congress request for a parliamentary committee on health insurance with the observation that this would be taken by the public as a commitment to "do something right away."

Rides Out Storm Churchill Reaches Bermuda

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda —(AP)— Prime Minister Churchill rode out an Atlantic storm today and landed in Bermuda's sunshine for the Big Three conference opening Friday. The statesman's Stratocruiser Canopus breasted bitter gales along the route from Gander, Nfld., to Kindley Field air base here. British Overseas Airways, operators of the plane, said it changed route once but then got back on its regular course. It flew much of the way above 20,000 feet.

The plane landed at 12:31 p. m. EST. Churchill looked cheerful as he stepped out with his 28-member party, including Foreign Secretary Eden.

French Premier Joseph Laniel is expected Thursday and President Eisenhower Friday. The president, according to an authoritative source, hopes to win France's ratification of the European army plan with an assurance the United States would maintain its present "combat effectiveness" in Europe.

CHURCHILL IS HOST

Churchill at 79 is playing host to the conference and has expressed hope it will bring closer the lasting peace he has set up as the last goal of his crowded life.

The storm the plane ran into was the same that had hit Bermuda Tuesday with the heaviest rainfall in history, 3½ inches within an hour.

But today the sun was blazing here.

British and American guards of honor were drawn up at the airfield.

The most stringent security regulations in Bermuda's history were set up to guard the Big Three during their talks, which begin Friday after the arrival of Premier Laniel and President Eisenhower.

Troops, barbed wire and other devices ringed the conference head-

King Mutesa Made Exile By Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—The slight, boyish king of Buganda, dethroned by British colonial authorities last Monday, conferred today with Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton and emerged appearing upset.

Mutesa, ruler of 1,300,000 Africans in Buganda province, Uganda, was told he will not be permitted to live in Uganda, but can reside anywhere else he likes. A financial settlement is to be made.

A Cambridge University graduate and 37th in his line, the king was exiled for failure to co-operate with the colonial administration under terms of an agreement dating back to 1900. He wanted independence for Buganda and expressed opposition to the proposed East African Federation.

Issue Gale Warnings For Maritimes Area

HALIFAX (CP)—Gale warnings for the Maritimes were issued today by the public weather office here.

The weather bureau said that a severe storm centred 250 miles south of Liverpool, N. S., has moved rapidly northeast during the night and is expected to cause strong gales with gusts to as high as 60 to 70 miles an hour over Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and the eastern New Brunswick counties throughout the day.

Want Gouzenko To Discuss New Spy Ring

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman William Jenner (Rep. Ind.) said today one reason the Senate internal security sub-committee wants to question Igor Gouzenko is to find out whether he has information that might uncover a new spy ring in the U. S. government.

The sub-committee deferred until later in the day a decision on what further steps, if any, to take in its efforts to interview Gouzenko, a former Soviet code clerk in Ottawa who tipped Canadian authorities in 1945 to a Soviet espionage network.

There were some indications the group would not press for an interview with Gouzenko in view of his reported objections. Jenner said Tuesday: "I don't want him to testify if he feels it will endanger him and his family."

IDENTIFIED CONSULTANT

Also Tuesday, the subcommittee disclosed the FBI reported in November, 1945, that information supplied by Gouzenko had enabled it to identify a wartime science consultant to Adm. Ernest J. King as a Soviet agent.

Jenner said at a sub-committee hearing today, however, that the unidentified scientist had denied to the subcommittee at a closed hearingin New York City on Oct. 28 that he was a Soviet agent.

WON'T TALK NOW

Gouzenko, who once expressed willingness to talk to the investigators, said Tuesday in a copyrighted article written for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and a Toronto newspaper that he decided not to

1,000,000 Strike In UK Factories

LONDON (AP)—More than 1,000,000 engineering workers today closed British auto and aircraft factories, shipyards and machine shops in a 24-hour token strike for more pay.

It was Britain's biggest labor tie-up since the general strike of 1926.

From London to Glasgow and Belfast the hum of machinery ceased. Work benches were deserted.

The Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions, an organization with 39 affiliates, called the "show of strength" walkout in support of a demand for a 15-per-cent wage increase.

Industries involved estimated the production loss would reach £10,000,000.

Pickets guarded the gates of factories throughout the country as strikers gathered for mass meetings and protest marches, but there were no reports of disorders.

Believe Stacked Deck For Allies

30 South Koreans Choose Communism

PANMUNJOM (AP) — Thirty passive South Koreans unanimously chose communism in today's opening round of Allied efforts to win back 351 Allied war prisoners who haven't returned.

The recorded strains of South Korea's national anthem played in the background as 27 men and three women listened quietly to South Korean officers read a plea to come home. Then each walked out the door leading back to communism.

It appeared possible that the Allies drew from a stacked deck. The first group was chosen by the prisoners themselves in the Communist-dominated camp. Observers speculated that each of the 30 might be a confirmed Red.

Thirty more South Koreans are to be interviewed Thursday. Original plans called for 30 South Koreans to be interviewed daily for about 11 days before 22 Americans and the one Briton are called, but a high American officer said the schedule is "not inflexible," indicating the non-Koreans might be called sooner.

The 30-0 score gives the Reds a propaganda theme to take some of the edge off the humiliating beating they took in their interviews. They got back less than three per cent of 2,500 Chinese and Koreans.

This was the first total blank. The Communists, however, met groups from 136 to almost 500, calling a compound at a time with no chance for special groups to be manoeuvred into the interview tents.

Meanwhile, in a negotiation hut nearby, the Allies all but rejected a Red proposal for a Korean peace conference after a day of studying a Communist plan offered Tuesday. The two sides meet again Thursday.

United States delegate Arthur H. Dean told the Reds there are two basic points on which both sides could agree, but he accused them of attempting to slip an "enormous joker" into the conference by calling for Russia to attend as a neutral.

INTERVIEWS CALM

The prisoner interviews were strikingly calm compared to the wild, brawling sessions the Reds had with the Chinese and Koreans.

The blue-uniformed prisoners walked through the mud into the five explanation tents on a bare hillside and sat quietly.

The South Korean explainers read their statements, scarcely deviating from the text.

They promised the prisoners that if they returned the government would give them promotions, rewards, medical treatment and pardons for any crimes they might have committed in North Korea.

A 22-year-old girl prisoner, her hair in pigtails, propped her head in one hand as she listened, facing away.

"I believe you have had a hard time during your captivity," the explainer said.

"I did not have a hard time," she replied.

"The Korean people should control their own country.

"I see no Koreans controlling the country—just American capitalists. And I see no freedom in South Korea. . . .I want to fight to the death to drive out the last Americans. . . .

Mayor Explains Why Assessment Owner Jumped

In answer to a question posed Tuesday night by a south-end resident, Mayor Hugh Waddell issued a statement on assessment today. The questioner, Arthur Williams, 51 Ware St., asked why his assessment went up $750.

"There is no relation," Mayor Waddell said, "between assessments in 1953 and 1954 because the whole new system has been based on the department of municipal affairs' Manual of Assessment values.

"Older homes were allowed very high rates of depreciation on the old system of assessment although those homes are selling for more today than when they were built.

"Consequently, the newer homes were paying more than their share of municipal taxes.

CUTS DEPRECIATION

"The new assessment does not allow depreciation to the same extent as the old, thereby equalizing the assessments between old and new residential properties.

"Mr. Williams' property at 51 Ware St. is duplexed, one apartment up, rented, and one down, occupied by Mr. Williams.

"The revenue produced by the upstairs apartment is such that three and a half months rent pays the taxes on the whole property."

After hearing the mayor's explanation, though "not saying I'm satisfied," Mr. Williams decided "I'll pay my taxes . . . if I can."

Says Cheese Industry Has Comeback

BELLEVILLE (CP)—W. O. Coon president of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association, said Tuesday the cheese industry "is on its way back again."

Speaking to a dinner held in conjunction with the 26th annual British Empire Dairy Show here, he cited relaxation of dollar restrictions in the sterling areas, the increased number of Canadian dairy cattle and the levelling off of an over-expanded powdered and canned milk industry as a basis for his prediction.

He said the sale of 10,000,000 pounds of cheese to British markets during October relieved "the pressure on home industry by clearing out a threatened back-up of cheese."

TRADITIONAL MARKET

"Britain is a traditional market," he stated. "Almost six full months of negotiations were conducted with the British Ministry of Food trying to get them to release dollars for the purchase of cheese. After two refusals, they consented to convert sterling.

With a chance to recover part of the British market, and the prospect of increased trade in 1954, the association took it on themselves to make the deal.

Mr. Coon also said that there had been much dissatisfaction that the cheese industry alone should bear the brunt of the loss.

He urged the cheese makers to try to bring about an increase in the per capita consumption of cheese in Canada, which he described as "the highest priced market in the world."

Youth Shot By Police In 80 MPH Car Chase

MONTREAL (CP) — An 80-mile-an-hour police car chase through the city's north-end early today ended with the arrest of four youths, one of them shot through a shoulder by a police bullet.

Police estimated a dozen bullets were fired during the chase. Police said the car was stolen.

The wounded youth was identified as Rene Rolland, 20. The other three were juveniles.

Private Traders Buy Wheat After 14 Years

LIVERPOOL, England (CP)—Wheat futures trading resumed here Tuesday after a 14-year lapse, giving private traders protection while supplying the biggest wheat importer in the world.

Futures trading, which allows traders and millers to guard themselves against fluctuations in world prices, produced a handful of deals in Canadian, Argentine, United States and Australian wheat for delivery next May and July.

The main significance lay in the resumption—in a temporary building—of the market which served in pre-war days as the main indicator of world wheat prices. The limited trading Tuesday had been expected—a reflection of the caution imposed by large wheat supplies in Canada and elsewhere as well as Britain's own stocks.

PRICES LOWER

The first transaction involved wheat priced at 23s 6d ($1.97) a 100 pounds for delivery in British ports next May. The price, which subsequently dropped about three pence, was in line with prevailing rates for Argentine wheat. There were early transactions for July delivery at two pence higher.

The prices were lower than Canada's International Wheat Agreement maximum of $2.05 a bushel for No. 1 northern and higher than the IWA minimum of $1.55 a bushel. The non-IWA price a bushel quoted at Winnipeg Monday for wheat in store at the Lakehead, Vancouver and Montreal was $1.87¾.

Britain left the International Wheat Agreement this year, preferring to let her private traders supply the country at the best price they could find.

Allow Soviet Women Marry Western Men

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Soviet citizens are allowed again to marry foreigners under a decree published today. The praesidium of the Supreme Soviet, Russia's highest legislative body, revoked a 1947 ban on such marriages.

Marriage between citizens of the U. S. S. R. and persons not having U. S. S. R. citizenship does not bring about a change in citizenship, the decree added.

This indicated that Russian wives of westerners, since they remain Russian, would still not be allowed to leave the country.

allow the interview for reasons of personal and family safety. He has been living in an undisclosed place under an assumed name, under Canadian government protection.

The Senate internal security subcommittee, in releasing excerpts from a November, 1945, FBI report, deleted the name of the scientist, described by the FBI as a wartime consultant to fleet admiral Ernest J. King, then commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet.

The FBI said, as quoted by the sub-committee, that its information indicated the scientist may have furnished data on the navy's proximity fuse to Dr. Allan Nunn May, British scientist who confessed in 1946 to passing atomic secrets to the Russians.

This portion of the FBI report was revealed by the sub-committee as one of the reasons it wanted to question Gouzenko, who fled the Soviet embassy in Ottawa in September, 1945, and tipped Canadian authorities to a Russian spy network reaching into the U. S.

Driver Injured As Car, Truck Hit Head-On

Joseph (Gus) Sheehan, 21, of Douro township was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital at 7.30 a.m. today with a badly-cut face and undetermined head injuries caused in a car-truck collision, five miles east of Peterborough.

Sheehan, who works at Curtis' brickyard, was driving his car to work early today when he ran into an eastbound, seven-ton dump truck, owned by the County of Peterborough. Sheehan was travelling northwest on the Douro road when the two vehicles came into collision at the intersection.

The violence of the impact was sufficient to spin the 1941-model car into a 180-degree turn and wreck it. The heavy dump truck driven by Edward Payne of 179 Locke St., received a smashed radiator, and the shock snapped the shackle bolts on the front spring. Damage to the truck is stimated at $400.

EXPECTED WORST

"When I jumped out of the truck I ran back expecting to see Sheehan dead or seriously injured," said Payne. "But he was walking around with his face down—his nose was bleeding badly. We wanted to call an ambulance but Sheehan said it wasn't necessary and a passing truckdriver took him into St. Joseph's."

Hospital officials, at noon today, said his condition was good.

Neither Payne nor his passenger —Earl Dixon, another county employee—was injured. They were driving the dump truck to the Warsaw gravel pit to pick up a load when the accident occurred.

The two truckers were unable to say whether Sheehan was thrown from his car or climbed out. And the injured man was in too dazed a condition to say. The driver's side of the wrecked car was so badly smashed in that it would have been impossible for Sheehan to have climbed out through the left-hand door.

OPP Constable Bruce Tillson investigated.

Should Retaliate In Trade Row

OTTAWA (CP)—Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) said Tuesday night Canada should tell the United States she will retaliate against further trade restrictions in violation of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

"It is time for the government to stop being pushed around by the Americans in trade matters," he said during the Commons throne speech debate.

Mr. Thatcher said recent U.S. products had violated the agreement. Now there were reports of U.S. agitation for similar import barriers against Canadian lead, zinc, oats, rye and fish products. These were receiving support in the U.S. Senate.

"Either the Geneva agreement binds all countries that signed it, or it binds none. The Americans can't have it both ways.

"Canada should make it clear that if there are further restrictions there would be retaliation."

Mr. Thatcher said Canada might retaliate by putting a heavy export tariff on nickel and asbestos, needed by the United States. He added, however, he would not want Canada to adopt such a course.

"one of the most unsightly in the city".

Ald T. D. Miller pointed out that it had been suggested for years that the only city dump at the foot of Simcoe St. be used as a parking lot but the main objection to this proposal had been the proximity of the railway tracks. He suggested that the gas plant property might be used as a parking lot.

The board accordingly carried a motion suggesting to the PUC removal of the gasometer and, if possible, moving the gas plant to a new location.

According to the general-manager, the utilities commission have not yet decided what to do with the gasometer once the new equipment comes into operation.

Strikes Close 68 Plants In Canada-U.S.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A strike by the United Steelworkers (CIO) early today closed the American Can Co. and the Continental Can Co.' employing 33,000 USW workers in 68 plants in 30 states and five plants in Canada.

The strike was called at midnight and one by one the plants began shutting down. Pickets were on the job. No violence was reported.

In all, the two firms employ more than 60,000 persons. Half of these are represented by other unions. Officials at these plants report no sign of a sympathy walkout yet.

American Can operates 36 plants in 16 states and one in Canada with 20,000 USW members. Continental has 32 plants in 14 states and four in Canada, with 33,000 USW workers.

UNUSUAL SITUATION

Three of the Continental plants are in the Toronto area and the other is in Montreal The American Can Co. plant is in Montreal. The Canadian workers have operated under master agreements negotiated in the United States with the parent companies, but the Ontario workers are faced with an unusual situation. Under the Ontario Labor Relations Act, a legal strike cannot be called until the parties have submitted their dispute to conciliation.

Two Maine plants at Portland and Lubec, employing about 300 workers, will vote Sunday on whether to accept American Can's reported wage offer of about 10 cents hourly. The workers are affiliated with the AFL International Association of Machinists.

In Pittsburgh—the scene of negotiations—federal mediators said there is no sign of any developments but are keeping in touch with both union and the management.

Historical Data Items Examined

Members of the Peterborough Historical Society devoted their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night at the Public Library to showing and examining historical data and items in their own possession which they brought to the meeting. Among the articles presented was an autographed portrait of John A. Macdonald, owned by F. D. Kerr, Q.C. An issue of the Victoria Magazine, printed in Belleville in 1839 and edited by the Peterborough literary pioneer Mrs. Susanna Moodie was also on display. Mr. Kerr also showed old photographs of Cobourg.

Margaret Battersby, a great niece of Charles Rubidge, showed a piece of the red cloak that Captain Rubidge had worn during the Napoleonic wars. His candlestick and ring were also on display. Dr. G. S. Cameron had an old stone mason's adze. This was used in roughening up the edges of the mill stones which ground the grain.

The meeting was so well attended and contained so much of interest that the time alloted for tea was waived and inspection of various papers, books, documents and articles continued.

The Rev. L. J. Delaney, vice-president, presided.

The plane paused at Gander, Nfld., about an hour for refueling. A few minutes before the big airliner taxied out to the runway Sir Winston made a brief appearance. Puffing the omnipresent cigar, he stood in the plane's doorway and waved to a crowd of about 200 airport workers and passengers from other aircraft.

The crowd cheered as Churchill made the familiar V-sign.

"I haven't seen you for 10 years," he said. "Best of luck for the next 10."

LONG TIME AGO

His last visit here was on one of several wartime Atlantic crossings to confer with the late President Roosevelt.

The crowd cheered again. Some shouted: "Congratulations on your birthday." Sir Winston was 79 Monday.

Then he turned and went back inside the plane. The door was closed and the aircraft headed out to the runway.

There was a possibility that the premier and the labor minister may hold private talks with both sides before Friday's meeting.

Mr. Daley said the premier stepped into the picture because "this is almost a provincial matter that affects a whole area." He said the premier made no suggestions towards a possible settlement.

Study Plan To Eliminate Bad Crossing

COBOURG (ENS)—An alternate proposal has been made by the CPR and army to eliminate the dangerous situation existing at the D'Arcy Street level crossing, which is on the main road to the new ordnance depot. A ridge of land, which obscures the view of motorists northbound on D'Arcy has been condemned as a hazard by the town council because a motorist cannot see a train coming until he is right on the tracks. One proposal has been to remove the ridge.

Councillor Jeff Rolph, chairman of the police committee, said Tuesday night that the army and CPR had been in consultation and the suggestion made that Cottesmore avenue crossing be improved, or a subway built, as a substitute for the D'Arcy street crossing. The latter is in the railway yards and too many tracks have to be crossed. Cottesmore would then connect beyond the tracks via a connecting link along the old Canadian Northern.

In the meantime, pending the outcome of the study of the D'Arcy street crossing, the ordnance depot authority will erect special warning signs at the D'Arcy street level crossing.

However, it is felt by many that the simple thing to do is to remove the ridge that obscures the view at D'Arcy street because there will be a tendency to use D'Arcy street anyway since it is closer to the ordnance depot than Cottesmore Avenue, which is further east.

Boy Struck By Car Has Minor Injuries

COBOURG (ENS)—Struck by a car at the dangerous University and Division street intersection Tuesday just before noon, Mark Billarczyk, of St. Michael's Separate School, was taken to the hospital and later released. He was able to return to school in the afternoon.

The boy got out of school at 11.50, came south on Division street, around the corner from the school and then ran into the path of a southbound car driven by Tage Lyngse. Mr. Lyngse was driving slowly at the time but still could not avoid hitting the lad.

The Parent Teacher's Association has been advocating stoplights at this intersection and the council has written to the Dept. of Highways to survey the situation, in view of the fact that Division street is highway No. 45.

Puerto Rico was colonized by settlers under command of Juan Ponce de Leon in 1509.

CHARLES FLYNN, reeve of Harvey township for the last four years, has been returned with his 1953 council, plus a new deputy-reeve, by acclamation. The deputy-reeve is James Irwin, former councillor, and the three councillors are Kenneth Hunt, Thomas Gordon and Kenneth Junkin.

Standardization Campaign Planned

TORONTO (CP)—A provincial campaign to standardize fire hose and hydrant connections was outlined Tuesday to the Health League of Canada convention here by Ontario's fire marshal W. J. Scott.

He said there has been success in standardizing around London, Ont., where at one time there were 81 different types of thread on fire hoses and 26 different sizes and shapes of hydrant caps

"The hoses of London's industrial plants had four different threads apart from those of the fire department. There were even two different kinds of hydrant nuts so a fireman had to have two different wrenches in his hands," he said.

The last of standardizing in London and district is scheduled to be completed next week. The area includes the six surrounding counties.

Bootleg Mining On Upswing In Nova Scotia

GLACE BAY, N. S. (CP)—Bootleg mining, for generations a yardstick of strife and prosperity in the Cape Breton coal fields, is on the upswing.

This time it appears to be a mark of unemployment and uncertainty in the ailing coal industry. About 1,000 miners are out of work in this area.

Two men were fined $50 each last week for illegal mining and three more were scheduled to appear in court on similar charges today. Streets have been endangered by the operations and in one case a tunnel came close to undermining a parish building.

COUNCIL WARNS MINERS

Glace Bay town council, noting that bootleg pits have opened up in a big way, has served notice that it will bear down on any cases involving property damage.

The illegal mines, as old as the 230-year-old industry, have been an indication of the miners' economic position for years.

When times are bad the pits flourish. In good times they peter out.

Most openings of bottleg pits are through floors of barns or outbuildings.

The operation is usually small but some families in the past have been known to make a fair living at it. The coal is usually sold for about $4 a ton less than the regular market price.

Return To Work

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP)—A total of 7,500 men returned to work Tuesday at two American-owned copper mines, ending a 45-day strike for more pay and security benefits. The Anaconda Copper Co. did not meet the workers' demands, but promised to study them during a 30-day cooling-off period.

Reeve, Deputy Acclaimed In Cavan Twp.

MILLBROOK (ENS). — Cavan township's 1954 reeve and deputy reeve have been aclaimed, but there will be an election for the council and one of the two school boards.

Lloyd Hooton, councilor for eight years and deputy-reeve for three years, has now moved up into the reeveship vacated by Delbert Olan.

J. H. McKnight, who has had five years' experience on council, succeeds Mr. Hooton as deputy-reeve. He was acclaimed after Harold Bradburn, another veteran councillor nominated for the deputy-reeveship, did not qualify.

Five have qualified for the three council seats. They are Joseph Thorn, John Kinsman, George Howden, Donald Cathcart and Aubrey Bland.

The three vacancies on the South Cavan area public school board have been filled by acclamations. The new trustees are Ernest Brackenbridge, present chairman, Dick Hutchinson and Rusell Bonner. Herbert Patton, who was nominated, didn't qualify; so an election won't be necessary for this school board.

Four are contesting the three vacancies on the North Cavan area public school board. They are Donald Hayes, trustee for four years; Robert Lowes, two years; and Norman Earle, a newcomer.

The election will be Monday, and the voters have five polls: Orange Hall; Joseph Burns' home, Millbrook; Joseph Burns' home, Cavan road; Parish Hall, Ida; and the Women's Institute Hall, Mount Pleasant.

Farouk's Cousin Jailed 15 Years

CAIRO (Reuters)—Prince Abbas Halim, bemonocled cousin of ex-king Farouk, today drew a 15-year prison sentence for treason, although he claimed to be a strong opponent of the deposed monarch.

The revolutionary tribunal granted the prince a stay of execution, however, pending a possible appeal.

Abbas Halim, who pleaded innocent and conducted his own defence, alleged that Farouk was not the great lover he was supposed to be.

During the nine-hour trial, the defendant told of many alleged scandals concerning the former royal family and the Farouk regime. He was convicted of "committing acts considered treason to the motherland and against its security."

Orono Orfuns Whip Muskies

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Intermediate C Orono Orfuns continued their mastery of their intermediate A Lakeshore league rivals Tuesday night, handing the second place Lindsay Muskies a 5-3 beating in a hard-checking but cleanly played game here.

The Orfuns, dressing only ten players, made the best use possible of their available strength, built up their lead early in the third period and played it safe to hold the lead. Rumbaugh with two goals led the Orfuns to the win, their other tallies going to Goucher, Junior West, and Armstrong.

Dean West was a power for the winners, with his heads-up stick handling, checking and playmaking as the Orfuns completely tied the Muskies up with their close checking and fast skating.

The Lindsay goals were divided between Stu Hicks, Bob Lewis and Bruce Weddup. Goalie Mucker O'Connell's inability to control rebounds led to two of the Orono goals, in the second period after the Muskies had taken a lead early in that frame. Best for the losers were Burns, Hicks, Lewis, Sinclair and Kelly.

Rule King Murdered Sentence Two Pages

BANGKOK, Thailand (Reuters) The Thailand appeal court ruled today that young King Ananda, who was found shot dead in his bed in 1946, was murdered.

The court sentenced to death two royal pages of the bedchamber, Nai Chit Singhaseni and Nai Butr Pathamasirind, as accomplices in a plot to "eliminate the monarchy."

The court also accused Nai Chaliew Pathumros, a former personal secretary to the young king, of being involved in the plot. It said that it had found from "testimonies and circumstantial evi- been "accomplices to the murder."

A government communique at the time of the king's death said it was an accident. Inquiries were reopened in 1948 when a military coup established a new government.

Red Seals

Tuberculosis, the scourge of generations, has in our time lost its terrors and its place as the chief killer of mankind. It has been brought under control and no longer heads the list of the most dreaded fatal diseases. This change has come about partly as a result of medical science, partly because of public recognition. In both, the tuberculosis associations of countries, provinces and counties have taken a large part. Their funds have helped to finance research and treatment; their public concern—their propaganda—has awakened people to the menace of the disease and to the need for early recognition and treatment. In very practical ways, such as providing for mobile X-ray clinics to take free X-rays of every person in the community, these TB associations are valuable agencies of public health.

* * *

These weeks, as usual before each Christmas, the Peterborough Tuberculosis Association, the Northumberland-Durham Tuberculosis Association and other associations in this district are collecting funds through the sale of the familiar red Christmas seals. Packages of seals have gone out to thousands of homes, and those who have received them are being asked to send a small sum in payment for them, as a donation for the work of the association. It is a modest appeal, easy to fulfil, and worthy of support. Thus is tuberculosis prevention paid for in this district, and thus is continued the good work of reducing the incidence of the disease as well as the death rate from it.

* * *

Fifty years ago this month in Copenhagen, a Danish postman began the first distribution of Christmas seals, that children there might be treated for TB. This year, here as in many other parts of the world, a special effort is being made to secure the financial support necessary, in this fiftieth anniversary year of red seals.

Theology For Our Time

We should like to call the attention of our readers to a book of unusual interest which has recently been published by Dr. James D. Smart, whom many Peterborough people will remember as a former pastor of St. Paul's in this city. It is called The Recovery of Humanity, and it is a book of sermons.

Reading sermons is not the widespread custom that it was a century ago, and the plain fact is that many sermons are unreadable. It is all the more remarkable, therefore, that Dr. Smart has produced a book which any intelligent adult will read from cover to cover with growing interest and intellectual stimulation. These sermons are not lullabies for the complacent, nor are they compilations of folksy anecdote and Reader's Digest philosophy; they are examples of the art of expository preaching, in which the preacher takes a theme and examines it searchingly and at length, through a series of sermons which make up a coherent whole.

The theme is a timely one, but it is not cheaply contemporary. In Dr. Smart's words, it is this: "The battle of our age is between humanity and inhumanity. Many make the mistake of drawing the line between the two geographically, locating the inhumanity in Communist or totalitarian lands and conceiving of themselves as defenders of humanity against the new barbarism. They need eyes, the eyes of faith, to see the signs of dehumanization much more closely at hand and to recognize that the line runs through their own nations, through their own churches, and through their own souls."

The seventeen sermons which follow this introduction are evolved logically from this theme, and deal with it in a remarkably interesting manner. Sometimes they are not easy to follow; sometimes they say what people are not, as a usual thing, pleased to hear; but this is all to the good, and will, we think, bring them a deserved popularity. For we often feel that some clergy err on the side of making their sermons too simple; there are great numbers of sincerely religious people who do not like sermons because too many preachers talk down to them. Dr. Smart does not talk down; he accepts the hearer as his equal, and many hearers are grateful for the compliment. When they hear a sermon they want something to challenge the mind—something to chew on. Expository preaching on this level is art and literature, as well as theology, and no intelligent person will hear it, or read it, unmoved.

In his introduction, Dr. Smart has a few words to say about expository preaching which should be of the utmost interest in every theological college. We hope that his words will be heard and heeded. Expository preaching is not possible to every clergyman; he may not have a talent for it, or other pastoral work may be, in his case, of greater importance. But the church and the world need expository preaching for the plain reason that people must be taught, and they must be made to think; the church needs scholars fully as much as it needs organizers and social workers. If the pulpit is to be a power in the land it must be filled by men who give their best abilities to the preparation of sermons. The Recovery of Humanity is a distinguished example of what the pulpit offers when scholarship and original thought are allied to faith in the preacher.

To Fly In A Canadian Plane

There has been some criticism in London because the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh's flight from London to Bermuda was made in an American-built plane (owned by B.O.A.C.). Prime Minister St. Laurent will take off on his good-will world tour at the beginning of the year in a Canadian plane, our readers may be relieved to learn. The plane is the R.C.A.F.'s Canadair-5, the Force's "workhorse". It is this plane which flew the Queen and the Duke across Canada on their tour, which recently took Mr. Howe and his party on their drummer's tour of South America, Mexico and Cuba, which has long been in use to ferry distinguished visitors and high Government officials.

The Canadair-5 is like none other on earth or above it. It has the body of a C-4 North Star, but with the more powerful engines and larger tail section of the C6. It cruises at 300 m.p.h. and its cabin is, of course, under compensating pressure. The plane was one of the last of seventy-three large four engine transports manufactured by Canadair of Montreal before this plant went, in 1949, into production of jet fighter planes.

The Prime Minister's compartment mid-ships will have mahogany furniture, a desk and chair and two sofas which can be made into beds. It also has an instrument panel and a direct telephone to the pilot and the steward. Here are further details, provided by a Canadair official:

Near the cockpit is the crew room with four soft chairs and can be made into beds. Further along the plane is another compartment with 16 seats — somewhat like in a train — that can be made into four beds.

The next apartment is a well equipped kitchen. There is a projection room near the tail with a semi-circular sofa in the rear and two tables for conferences.

The plane has indirect lighting — white and dimmer blue lights. Blue and red carpets and roof have a grey gabardine finish.

The same official says: "As far as luxury is concerned it cannot compare with some of the more plush planes flown by some big Canadian industrialists, and even less with the private plane of President Eisenhower". However, we venture to think that Mr. St. Laurent will find it satisfactory and comfortable enough. We are glad to be assured that it is thoroughly dependable.

What Will The Horsepower Do Then?

Four years ago only a few models of mass-produced cars had as much as 110 horsepower. Now many makes and models are as powerful, and new cars have been produced on assembly lines with horsepower in excess of 200. We shall set aside the question why anybody wants or needs such fantastic power in his automobile. We should like to ask this. What will happen to these new powerful cars seven years hence? Who will be driving them? Under what conditions?

The term "old jalopy" is mildly applied to cars on the road today seven or eight years old. They may have 40 or 50 horsepower. They cannot usually attain excessive speeds, though some of the young bucks who have bought these old used cars for a small down payment and a few dollars a week handle their cars dangerously enough, and speedily enough. What will the same type of young car driver do with his old second-hand car seven years from now—the cars that will then be 'old jalopies' but which are now new, and have 110, 150 or even 200 horsepower under their bonnets? The power of the car may have been reduced by usage ten or fifteen per cent. But the chances are that the efficiency of the brakes and the dependability of the steering system will have depreciated by thirty or forty per cent.

Brakes and steering equipment of these terribly powerful cars are now in careful, new-car adjustment with their horsepower. But seven years hence the adjustment is likely to be quite inadequate, the brakes worn, the steering mechanism out of kilter. This will be the car seven years hence which young folk with a few dollars for a down payment will have in their hands. It will be a car capable of going a hundred miles an hour but not capable of being steered or stopped properly, partly because the young owners will have neither the money nor the care to put brakes and steering equipment in first class order. Some old cars in improper hands are a menace now. Seven years hence the powerful old cars of that day could be the terror of highways.

FALSE PROSPERITY

Dependent Korea

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

PROBABLY no other country in the world today has been helped as Korea is being helped. There is a United Nations agency devoted to its physical reconstruction, another to its politics, a special Army command for its civilians. There is a Joint Economic Board to help spend its foreign subsidies, a commission to supervise its truce, a neutral commission to help the supervisors. There are teams of experts and philanthropists and there are missionaries. There is a mushrooming of United States firms, professing the highest motives.

Of all this, a good deal is unwelcome to the South Koreans. The result is some redundancy, some muddle, and, in the last six month, some spectacular progress.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS WINTER will not kill as last winter killed. The stalls in the city markets are overflowing with vegetables, grain and fish. School boys tend to wear solid boots. On holidays the still broken pavements are brilliant with women in brand new trailing skirts. The police all have new uniforms. If little that is noteworthy has been done in the providing of new homes, street after street of new shops has been built.

In the countryside the farmers have rebuilt the diminutive villages with their own hands. You meet women with a load of salt fish ten miles from a town. The rice harvest has been good. The country, to a stranger, looks as well fed and clothed as any in Asia. You have to look harder and harder to find the horrors. Life is becoming fit for humans.

But it is a false prosperity—without any native foundation. It would disappear instantly if foreign help were withdrawn. Many of the goods heaped up on the stalls are stolen or smuggled or even diverted from charity. Many of the rest are due to UN-suggested policy of importing consumer goods to slow down inflation. Korea—and God knows it has a right to be—is still, economically, as dependent as an old lady's companion.

YET Korea is still not subservient. More than that, none of the agencies and foreign experts have been able to change the character of its Government, or to force Mr. Syngman Rhee into a convenient or respectable pattern.

The situation today is virtually the same as that which obtained in June, 1950—before the armies of the north crossed the 38th Parallel. Politics are the politics of extreme, instinctive nationalism. Democracy is little more than a word. Private people still fear terribly for their future. An objective appraiser would say that the chances of reuniting the country are about the same as they were in early 1950. This tragic half-country has been involved still more deeply in the world's schism.

DESPITE THE fact that it seems highly unlikely that the war will start again, we seem as far away as ever from a real settlement. In nearly twenty-eight months of negotiation, there has evolved an ugly and pointless game where objections are taken and concessions made with no conceivable logic—except that it is desired to maintain a maximum tension.

Despite all the trappings of diplomacy, here conducted in tents and huts, there is no feeling that serious issues are being seriously tackled. War has in this instance proved an indecisive instrument of policy; the old disagreements are now formally expressed across a table, and when, under pressure of sudden emotion, the formality cracks, it is shown to cover the old, spitting hatreds; and the individual will to kill is still there. The preponderance of absolute hatred is with the North.

For example, the prisoner issue has from the start been an immaterial one, seized upon, exploited by both sides for propaganda purposes. The Americans cannot wholly escape blame for exacerbating the problem, for their missionary attitude towards their captives. The Communists have carefully tended this issue—which in any war would have been a minor one—until it has obscured all other issues. The settlement of the prisoner issue will settle nothing of any significance—except to the tragic souls involved.

THE COMMUNISTS have deliberately set obstacles in the way of the Indians, and made it impossible for them to complete their mandate—which was to find out which captives wished to go home, to send them there and, at the end, to revert the remainder to civilian status and then to retire.

Despite the fact that the Communists at Panmunjom behave like desperate criminal lawyers, and despite the fact that the relevant paragraph in the truce agreement was framed to disguise agreement, it is clear that the prisoners' choice is guaranteed, and that exactly one hundred and twenty days after the Neutral Nations Repatriation Commission took custody of the prisoners—that is, by January 22—the explanations must end. The political conference is allowed until February 21 to discuss the fate of the remainder.

The Indian mandate will not be completed; the prisoners will not all have registered a free choice by January 22, and the Communists will object to the termination of the explanation. This is not the Indians' fault, and it is no tragedy. By law under the truce agreement, by common humanity and by nasty political calculations, the best that could now happen is that the Indians open two gates after January 22 in their prisoner compounds and let the prisoners walk out as civilians either to the North or the South. This is the only way this swollen, distorted thing can be disposed of.

THE PRISONER issue has now become the symbol of the real issues that leave the two sides glaring at one another across the mountains, seas and conference tables of the Far East. And it does not help to conduct negotiation in symbols. The real problems remain untouched.

They are still—in diminishing order of solubility—the entry of Communist China into the United Nations; the diplomatic recognition of Communist China by the United States; the freeing of the China trade; the future of Formosa. And if all these were settled, the ancient hurt that has helped to produce the new hatred would remain—the old, incoherent grievance of the East against the West that can never be settled over a table, which only time and gentleness may heal.

These are the issues which will lie behind any political conference in Korea, although on the agenda the issues are likely to appear as those of the prisoners, reunification of Korea, the presence of foreign troops, the guarantee of the northern frontier.

As long as they exist, it is hard to believe that a satisfactory solution can be found in Korea. To reunite the country, which is the chief local issue, is in effect to hand it back to Mr. Rhee; and he was unacceptable to the Northern bosses even in 1948. We have a truce and we have an obligation to maintain South Korea. It is unlikely that we shall get any more until such time as both sides are at war, or else sick of their costly hatred and intolerance.

Letters To The Editor

DR LANGLEY EXPLAINS HIS RESIGNATION

SIR: Two years ago—when taking up my duties after the citizens had honoured me by election to the Peterborough Utilities Commission, I was fully aware that efforts to change the past easy-going habits of the commissioners and manager could hardly expect to be popular.

I was however—and still am—prepared to accept possible unpleasantness — provided I accomplish some offsetting worthwhile result for the citizens of Peterborough. Experience has caused me to finally reluctantly conclude that I am unlikely to be able to accomplish any such results with the present commission and manager. I have therefore tendered my resignation effective at the close of the year.

I fully appreciate that my conception of what will benefit Peterborough citizens may be all wrong—and I am therefore citing two typical case—so that electors may form their own opinion:

(A) In the last two years, substantial amounts of money have been spent on two small sections of underground wiring in the business section. I am NOT opposed to underground wiring as such—but— I AM opposed to tackling it in a haphazard manner and with only a hazy knowledge—if any—of the eventual goal and cost. I believe the proper procedure to be:—

1. Retain a competent consulting engineer to prepare specifications and estimated cost for an underground installation covering the whole business section (or whatever area is decided upon) and preferably for anticipated conditions at least 30 years hence. (As a guess the cost would be somewhere between one and two million dollars.)
2. Submit the specifications to the HEPC for approval.
3. Submit the matter to the people—giving pros and cons and if they vote in favor—proceed—spreading the work over several years.

This method was rejected and work on the two small sections was proceeded with over my objections.

(B) We are in process of spending $300,000.00 on our electrical system and the largest item is a new substation for the north end. Rightly or wrongly, I felt that my long engineering experience on this type of installation would be of value to the manager in the planning stage. I several times advised both the manager and commissioners that I would like to help in any way possible—also that I could probably show them ways to accomplish substantial savings. My repeated offer was not accepted and three electrical firms are now preparing bids upon equipment as decided upon by the manager.

I have greatly appreciated the encouragement given to me from time to time by individuals and groups and I am very sorry that my attempt to serve the citizens has been so futile.

G. R. LANGLEY.

SIDEWALK NEEDED

SIR: Now that an obliging motorist has effectively removed the barrier which had been erected where west sidewalk should commence at the intersection of Park street and Lansdowne avenue, we south-end taxpayers are wondering if we will not be permitted the use of what is apparently city property now covered by well-kept grass liberally be-sprinkled with "Please Keep Off" signs. Whilst the aforementioned signs are no deterrent to a pedestrian who has an objection to risking his life and limb by crossing Park street twice in the course of his journey, we have noted in past years that the man plowing the sidewalks always leaves the snow undisturbed on the west side of Park street between Lansdowne and Romaine. We would consider it a great boon if this section could be cleared of snow to enable us to walk between our homes in the now populous south end and our place of employment without being forced to cross an icy road twice each way.

It may not have occurred to the parties responsible for this state of affairs that numbers of children now pass up and down Park street to and from the Civic Arena and a continuous sidewalk would eliminate an unnecessary hazard. Do we have to wait until someone gets mangled under the wheels of a speeding juggernaut before action is taken or is a human life so small a matter when weighed in the balance with the desire of certain parties to have the grass in front of their property extend right to the carriage way?

TWO RELUCTANT JAY WALKERS.

NEED FOR NURSING REGISTRY

SIR: May, I through your columns, speak to the citizens of Peterborough about a matter of some concern to us all.

About four years ago a Community Nursing Registry was set up with twenty-four-hour a-day telephone service. With one full-time worker, a registry of all nurses with their addresses and telephone numbers has been kept. When a nurse is needed, a telephone call to the Registry starts the machinery in operation to find one. That it has not always been possible to procure a nurse at a given time, has not been the fault of the Registry as it is not responsible for the great shortages of nurses. It was so far as can be learned, the child of the Medical and Nursing professions. Yearly membership fees have been paid by both doctors and nurses for the use of the Registry.

After the service got under way and functioning, it was found that membership fees of the doctors and nurses were not sufficient to carry the total expense of the Registry, though the amount of the fees was commensurate with that of other communities of like size. Each year since its inception there has been an amount of about $1,000 between the membership fees of the doctors and nurses and the actual expense of keeping up the service. To bolster the budget and keep the business of the Registry solvent, members of the executive have sponsored teas and entertainment of different kinds. Attempts have been made periodically to enlist the aid of the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund in the amount of a yearly grant of $1,000. Failing that, the matter was placed before the City Council as it was felt the continuance of the Registry was a necessary service which should be maintained. Within the last month the matter has come before the Board of Directors of Peterborough Civic Hospital. From press reports of that meeting, it would appear that the matter of any responsibility for any part of the expense of the registry service has been tossed from the Peterborough Community and Red Cross Fund to City Council, to Civic Hospital Board of Directors and back again, the net result being just a tidy little game of handball. In the meantime it has been learned that the Executive of the Community Nursing Registry is contemplating closing the service at the end of this year if this yearly deficit has to continue to be met by all sorts of stunts to raise funds to cover it.

Here's where you and I come in, Mr. and Mrs., and Miss Citizen! What do we want done about this? We, who are the personnel of public opinion, can direct what we think should be done. As democratic citizens we have a responsibility to do just that. Our citizens who have been elected or appointed to the three agencies mentioned above would welcome direction as they are not any more interested in playing handball with this matter than we are to have them do it..

Without this service where could we turn for extra nursing care if a loved one was struck by an automobile or became the victim of a dangerous disease? If a community catastrophe of any kind should happen and nurses were needed on a moment's notice, where would the officials of this city turn to get them without this service? We have ready and in operation now a service which would be of immeasurable assistance to any Civil Defence Committee should a bomb be suddenly dropped on our city. Do we want the Community Nursing Registry closed for the want of the expenditure of such a modest sum per year, then probably later pay a great deal more to have the service set up again under some other sponsorship? Let us speak up!

DEMOCRATICALLY-MINDED.

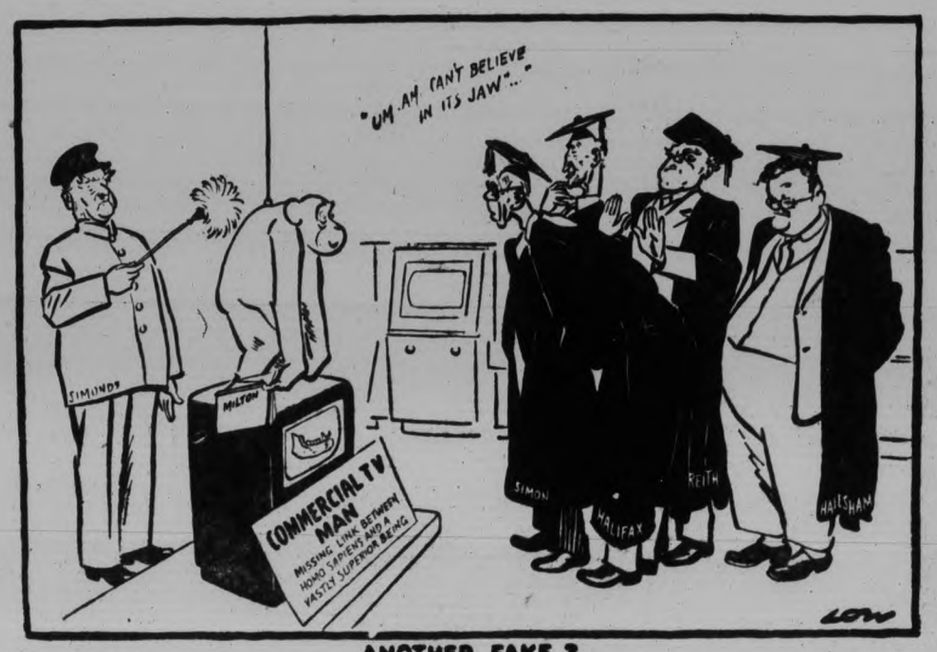
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Hear ye the word of the Lord, O house of Jacob, and all the families of the house of Israel: thus saith the Lord, what iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they are gone far from me, and have walked after vanity, and are become vain?

As the thief is ashamed when he is found, so is the house of Israel ashamed; they, their kings, their princes, and their priests, and their prophets, saying to a stock, Thou art my father; and to a stone, Thou hast brought me forth: for they have turned their back to me, and not their face: but in the time of their trouble they will say, Arise, and save us. (Jer. 2:4, 5, 26, 27.)



✧ ✧ ✧

All nations whom thou has made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name. For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone. (Ps. 86:9, 10.)

✧ ✧ ✧

When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy fingers, the moon and the stars, which thou has ordained: what is man, that thou art mindful of him? and the son of man, that thou visitest him?...Thou madest him to have dominion over the works of thy hands; thou has all things under his feet. (Ps. 8:3, 4, 6.)

Ruthless "Tribal" Justice Practised In New Guinea

BRISBANE—Across 200 square miles of jungle-covered ridges, deep narrow gorges and 10,000 feet mountain peaks, a handful of white men, with picked native guards, recently began a search for a band of New Guinea savages whose ruthless tribal "justice" of an eye-for-an-eye had brought death to two white patrol officers and six native police writes Richard S. Marriott in Montreal Star.

The New Guinea hinterland is one of the few untamed corners still remaining in the world where the natives still regard mass-murder, based on tribal traditions, as something trivial.

Australians, as they wait for news of the hunt for the killers, realize how the story of the murders cancels out the arguments of Red satellites within the United Nations that New Guinea natives and their country, should be freed from Australian control and granted full, immediate autonomy.

But there is a call for a proper investigation by the Australian Government of some of the allegations made since the murders and possibly an overhaul of some aspects of the New Guinea administration.

Scene of the eight killings is the lonely, rugged Telefomin ranges, still not under white men's control, probed only rarely by small patrols, but scheduled to be brought under the control of the general New Guinea administration by the end of 1955.

Last July, 22-year-old Cadet Patrol Officer Geoffrey Harris was on patrol in the May river when a canoe capsized and five Telefomin natives were drowned.

Early on November 6, Harris and three native police, camped in a jungle valley, were axed to death by Telefomin tribesmen, who earlier had murdered 30-year-old Senior Patrol Officer Gerald Szarka and three other native police at the far end of the Valley.

The victims' bodies were retrived from the jungle by search parties totalling four white men and 50 natives, working in scattered groups, but linked by walkie-talkies to flash warnings of any attacks.

Leader of those parties was District Commissioner Alan Timperley, who now heads the 200-square mile hunt for the murderers.

He had found that the attackers have deserted the area where the killings occurred, and have taken their belongings far back into the mountains. Timperley is prepared for a long search.

"Their capture may take six months," he says. "But they will be caught."

In New Guinea, among whites and natives alike, it is agreed that the murders followed the traditional pattern of an eye-for-an-eye, in revenge for the canoe deaths of last July. But to this, District Commissioner Timperley adds the theory that the natives wanted the Telefomin patrol station wiped out so that their young men could take part in ancient ceremonial rites, due in a few weeks.

In any case, the Telefomin killings point the folly of the argumnet that the dark men of New Guinea are ready to be "freed" from trusteeship control.

But the same killings also point the need for a close check-up on claims that a shortage of experienced patrolmen tends to throw too great a burden on young men, and that the call for experienced officers in New Guinea is even more vital than is their prolonged attendance at the important School of Pacific Administration back in Australia.

While patrol officers are searching for the New Guinea murderers, matching their own skill in the primitive arts of tracking with that of the natives, white doctors are working night and day to prevent a flu epidemic from spreading among them.

Thousands of natives in Port Moresby district have been infected. First it was a mild outbreak but in the last three weeks it has assumed a most virulent form.

The Administrator (Brigadier D. M. Cleland), fearing heavy mortality among the 100,000 Southern Highland natives should the epidemic spread their, has clamped on stringent quarantine restrictions to protect them. All personnel in planes flying into the area undergo a physical examination at take-off points and ground patrols have been cut to a minimum.

Scientists blame an infinitesimal wog which lodged in the bronchial tubes of a Melbourne citizen in 1946, for the trouble.

Tagged A3, it is a new type of flu, virus which since its discovery has become a confirmed globe-trotter.

It made its first world tour in 1947, striking in North America, then in Britain and South Africa, finally returning to Australia in 1950.

The following year it was back in Britain where it caused 20,000 deaths among 4,000,000 flu patients.

World famous flu researcher, 54 - year - old Sir Macfarland Burnet, director of the Walter and Eliza Hall Research Institute in Melbourne, and his team of experts, are trying to find out how to control A3.

A SPECIAL VACCINE

Vaccines used for other types of flu have appeared useless but Sir Macfarland has developed a technique of growing flu virus in eggs and is producing a suitable vaccine from them.

What is worrying him, however, is that after each flu epidemic a new species of flu particles appear.

Flu virus must pass from one victim to another to survive and in a major epidemic when everyone has been infected the virus should die out. However a few particles "mutate," skipping the normal evolutionary processes and become entirely different chemical species against which the old vaccines are useless.

A3 is an example. It is a habit which keeps the back-room boys always one step behind, and even cagey Sir Macfarland, who isolated the first influenza virus in 1935, can as yet see no way of catching up.

U.K. Housewives Face New Era On Food Supplies

Nearly 14 years have elapsed in the United Kingdom since the housewife and her ration book became twin entries, as individual as strawberries and cream, ham and eggs, or sausages and mashed potatoes. Hence the gasp of uncomprehending surprise this month when Food Minister Major Lloyd George calmly intimated that no more ration books will be printed when the current ones expire next May, writes Ernest Chisholm Thomson for the United Kingdom information office.

NEW LIBERTY

"No ration book? It will be like going around without my purse," I was told by one housewife. But she had been married a mere dozen years or so, and had never tasted the liberty of an open shop counter. Said another: "I shall regain my freedom with a sigh." She, however, was a matron with 20 years' housekeeping behind her and could recall the golden days when even butter could be bought simply by putting down the money.

It was on January 8, 1940, four months after the start of Hitler's war, that the housewife was first required to hand her grocer a 28-page book entitling her to four ounces of butter, four ounces of bacon or ham, and 12 ounces of sugar. Meat soon joined the list, and rationing reached high water mark (or was it low water?) when soap was included. Since then, combinations and permitations that would have puzzled an electronic computer have been taken in their stride by Britain's housewives. For example, the amount of available meat each week has changed 43 times; milk had 41 changes .

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

Although, as the minister has pointed out, rationing may not end entirely in 1954 (there are still some spare pages in the ration book) the announcement is one of those signs of the times that are making this autumn the most exciting "fall of the year" we have known since 1939.

Everywhere there is a mood of optimism. The people's faces reveal it. Partly, no doubt, this is due to the reassuring world situation; all political parties incline to accept Sir Winston Churchill's "sure hope," as he phrased it at the Conservative conference, that there will not be a third world war. At home things are better, too, with news of increased manpower in the factories, and renewed confidence is breeding the spirit of enterprise.

That we shall not all be alive to see it will not be the fault of the Nuffield Foundation, which has allotted $150,000 for research analysis into the causes of ageing. Experiments will be made in grafting tissues of one age into animals of another age, and if the professors work fast, which of us may yet have a chance of a moon trip?

Crime is another line of inquiry the Nuffield Foundation is taking up, with an invitation to Lord Pakenham to establish a committee of psychiatrists and criminologists to probe the root causes of wrongdoing. Criminals and former criminals will be among those interviewed.

NEW RESEARCH

The prospect of 48 simultaneous and private telephone conversations across the Atlantic on the same cable is opened up by interesting research which the post office is starting at the Dollis Hill Research Station near London. Next year a specimen length of the new cable will be tested at 2,700 fathoms in the Bay of Biscay. Repeaters, or "boosters" can be incorporated in the cable with thermionic or crystal valves which, according to calculations, may do their job under water for 20 years without attention. This will be the first deep water cable with amplifiers, and will undoubtedly mean a better telephone link between the new world and the old.

The Arts are not lagging in the spirit of inquiry. Britain's Society for Theatre Research is planning an international conference in London next July, aiming to bridge the gap between artistic theory and what is practicable on the stage. If tangible examples are being sought, surely nothing in stage history could improve on the triumph of Sadler's Wells Ballet Company now on its 15 week tour of the United States and Canada. The company's season in New York has just made $500,000 in four weeks, a record.

Furious Espionage War Being Waged In Germany

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

FRANKFURT (AP) — Allied intelligence men are deep in a constant espionage war which know no international boundaries and is fought for the most part in secret.

It is a savage conflict. The Russians spew out spies regardless of losses in their efforts to pierce the security of the West.

The Russian atom spy ring in Canada started it. Just recently, Rudolph Roessler, master Russian spy, was netted in Switzerland. Norway's security battle flared into the open this week with the arrest of five persons.

In the background, a network of intelligence specialists in Western Europe quietly pushes the fight.

STRANGE SETTINGS

It is a campaign fought on such strange fields as a grimy coffee house in Munich, a sleazy back alley in Frankfurt or a DP camp in Hesse. For West Germany is the core of Soviet espionage activity.

Professional spies, cynical double agents and the betrayed make up the forces of the East. Trained agents, skilful policemen and counter-espionage services fight for the West.

Russia relies heavily on the "shotgun" method of picking spies. It draws heavily from its satellites, using bribes or threats to enlist recruits. They have eyes to see and ears to hear and that's what the Russians want.

A spy trial in Munich early in the Cold War showed the Russian hand. Of a dozen arrested, only one was listed as a "class five" or top agent. The rest were anxious to make a little money or had been coerced into spying.

ROUTINE ASSIGNMENTS

Their job was to note airfield strength of military units. They drew sketches of military barracks made notes on the strength of security guards.

At that time a western officer commented that 90 per cent of the information seemed worthless. But the remaining 10 per cent was prime material to help fill in a mosaic of Soviet information.

A Czech waiter on the famed Orient Express was trapped in Germany by Allied counter-intelligence. He had been trained in Moscow as a "parachute spy" and was a skilled photographer. When his train stopped in the west he was busy taking pictures of passenger stations and nearby military trains. He got 20 years in prison.

Russia has drawn heavily on Czechoslovakia for its agents. Young women, youths in their 20s and army officers have been used.

The Russians are callous about them. If they are caught, a new batch is sent in. They plant "refugees," across the border most of whom are quietly picked up, caught during the regular screening of those who ask sanctuary.

I Remember

the first game I ever refereed!

BY MIKE RODDEN

MIKE RODDEN—Former NHL Referee ... Queen's football star and coach of five Big Four champions. Now Sports Editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard.

"My debut as a senior referee in Sault Ste. Marie thirty years ago was memorable in the extreme. The famous Soo Greyhounds were 'entertaining' the illustrious and hard-bitten Sudbury Wolves in the inaugural test of another season and feeling was running high. Referees worked alone in that era, unaided by linesmen, the fans or team officials. I was a stranger in the roaring Soo and for that I was thankful. That game in the Soo left little to be desired with the sole exception that the howling Sudbury Wolves bore down and whipped the Greyhounds 8 to 3. A great silence prevailed when it was over—but I was not badgered or molested. The following morning, however, I ran the gauntlet of bitter fan criticism until Bill Phillips, whom I did not know or recognize, intervened a bit forcibly on my behalf."

Bulldogs Beat Sailors 8-4 In OHA Tussle At Windsor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fans who follow Windsor in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series have yet to see the Bulldogs lose a game in Windsor.

Bulldogs won their ninth home game of the season Tuesday night as they bounced Sarnia Sailors 8-4. Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen did the best of any visiting team when they managed an 8-8 overtime tie against the Bulldogs.

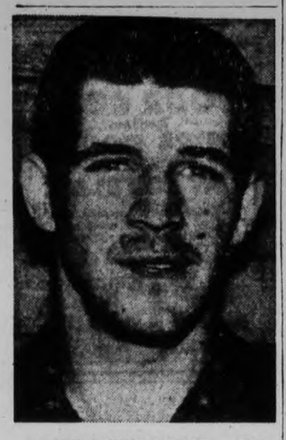
Owen Sound Mercurys squeezed out a 2-1 victory over Hamilton Tigers in Owen Sound in the other league action.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Pembroke Lumber Kings downed Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians 6-4 in Sault Ste. Marie

IN FIRST PLACE

The Bulldogs moved into first place. Five goals in the first period carried them to the victory.

Earl Keyes scored two goals for the winners. Walt Pawlyshyn, Dick Kotanen, Gord Haidy, Gary Gordon, Johnny Horeck and Alec Birukow rounded out the total.



Clarence Jaster counted twice for Sarnia. Jerry Horton and Ollie Haddon completed the scoring for the Sailors.

McCOMB GETS TWO

Two goals by centre Bill McComb in the first period carried the Mercurys to their win over Hamilton. Ab Conick replied for the Tigers in the middle period.

Ken Clarke paced the Pembroke attack, scoring two goals. Real Savard, Emil Dagenais, Bruce Giesebrecht and Ken Shale netted singles. Pete Backor tallied twice for the Indians with others going to Laurie Peterson and Ron Rubic.

Kitchener meet the Maroons in Chatham for the only OHA game tonight. Pembroke takes on the Greyhounds in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., in NOHA action.

WRIST OPERATION — Don Ashbee of the AHL Cleveland Barons—and senior lacrosser here in the summer—is in Toronto for a wrist operation, after stopping for a brief visit in Peterborough. The wrist did not heal properly from an injury some time ago in Buffalo.

Report Ottawa May Get Crain

OTTAWA (CP)—There is some speculation here that Geoff Crain, freshman quarterback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers this football season, may play in Ottawa next year.

Geoff, used by the Western Interprovincial Football Union team for quarterbacking duties along with Indian Jack Jacobs and Joe Zaleski, is returning to Ottawa from Winnipeg next week to work for his father's firm, George A Crain and Sons, Ltd., contractors.

"It was always understood that Geoff would be back with us," his father said Tuesday. "I spoke to Geoff in Toronto last Sunday and he mentioned that he wouldn't mind playing a little more football next fall."

Jim McCaffrey, Ottawa Rough Riders president, said the report of Geoff's return here "is news to me."

Vessels Plans Give Money To Jr. Clubs

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimo halfback Billy Vessels, winner of a $1,000 award as the outstanding Canadian football player of 1953, plans to turn some of the money over to Edmonton junior football clubs, it was reported.

Vessels, leading ground-gainer in the Western Interprovincial Football Union this season, has left for his home in Oklahoma City. He will re-enter the University of Oklahoma before reporting to the United States Army in June.

ATHLETES PROTECTED

OTTAWA (CP) — Intercollegiate athletics in Canada now are well protected against any taint of "professionalism," Professor D. M. Jemmett, chairman of the athletic board of control of Queen's University, Kingston, says:

Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union affairs now are controlled by the universities themselves he told the Ottawa branch of the Queen's Alumni Association Tuesday night, Faculty members were in key positions of the CIAU.

There were abuses of CIAU regulations following the Second World War, he said. Some schools were suspected of bringing in athletes who were not bona fide students, but this led to a revision three years ago of the CIAU constitution.

(Vic Obeck, athletic director of McGill University, charged during the football season this year that "some Canadian universities" were getting around rules governing athletic eligibility of some students.)

+ + +

UNIVERSITY CONTROL

The universities themselves got together to stop the bad publicity, Professor Jemmett said.

Now the CIAU board of management had three representatives from each of the four major universities in it—Queen's, Toronto, McGill and Western. One of these representatives from each university must be from the teaching staff. Smaller universities had two representatives, one from the faculty. The smallest schools had one faculty members representing them.

Thus, Professor Jemmett said, the universities control CIAU regulations.

IL SHIT COLLAPSES

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Plans to move Richmond from the class-B Piedmont League to the triple-A International League fell through Tuesday night.

Eddie Mooers, owner of the Richmond franchise, spiked the proposed move when he rejected a $200,000 offer for the franchise and his real estate property. Harry Seibold, a wealthy Richmond industrialist, had wanted to buy the club and move into the International League.

The International League meets today to try to set up an eight-club circuit. The league now has seven clubs and Havana is ready to move in, having received approval of the Florida International League for the move.

TOP COLT CHOSEN

NEW YORK (AP)—Porterhouse, owned by Mrs. M. E Person of Virginia, was voted the No. 1 colt among the 1953 two-year-olds by the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

Unlike last year, when Native Dancer was a unanimous choice for the juvenile title, Porterhouse had plenty of opposition. Secretaries of the 37 TRA tracks gave Porterhouse 15 votes, with 12 to the Hasty House Farm's Hasty Road and eight for Cain Hoy Stable's Turn-To.

LATTNER WINS AWARDS

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Notre Dame's Johnny Lattner, triple-threat halfback, Tuesday won college football's top two individual awards for 1953—the Heisman and Maxwell trophies.

In winning the Maxwell memorial award, Lattner became the first player in the club's 17-year history to be named twice. The Irish star won the honor a year ago.

BROOKS SIGN COACHES

ATLANTA, Ga (AP)—Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League have re-signed coaches Billy Herman and Jake Pitler for one-year terms.

Cookie Lavagetto, the third of three coaches on the 1953 Dodger club, announced his resignation earlier and is expected to join Charlie Dressen, former Dodger manager and now with Oakland in the Pacific Coast League.

Stamps' Half Goes To San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — John Henry Johnson, star halfback with Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union this year, signed with San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League Tuesday

Johnson, a big, 200-pound half, was named the most valuable player in the Western Conference this season, the first year he played in Canadian football.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Delving into figures, an NHL bulletin remarks that a strong finishing club is a winning one, pointing out that Canadiens are the best finishers this season, with Red Wings next. It adds of the team where rookie Ike Hildebrand is going so well: "The rookie-laden New York Rangers have lost more games than they like to remember in the third period." Another statistic indicates that it takes teams a period to get going, each succeeding frame seeing more goals scored. In the NHL up to Dec. 1 there were 76 goals scored in the first period, 91 in the second and 95 in the third. Leafs and Bruins appear to go better in the second or sandwich stanza.

* * * * * *

Condition, speed, youth and fight all have something to do with a club finishing strong. Several years ago the local Legionnaires built up quite a rep in group and provincial play for finishing a fray at a torrid clip. They pulled out many close victories in the dying minutes of play. Some of these same players adorn the TPT Petes' lineup now and they show the same hustle, as well as stepping speedily in the first and second frames. It will be interesting to see how well they finish their frays from here in after having a month or more to round into shape and fit into the Petes' pattern. We believe Ed Redmond has a first-rate club this season in a powerful group. It sometimes takes time to get rolling properly, but they're coming.

They Love Blue Lines

Scribe Al Austin of Guelph writes learnedly: "Defencemen are mammals and thus included among what is usually considered the highest class of backbone animal which includes numerous orders, of which horse, elephant and whale are illustrative examples. There are two basic species, the Major (checkum neanderthal) and the Minor (sive mammalia). They are found almost exclusively in Canada and the northern United States. Certain areas in northern and southern Ontario and regions of the prairies and Quebec are their favorite habitats. The average defenceman may measure five foot 11 inches and weight as much as 180 pounds. They will eat both meat and vegetables. They are usually thick through the shoulders—some Minor varieties are also thick through the head.

* * * * * * *

"The pelts are valuable, especially the Majors, and may bring as much as two forwards and a bundle of cash. Licenses are not required for hunting them but a 'C' form is almost a must. Several methods for their capture are employed but money has been found to be the most successful. In training, one should employ a limited vocabulary at first, using the same phrases over and over till the commands are fully imbedded. Many varieties of the Minor species are untrainable. Major species are most readily found in the spring and early summer. The Minors are in great abundance in the late fall. We know a party interested in obtaining at least two pelts, preferably in good condition. He will pay well for these specimens".

Ports Play Jr. Petes

Speaking of pelts, the Port Perry and Young Petes' forwards will be pelting rival goalies at Civic Arena tonight when they tangle in another OHA junior "B" contest. Red Creighton's crew won in Port Perry their first trip up that way, but the Oshawa boys (via Port Perry) yanked out an overtime win here last week in a return engagement. This rubber match should be quite a scrap. Quite a few right promising young puckists (promising to make pro ranks within a few years) dot the local lineup, and they rate more fan support at home jousts. These juniors dish up streamlined action all the way. The Peterborough pack trek to Collingwood on Saturday.

* * * * * *

An AHL dispatch yesterday showed George (Red) Sullivan well in front of the league pack in the scoring race. The Ashburnham redhead got 10 points last weekend and now has 10 goals and 28 assists for 38 points. He leads in assists, too. Teammate Dunc Fisher of Hershey is next with 31 points and his 16 goals is tops in that department. Red is really rolling now, despite 25 minutes in penalties in 24 games, and should be back with Boston Bruins ere too long. Bob Peirson tells us that Don Ashbee (with Cleveland in the AHL this season) was here recently on a visit and he is in Toronto now for an operation on his wrist, which was broken at Buffalo and which never healed properly. Ed Shore previously refused to okay this operation.

Jake Gaudaur Plans Retire From Game

Gaudaur returned as an active player this season after acting on the executive of the Hamilton team last year. He has played on all Big Four clubs except Ottawa Rough Riders.

Coach Carl Voyles disclosed that he has signed four players for next season, halfback Bernie Custis and three Tiger-Cat juniors, centre Wal Nikorak, fullback Red Huddleston and end Jack Sampson.

News To Ronzani He's To Be Coach

"There has been no direct offer made to me concerning the job," said Ronzani. The report was printed by the Toronto Globe and Mail. The Calgary post is open.

Vic Seixas Blows Up In Davis Cup Play

Marlboros Club Kitchener 12-4 In Wild OHA Scoring Spree

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts, with only eight regulars in the line-up, were beaten 12-4 by Toronto Marlboros in their Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series game in Kitchener Tuesday night.

With most of their players labelled for Quebec teams after Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey league purchased the Kitchener franchise, the Greenshirts were forced to bring up several junior B players for the game.

St. Catharines TeePees strengthened their hold on first place by trouncing Guelph Biltmores 9-4 in St. Catharines Netminder Les Binkley was a standout in Quebec as Galt Black Hawks moved into third place by blanking Quebec Citadelles 1-0.

Black Hawks' Dismal Play Has Chicago Fans Worried Team Has No Goalkeeper

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The dismal showing of Chicago Black Hawks and their goalkeeper problems had fans around the National Hockey League circuit wondering today where it would all end. The last-place Hawks, who meet New York Rangers in the only National Hockey League game tonight, apparently have no goal-tender who is well. And that goes for Jack Gelineau who is reported as saying he wasn't up to scratch when he made his big-time come-back attempt last weekend.

It all adds up to trouble plus in the Hawk camp They haven't done a thing since netminder Al Rollins came down with chicken pox last week.

Gelineau, the McGill University graduate who won the NHL's rookie award with Boston Bruins three years ago and was scored on 18 times by Detroit Red Wings last week-end, was quoted as saying by the Chicago American Tuesday that he was not in "physical condition to play hockey."

"For 2 weeks I've been troubled with strained tendons in both hip joints and I also suffered a sprained ankle," the story said.

SAYS SERVICES FORCED

Gelineau was reported as saying Chicago vice-president Bill Tobin was told about the situation last week but pressed him into service anyway.

Chicago coach Sid Abel charged Gelineau played one of the worst games "I've seen in years."

A win for the Rangers tonight would give them 19 points, five behind the fourth-place Bruins.

While the Black Hawks were trying to unravel their problems, Montreal Canadiens were going over their injury list to see who would be in shape for the Toronto-Montreal game at Montreal Thursday night.

A doubtful starter is Elmer Lach, who is having trouble with a slashed ankle. Others out are centre Dickie Moore and Jean Beliveau.

Majors Draft 52 Minors

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The minor league draft mill ground out a total of 52 selections for $171,550 Tuesday as both commissioner Ford Frick and George Trautman, head of the minors, held closed hearings.

Only dribs and drabs of information leaked out for public consumption.

Trautman appeared in the press room, carrying a half dozen charts to explain with graphs how the minor league picture had changed since 1949. He had told the same story to the 38 minor league presidents and representatives of the 16 major league teams at a joint dinner meeting Monday night

The charts showed a strong swing away from ownership of minor league clubs by the majors to working agreements. In 1949 majors owned 24 per cent and worked with 30 per cent more. Last season they owned only 18 per cent but had working agreements with 40 per cent.

Gets Rule Book Settle Argument

CLEVELAND (CP)—Pat Egan, playing coach of Providence Reds, got the rule book out Tuesday night to prove that general manager Jim Hendy of Cleveland Barons was wrong in an argument over overtime

The Reds and Barons were tied 2-2 at the end of regular play in an American Hockey League game when a dispute broke out between Egan and Hendy over whether the overtime period should be 10 minutes sudden death or 10 minutes straight play.

Egan threatened to take his team off the ice if the Reds scored first. But when Hendy told Egan it would cost Providence a $5,000 fine if the Reds left the ice during the overtime, Egan gave in.

Cleveland's Jack Stoddard scored the winning goal at 7:50, and the teams played the full 10 minutes.

Later a rule book was located, and proved Egan right. The overtime does end with the first goal by either side.

OHA Moves Block Transfer 10 Players

KITCHENER (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league council has made a move to block transfer of 10 players from Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts to four clubs of the Quebec junior loop and at the same time keep the local team from disbanding.

The council Tuesday night forwarded a recommendation to the OHA executive seeking it to halt the transfer of Greenshirt players, take steps to find new sponsors for the club so that it will not fold and also see that the team plays the two remaining games scheduled this week.

Greenshirts played Toronto Marlboros here Tuesday night and dropped a 12-4 decision.

It appeared most of the 10 players had already departed for Quebec. Only one of the 10 scheduled for transfer played. He was centre Claude Boileau.

CHECK LINE-UPS

The OHA council had asked that line-ups of Tuesday night's game and this week's other two Greenshirt games be checked. If all three are played with an under-strength line-up, the results will stand. If the full team plays one and an under-strength team the others, all three games will be replayed at a later date.

The meeting also agreed to ask the OHA to rule that all points connected with Greenshirt games be stricken from the records if the team withdrew from the league and that the club be obliged to pay Quebec Citadelles $3,000 for failure to fulfil obligations there.

Citadelles have paid that much of a $5,000 guarantee to have Kitchener play four games in Quebec. Two have been played.

Greenshirts were sold last week to Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League after losing money since they entered the league in 1951.

LOST $1,000 WEEKLY

Walter Weber, Greenshirt president, said the team was losing as much as $1,000 a week "with no visible means of support"

C. D. Pequegnat, a Greenshirt director, and Clarence Mitchell, treasurer of the club, said they were in favor of the team withdrawing from the league.

The council decided it would take over the Greenshirts until a new operator could be found or at least until the end of the season. However, a telephone call to Frank Selke, general manager of the Canadiens, quashed that when he refused any such deal.

Montreal has sponsored the Kitchener club for the last three years.

Involved in the proposed transfer are centre Doug Vaughan, leftwinger Bruce Jones, rightwinger Glen Cressman and defencemen Ivan Tennant and Gordon Onotsky, Jonquierre, rightwinger Graham Joyce, to Montreal Royals; centre Claude Boileau and defenceman Lloyd Hillman, to Montreal Canadiens; centre Grieg Hicks and defenceman Beryl Clinck, to Quebec Frontenacs.

Auriol Sees Tendency In U.S. To Push French Nation Around

PARIS—Once the secretary of the Elysee (the French White House) calls and informs you that Monsieur le President de la Republique will see you at such and such an hour, all you have to do is to walk over and wait to be received.

There is no security check at the gate where few bluecaped policemen motion you to enter the lodge of the gatekeeper writes Constantine Brown in Montreal Star. This portly frock-coated gentleman, oozing the courtesy of the old days, has the names of the day's callers written in pencil on a piece of paper. He gives you an escort to the main door where elderly ushers with traditional tail coats and silver chains around their collars ask you to wait in an old fashioned salon representing a small fortune in magnificent tapestries.

Following this you finally arrive at the office of the president of the republic. There is no secretary to brief you about the length of time you may remain or what you may or may not ask the president. The usher throws the door open and announces you with a stentorian voice for the last time.

M. Vincent Auriol who will remain the Elysee until January 19 when a successor will be inaugurated (unless he submits to a draft for another seven years) is a vivacious southerner who does not waste time in polite exchanges of platitudes.

M. Auriol will tell you from the very beginning that there is a great difference between the president of the United States, who is elected directly by the people and fills a dual function as president and prime minister, and the president of France, who is not permitted to make policies. Consequently, the French president can only express the views of the various political groups in his country without any personal comment.

But as a Frenchman M. Auroil did say in the course of the 60 minute conversation that America must remember that France is not "down and out," but only physically and mortally wounded and that she will soon be completely recovered. He also said, as a Frenchman, that he and his countrymen are willing to forget the "painful years of unbelievably harsh German domination during the last war, but that Germany would do well to remember them."

Moreover, M. Auriol added, there seems to be a tendency in certain quarters in the United States to push France. This, he emphasized, is a grave mistake because such an attitude could serve only the cause of Communism. The French are touchy and may react in an unexpected way to too much pressure.

The ratification of the European Defence Community by the French National Assembly is unquestionably the most important issue today between Franch and the United States. But M. Auriol, as president of France, has nothing to do with the vote; neither does he know the intentions of the premier and the Chamber. But he did set forth with typical French clarity the point of view of the two camps: the opponents and those who favor with qualification the ratification of the treaty.

M. Auriol explained that there is a misconception in America when the EDC is labeled the brain-child of the former Pinay-Schuman administration. What happened is this: The generals at SHAPE worried over Russia's overwhelming strength. They suggested the rearmament of Germany. Washington and London endorsed the plan. But the overwhelming masses in France considered this a betrayal of the solemn pledges given them during and after the war that Germany will never be allowed to rearm.

In order to soften the blow and at the same time to show the desire for co-operation, Messrs. Pinay and Schuman proposed a European army consisting of France, the Benelux countries and Italy, with German contingents. Thus they hoped to avoid the bitter criticism and opposition of millions of Frenchmen, particularly those who had been in the "resistance" and who are adamant about German rearmament, M. Auriol said.

The French National Assembly has, however, the final word. The Assembly, elected by the people, is still reluctant to swallow the German rearmament pill. The opponents who range from the extreme right to the Communists, maintain that Germany's history over the last 80 years does not justify the confidence. They say that the Germans are proud, hard working and intent on ruling Europe as they were in the days of Bismark, the Kiaser and Hitler.

A COSTLY BLUNDER

The blunder committed at Yalta where President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill approved the partition of Germany has intensified German nationalism. The Germans will achieve their national unity by hook or crook, the French believe.

If the Germans are allowed to rearm the French believe—and the projected 12 divisions can easily become four times as large—they will endeavour to use force to achieve their unity. If they are denied this by our other allies, they will join Russia and Western Europe will eventually be dominated by them. Hence the firm determination of the anti-pacifists to refuse EDC ratification.

The smaller number of French politicians who are willing to take a more lenient view, say that the only way to "corset" the Germans and their unquestionable energy is to incorporate a definite number of German divisions into a European army. But in view of past experiences, such as the limitation of the German forces after the world war to only 100,000 men under strict Allied control, even these partisans of the EDC want additional assurances that 1936 will not be repeated.

These political men concede that there is much logic in the fear of Germany as expressed by the opponents of the treaty, but with the necessary additional clauses and with more concrete assurances from Britain and the United States, the thing may be tried.

What position President Auriol will take when he is out of the Elysee and throws himself once more into the maelstrom of politics is his own secret. At this time he expresses no opinion. He merely sets forth the thinking of the two divergent groups.

KITTENS GO, TEARS FLOW—Little Walter Gatlin, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clovis Gatlin, of Oklahoma City, turned his pet kittens over to the animal shelter at the request of neighbors, who complained that the animals kept them awake. A photographer snapped the youngster's expression just before the torrent of tears.

CAPE TOWN (OFNS) — Here at the southern tip of South Africa we see some of the activity that lies behind the southbound whaling expeditions. A great activity it is, for this year eighteen Antarctic expeditions will sail, from Norway, Britain, Holland, South Africa, Russia, Japan and other countries. Some twelve thousand sailors will man the fleets; and they are bent on the slaughter of twenty thousand whales.

The ships have to be in the Antarctic ice by January 2, when the season officially opens and some of them will be calling here to take on stores, water and extra crews (many of the Dutch vessels have been here all year, refitting.) Other whalers will go straight to the ice from their home ports.

Fears that whales may become extinct have produced in recent years a bod, called the International Whaling Commission, which lays down the length of the season during which whales may be killed, and the numbers that can be caught during that season. And in London recently the commission decided that because of the big drop in the number of whales found last year the permissible catch this year would be reduced from sixteen thousand to fifteen thousand five hundred blue-whale units. This unit of measurement, the most practicable in view of the greatly varying sizes of species, is based on the average length of the great blue whale.

WHALING A SCIENCE

The commission's task is an important one: for modern whaling is a science, and the technique of slaughter has been nearly perfected. In the days of Moby Dick, the fabulous white whale, a hundred years ago, the kill had to be made with hand harpoons flung from small boats. A flick of the whale's tail could crush these boats like eggshells, or drag them under when it dived, unless the harpooner had the presence of mind to cut the rope attached to his spear.

In those days an expedition would spend two years away from its home port; but the modern fleet, equipped with explosive harpoons and radar, heads for the Antarctic in November and returns home in April with its holds full of meat, blubber and oil.

An expedition usually consists of a factory ship, in which the oil extraction process takes place, and a flotilla of corvette-type catchers.

The whale is killed by deadly explosive missiles, fired from a gun in the bows of the catcher. To the missile is attached four hundred feet of nylon line, spliced to 3,600 feet of rope coiled in the hold. This rope is passed through a series of blocks and over a winch, from which a crewman "plays" the whale, much as an angler does when landing a fish.

When the whale sights danger, it speeds off at about twelve knots, breaking surface every ten seconds or so. The gunner waits his chance, then fires when he is within range. As the harpoon strikes, an explosive head is detonated, scattering shrapnel in the body and generally causing immediate death. The harpoon also spreads long barbs as it enters the whale.

The whale is then pumped up with compressed air; a radar reflector and a flag are attached to it; and the catcher goes elsewhere, leaving the fatcory ship to locate the corpse. This is hauled aboard the factory ship and the blubber is cut into strips and placed in melting vats below deck.

25 TONS OF OIL

From a blue whale about 25 tons of oil is extracted, together with such by-products as whale meat, whalebone and high-grade liver oil.

The sperm whale carries about forty tons of oil in its head. Unlike the blue whale it does not feed on the surface, but dives to great depth to hunt the giant octopus. Using its head, the whale rams the octobus against the sea bed, and the oil inside its skull inures it against the great pressures encountered at such depths. Sperm oil is used as a lubricant for precision instruments — although synthetic oils have now largely taken its place in industry.

With oil selling at £72 a ton, whaling is big business these days —although the present price compares with a figure as high as £100 abtained in recent years.

In 1951 one vessel, the South African factory ship "Abraham Larsen," one of the biggest in the world, brought back 162,000 barrels of oil worth £2,717,000; and the whole harvest of the British and South African expeditions is usually between ninety thousand and one hundred thousand tons. The Norwegian haul is in the region of one hundred and sixty thousand tons each year.

The British and South African catches are usually bought by the former's Ministry of Food; but as margarine and cooking fats will be derationed in Britain next year, 1953's catch will probably be the last to be purchased in bulk by that country.

One expedition that will be southbound from Cape Town by the end of the month is not out to kill. It is sailing in the Norwegian catcher Enern, and it intends to mark whales with labels: attached to steel tubes, the labels will be fired from 12-bore shotguns, and will, scientists hope, help them in their investigation of migratory movements and habits.

International Monetary Fund Extremely Ambitious Idea

WASHINGTON — The International Monetary Fund, of which Harry Dexter White was United States Executive Director, is a postwar international organization to which 55 nations belong. In essence, it is a "pool" of currencies of the member nations.

The purpose of this pool was to give countries temporarily short of any foreign currency a reserve to fall back on, so that they would not have to clamp restrictions on imports and payments. These restrictions were the main cause in the sharp curtailment of world trade in the 1930's.

AMBITIOUS IDEA

It was an extremely ambitious idea which up to now has not worked at all well in practice (though there are signs that at long last the fund may be ready for an important role in world finance). This is how it operates:

If, say, Brazil is short of British pounds sterling, it comes to the fund with a request to "buy" sterling. If the fund agrees, Brazil pays its cruzeiros into the fund and gets sterling, with the purchase carried out at the par value of the two currencies.

Brazil immediately starts paying interest on this "drawing" of sterling (really a loan), and within three to five years is supposed to "buy back" it cruzeiros by giving the fund in return some generally accepted currency. It needn't be sterling, but it must not be a "soft" currency.

The total pool of currencies was $8,800,000,000. The United States chipped in $2,750,000,000. Each Each nation has "drawing rights" up to a quota, determined by its contribution. And each nation has to contribute gold equal to 25 per cent of its quota.

The simplest evidence that the fund hasn't worked out as intended is that there are still almost as many restrictions on trade and payments among countries now as there were before the war. Why didn't it work?

The reason, in a nutshell, is that there turned out to be only one scarce currency of any consequence: the dollar. The shortage of dollars turned out to be much worse than most of the negotiators who set up the organization ever dreamed, and "structural" rather than temporary.

The British negotiators, headed by Lord Keynes, who, with Harry White, did most of the work in setting up the fund originally, thought that the members would have virtually automatic access to the currencies in the pool.

WAY IS CLEARED

But the Americans wouldn't join until it was made clear that no drawing would be allowed except for purely temporary currency shortages. This automatically ruled out dollar drawings for most countries, because it was clear that the dollar shortage was far more than temporary.

Although the European countries were allowed to draw about $500,000,000 from the fund in the early postwar years, even this trickle of funds was cut off as soon as the United States, through the Marshall Plan, assumed the obligation of meeting the dollar shortage. Transactions have been stepped up recently, and have passed the $1,000,000,000 mark over all, but none of Western Europe has been allowed to make a drawing since the Marshall Plan—despite their continued shortage of dollars.

COULD BE HELPFUL

As the structural dollar gap tends to disappear, the fund may again be used to meet temporary difficulties. It could then be an important aid to nations willing to reduce their restrictions.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell, Jr. regards White's job with the fund as "sensitive." Former president Truman says it was not very sensitive at all.

In terms of the decisions he was to make, the answer is probably in the negative. The American director's hands were rather closely tied by Congressional proviso that no drawing should be approved except for temporary purposes. In effect, Harry White as American director, controlling about 30 per cent of the votes, couldn't dissipate the fund's assets if he wanted to.

But the job could be considered sensitive because membership in the fund imposed on all nations the obligation to furnish some otherwise confidential information about their economies. This information would be available to White for whatever use he wished to make of it.

A chesterfield was damaged in a fire that was reported at 4:34 a.m. today at George N. Cowan's home, 489 Sherbrooke St. A misplaced cigarette butt is blamed for the mishap. Early Tuesday night a flooded oil burner was reported at B. J. Butler's home, 404 Dublin St. A chemical extinguisher was used to put out the blaze. Some smoke damage was done.

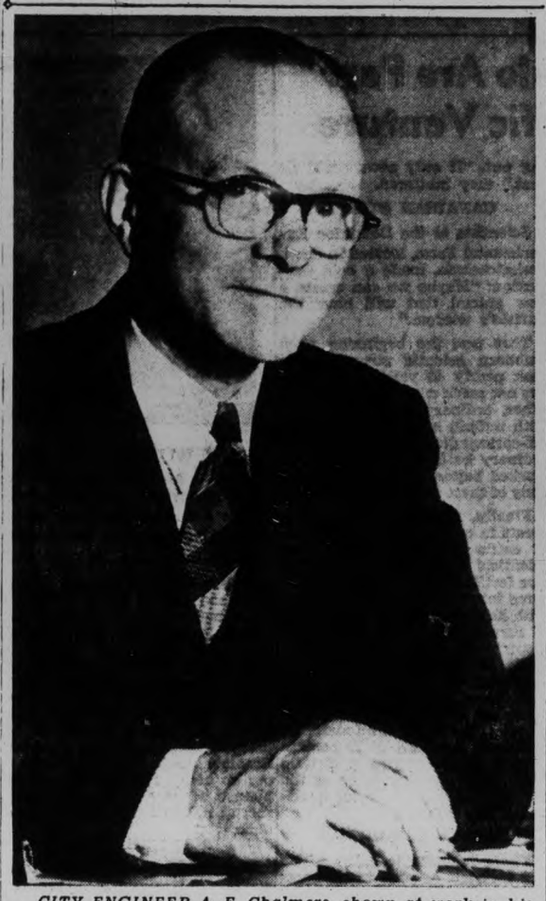
VOTE AT SIX POLLS



Dummer township electors will go to the polls next Monday to choose either Stewart Clysdale or Walter Sloan as their 1954 reeve. Harold Clifford, deputy reeve, the three councillors, and the three members of the school board were acclaimed. Hours for voting next Monday will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. There are six polls: 1. The school at Cottesloe. 2. school house number two, 9th line. 3. town hall, Warsaw. 4. Orange hall, Halls' Glen. 5. school house number nine, Clarina. 6. Harl Miles' house, in the eastern section of the township.

WON SHIELD

William Bonney, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Bonney, 114 James St., was the winner of the YMCA swimming club shield for the month of November with a total of 36 points. Tied for second place were Leonard Minty and David Ross with 34 points. The shield is awarded each month, based on improvement, competition, attendance and conduct. The presentation was made by Bill McFarlane, boys' work secretary.

NO LONGER CANDIDATE

There are now six candidates for the three vacancies on the Otonabee township council, instead of seven as previously announced. R. E. Stanley-Jones signed his qualification papers as a candidate for council, then he changed his mind and wrote a letter to James McCarthy, the township clerk, cancelling his qualification. The technical hitch was this: By the time Mr. McCarthy got the letter it was past the deadline and Mr. Stanley-Jones was legally a candidate. However, when he told Mr. McCarthy that he wouldn't take his council seat even if elected, it was decided to stretch a point and strike off his name. The others are A. G. Henwood, Earle Huston, Joseph Slattery, Steve Elmhirst, F. D. Whalen, and David Kempt.

CITY ENGINEER A. E. Chalmers, shown at work in his city hall office, was recently elected president of the Canadian Institute on Sewage and Sanitation for 1953-54. His predecessor as city engineer, Roy H. Parsons, was elected to the same post for 1943-44. Peterborough is the only city in Canada to have had two engineers elected president of the association.

Candidates Agree Schools Need Care And Planning

Without any indications of controversy or mud-slinging, new and veteran candidates for five vacant board of education seats presented their platforms Tuesday night in the packed Queen Mary school auditorium. New candidates Ernest McWilliam and Clarence Corbett based their appeals on the necessity of good board management for the well-being of present and future students, while incumbents G. W. Craw, Arthur Pitchford, Charles Huffman and Mrs. Ann Rowell stood, for the most part, on their past performances.

Leading off with a resume of the year's activities, however, was Stanley Adamson, retired chairman of the board. He pointed out the trustees' two duties; supervising expenditures for school purposes and controlling the growing capital investment in schools.

He emphasized the fact that, in spite of increased costs and a larger proportion of children in the city's population, the board has not taken a higher percentage of the tax dollar than in previous recent years.

NO RELIEF

He could not promise relief from high school taxes, however. "As long as we increase our population, school building must go on," Mr. Adamson said. "We have never had excess classrooms . . . we can only keep up with the demand."

"Big business" was the phrase used by 15-year veteran trustee G. W. Craw in describing the operation of the city's public and secondary schools. From 1937 to 1953, expenditures rose from $338,357 to $1,168,860. Peterborough ratepayers provide $750,000 of the latter amount, the rest being supplied mainly by grants.

"But," he said, "we are nearing the point where we simply must have more financial assistance, either from the provincial or federal governments" and "must appeal to the governments."

Governments, Mr. Craw concluded, "always have the money to build new causeways, surface new highways, resurface old highways . . . but a generation of boys and girls must wait."

Good government depends on good citizens, Mr. Corbett pointed out, and good citizens, must possess knowledge, skill, loyalty, high ideals and behaviour. To instill these qualities in the younger generation, a taxpayer must support school programs and take an active part in seeing education results in those ends.

In soliciting votes in the coming board elections, Mr. Cor-

Accept $5,000 For School Site

The board of works Monday night agreed to accept the offer of the board of education of $5,000 for the land required for the addition to Queen Elizabeth school.

Ald. T. D. Miller explained that a committee from city council had met with representatives of the board of education to agree on a price.

The city clerk had computed the value of the land at an amount in excess of $6,000 but the board, in view of what the city had paid for the whole subdivision, were of the opinion that the five acres required for the school addition was worth closer to $4,000 and so a compromise settlement was reached.

"In the overall deal on the Queen Elizabeth subdivision," Ald. Miller explained, "we stood to show a profit of $3,000. Instead of that, we're getting a profit of $2,000 and the board of education benefits."

Mayor Hugh Waddell explained that one of the major items in the entire subdivision transaction was the cost to the city of draining the area.

"That $3,000 profit was the amount the city included in a kind of contingency fund to cover just such items as this," he explained.

3-Day Week In Dept's At Westclox

Cut-Back In Hours Seasonal, Loss Of Export Market

Some departments of the Western Clock Co. on Monday began working a three-day instead of a five-day week.

John H. Vernor, executive vice-president and general manager, said today that the cut-back in working hours was caused by two factors: (1) The seasonal drop in business, which generally comes about mid-December, has started half a month early this year; (2) Westclox watches and clocks are being priced out of the export market.

"Business always drops off about mid-December," said Mr. Vernor. "Our customers don't want to buy at that time. It's come earlier this year."

Mr. Vernor then referred to the stiff competition that the Peterborough firm is getting from watch and clock companies in Switzerland, Germany, Italy and Japan.

"Last year we gave quite a wage increase," he said, "and it resulted in export prices becoming so high that we are priced out of the export market. The domestic market is a little better, but Canada isn't big enough to make up for the loss overseas.

"The reason we're getting priced out of the export market is that costs have increased along with higher wages."

LABOR 80% OF TOTAL

He estimated that labor costs now amount to 80 per cent of total production costs.

(The Western Clock Co. is now in contract negotiations with Local 570, International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO-CCL), bargaining agents for the plant's production workers. The union is to meet with the company Thursday and there are indications that if no agreement is reached the union will apply to the Ontario department of labor for their conciliation services.)

Mr. Vernor said that he could not say at this stage how many of the employees would be affected. It would all depend on business. However, none would work less than three days, and some will work full time.

"Our policy is to spread the work as equitably as possible," he said.

The Western Clock Co. is the third biggest employer in Peterborough with 730 on its payroll.

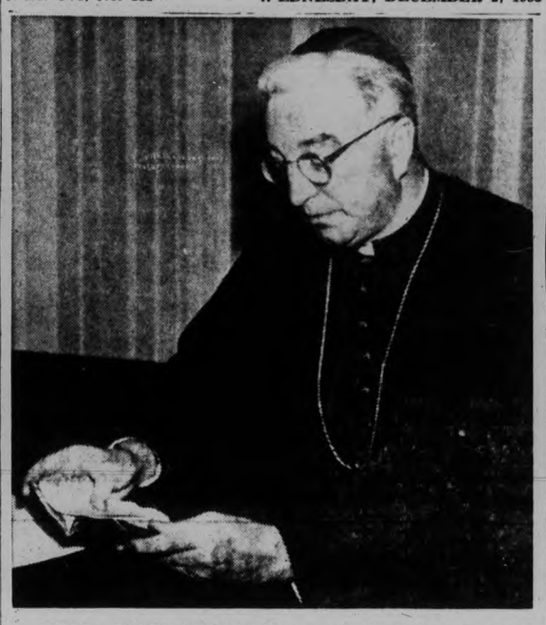
Owners' Petition For Mains Held To Spring

The utilities commission Monday decided to hold over until the spring a petition from 10 property owners on McClennan St. for construction of a six-inch water main for approximately 700 feet east from Barnardo Ave.

In his report on the application, General - Manager W. Howard Powell stated that six applications for water service had been signed by adjacent property owners.

While immediate consumer revenue would be only approximately seven per cent of the total estimated cost of the main, the general-manager considered additional consideration should be given in this case because of a special water problem in the area.

Sewer work in the Queen Elizabeth subdivision had drained the area and lowered the water table along McClennan St., causing several wells to go dry. At present, several property owners were faced with either deepening their wells or having a water main constructed.



Total cost of constructing the necessary mains, water services and so on would be $4,324.19. Total immediate revenue from those who had signed applications would be $299.45.

$725 REVENUE

There is approximately 1,100 feet of assessable frontage on the proposed main. It was estimated there would eventually be 22 consumers. Based on present rates, the total revenue from 22 consumers would be $725.26 a year.

Fire protection charges from the city would contribute to the commission's share of the cost, to the amount of 20 per cent of the operating charges, or roughly $76 a year.

With more houses to be constructed in the area, the commissioners decided to wait until spring, when there would probably be more water consumers on the street, before constructing the main.

MSGR. LUIGI DADAGLIO of the Canadian Catholic Conference announced today that Most Rev. Joseph Gerald Berry, bishop of Peterborough, had been named archbishop of Halifax. Born in Montreal, Archbishop Berry (above) came to the diocese of Peterborough in April, 1945. In Halifax he will succeed Archbishop John T. McNally, who died a little more than a year ago.

Bishop Gerald Berry Named Archbishop Of Halifax

Most Rev. Joseph Gerald Berry, bishop of Peterborough, has been named archbishop of Halifax, as announced today by Msgr. Luigi Dadaglio of the Canadian Catholic Conference. The news of this promotion by Pope Pius was received in Ottawa from Vatican City, Rome. It is expected that Archbishop Berry will remain in Peterborough through the Christmas season, probably until about the middle of January.

His Excellency remarked to The Examiner today that he had not yet recovered from the announcement to think of the exact time when he would assume his new duties down by the sea.

BECOMES METROPOLITAN

The 100-year-old ecclesiastical province of Halifax includes, with the diocese of Halifax, the dioceses of Charlottetown, Antigonish and Yarmouth. Archbishop Berry also becomes metropolitan of the province.

An interesting personal circumstance of his transfer to the Nova Scotia archdiocese will be his association with his immediate predecessor in the diocese of Peterborough, Most Rev. John R. Macdonald, bishop of the diocese of Antigonish.

Archbishop Berry succeeds Archbishop John T. McNally, who died November 18, 1952. Halifax is the oldest English - speaking archdiocese in Canada.

His Excellency was educated at the College de Montreal and the Grand Seminary, Montreal, and also studied at Queen's University, Kingston. He majored in sociology at the Catholic University of Washington, and holds his licentiate in theology. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1927, serving as curate of the Church of the Ascension, Westmount, suburb of Montreal. He became director of the Catholic welfare bureau of Montreal in 1940 where he served until his consecration as Bishop of Peterborough and was head of the Federated Catholic Charities.

A news item that introduced him to his first diocese in 1945 recalled that he had won high honors in all his studies and early became a leader in college life. He was the first bishop to be consecrated in St. Patrick's church during the 98 years since its opening.

CAME IN JUNE 1945

Archbishop Berry arrived in Peterborough June 27, 1945, to assume his charge here. The second World War was in its last stage, centres of population had been materially altered by the expansion of industry for war purposes. Peterborough was one of the cities which had grown substantially as a result of its munitions contracts.

Archbishop Berry was introduced to a diocese in which new and necessary construction had fallen behind the essential work of producing war materials. The role and responsiblity of builder was thus thrust upon him, and he is leaving behind in this city and other sections of the diocese a great record of building. The physical appearance of the Peterborough parishes has been impressively changed during the last seven years.

Some of the projects undertaken and completed under Archbishop Berry's guidance and support comprise a striking list. They were the new church of the Assumption in Otonabee; St. John the Baptist church and rectory in the new south ward below Lansdowne St.; St. Alphonsus School; St. Anne's School; St. Peter's Boys School and the enlargement of the high school begun recently; St. Francis de Sales School, east of the canal on the Warsaw Road; a school at Bridgenorth; the monastery of the Sisters of the Precious Blood; the new wing of St. Joseph's Hospital, also the power plant for the hospital and House of Providence, the new wing of Mount St. Joseph; other improvements at Lindsay, Cobourg and elsewhere. All this concern with material progress was added to the spiritual responsibilities of his populous diocese.

Archbishop Berry has maintained his interest in sociological affairs since coming to Peterborough and that phase of his special training has been reflected here and elsewhere since his transfer from Montreal.

Several of the parish priests said today that the morning news from Ottawa was a pronounced shock of which they had no intimation.

Accident-Free 2nd Million Hours

Last Friday the Western Clock Co. plant in Peterborough passed the 1,000,000-mark in accident-free man-hours.

"This is the eighth time we've exceeded 1,000,000 man-hours without loss of time through industrial accidents since the company began keeping records in 1934," John H. Vernor, executive vice-president and general manager, said today.

In the period, 1935 to 1939, the company chalked up 4,460,000 accident-free hours.

"We believe that is a record," said Mr. Vernor, who is a former president of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations.

HIGH GALLONAGE

Citizens Jam Auditorium As Candidates Drop Bitter Denunciations

Expected Fireworks Missing As Black, Graham Shake Hands On Platform, Laughter Replaces Boos Of Nomination

A good-humored crowd filled the auditorium of Queen Mary school to overflowing Tuesday night for the annual municipal candidates' meeting of the women's study group on civic affairs. Extra chairs were brought in and there were people standing in the aisles. In the opinion of Mrs. T. J. Carley, who chaired the meeting, Peterborough citizens couldn't be accused of "civic anemia." Many of the 700-odd people who attended undoubtedly expected a repetition of the controversy at Friday night's nomination meeting. But the closest approach to fireworks was Ald. Syd Black's reference to the Coronation night display.

In fact, Ald. Black shook hands on the platform with ex-Ald. Norman Graham, who said they had both agreed there were harsh words exchanged Friday night.

ASSESSMENT BIG ISSUE

There was a thorough airing of controversial questions, however, chiefly the re-assessment, the problem of attracting new industries to the city and construction of the Memorial Centre.

It took more than 2½ hours to hear the mayoralty, council and board of education candidates, many of whom were peppered with questions from the floor. Much of the heckling provoked laughter, however.

Mayor Hugh Waddell, who outlined the principles of the re-assessment, spiked one bit of gossip. He said it had been rumored that, if he were elected, he might resign after serving a couple of months. "I want to definitely contradict that," he said.

"While I do not expect immunization from criticism," he declared, "criticism should be for the good of the city as a whole and given in a friendly and helpful manner."

Reiterating what he said at Friday night's nomination meeting, His Worship said he would do his utmost to see that work was begun in the spring on construction of the Memorial Centre in Exhibition Park, to bring the zoning bylaw to completion and to hold down the 1954 budget.

QUESTIONS MAYOR

Mayor Waddell was at least temporarily stymied by Thomas Williams of 51 Ware St., an old-age pensioner, who claimed his assessment had gone up $750.

"If the assessment's gone up, you must have taken it off the big bugs and put it on the little ones," he charged.

Fred Hills Tells Of Progress Made By Utilities

Although elected by acclamation, Chairman Fred Hills of the Public Utilities Commission summarized his group's work over the past year for the municipal candidates' meeting Tuesday night in Queen Mary auditorium.

He first dealt with major projects completed in the electric, water and gas departments and then work of all departments in the distribution system.

Electrically, projects included extension of the business section's underground electric distribution system from Simcoe to Charlotte on George, construction of new transformer vaults on Simcoe and Charlotte Sts., installation of an experimental underground electric system in the Bellaire subdivision, construction of a temporary sub - station to feed recently annexed Smith areas, and installation of metalclad switchgear in the Aylmer street sub-station.

ENLARGED PLANT

In the water department, the PUC spent $300,000 to increase the filter plant's capacity by 50 per cent, and constructed a 12-inch feeder main to Downer's Corners.

"In the gas department, no large projects were completed but plans were made for the installation of new gas generating equipment in an effort to reduce operating costs."

Electric and water services were constructed to service the new sub-divisions, Queen Elizabeth, Cordach and Bellaire; and a total of 489 new three-wire electric services, 569 new flat rate water heaters and 33 new water services were installed.

To serve these water services, a total of 1.9 miles of water main were constructed. In the gas department, 33 consumers took advantage of the new gas space heating rate to heat their buildings.

Soviets Seek To Regain Initiative In Diplomacy

LONDON — The recent Press conference given in Moscow by Mr. Molotov, the Russian Foreign Minister, was his first since the war—and a major occasion, writes Edward Crankshaw in Montreal Star. Its importance has been obscured by the fact that he said nothing new. What really matters, however, is not what he said, but the fact that he said anything at all.

His statement was an attempt, a hurried and not very well-thought-out attempt, to recapture the diplomatic initiative which the Kremlin has held so effortlessly for so long—for so long, perhaps, that it has come to take it a little too much for granted. At any rate, it was quietly and painlessly taken away by the Western Powers when they replied to the Soviet note of November 3 with the Bermuda conference.

Mr. Molotov was clearly surprised and annoyed by the announcement of this conference. He had been relying too implicitly on Anglo-American difference to do his work for him. He knew that President Eisenhower had not been an enthusiast for the original Bermuda conference; and he had evidently been told by his advisers that the idea would not be revived. His advisers turned out to be wrong; and Mr. Molotov reacted quickly.

THE RED VIEW

The Russians do not like being ignored and left out of things. It is not simply that they are pathologically suspicious of what may be going on behind their backs; nor is it merely a question of prestige, although this counts for a good deal. But they need to be "on the inside" of anything that is going on so that they can see clearly what issues may be most readily confused, and what disagreements exploited.

For a long time, Mr. Molotov and his friends have been secure in the knowledge that all they have to do to make themselves felt is to throw down a controversial issue and let the West quarrel about what should be done.

The note of November 3 was a good example of the well-tried line. It appealed to the Anglo-American controversy about the recognition of the Chinese Communist government; it appealed to French fears of a Germany rearmed and sustained by the United States; it appealed to feelings of nationalism and independence in revolt against the ubiquity of the U.S. armed forces. But the note was a failure.

The Western Powers did not quarrel among themselves about what was to be done. They said in effect: "If the Russians won't come to Lugano, well, they won't. So let's get on with what we have to do without them."

Just before the Bermuda conference was officially announced, I suggested that this attitude marked a turning point in East-West relations. Mr. Molotov, to judge by his hurry, seems to have had the same idea.

The general situation in Europe is now broadly as follows. Neither East nor West wants war. Neither East nor West wants the strain of a full-scale armaments race. Russia wants the Americans out of Europe in general, and Germany in particular, and is trying to base a security system on a weak and divided Western Europe which can be easily paralysed by Communist threats or industrial pressure. The West is trying to base a security system on the European Defence Community, which calls for a strong Western Germany. Russia, of course, opposes this.

The Soviet Union has three main weapons. The first is European distrust of America, which Russia seeks to inflame by every conceivable means; and in this it is helped by the Americans themselves. For example, the Harry Dextor White affair may be a necessary and desirable part of the domestic political struggle inside the United States, but it is also worth a great deal to Moscow. Similarly, Senator Joseph McCarthy and all he stands for may fulfil a valuable purpose inside America; but he is certainly worth several army corps to Moscow—he is worth so much, indeed, that if he did not exist the Kremlin would have to invent him.

The second weapon is the popular longing for peace, which the Kremlin is able to exploit by presenting itself always as the champion of peace foiled by American warmongers. This is a gift to the Kremlin for the simple reason that a totalitarian state is able to rearm quietly and by secret decree, whereas in a democracy the voters have to be frightened into paying taxes for arms by magnifying the threat of war.

The third weapon is industrial strife, stirred up to weaken the economy of the free world by Communist agitators, open or disguised, playing, wherever possible, on genuine grievances. There are plenty of such grievances in Europe and elsewhere. This task has recently been formally entrusted to the Soviet-inspired World Federation of Trades Unions, which finds its job made easier by the overgrown and bureaucratic aspect of many of the long established trade unions.

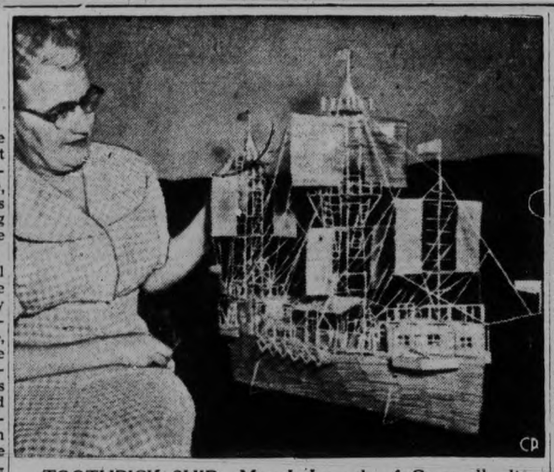
The Soviet note of November 3 was intended to promote indecision and divided counsel in the West. It failed: it was met with resolution; and so Mr. Molotov took the most unusual step of following it up personally. The fact that although he badly needed to create a better impression, he had no concessions to offer to back up his words, suggests that the Kremlin is not, for the time being, in a mood for serious negotiations.

But it does not follow from this that the Malenkov government is in an aggressive mood. All the evidence indicates that it is not. Its present game is a waiting game, played in the hope that the immediate plans for Western security and solvency will break down. If they do not break down, then, sooner or later, we may expect a new approach.

Renew Search For Coelacanths

BY JOHN WORRALL

A large-scale expedition which hopes to find more specimens of coelacanth—the fish which, until a few years ago, was believed to have been extinct for seventy million years—is being planned in East Africa by the Scientific Council for Africa South of the Sahara. It will probably be headed by Professor J. L. B. Smith, head of Department of Ichthyology at Grahamstown University, South Afrila, who identified the first two spelimens of the coelacanth.



Professor Smith believes that a flourishing colony of coelacanths may be swimming off-shore near the ancient ruins of Gedi, on the coast of Kenya between Mombasa and Malindi. He is interested in the report of an experienced local goggle-fisher who said he had seen a species of "evil and ancient fish" swimming a few feet away from him at Malindi, which is a popular holiday resort. The swimmer tried to harpoon the fish, but the weapon bounced off without injuring it; and it seems likely that the creature was a coelacanth.

So far all three coelacanths found have come from the waters of the Indian ocean, off the African shore. The first was caught off East London in a trawler net fifteen years ago, but its internal organs had decomposed before Professor Smith could inspect it. The second was found in the Mozambique Channel. Professor Smith flew 3,300 miles from Grahamstown, and reached it in time to preserve it.

At the end of September a third was caught off Madagascar, and is now in the care of Professor Jacques Millot, Director of the Madagascar Scientific Research Institute, Tananarive. It is described as being "the best indication yet that it is the missing link between fishes and amphibians."

Judge Reserves Car Decision

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Decision was reserved by Judge Ian MacRae Tuesday in a county court action brought by Joseph W. Carter, Woodstock trainman, against Arthur Bailey and Bailey Motor Sales, of Hamilton, and W. S. Spencer of Oshawa, for recovery of his car and $500 damages.

Carter left his car on consignment with Frank Stevens, Guelph used car salesman, in March of this year. In April Stevens purported to have sold the car to Bailey Motor Sales, who in turn sold it to Kazimiers Jurck, of Fruitland.

The car was returned to Bailey Motors by Jurck and later reported to have been sold to William S. Spencer, Oshawa. The plaintiff claimed the name Spencer was fictitious and no transaction was ever made. The vehicle is still held by Bailey Motors.

Tornado Cheques Mailed

STRATFORD (CP) — Interim payments totalling $48,919 will be mailed this week to 30 victims of the May 21 tornado in the southern part of Perth county, A. W. Blowes, county clerk, said Tuesday. Final payments would be made when the amount of the federal government's grant was announced. Damage to Perth farms was estimated at $140,000 after deduction of losses covered by insurance.

Canada's Cattalo Are Part Of New Scientific Venture

By NORMAN AND MADELYN CARLISLE
Condensed from Coronet

Driving through the swamplands of the South, you might be surprised to see a herd of strange animals which you would probably decide were some kind of cow. Though unlike any cows you ever saw before, they are indeed part cow, part Indian zebu.

In Canada, on experimental farms in the Prairie provinces, you would see another animal you never saw before—a Cattalo, part cow and part buffalo.

RESEARCH PROJECT

These animal oddities actually are part of an amazing new scientific venture that directly concerns all of us—a venture that will mean better food, more food and, eventually, less expensive food for everyone.

Spurred on by an exploding world population (statisticians estimate that Puerto Rico's, for instance, will double in the next 25 years), plant and animal breeders are turning nature topsy-turvy to create super-animals unlike any that ever walked the earth, and new varieties of plants packed with food values not found in nature's originals. Those remodelled cattle on the southern swamps and the plains of Canada are good examples of this breath-taking revolution in food.

The grim problem of survival confronted Canadian ranchers when roaring blizzards swept the plains. In the savage sub-zero gales, the cattle instinctively drifted with the storm until they became helplessly bogged down in the snow and froze to death.

The ranchers looked enviously at the sturdy buffalo who faces the storm, living through the worst blizzards, by simply staying put. "If only cows could do that," they muttered.

CANADIAN STUDY

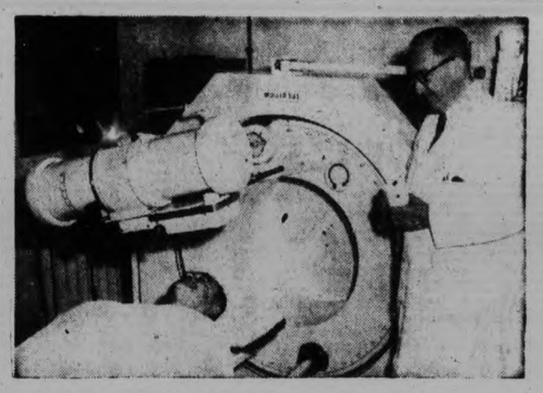
Scientists at the Dominion Experimental Farm, located in Scott, Saskatchewan, made a bold suggestion: "Maybe we can create a new animal that will have the buffalo's wisdom."

That was the beginning of a stubborn scientic struggle that took nearly 40 years, for nature has not made cross-breeding easy. When ordinary cows were bred with buffalo bulls, nearly all the off-springs died at birth. Breeding ordinary bulls with buffalo cows worked better, but the male progeny of these matings were sterile.

Finally, after years of experiments in crossing different breeds of cattle with the buffalo, the scientists found one hybrid that was fertile. A new race of animals came into being, ungainly looking with its curious hump, but capable of surviving the fury of the elements much better than domestic cattle. More patient work bred out the hump, until the Cattalo which may soon appear on Canadian farms are shaped more like ordinary cows than their wild maternal ancestors. As little as 20 percent buffalo heritage give a Cattalo "the hardy characteristics of the buffalo and superior meat qualities of the domestic cow."

CATTLE REMODELED

Those remarkable cattle which are thriving in such torrid spots as the tangled wilderness of South Carolina have been remodeled to meet a different weather extreme. Ordinary cows have no sweat glands, cooling themselves instead by the exhausting and inefficient method of breathing hard and thus evaporating moisture from their mouths and lungs. When temperatures rise over 95 degrees, they actually develop a fever.



The Indian zebu, or Brahman cow, however, has no such drawback and thrives in hot weather. As a meat or milk producer its rating is low, but the breeders have gone ahead and created a new animal with the productivity of American cows and the cooling capacity of its Oriental forebears. On the fabulous 900,000-acre King Ranch in Texas, a new breed of cattle, resulting from crossing Brahmans and Texas shorthorns, is also helping change the whole picture of how much meat southern and western ranges can produce.

AMAZING DRUG

The most startling developments in plant and animal genetics, however, may come from a substance nature herself has hidden in a common plant. It is a drug called colchicine which has already done something so amazing that staid scientists are stunned.

They have discovered that this chemical, extracted from the meadow saffron, has the power to increase the number of chromosomes, the bodies in each germ cell that pass on a species' hereditary traits.

A spectacular hint of what they may mean comes from Stockholm, where Dr. Allan Bane and other scientists have added colchicine to the sperms of rabbits during artificial insemination.

THE WORLD'S LATEST in X-ray machines has just been installed at Notre Dame Hospital. It is of rotor type and has important clinical advantages over its predecessors. Here Dr. Paul Brodeur, the hospital's chief radiologist, is preparing a patient for treatment.

Tornado Claims Amount $70,846

SARNIA (CP)—The 36 claims resulting from tornado damage cost Lambton county $70,846, a report submitted to county council indicated Tuesday.

County Clerk John A. Huey said six claims in Sarnia township had been paid, eight in Arkona, 10 in Watford and 12 in Forest.

The amount paid represented 81 per cent of claims received.

Mr. Huey said the first payments representing 50 per cent of all claims, amounted to $45,725. Second payments, of 31 per cent, amounted to $25,120.

79TH BIRTHDAY — Carrying his familiar hat, cane and cigar, Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill waves as he leaves 10 Downing street, London, for the Houses of Parliament to attend the last minute business before his departure by air recently for the Big Three meeting in Bermuda. Sir Winston observed his 79th birthday on November 30th, but it was a day of business as usual the grand old statesman spent the morning in session with his cabinet and the remainder of the day tying up loose ends of government affairs before leaving England.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By CHARLES H. SPEARIN

THE SCOUT LAW; (From "Tenderfoot to Queen's Scout.")

The first point of the Scout Law is that "A Scout's Honor is to be Trusted."

If a scout says "on my honor it is so," that means it is so. If a scout leader says to a scout, "I trust you on your honor to do this," the scout is bound to carry out the order to the very best of his ability, and let nothing interfere with his doing so. If a scout were to break his honor by telling a lie, or by not carrying out an order when trusted to do so, he may be directed to hand over his scout badge, never to wear it again, and cease to call himself a scout. A scout is always on his honor.

At the last regular meeting of the Local Boy Scouts Association, completed registration forms had been received from No. 1 St. John's, and 2nd St. Luke's, 13th Mark St. and 17th St. Alban's.

7TH ST. PAUL'S CUB PACK

A combined meeting of the cubs and scouts of the 7th St. Paul's group was held in the Sunday School hall last Friday with Akela McLeod and Scouter Ballentine in charge. It was a parents' night with about 80 cubs, scouts and grown-ups attending. A highlight of the evening was the screening of the color film "Through the Years," an interesting and amusing picture portraying the styles and customs in the days when soft drinks were beginning to gain popular favor.

1ST. ST. JOHN'S PACK

Having passed his Law and Promise, Danny McDonald exchanged his Zulu Boy neckerchief for the regular purple and gold of the St. John's Pack as he was inducted into the rock circle of cubbing. Bob Yuden was presented with his first star by 'Skipper' Groombridge. Let's have that other "eye" open soon, Bob.

The following tests were passed: Bob Yuden, cleaning shoes and folding clothes; Gary Dalliday, fire lighting; Chris Sayers, flags; Bob Yuden, Bob Robertson, Bruce Cotton, Ian Young and Ron Winslow, highway code; Gary Dalliday, public telephone; David Fort, time.

Hartley Mitchell, from the Rosedale pack, Montreal, was welcomed to St. John's.

On Friday the St. John's Cub pack held a parents' night with forty parents present. Refreshments were served by the Mothers' Auxiliary.

District Commissioner Ed. Cotton presented David Irwin with his artist's badge and Garry Dalliday with his collector's badge. A. D. C. Earl Westman awarded the following service badges: the 3-year service badge to Jim Welsh, Jerry Sedgewick, David Gunn; the 2-year badge to Don Sherk, Bruce Cotton, Tom Lewis, Bob Barber and David Irwin; one year badge to Bob Yuden, Ian Young and Dennis Walton.

2ND ST. LUKE'S CUB PACK

Mr. and Mrs. Lee were on hand to see their son Rickey don the yelow and green neckerchief of the St. Luke's Pack as he was invested by Akela G. W. King. Don Hepburn was made seconder of the White Six.

The following tests were passed during the evening: Doug Price, book balancing; Jack Steen, first aid and compass; Bill Steen, hopping; Art McNabb, team players; Blair Greenly, athlete; Bob Kent, Knots and ball throwing; Garry Robinson, Knots and ball Thowing and Ron James, Knots.

3RD ST. GEORGE'S CUB PACK

The following boys were invested with the colors of the St. George's Pack at the regular meeting last week: Ronald Bell, Peter Bennett and David Gould. The boys' parents were present as they repeated their law and promise to become members of the brotherhood of scouting.

SCOUT UNIFORM EXCHANGE

The scout uniform exchange will be open for business in the basement of St. Paul's church from 2 to 4 p.m. on Thursday, December 3rd. The ladies in charge would welcome any articles of brownie or girl guide uniforms as well as cub and scout uniforms that mothers may offer for sale.

5TH PETERBOROUGH

On Tuesday evening the All Saints' Cub Pack was introduced to their two new leaders. Miss Lenore Grose will take over as Baloo, and Miss Eleanor Henderson will take over as Begherra. These two girls were formerly members of All Saints' Girl Guides.

After the jungle dance and inspection, two games were played, followed by instruction in knots. A knot relay followed, and was won by the Yellow Six.

When the points were finally totalled, the White Six was victorious with 151 points.

On Thursday the Scouts held their meeting. After inspection a game of British bulldog was played, and gained the Beaver Patrol 25 points, which brought their final total to 116. However, the Seal Patrol took the honors with 345 points.

A Court of Honor meeting was held after the Scouts were dismissed.

Beaming Boss Good As Break

TORONTO (CP) — A beaming boss with a kindly word can be just as good as a coffee break says Dr. Peter Nash of the industrial hygiene branch of the Ontario department of health.

Dr. Nash was member of a panel at the annual meeting of the health League of Canada which discussed the coffee break Tuesday. He said he once was medical officer at a candy factory where girls hired for the Christmas rush got no breaks morning or afternoon.

"It was found breaks were not needed and production kept up if the supervisor smiled and chatted with employees every half hour or so," he said.

Four Found Unconscious

FORT ERIE (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Merle Trombley and their four children were found unconscious from the effects of gas fumes Tuesday when Dr. Sandford English called at their house to treat Mrs. Trombley for a lung ailment. Inhalators were used to revive the victims. Faulty outlets on a gas furnace, water heater and stove were blamed.

TLC Wants Gov't Study Health Insurance

OTTAWA (CP)—A parliamentary committee to study National health insurance was the major proposal of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada in its annual legislative submission to the cabinet.

The 580,000-member congress said today establishment of such a committee at this session is the "very least" the government can do after receiving a new mandate to "proceed with a broad program of social reform and the furtherance of economic and national security."

"Canadians generally," the congress said, "want a national scheme of health insurance. . . .

"We therefore urgently request the government to proceed at this session of Parliament with plans for the earliest possible inauguration of a government-subsidized, contributory national health insurance scheme covering every citizen of Canada and which will include medical, surgical, dental and optical care, hospitalization, artificial limbs where necessary, psychiatric treatment and competently supervised mental homes."

MANY PROPOSALS

Health insurance headed a long list of proposals from the congress, Canada's oldest and largest, delivered to the cabinet in a 5,000-word brief. All were the outcome of policy resolutions adopted at congress conventions this year and in earlier years.

Some of the major ones:

1. Extension of unemployment insurance benefits to cover workers who become sick on the job. (Insurance was provided this year for workers who get sick after starting to draw benefits.)

2. Reduction of the waiting period for the start of insurance to two days from the present five after an employee is put out of work.

3. Increase to $2,400 from the present $1,200 in the amount of annual government annuity that can be bought.

4. A royal commission to investigate the "declining condition" of Canada's deep-sea merchant fleet, employing about 2,000 men. (The cabinet recently refused to recommend an operating subsidy for the fleet.)

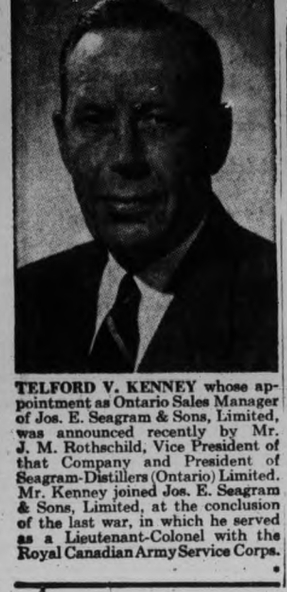
5. Housing legislation that would provide a down payment of no more than 10 per cent and longer mortgage payoff terms, plus low-rental housing subsidized by the government where necessary.

SHIFT IMMIGRATION

6. Shifting of immigration to the control of the labor department, along with an immigration commission to include labor representation.

7. Legislation to make the check-off of union dues mandatory on employers when authorized by the union recognized as bargaining agent.

8. Extension of the provisions of the federal labor code to all federal employees, who would be given the right to bargain collectively with the government. Also a five-day, 40-hour week for all federal employees.



9. A statutory two-weeks' vacation with pay and nine holidays with pay annually for all workers in industries under federal jurisdiction.

Dealing with taxation, the TLC renewed a demand that the personal income tax exemptions be raised to $3,000 for married persons and $1,500 for single persons. These now are $2,000 and $1,000.

OPPOSES SALES TAX

The congress also registered objection to "all forms of sales taxes."

On provisions for old age, the congress urged the universal pension of $40 a month be increased to $65 and the present qualifying age of 70 be lowered to 65 for men and 60 for women. There should be no means test, as now exists for the $40-a-month pension for those between 65 and 70.

Rothschild, Vice President of that Company and President of Seagram-Distillers (Ontario) Limited. Mr. Kenney joined Jos. E. Rev. Pollock Addresses WA

"Christmas" was the theme chosen by the Rev. I. G. Pollock for his thought-provoking address to the Woman's Association of St. Andrew's church Tuesday afternoon. As guest speaker for their Christmas meeting, he was introduced by Mrs. C. M. Scott and was thanked by Mrs. L. H. Keefer. Mrs. J. A. McColl presided at the piano for informal singing of carols. Mrs. D. A. MacTavish and Mrs. J. G. Wharry conducted the devotional period. President Mrs. J. A. Dewart presided for business and the usual reports were given. A very complete report showing unqualified success of the recent bazaar and tea was given by the general convener Mrs. Jack Richardson who also extended her thanks for the co-operation given her. Mrs. W. Mason's group convened the social hour at the close. Charming Christmas decorations in the room were arranged by Mrs. J. Heffernan.

✧ ✧ ✧

St. Paul's Choir Party

A very happy Christmas dinner party was enjoyed by the members of St. Paul's choir and their wives and husbands on Tuesday evening. The event was at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club where president Mr. George Coleman welcomed each guest. Tables were charmingly decorated for the occasion with silvered pine boughs, highlighted with colored balls and lighted tapers, and there were crackers and Christmas place cards at each plate. The head table was centred with a musical "church" which was playing Silent Night as the diners assembled. Organist and choir leader Mr. Christopher Gledhill and Mrs. Gledhill were presented with a tid-bit tray of hammered aluminum accompanied by Christmas greetings. Following dinner there was a choice of bingo or card games or dancing to round out the evening. Miss Florence Vickers and Mrs. Wm. Varty were in charge of the arrangements.

Supper Follows WA Meeting

The George Street WA's Christmas meeting was held in the board room Tuesday afternoon, followed by a supper and carol singing. President Mrs. W. H. Frise gave a Christmas theme and prayer and conducted the business. Mrs. George Munro's group was in charge of the devotions, Mrs. F. Barrett reading scripture and Mrs. M. McDonald leading in prayer. Two beautiful solos were contributed by Mrs. L. Slaughter, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ross Moore. Mrs. May Thompson delighted with one of her Christmas storys and was thanked, as were the other artists, by Mrs. Fred Horton. The Rev. E. W. Rowland closed the session with prayer, after which more than 100 ladies sat down at the supper tables for the meal prepared by Mrs. Horton and her committee. The carol sing song was led by Mr. Lloyd Starke with Miss Shirley Starke at the piano. Mrs. Arthur Metheral then showed very lovely colored slides including Coronation and local scenes.

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Dean Garlow (Mother of 5)

Grab-bag gaiety. An old pillow or sturdy shopping bag filled with inexpensive toys makes a magic grab-bag when other toddlers come to visit your tot. And children love choosing their own toys!

• • •

A tip-top appetite. You'll love the way baby's appetite grows when you give him good-tasting foods he likes and needs. Like Gerber's Strained Fruits, Vegetables, Meat-Soups and Desserts. Made by the folks who make "babies their business . . . their only business", they're tops in flavor, extra-appetizing in color and provide the solid nourishment your growing youngster needs. All are pre-cooked, ready to serve.

• • •

Very often babies at the six or seven months old stage show a definite inclination to shy away from the sandman. Parents who face this predicament might profitably induce sleep by remembering these pointers:

1. Soft lullabies (on or off key) are relaxing, do encourage sleep.
2. A well-satisfied tummy does much to help close little eyes.
3. Non-restricting sleeping garments are a must. Excitement is taboo.
4. Cuddling a favorite soft toy often works magic.

• • •

Share and share alike. If you've any tips you'd like to share with other mothers, send them to me: Box 17, Toronto 18, Canada.

Dessert delights definitely concocted to please a toddler's palate. Gerber's Junior fruits and puddings are so delicious with their delicate flavors. Nice variety for baby too—choice of Apricot Applesauce, Applesauce, Peaches, Pears, Pear Pineapple fruit desserts and Plums with Tapioca, Chocolate, and Pineapple puddings. Try them! Junior's bound to clamor for more.

Coronation Quilt Pictures Acknowledged By Queen

"Canada and Canadians" was the subject of the address given by the Rev. J. R. Wheeler, pastor of Roseneath United Church at the Christmas meeting of Roseneath Women's Institute.

The speaker presented a historical sketch of the Canadian people, beginning with the North American Indians and concluded by defining a Canadian as "a person who can make the best use of Canada and make it more enjoyable for people here."

Another highlight of the meeting was a personal letter read from Henrieta Abel Smith, Lady-in-Waiting, to her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II, acknowledging two photographs sent to Queen Elizabeth of the coronation quilt made by the members of Roseneath Women's Institute to commemorate the coronation.

Following is the letter received by Mrs. George Mouncey, treasurer of the W.I.

Dear Mrs. Mouncey:—

I write at the Queen's command to thank you for your kind thought in enclosing the pictures of the quilt made by the Roseneath Women's Institute.

Her Majesty was most interested to see these, and has much pleasure in accepting the photographs.

Yours Sincerely,
Henrieta Abel Smith
Lady-in-Waiting

The quilt, a prize winner at Roseneath fair was on display at the Belleville Area Women's Institute convention in October. The pattern on the quilt was designed by Mrs. Fred Norris a member of the local W.I.

The Christmas spirit was evident. The hall was tastefully decorated with evergreens, Christmas bells, pots of poinsettias were on the tables, and there was a gaily decorated tree. Christmas gifts were exchanged.

The meeting was held in the township hall, with Mrs. George Mouncey as hostess. The president, Mrs. Harold Taylor, presided.

It was decided to apply for a "travelling library" for the winter months. The library will be kept at the home of Mrs. Bart Thackeray.

A project "Aluminum Craft" will be sponsored by the WI members in January.

A food parcel of basic foods will be sent at once to Greece. Papers were brought in by members and were given to the Cobourg Boy Scouts. Christmas boxes, made from Christmas cards, were on display and will be filled and sent to the Sick Children's Hospital. Plans were made to pack good cheer boxes for the ill, the aged and the shut-ins of the community at Christmas. The committee in charge are: Mrs. Bart Thackeray, Mrs. Alfred Pringle, Mrs. Fred Murphy, Mrs. Clarence Thackeray and Mrs. Harold George.

Mrs. Alfred Pringle, convener of community activities, was in charge of the Christmas program. The roll call "A Christmas Verse" was well responded to by the members.

A reading, "The Little Lights of Christmas" by Mrs. Fred Norris; "A Christmas Quiz" by Mrs. Ernest Burrison was won by Mrs. Charlton Grigg's group. Lucille Robins recited, "I'm Too Shy"; Glenn Carew sang "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas". The convener read a poem, "Christmas," and was in charge of the exchange of gifts. The singing of "The Queen" concluded the program.

The hostess served afternoon tea and Christmas cake.

A CORONATION QUILT of broadcloth designed by Mrs. Fred Norris, and made by the Roseneath Women's Institute was photographed and the photo sent to the First-Lady-in-Waiting to the Queen. A reply was received from Henrietta Abel Smith, Lady-in-Waiting. The centre panel contains an image of the Queen with St. Edward's Crown in coronation purple and a gold and jewelled embroidery as a frame. The tails are made of artificial ermine while the face and hair is of crayon tinted embroidery. The dress is of cream color and the robe of cornation purple speckled with gold embroidered wheat heads. Gold embroidery make up the orb, sceptre, ring, bracelet, earrings, necklet and chain. The border around the centre panel is of gold material and quilted in maple leaves. The four applique blocks include a rose, shamrock and thistle in shades of rose, green and purple. Outside borders are of gold and purple material.

58-Year-Old Woman Wins Maritime Mayoral Election

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Gladys M. Porter, who becomes mayor of this Annapolis valley town with the new year, is going to take a rest before "starting things cooking" at town hall.

Defeating Mayor Roy W. Rottler by 128 votes in Tuesday's civic election, the 58-year-old Mrs Porter returned to the position she held as chief magistrate for two terms starting in 1946. She will be the only woman mayor in the Maritimes.

The campaign was quiet, unlike the hectic battle in 1950 when Mrs. Porter was defeated by Mr. Rottler, previously a member of her administration.

"Neither side made any promises but stood on their record," said Wyman Porter, husband of the mayor-elect who says he'll have to start calling himself "Mr. Gladys Porter" again. He is a newspaper man.

The vote Tuesday was 903 for Mrs. Porter against 775 for Mr Rottler.

COUNCILLOR THREE YEARS

Mrs. Porter, who served as councillor for three years before winning the 1946 mayoralty contest, says she doesn't consider herself a "great leader" or "great executive."

"I don't want to be either. I do want to serve Kentville. I have tried to do that in every way possible."

Aside from all that, tall, gracious Mrs. Porter also manages to hold her own as a cook and dressmaker.

Her interest in municipal affairs comes from her family. Her father, the late Wallace Richardson, became the first mayor of Sydney and was re-elected six times. Her uncle was a member of the Nova Scotia legislature.

DOROTHY DIX

Her Beau Is In The Service No Decision About Future

DEAR MISS DIX: Eight months ago I went on a blind date and I met a marvelous man named Frank. He's in service, stationed near my home, and we went out twice. He met my family and they approved highly of him. Then he went on leave to visit his , half a continent away. Toward the end of his leave, he asked me to come out and meet his people. I did.

His mother was most kind and asked me to write her while Frank was overseas and to visit her whenever I could. Then he left for service in Europe. Altogether we had known each other five months. Now, although Frank certainly seemed interested in me, nothing definite was said about our future. His family, however, seems to think our romance is serious. Since Frank probably will be gone a year, should I continue my friendship with his folks, visiting and writing them; should I try to forget him; or should I try to find out what his intentions are? We are both 21.

LINDA

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When a friendship involves a young man in service, things rarely go strictly according to traditional rule. Either the romance is accelerated, or retarded, beyond usual limits. If Frank had remained in this country, you wouldn't be in such a dither concerning his feelings. You'd be perfectly willing to go along for a few months, or a year, until you were mutually sure of each other. Now, however, the year apart looms like an enormous and insurmountable obstacle. Frank has handled his part of the situation beautifully.

NO DOUBT HE'S SERIOUS

While not wanting to rush you off your feet with a declaration of permanent intention, after three or four dates, he did want to have some assurance that you would be part of his future. Hence, his desire to have you and his people know each other. Barring unforseen circumstances, there's just about no doubt that he is serious, a fact that will doubtless be established through his correspondence. By all means, keep in touch with the family. If questions arise concerning your status, remind them that you and Frank have known each other just a short while and really haven't had time to explore the possibilities of your friendship. Your position may be a bit anomalous, but, as I indicated before, friendships involving servicemen can't be governed by rule.

PRINCESS MARGARET, wearing a fur coat, arrives at the Stock Exchange in London.

DEAR MISS DIX: During the past summer I met Sue, who is a quiet girl. At first I didn't care too much for her, since I am an active person. However, the longer I knew her, the more I liked her. She left for college, where she has two more years, but when she recently came home for a long week end, I realized I loved her and told her so. She answered that she wasn't altogether sure of her feeling for me. Should I forget her, or wait until I see her again?

CLIFF

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You may be the active kind, Cliff, but you certainly aren't the mature type. Or else you just think you love the girl, which I believe to be the case. Surely if your feeling for her were deep and sincere, you wouldn't be discouraged so easily. She'll be home for Christmas very shortly, and perhaps you'll both reach a conclusion. But please don't lead the lady on unless you're sure of your love.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I work for a large concern and have become attracted to a man who is employed on the same floor. Whenever I look up he seems to be staring at me. Occasionally he smiles, or says hello, but his eyes follow me everywhere. He's about twice my age .

ALICE

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Almost every firm has an office Romeo, and apparently the young man you mention plays that role in your place. He's probably married and is just looking for a mild flirtation. Ignore him, aside from the customarily polict greeting when you see each other.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Breaded Veal Cutlet On Special-Purpose Menu

The mushrooms are so white and firm at this time of year that mushroom addicts can have a heyday.

My two bairns were invited to Pete's girl friend's home for Sunday dinner, because Marianne had stayed with Zeni overnight after the out-of-town football game. It seems that Zeni's mother is an excellent cook and that I had better look to my laurels. Pete said she served a turkey platterful of fried chicken and breaded veal, and passed a mushroom sauce the like of which he had never tasted. "Make a mushroom sauce like it, will you Mum?" I'm supposed to be psychic.

Breaded Veal Cutlet with Mushroom Sauce
Baked Squqash Halves
Quick-cooked Spinach
Stuffed Baked Apples
Cheese and Crackers Coffee.

BREADED VEAL CUTLETS WITH MUSHROOM SAUCE

To serve 6 buy 2 lbs. of veal cutlet sliced ½-inch thick. (Veal cutlet compares to the round steak cut in beef.) If you prefer veal chops—even shoulder——may be done in the same way. Cut the meat into 6 pieces. Mix together ¾ cup fine dry breadcrumbs, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper. beat 1 egg and add 2 tablespoons cold water to it. Dip each piece of meat in the crumbs, then in the egg, then in crumbs again. Have melted in frying pan 2 tablespoons butter and brown the breaded veal in it on both sides. (Some cutlet veal and all loin veal chops will be cooked sufficiently in about 6 or 8 minutes.) However, if you are cooking mature veal or shoulder chops, add 3 tablespoons water to the pan after chops are browned, cover and simmer over lowest possible heat for 15 or 20 minutes OR bake ½ hour at 325 degrees Fahr. Remove cutlets to hot platter. To sediment in pan add 2 tablespoons butter or enough butter to make fat in pan up to 4 tablespoons. Add ½ lb. washed and sliced fresh mushrooms and stir over low heat until they wilt a little, then add 1 teaspoon grated onion, 4 tablespoons flour and stir until flour is soaked with fat, then add 2 cups boiling water and stir until thick. Now add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce OR monosodium glutamate and salt and pepper to taste. Pass at table. Do not pour this over the cutlets — it spoils their golden brown appearance. This mushroom sauce is a wonderful glamorizer for a common meat loaf. Use the fat left in the meat loaf pan as you would the sediment in the cutlet pan for making the mushroom sauce.

STUFFED BAKED APPLES

Use Courtlands or Spys for this just now. Wash large apples and remove cores and fill centres with this mixture (enough for six apples): 6 tablespoons brown sugar, ¼ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg, grated rind ½ lemon, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and 1 tablespoon chopped nuts OR preserved ginger OR candied orange peel. Bake at 425 degrees Fahr. about 30 to 40 minutes—time depends on size of apple. This hot oven makes apples break open and puff. Serve warm with ice cold pouring cream.

6—In Memoriam

HARRIS—In loving memory of our daughter Evelyn Isobel, December 2nd, 1936.
God knew that she was suffering
That the hills were hard to climb,
So he closer her weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine".
Away in the beautiful hills of God,
By the valley of rest so fair
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.
—Ever remembered by her mother, Dad and brother and sisters.

LITTLE—In loving memory of a dearly beloved husband and father, Ambrose Little, who passed away December 2nd, 1952.
He has not died who leaves us
For the better land of day,
He would not so bereave us,
He's only just away,
And right behind life's curtain,
Beyond all grief and pain,
There'll be a happy dawning
When we shall meet again.
—Always remembered by his wife and family.

PAVY—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Irene, who passed away Dec. 2, 1949.
Not just today, but every day
In silence we remember.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by her mother, sisters and brother; also son Dallas of Guelph.

Future Of Bonn Republic Discussion For Big Three

By LEON DENNEN

BONN, Germany—(NEA)—The future of the Bonn Republic as a sovereign European power will loom large in the Big Three talks at Bermuda—now that Moscow has locked the door on German unity negotiations.

The forthcoming meeting of the U.S., Britain and France, to begin Dec. 4, is thus anticipated with greater interest—and misgivings—in West Germany than in any other country of Europe.

For the Germans themselves the issue seems clear. They hope the three Western chiefs will agree at Bermuda on one of two things:

1. A sovereign West Germany as a partner in the European Defense Community and with France's consent.

2. A speedy end of the Allied occupation without necessarily waiting for French ratification of the European Army treaty.

This was spelled out clearly by Heinrich von Brentano, leader of the Christian Democratic majority in the Bonn Bundestag, in an exclusive interview with NEA.

Von Brentano, next to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, is probably the most influential political leader in Bonn. He is also the most Western-minded. Like Adenauer, von Brentano firmly supports the European Defense Community.

MOVE ESSENTIAL

"Creation of the European Defense Community is essential to the whole idea of a united Europe," von Brentano told me.

He said: "We have fulfilled our part of the bargain. Bonn has ratified the EDC treaty. Now it is our fervent hope that the other treaty partners will act without further delay."

Von Brentano voiced the belief that President Eisenhower and Britain's Prime Minister, Sir Winston Churchill, will be able to convince France's premier that the time has come to act boldly.

However, the German man-in-the-street does not share even von Brentano's mild optimism. West Germans have confidence in President Eisenhower. At no time since the defeat of Hitler has U.S. prestige been so high in the Bonn Republic.

But the ordinary German is not sure about Britain's intensions. He fears that Sir Winston, in his great desire to leave the political arena as the world's peace-maker, may even seek to throw a bone to Soviet Premier Georgi Malenkov at the expense of the Bonn Republic.

There is even less confidence in the French Premier's power to make binding decisions on behalf of France's multi-party National Assembly.

Meanwhile, the Germans are, understandably, getting somewhat impatient about their status.

* * *

Sovereignty was restored to the West German Republic 18 months ago by the Treaty of Bonn. However, this treaty was linked with the Treaty of Paris setting up the European Defense Community. Neither treaty has so far been ratified by France.

Now the Germans ask: "Why should we be penalized for French internal quarrels by being kept indefinitely in the legal position of an occupied country?"

There is another reason for Bonn's impatience. Like Sir Winston, Adenauer is 78 years old. He is also a man in a great hurry. If he cannot be a new Bismarck and unite Germany in his lifetime, he wants at least to leave the rump Bonn Republic safe in the Western democratic community.

Adenauer—and this is also the view of von Brentano—fears a rearmed Germany OUTSIDE the European community. He is not confident that the young republic could control alone the forces that would be set loose by a straighforward revival of the German army and the arsenals of the Ruhr.

The clock of history has moved on since last summer when the original Bermuda conference was to have been held.

Last July Europeans were hypnotized by the idea that the new Kremlin regime might really be willing to make peace. The Bermuda meeting was to have been but a step leading toward the fulfillment of Churchill's supreme project for a meeting with Malenkov.

Now it is clear that the Russians do not want an agreement on Germany. Their interests are best served by leaving the Western powers to wrangle among themselves while the Kremlin concentrates on consolidating its shaky power at home and in the satellites.

* * *

The task of harassing and weakening the West will be left by Moscow to the Cominform's fifth columns and supported by the continued exploitation of the "peace" offensive.

There is no longer any doubt that the Russians will not negotiate seriously until they have improved their bargaining position through a stronger hold on the satellites — especially revolt-ridden East Germany — and full international recognition of Communist China, including her entry to the UN and the Security Council.

With Soviet policy reverting to the old rigid Stalinist pattern, the Western powers have no option but to go on increasing their strength and improving their cohesion.

Building up Western military strength in Europe to include German rearmament will have to be given top consideration by the Bermuda conference.

A RADIANT QUEEN was cheered by more than 70,000 persons at Cristobal and Colon in the Panama Canal Zone. Here, Queen Elizabeth, followed by her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, crosses one of the big gates at Mirablores locks of Panama Canal. With them is Panama Canal Governor John Soybold (left).

CCF Leader Says Frost Indifferent

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, new Ontario CCF leader, said Tuesday the government of Premier Frost is indifferent to the legitimate demands of labor, farmers, school administrators and teachers because it has little opposition in the legislature.

He told the University of Toronto CCF Club that "top-heavy government majorities and numerically weak oppositions" create a "basically unhealthy political situation" in Ontario.

The answer was to build a strong democratic socialist party to provide real opposition to the "so-called free-enterprise party, be it called Conservative or Liberal."

The Best Policy

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Commended for his honesty in telling the truth why he left the scene of an accident, Magistrate Ivan B. Craig imposed a minimum fine of $50 and costs on Francis Nemeth, of Wallaceburg, Tuesday. Nemeth, who was charged with driving away after striking a bicycle and injuring the rider, told the court he was "just plain scared."

FAMOUS TONES

Big Ben, largest bell in the Westminster clock tower in London, weighs 13 tons.

Geese Gaggle, Just A Flock That's Not Airborne

WASHINGTON—"Didn't see even a gaggle of geese, but I raised a sord of mallards out of a raft."

Double talk? Not at all. That's just what an autumn sportsman might be saying, if all the old and odd words for groups of birds and animals were still in use today.

Translated, a "gaggle" is a flock of geese on the ground; a "sord" of mallards is a flight, and a "raft" a large group of birds on the water.

TERMS OF VENERY

In an out-of-the-way closet of the English language hides a colorful store of such expressions. Many are archaic and almost forgotten, but each was one the prescribed word for its job.

Elaborate glossaries for hunters and fishermen actually were compiled in bygone centuries. The more lengthy and complicated these "terms of venery" became, as in Shakespeare's day, the better could gentlemen sportsmen be told from the untutored.

Now writers scratch their heads to remember such phrases as a "clowder" of cats and a "kindle" of kittens, a "gang" of elk, and a "stud" of mares. Word collectors treasure such prizes as a "pride" of lions, a "sloth" of bears, a "sounder" of wild swine, a "pace" of asses, and a "leap" of leopards.

Some animal collectives are apt one-word descriptions: a "shrewdness" of apes, a "labor" of moles, a "skulk" of foxes, or a "barren" of mules. But whence came a "dray" of squirrels, a "rout" of wolves, or a "haras" of horses?

BIRDS IN A DOOL

Birds in a body were denoted by equally strang idioms. There is firm historical ground for speaking of a "dool" of turtledoves, a "pack" of ptarmigan, a "pod" of coots, or a "spring" of teal.

A "covey" of quail now is part of the language, but what about a "congregation" of plover, a "siege" of herons, a "muster" of peacocks, and a "walk" of snipe?

In the old poetic days, distinctions were precise: the "gaggle" meant only geese afoot; when they flew the group was a "skein". A "covey" of birds meant a single family. When several families flew together, the proper word became "bevy".

More expressive still were these old-timers: a "charm" of goldfinches, a "murmuration" of starlings, and an "exaltation" of larks.

Member Of Acting Family Makes Place For Himself In Britain

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—There's acting blood in Canadian Dermot Palmer's family. Maybe that's why he's making his way in British theatre circles.

The six-foot, four-inch Montreal actor is second cousin to Canadian-born Norma Shearer, a nephew of the retired Broadway actress and singer, Eileen Laurie, and the son of actress Gladys Laurie. And he's married to Pauline Leduc, Montreal actress-singer.

Using his Canadian war grant for army service Palmer came to Britain in 1946 for a two-year session with the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

Now the productions in which he has acted sound like a theatre review. He played the American officer in the Alan Ladd film "Red Beret" made here, and was "officer in charge of the harem" in "Babes in Baghdad," a film starring Paulette Goddard, Gypsy Rose Lee and radio celebrity Macdonald Parke of cornwall, Ont., and Toronto.

PLAYED WITH AMERICANS

The British-made films with American stars in which the 29-year-old Canadian has acted include "Circle of Danger" with Ray Milland, "Male War Bride" with Cary Grant, Ann Sheridan, and "Christopher Columbus" with Fredric March.

Most of his parts have been in productions with other Canadians. One was "Poet's Pub," a film with Calgary-born John McLaren in the cast and the West End stage play "Tobacco Road" with Montreal's Barbara Todd, Richard Nelson of Toronto and stars Mervyn Johns, Thora Hird and Robert Ayers.

His first stage part in Britain was in the West End play "Pick-up Girl," starring Vancouver-born Joan Miller. It was 1946, winter of post-war fuel cuts. The theatre was unheated and they wore summer clothes. "I used to dress up to go to bed," he recalls.

The biggest thing on his books at the moment is a half-hour television play in which he plays the male lead opposite French star Anouk. Made by Douglas Fairbanks for New York television circuits, it will soon be shown on movie screens here and in North America. Three or four such films are strung together and presented for motion picture entertainment.

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost Tuesday announced the appointment of Col. Lorne MacDonald as deputy general counsel of the Ontario hydro electric power commission. At present deputy minister to the premier, Col. MacDonald will assume his new duties after the 1954 session of the legislature.

BOY ARTISTS—A group of oil paintings by three prep-school art students at Upper Canada College in Toronto were described as "startling mature" by the Canadian sculptor and artist, Cleeve Horne. Two of the artists, Andy Till and John Anderson, both 12, are shown putting the finishing touches to their canvases.

History Of Oil Told In Exhibition

TORONTO (CP)—The history of oil is told in an exhibition at the Royal Ontario Museum here.

The story of oil, from its beginning millions of years ago in the form of tiny marine creatures to modern methods of extraction, is depicted in a sequence of models.

A fluorescent Panorama shows types of sea creatures whose millions of bodies were compressed to become oil, then the exhibition takes visitors through the ages to the period when men began drilling for oil.

The story of modern oil drilling is presented in miniature.

Dr. V. Ben Meen, museum director, described the exhibition as one of the most elaborate and factually correct ever shown in the museum.

New Blood-Thinning Drugs Will Save Heart Patients

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Blood-thinning drugs might have saved 640,000 Americans who died of heart attacks in the last 10 years, a life every eight minutes, a physician said today.

The drugs, anticoagulants, help dissolve or prevent blood clots which block the main artery to the heart. Dicoumarol and herparin are main examples.

How they have proved their life-saving ability was described to the American Medical Association by Dr. E Sterling Nichol of Miami.

In 10 years, probably 8,000,000 Americans have been stricken with these heart attacks, he said.

DEATH RATE CUT

"If anticoagulants had been used in all cases, the death rate would have been reduced from 24 to 16 per cent, which means 640,000 lives might have been saved. Actually, less than one-fifth of the cases were treated, but even so at least 100,000 probably have been saved."

The drugs can work if given before, or even after some heart attacks, Dr. Nichol said. The heart attacks often given warning signals; hours or even weeks before the damaging blockade of the heart. Certain pains are a main warning signal.

OTHER REPORTS

The drugs must be used carefully, to prevent haemorrhage from too-thin blood, Dr. Nichol said

Other significant reports said:

Certain types of chronic, itchy skin eruptions may often be caused by not eating enough proteins, such as meat, eggs and fish. Bed sores, slow healing of surgical wounds, and some serious skin diseases also can often be relieved by eating more protein.

Rheumatic fever, the heart disease striking mainly in childhood, can be prevented by a single shot of a long-lasting form of penicillin. Bicillin, given whenever strep sore throats appear. The heart-damaging fever often follows strep infections.

RHEE AND CHIANG TO CONFER — South Korea's President Syngman Rhee (left) and Nationalist China's leader, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, review a guard of honor at Taipeh, Formosa. Rhee flew to Formosa for a series of conferences with Chiang, possibly to complete a military alliance between the two governments.

German Goods For Greece

BONN—The Germans who were mortal enemies of Greece in the last war, are rapidly establishing for themselves a position of post-war economic influence in Athens.

The West German Government anno[illegible] recently that $50,000,000 wor[illegible]rm credits are being granted to the Greeks, a nation with a perennial need of foreign investment capital. The Dusseldorf economic news agency has reported that the total German credits may run as high as $75,000,000.

These grants are in part a result of a recent visit here by Greece's Minister for Economic Co-ordination, Spyros Markezinis, widely known as a brilliant economist. Mr. Markezinis, appeared to have had far more success in Bonn than on his trip to London for financial talks with the British government in July.

The extent of German moves to acquire new business and prestige in the Southern Balkans became clear earlier this fall. First there was an extremely heavy German participation in the trade fair at the North Greek port of Salonika. West German firms numbered 270 out of a total of 660 foreign exhibitors, compared, for example, with 123 from Britain.

Also this fall negotiations were reported between the Krupp industrial interests and the Greeks for the construction of a nickel works to exploit ores in the region of Larymna, north of Athens.

Alfred Krupp, head of the firm, entertained Mr. Markezinis and other Greek officials in Essen recently and gave him a tour, among other things, of the Krupp locomotive factory. Besides the nickel works, the Krupp interests are also reported to have undertaken to deliver machinery for a Greek power station and for other factories.

Other leading German firms dealing with the Greeks include the large electrical equipment companies AEG and Siemens.

Mr. Markezinis' conversations in Germany also included discussions of the oil refinery construction.

The Greek mission came to Bonn singing such praises of German goods and German workmanship that the Rhur industrialists were highly pleased. The Dusseldorf paper "Industriekurier" remarked cryptically, "it may even have foreign policy reasons when the Greeks turn to Germans using such a tone."

Canadian Army Make-Up Unbalanced Commons Told

OTTAWA (CP) — Back-benchers are carrying the throne speech debate down the home stretch.

Once the debate is out of the way, perhaps by Thursday night, the Commons can start consideration of government legislation. The debate started Nov. 16.

A dozen back-benchers from all four parties spoke their piece Tuesday.

Lt.-Col. Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) said the Canadian Army should include more armored units. Otherwise, the infantry would be exposed to needless casualties in event of war.

Col. Churchill, machine-gunner in the First World War and commander of a carrier regiment in the second, said army makeup is out of balance. It had only two squadrons of armor. More tank regiments would mean increased mobility.

URGE NATIONAL FLAG

Raymond Bruneau (L — Glengarry-Prescott) urged consideration of a national flag and proposed establishment of a federal youth department.

William M. Howe (PC—Wellington-Huron) said the government should give some direction so industry would realize the advantages, particularly for defence, of settling in smaller communities.

Alexis Caron (L—Hull) criticized the Quebec government for turning down federal grants to universities.

"The citizens of the province pay their share of these grants, and because of the provincial government's attitude all other provinces but Quebec are the beneficiaries."

SPECIAL RATES

N. C. Schneider (L — Waterloo South) said servicemen should be able to travel on the railways for half-fare in cases where their transportation is not paid by the forces.

Dr. Owen C. Trainor (PC—Winnipeg South) said if a halt weren't called to requests for government subsidies, the government might have to consider subsidies for all Canadians to help them pay their taxes.

Court Dismisses $40,000 Action

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A $40,000 action against Imperial Oil Limited, of Toronto, was dismissed with costs by Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel in Supreme Court here Tuesday.

The suit had been brought by James W. Baxter, Woodstock, who claimed that while beginning construction of a motel and service station near Eastwood in early 1950, Imperial Oil agreed to take a $10,000 mortgage on the building but backed out.

Mr. Justice LeBel said he was satisfied the mortgage loan contract never passed the negotiation stage. Evidence was that the oil company refused to finalize the agreement until Baxter proved he had the financial ability to sponsor the project. Company officials said he failed to do this.

Imperial Oil's claim for $572 against Baxter was allowed along with costs. The Woodstock man had obtained gas, oil, tires and similar products to this amount under a credit card.

ENRAGED — French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault (above) became enraged when Premier Joseph Laniel told the French National Assembly he would resign unless he won a vote of confidence by an absolute majority on the European Unity issue. Bidault handed his resignation to the Premier who refused to accept it. Laniel received a simple majority instead of the absolute majority he wanted.

Prominent Young Britons Dig Ditches At Kitimat

KITIMAT, B.C. (CP) — Young members of prominent British families have rolled up their sleeves at the Aluminum Company of Canada's huge development here and seem to thrive on the hard work.

Miles Gladwyn Jebb, 23, now a $1.50-an-hour laborer, was educated at Eton and Oxford and is the son of Sir Gladwyn Jebb, Britain's new ambassador to France. He was a lieutenant in the Welsh Guards.

Miles is trying to earn enough to pay for a tour of North America as the dollar allowance granted by the British government is insufficient. He has shared a tent with several backwoods boys, washed his own clothes, lined up at the cookhouse and dug ditches.

NO PAMPERING

At first he was placed in the camp office, but he insisted he did not want to be pampered. Next day he was digging ditches.

When Adrian Allenby, grandson of Field Marshal Lord Allenby, arrived he was put to sweeping out the carpenters' shop. But it meant no overtime, so the Cambridge University man asked for and got outside labor. He, too, seeks an American tour.

Kenneth Symington, son of England's soup king, took off happily on his tour after working on the laundry truck.

There are other British public school boys digging ditches just as earnestly as they would play a tense cricket match. Once a week they put on collar and tie and dine together in the mess hall, but so far none has worn white tie and tails.

Travelled Light

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Twenty of the passengers on the liner Wanganella from Australia arrived here with nothing to declare to customs. All their baggage had been accdientally left behind in a railway carriage in Australia.

MARY HAD A LITTLE LAMB—She's somewhat older than Mary, but lovely Rosemary Kramer takes time to make friends with a woolly exhibit at the International Livestock Show in Chicago, Ill. Her friend is a Southdown wether lamb named "Purdues," entered by students at Purdue University.

South Africa's Demands Embarrassing To Britain

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

PRETORIA (Reuters) — South African government demands for the incorporation of the British-run territories of Bechuanaland, Basutoland and Swaziland into the union within the next five years may reach an embarrassing impasse if Prime Minister Daniel Malan continues them.

Britain is pledged to consult the native inhabitants as well as Parliament before any transfer and may have to demand assurances which Malan's Nationalist government could not satisfy.

In past negotiations, the native peoples have opposed any transfer to South African government.

Malan's restrictive policies for colored peoples are likely to have hardened that view.

More than once this year, Malan has told the South African Parliament that the position of the so-called high commission territories inside South Africa's boundaries was intolerable and that the country's patience for a settlement was exhausted.

These outspoken statements have suddenly and publicly revived an issue long dormant. Now, however, Malan has set a time limit for a settlement—within five years, that is, within the life of his newly re-elected government.

GREAT RESPONSIBILITY

Many opponents of the government wonder whether South Africa really wants the responsibility of another million Africans to add to the 10,000,000 colored peoples she already administers.

Malan has expressed concern that Britain may think of creating another Gold Coast or Nigeria with native government in the protectorates. He has also expressed the hope that recent British disclosures of investments does not mean the British are "digging in."

Addressing the Orange Free State congress of the Nationalist party, the Prime Minister said that the South African government would consider sending a petition to the British government from both South African houses of Parliament.

All three territories asked to be left out of the Union of South Africa when it was established in 1909. Their wishes were granted but provision was made for their eventual transfer subject to conditions for the protection of native rights and interests.

Prisoners' Efforts Bring $233,307

TORONTO (CP) — Deputy Reforms Minister Hedley Basher told the select committee on reform institutions Tuesday that articles manufactured by prisoners in Ontario jails during the year ending last April brought the department a profit of $233,307.82.

He said the figure would have been at least $626,554 if the firms that bought the products had been charged the same prices they would have had to pay to outside companies.

Citizens Jam Auditorium

"Without seeing the details of your assessment, I can't answer that," said the mayor.

"Do you want to see them?" asked Mr. Williams, who proceeded to fumble around in his pockets until he finally produced both his 1952 and 1953 assessment notices from his overcoat pocket, while the audience rocked with laughter.

After hurried calculations by the members of the press and an attempt by another member of the audience to explain Mr. Williams' predicament, Mrs. Carley finally rang the bell on the mayor's question period. But the doughty questioner had succeeded in putting the audience in a good humor and extracting the promise of a private interview from the mayor.

WILL BUILD CENTRE

The other mayoralty candidate, ex-Ald. Norman Graham assured the audience that the Memorial Centre would be built this year. Charging that the zoning bylaw had been broken time and time again, he said he would like to see the new bylaw "left as it is this time and not monkeyed with."

Criticizing the city's purchase of land for new industry he asked: "How can we sell land at $1,000 an acre that won't even stand the vibration of a pri ing machine?" and charged that one company had not located here for that reason.

Mr. Graham thought a lot of interest was being taken in the working man. He said he wasn't critical of anyone in council but believed that if the Quaker Oats strike "had been taken in hand, it could have been ended at the end of two weeks."

Mr. Graham htought a lot of money was being spent unnecessarily. "I don't want to knock any of the departments," he said, causing a ripple of laughter. "But here we have four or five trucks going home every night with the superintendents. If you think these trucks are standing in their yards, you're crazy."

Mr. Graham charged that the sanitation superintendent had proposed to mechanize his department while, at the same time, he was dickering for a job in Kingston.

A member of the audience then reminded Mr. Graham that he had not completed a single term as alderman. "What assurance have we that he will complete his term as mayor?" it was asked.

"The first year, I had a nervous breakdown; and it was not due to liquor," Mr. Graham said. "It was the same thing Dr. Langley has been going through with the utilities commission—frustration. I promise I'll fulfill my first term without taking a drop of liquor."

Mr. Graham's next questioner was Ald. A. B. Burrows who attributed words exchanged between himself and Mr. Graham to "the heat of the campaign."

"Was the $4,000 job you referred to the other night the one done by the parks department on the Masonic Hall property?" the alderman asked. "If so, do you want me to tell you how much the bill was?"

"No, Ald. Burrows," Mr. Graham said. "The bill was for $261.-91. People can't work for a year and a half for $261.91."

"Was that the job?" Ald. Burrows asked again.

"That was one of the jobs."

"Was it THE job?"

"I might say yes; it was."

"The actual amount was $324.-73, which was the amount submitted November 24 to the Masonic Hall and paid for during the last few days," Ald. Burrows said.

"You'd better fire that superintendent," Mr. Graham said.

"I'll play honest; I'll play ball and you can bet everything will be done right," Mr. Graham promised.

Reviewing her work on various voluntary organizations, including the Civic Arena committee, Mrs. Edith Addyman said she hoped the Memorial Centre would be constructed soon.

BREAKING FAITH

Ald. P. J. Anglesey also took a crack at explaining the effects of the re-assessment and said that the city should not spend more money next year than last. "If we do that, we're breaking faith," he said.

Ald. Syd Black said that every major question being aired had been given careful consideration in council. Negotiations for new industries has not been publicized because of competition from other centres.

A diversification of industry would help to keep employment up during a depression.

George W. Carphin felt the city shouldn't build up too great a debenture debt and the industrial, commercial and miscellaneous assessments should be 52 to 54 per cent of the total, rather than 50 per cent. He felt the annexation from Smith township of property a third the size of the city was unnecessary and charged that only 28 of 1,256 acres had been used.

Ald. J. A. Dewart reviewed his work as chairman of the board of health and the manufacturers' and civil defence committees. All the sources of pollution of Little Lake, Jackson Park creek and the Otonabee river were now known. The industries responsible were co-operating 100 per cent and it was hoped to overcome the problem soon. The health department had, for the first time, qualified for substantial grants and it was hoped to receive $19,-000 from this source next year.

The industrial commissioner was in "constant touch" with 232 firms but Peterborough was unfortunately situated, compared with lakefront cities, in having to use rail and highway transportation. As a result, the city was concentrating on attracting light industries.

Edward Hardie said Peterborough had some of the finest industries in Canada. Yet there were scores of wage earners living outside the city. It was more important to provide housing to keep their wages in the city than to attract new industries.

Mrs. Alene Holt charged it was foolish for a candidate to say what he was going to do. The facts and problems had to be analyzed as they came up.

Ald. H. S. Longhurst said one of the reasons taxes had increased was economic improvement, which brought higher costs and increased wages for city employees. All council could do was to see where they could save on small things and hope an accumulation of these would lead to saving a large amount.

COURAGEOUS COUNCIL

Ald. T. D. Miller described the 1953 council as courageous. "We have accomplished things previous councils have been considering as many as 15 or 20 years," he said, mentioning the new water main to Downer's Corners and the sewer in the west end, providing new areas for housing development to the east and west.

He said the expansion of existing industry "far exceeds anything we could get in small industries," which would want "special concessions which we are not prepared to give, legal or otherwise."

Stanley McBride promised: "If I'm elected and I happen to think of something intelligent for the betterment of the city, I will come out with it. If there's something I disapprove of, I will do so."

W. Gordon Powell said many citizens were disappointed in the city's failure to attract new industry and named a number of municipalities that had done so, some of them not on the waterfront. He said the best way to pay for annexed areas was to fill them with houses.

Glenn Price supported construction of the Memorial Centre, the zoning bylaw and the opportunity to vote for one alderman on the ballot. He described the re-assessment as "a necessary evil. If council holds the mill rate down, it won't amount to too much for most of us."

Jack C. Smith said he was the first volunteer to run for council without a sponsor. "I believe a volunteer will do a real job because he likes to do it."

William Triggs promised to help hold the mill rate down and agreed that some of the tax burden should be taken off homeowners. "I don't believe they should clutter up the streets with these slot machines they call parking meters," he added.

Fred Tuggey said it was time to construct the Memorial Centre. "Do you want it constructed? If you do, vote for Fred Tuggey."

He wondered if the city had discussed the re-assessment with the assessment department and said he believed one of the reasons the total assessment had been raised was to lower the mill rate and attract new industry.

CELL CHANGES in rats which had been subjected to radioactivity are studied as one aspect of research at the Montreal Cancer Institute. Here Dr. Roger Daoust is handling radioactive material with phosphorous tracer which is injected into laboratory animals. After a day under this cover the rats are killed and the development of new compounds in the body is analyzed.

$3,100 Damage In Triple Crash

STRATFORD (CP)—Two Stratford youths were injured and $3,100 damage was caused Tuesday in a triple crash on a highway near here.

William Weitzel and Wesley Mulford suffered face cuts when their car collided with a tractor trailer. Police said the impact snapped off the trailer's rear dual wheels and sent them flying through the air into a car driven by Robert Herlich of Stratford.

Driver of the tractor trailer was Victor Solomon of Toronto. Neither he nor Herlich were hurt.

Heavy Snowfalls

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Two heavy snowfalls here last month produced almost as much snow as all of last winter. Thirteen inches piled up, just two inches short of the total for the 1952-53 season.

Grain Exchange President Calls For Open Market

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Stanley Jones, president of the Winnipeg grain exchange, said Tuesday night the present system of marketing Canadian wheat has failed to move abundant production into use, and called for restoration of an open market.

The Canadian wheat board has handled all Canadian wheat sales since wheat future trading was suspended on the Winnipeg grain exchange in 1943.

In an address prepared for delivery to the annual meeting of the London Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Jones called the method "monopolistic price-fixing." Referring to Canada's "very high" wheat stocks totalling 805,000,000 bushels in mid-November, he said, "The solution to the problem is sales."

NEED MARKETING PLAN

"By this I do not mean a fire sale at distress prices, but rather a marketing method which will allow for a sales policy of continuously moving wheat into the hands of consumers at prevailing prices," he said. "I know of no better method than the open market."

Mr. Jones cited figures to show that in a previous period of heavy production and an open market carryovers were smaller than in recent times, exports were greater and returns to producers were better.

ALWAYS FAILURE

He said that under the present system the wheat price is artificially set. History had recorded many instances where kings, princes, dictators and governments had tried to perform "this impossible task" and the outcome had always been failure.

"Usually the augury of failure was an accumulation of large unsold surpluses."

Mr. Jones estimated there would be a world supply of 1,400,000,000 bushels of wheat at the end of the current crop year next July 31—350,000,000 more than the carryover at the start of the crop year.

Need Some Plain Speaking On Canadian-U.S. Trade

HALIFAX (CP)—Possibility of some unfavorable tendencies in the near future is "no reason for undue concern," H. L. Enman, president of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said today.

C. Sydney Frost, general manager, noting proposals in the United States for further restrictions against Canadian products, said the time has come for "plain speaking" regarding Canadian-American trade.

Both made their comments in prepared addresses to the bank's annual meeting.

"Population and production have been growing steadily. There is real momentum in our economic growth. Rising population in itself provides a strong underlying stimulus to economic expansion," said Mr. Enman.

MAIN QUESTIONS

Main questions about the future, Mr. Enman stated, centre tround the following factors:

"Most of the basic products of our export industries are less scarce, and in the case of grains more plentiful, than at any time since the war; accumulated demands for durable consumer goods and for industrial plant and equipment have been notably reduced; and the possibility of some reaction in United States business."

He thought the Canadian economy would likely be more sensitive to U.S. developments than was the case during the mild U.S. recession of 1949.

"In the circumstances, competition may well become keener both in export markets and in the domestic market. Such a prospect places special emphasis on the importance of keeping costs in hand, of increasing efficiency, and of putting even more effort and ingenuity into selling."

SUGGESTS MORE STUDY

Mr. Frost, in his comments on Canadian-American trade, said:

"Some of our friends in the United States, who are currently proposing new restrictions against imports, including such important Canadian products as lead, zinc, frozen-fish fillets and oats, should take a good look at their trading relations with Canada.

"They should observe that their current transactions with Canada result in a surplus for them now running at considerably more than $1,000,000,000 per year. They should realize that our ability to buy from them—and we are by far their largest customer—depends to a great extent on our ability to sell to them.

"They should also realize that our ability to settle deficits with them depends on our ability to sell to other countries whose capacity to pay us in turn depends to an important degree on these other countries obtaining better access to the U.S. market.

"They should reflect on the obvious fact that demands for protection against U.S. imports are growing in Canada, in part because their market is so difficult for many of our producers to enter and also because of the threats which are too frequently raised against Canadian products which have gained a position in the U.S. market."

CONSUMER CREDIT LEAPS

Commenting on increases in consumer credit, Mr. Frost said:

"Repayments cut into current purchasing power and beyond a certain point a buyer cannot go on adding to his indebtedness . . . .

"The increase in consumer credit has been anything but gradual—70 per cent in 15 months—and though we can regard it in part as a rebound after a period of restriction, it is probable that we have been building up current sales to some extent at the expense of future sales."

RCMP Curtails Smuggling

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP has cut cigarette smuggling business almost by half in the last year, a parliamentary return indicates.

The return, tabled in the Commons Tuesday by the state secretary's department for J. W. Murphy (PC — Lambton West) gave these figures:

Last year, 24,893,540 smuggled cigarettes were seized. 23,251,360 of them in Quebec alone.

In the first 10 months this year, 12,626,855 smuggled cigarettes were seized, 11,478,727 in Quebec.

The return gave no indication how many cigarets are smuggled into Canada without being spotted.

The return also showed cigarette importers paid $1,573,097 in excise taxes last year and $1,564,455 in the first 10 months this year.

Inquest Ordered

HUNTSVILLE (CP)—Kenneth S. Eacord, 23, was found dead Tuesday in his car parked on a side road south of here. Police said the car engine had been running several hours. An inquest will be held.

Soldiers Arrive Home

HALIFAX (CP)—Seven hundred members of Canada's 27th brigade returned from Germany aboard the liner Neptunia Tuesday. They were welcomed by Col. H. E. T. Doucette, army chief of staff for eastern command.

Owen Sound Sun-Times Ends Century In Journalism

OWEN SOUND (CP)—The story of a century of publishing in this Georgian bay centre is told today in the centennial issue of the Owen Sound Sun-Times, marking the anniversary of the founding of the Times, Dec. 2, 1853.

A special section without advertising is devoted to an exciting chapter, dating from the days when the settlement of Sydenham was a remote community of Canada West in Canadian newspaper history.

The Sun-Times, published daily since May 1, 1922, has emerged as the survivor of nine local newspaper ventures.

The publisher, Howard Fleming, is in his 50th year in the newspaper profession. He was publisher of the Sun from 1904 and of the Sun-Times since the merger of the papers in 1918. The general manager, Charles J. McTavish, started his newspaper career on the Sun-Times 32 years ago and has been general manager since 1939.

The founder of the times was Richard Carney, first mayor of Owen Sound and first warden of Grey county. A prominent business man and political figure in the pioneer community, he later became the first sheriff of the District of Algoma.

EARLY DIFFICULTIES

The founding of the Times coincided with institution of Grey county. Only two years earlier the village had adopted the name Owen Sound to distinguish it by name from the township of Sydenham. Originally a four-page paper, the Times was published under great difficulties in a section of the province that was still being served only by lake schooners and steamers and overland stages.

The Times, before being merged with the Sun, passed through many hands and, including the founder, had eight owners. Four years after its establishment, Mr. Carney sold the newspaper to his son-in-law, P. G. Lawrie. Two years later it was sold to Edward Todd and remained under his control until 1863. William Wye Smith, noted author and poet of that period, was the owner for a year.

In 1864 it was purchased by two of its own young printers, John Rutherford and David Creighton. The latter represented Grey North in the Ontario legislature, became a prominent figure in the Conservative party and was called upon by Sir John A. Macdonald to organize and become editor-in-chief of the Toronto Empire in 1887.

PARTNERSHIP DISSOLVED

The Creighton-Rutherford partnership was dissolved in 1868 with Creighton remaining as publisher.

When Creighton left for Toronto the paper came under control of a son of John Rutherford, James H. Rutherford. He remained as its progressive editor and publisher for 30 years until the merger with the Sun.

The Sun was established in 1890 by Joseph Lang and was owned by three publishing partnerships before it was sold in 1904 to the late C. A. Fleming and Howard Fleming, his son. In 1916 the Fleming Publishing Company Ltd. was incorporated and two years later brought about the merger of the Sun and the Times.

The newspaper moved into a modern publishing plant in February, 1950.

The anniversary will be celebrated tonight at a staff dinner in the Owen Sound armories. The speaker will be Louis Blake Duff of Welland, veteran Ontario newspaperman, publisher and historian.

Follow Past Leaders Worthy Ambition

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator John J. Connolly (L — Ontario) Tuesday said in his maiden speech in the Senate that a worthy ambition for new members of Parliament or senators is to follow in the footsteps of leaders of the past.

He said during the throne speech debate that they also should try to understand the motives and methods of former Canadian leaders who showed statesmanship in their conduct of public affairs since Confederation.

Mink-Clad Matrons Mob Courtroom To See Paris Passion Murder Trial

By ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS—(NEA)—Two thousand people crowded into the Court of Assizes for three days and heard 26-year-old Pauline Dubuisson condemned to life imprisonment for the murder of her 27-year-old lover and fellow medical student, Felix Bailly. It was a difficult verdict for a French jury—but it was Paris' most exciting trial in years.

In deathly silence the public listened to the impassioned plea for mercy of the girl's counsel, Maitre Baudet, which brought tears to the eyes of the public. Even the two hefty gendarmes sitting on either side of the prisoner appeared moved.

The public prosecutor, Maitre Lindon, had been merciless. Only death could wipe out this crime, accomplished in cold blood, was his conclusion.

It took the jury—eleven men and one woman—only 45 minutes to condemn Pauline. After listening to the verdict, Pauline Dubuissons heaved a long sigh. Then she leaned over towards her counsel and smiled sadly, the first time in three days, before being removed from the court.

Scheduled to appear before a grand jury a month before her trial actually began, Pauline had attempted to commit suicide in her cell by slashing her wrist. She had left a letter saying she preferred to die rather than face a public "who had not changed since the howling mob of the Revolution".

The atmosphere was charged with the excitement of a bullfight when the trial opened. The courtroom was crowded, with women in the majority. Many were mink-coated, wearing pert Parisian hats. Others were obviously poor.

All had one thing in common—the desire for strong emotions. They reminded one of their forbears, the "tricoteuses," women who sat knitting at the foot of the guillotine during the Revolution watching heads fall. Many had stood in line every day, waiting for the court to open, and stood again during the hours-long hearings.

Pauline, throughout her trial, maintained calm. A slender, intelligent-looking girl, she had a wealth of curly chestnut hair framing a deathly pale face and somber eyes framed in long dark lashes. She wore a plain navy suit, white blouse open at the neck.

There was nothing sensational about her but everyone was conscious of her charm and sex appeal.

It was in 1946 that Pauline met Felix at the Medical School of Lille. She became his mistress four days later. Although their romance was stormy, it lasted three years. But during this time, it was proved, she indulged in affairs with other men and refused to marry Felix.

Then, at the beginning of 1949, he decided to break away and came to Paris to continue his studies. There he fell violently in love with a young girl, Monique Lombard, and became engaged to her.

"It was then that I realized that I loved him," said Pauline.

She did nothing about Felix for 18 months, even spent weekends with other men. Then one day, receiving no reply to her letters, she came to Paris. The ex-lovers met and spent the night together, but Felix refused to give up his fiancee. Two weeks later Pauline returned, this time with a gun.

"I meant to kill myself before him if he continued to refuse to discard Monique," Pauline testified.

The prosecution swept this explanation aside. Pauline, declared the prosecutor, murdered Felix "without passion, in cold blood, out of a woman's spite for a man who refused her because he loved another."

Evidence showed that the accused had started her love life at the age of 14. Yet she came from a well-to-do middle-class family and received a sound education. Her father committeed suicide shortly after she was arrested.

Paris devoured every bit of evidence in the trial of the year.

TRIAL OFF because Pauline attempted suicide, Paris police surgeon explains to the court—with gestures.

TRIAL ON when Pauline recovered, and, with a gendarme standing by, takes her place calmly in the prisoner's dock.

U.S. Tariff Laws Affect Canada

NEW YORK (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton, stressing the dependence of military strength upon economic stability, said Tuesday night that United States trade policies are of "great direct concern" to Canada.

In what he called a "frank" speech prepared for delivery to the Lotos Club of New York, Mr. Claxton said there has been "grave apprehension" in Canada about any possible stiffening of U.S. tariff laws affecting Canadian products.

The Lotos Club is a private organization which periodically gives dinners honoring persons prominent in politics and industry.

He said it was in the strategic as well as economic interests of the United States to see that nothing marred the present trade relationship between that country and Canada.

Stress On Quality For Fish Market

OTTAWA (CP)—The annual report of the fisheries department says the seller's market of 1940-51 "is gradually giving way."

The report, tabled Tuesday in the Commons, said "more attention has to be paid to quality of product." The fish trade, like others, was reacting more sensitively to supply conditions.

The report, covering the 1952-53 fiscal year, says: "A pattern of international agreement is being built up that covers all the fishery resources in the oceans adjacent to our coasts and we hope also on the Great Lakes. Canada now has a series of fisheries agreements more complete probably than any other country in the world."

Canadian fishermen landed 1,900,000,000 pounds of fish in 1952 worth $178,000,000. This was some 100,000,000 pounds and $22,000,000 below the annual average.

Montreal Province Motion Defeated

MONTREAL (CP)—City council Tuesday defeated, 68-5, a motion by Councillor Harve Ravary to establish a province of Montreal within the Canadian confederation.

Councillor Ravary said financial and other problems of Montreal are caused largely because the greater part of the city's revenues is drained off by the province, "which refuses to assume its fair share of expenditures incurred by the city for the benefit of the province."

Montreal's autonomy "is nothing more than an empty word" and its whole administration and progress are "paralyzed by the lack of understanding of Quebec legislators," he said.

3 Unionists Guilty Of Wilful Damage

WINDSOR (CP) — Three members of the International Teamsters Union of America (AFL-TLC) Tuesday were found guilty of causing wilful damage to a truck during the Ontario truckers' strike last August.

Clayton Meyers, Edward Thibeault and Edmond Craig, all of Windsor, will be sentenced Friday and held in custody until that time.

The charges arose after a group of about 50 strikers overturned a truck last Aug. 13 causing $1,000 damage.

Dutch Close Last Flood Gap

THE HAGUE — In a miracle composed of time, hard work and ingenuity, the Dutch have closed the last of the great gaps which the February floods opened in their outer seawall defences, but the long-term rehabilitation of farms and homes is only beginning in earnest.

With the sea dikes closed, work has begun on the final pumping of the below-sea-level "polders", or farmland patches which the dikes protect. Many thousands of acres of the richest land in Holland have been under salt water for nine months now, and it will be another two months before the last of the water is expelled out to sea. Next year's crops will at best be scratchy efforts to help restore soil fertility; it will be two or three crop years at least before the land will begin to equal its pre-flood yield.

The achievement of the Dutch in these nine months — which they admit exceed their best hopes and plans—is only a measure of the problem. The outer dikes are closed, the pumping of the water is in its final stages—but the waste and flotsam, the brown-gray desolation and the ruin of land once green and rich and fertile and placid is nothing less than appalling.

Driving out to see the closure of the last of the seawall gaps on the coast of the island of Schouwen-Duiveland, we picked up a farmer whose taciturn matter-of-fact tale gives some measures of the job still to be done. His village of Oesterland was inundated by 12 feet of water on the night of Feb. 1, and he stayed on in the storm for four days until it was clear that things were hopeless and he was evacuated to the mainland.

With his wife and three children, he lived for seven months near Utrecht, in the centre of Holland. Two months ago he returned alone. Of 2,000 residents of the town, only 500 are back, doubled up and living in the few rooms and houses which have been cleaned up and repaired. The water has been off his land for three months, but in the very next "polder", barely half a mile away, it has only just begun to clear with the closing of the last seawall gap.

He gets a little relief money from the government, and there is nothing to do but work at cleaning up. The village farm machinery, rusted and barnacle-covered, is piled high in the yard of the local repair shop, the land is poisoned by salt and must lie fallow for the winter before it can be worked, and nothing is growing. But the village windows are shiny, the curtains are spotless, and flower-pots lend a touch of life here and there between houses still desolated.

The closing of the final gap, a few miles beyond Osterland, was a masterpiece of ingenuity and skill, and a fitting, final resting-place for the famous caissons across which so much of the Normandy invasion rolled in June of 1944. These massive concrete structures — rather like bathtubs that float until you pull the plug and let water rush in—had been salvaged after the war by the British, who built them, and towed back to England.

The Dutch bought eight of them at knock-down prices after the floods, towed them back across to Europe, and sank them one by one in the biggest of the seawall breaches. The last breach, about 150 yards across with a channel no less than 30 feet deep due to the ebb and flow of countless tides in and out since February, was closed by sinking caissons on either side, and then, as the last crucial operation, "hinging" one to swing into the centre.

HAPPY REUNION — Frank Rohrbacher, Jr. (second from right) is reunited with his family as he arrives in New York City after eight years in Red prison camps. Rohrbacher, a New York-born American citizen, was drafted into the German army while visiting Hungary in 1944. He was taken prisoner by the Russians in 1945 and since that time has been forced to work 14 hours a day in prison camps throughout Russia, Romania, and Hungary. Happy to have him back are (left to right): Catherine, his sister; his mother; and his father, Frank Sr.

PICKERING (CP)—An 11-year-old girl was killed and her 10-year-old companion seriously injured Tuesday when they were struck by an automobile whose driver was blinded by the lights of another car.

Police said Laura Boddy of Pickering was killed. Her playmate, Loretta Annaby, suffered severe head injuries.

Queen Encounters First Rainfall

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (Reuters)—Rainy, cool weather spread across the Pacific today as Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh continued their 17-day voyage from Panama to the Fiji islands.

It was the first spell of untropical weather since the royal couple landed in Bermuda eight days ago. Rainy weather is predicted for the next few days.

After a series of morning showers Tuesday, the weather cleared temporarily and the royal couple appeared on deck.

In the sunshine the Queen watched the duke captain a deck-hockey team composed of the royal household. His team won several strenuous games against a squad of Royal Navy officers.

Later Cocos island was sighted on the starboard side, seen through a double rainbow in light rain falling on the island. In the evening there was a violent rainstorm which caused everybody on the open decks to run for shelter.

Committed For Trial

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Louis Chyzyk, 30, of Port Arthur was committed for trial Tuesday on a charge of manslaughter in the traffic death of Rocco Matarazzo, 25, of Fort William.

Garage Destroyed

STIRLING (ENS)—The garage of Mel Wilkins of Rawdon, about five miles from Stirling, was destroyed by fire on Monday night. The car in the garage was also lost. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Whitelaw Appointed Manager Of CMA

Porter Returns Home

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Porter returned Tuesday after a seven-week visit to London where he was appealing to the judicial committee of the Privy Council in a dispute between Ontario and the federal government. The case concerned the authority of the two governments over interprovincial truck and bus routes.

Canadian Actor Will Get Seven-Year Film Contract

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—It's been a big year for Canadian actor Lee Patterson. And to clinch it all he's looking forward to an extra-special Christmas present—a seven-year film contract.

The husky, 24 - year - old actor from Vancouver and Oshawa, Ont., has just finished his first film role opposite American actress Gloria Grahame in "The Good Die Young." He did so well the film company (Romulus) decided to sign him up.

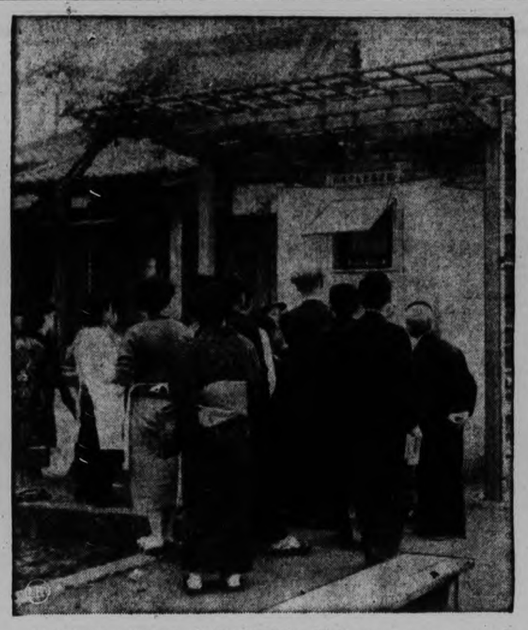
The company made such hits as "Moulin Rouge" and "The African Queen," both directed by John Huston.

"I'm crossing my fingers and hoping my first film under contract will be as good as those," the six-foot Patterson said in an interview.

Patterson, a rugged - looking young man with unruly dark hair, has been riding a winning streak since he first stepped on a British stage at Windsor in January, 1952. He had a small part in "Death of a Salesman," at what he calls a "rock bottom" salary.

BIG BOOST

This year, he was back at Windsor, this time at top salary, playing the lead in "The Man," a crime thriller introduced to the west end this year with Vancouver's Bernard Braden in the leading role opposite Joan Miller, also of Vancouver.



Patterson's lucky break started in February when he was chosen to play a leading role in the Broadway hit "Stalag 17." The play, a hit on Broadway, folded after 10 days in London. But the critics didn't blame Patterson.

When the play finished Patterson took a lead role in "The Trouble-Makers," on tour after a short west end run. Then came "The Man" and it was in this play he was spotted by film producer Gabriel Pascal, who referred to his acting ability later at the Venice film festival.

Outcome was the part with Gloria Grahame. His film contract starts Jan. 1. "I can still hardly believe it," said Lee.

His first reaction to his big break will be to go home to Oshawa for Christmas with his mother if he can make it. Right now he must stick around until the contract goes through the usual legal channels.

Patterson was born in Vancouver but now has his home in Oshawa.

TV BUG BITES JAPANESE—Television seems to be just as popular in Tokyo, Japan, as it is anywhere in the U.S. This outdoor set installed in a shrine draws many viewers every afternoon. Women bring their children to keep them out of mischief and knit as they watch their favorite program. Of all the programs, baseball is the most popular.

Need Translation

AMMANFORD, Wales (CP)—A highway safety book puzzled inhabitants of this Carmarthenshire town, where most people speak only in Welsh. They asked the Society for Prevention of Accidents to provide copies in their native tongue.

Canon Stanley Walker Dies In Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—The Rev. Canon A. Stanley Walker, 63, president of University of King's College died unexpectedly here early today.

Well known throughout Canada for his contributions to literature, and author of "Canada," a history of the country, Canon Walker had returned Tuesday night from a trip to New York. His death was attributed to a heart attack

He received a doctor of divinity degree in 1941 from Queen's University.

Scientists Soon Be Able Map 'Quake Danger Areas

VICTORIA (CP)—Work at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory here will enable scientists to map areas of greatest earthquake danger in British Columbia and Alberta. The observatory was completed recently.

From the maps it should be possible to determine where reinforcement is needed in structures such as dams to guard against quake damage.

Dr. R. M. Petrie, observatory director, said the observatory has already experimented, with encouraging results, on an "image converter" similar to a television tube, "which will have the effect of taking us farther into space."

"We hope to be able to build up images on tubes of a television nature and then photograph them. It will take us into the infra-red regions of the universe—beyond the visible."

SIMILAR PROJECT

The Yerkes and McDonald observatory in Chicago is also working on a similar project, Dr. Petrie said. The work here and in other observatories around the world must eventually materially affect the man on the street.

"Information gathered by astremendous energy from atoms they needed for their initial studies of atomic energy. Astronomers found the sun and stars got their tremendous energy rom atoms and passed that information to scientists."

The observatory still will not be able to predict earthquakes, but will be able to say where the most likely danger area is. One of the world's major earthquakes occurred off the British Columbia coast, in 1949.

Finland expects to produce illuminating gas from peat, replacing imported coal.

Christmas Fare Cheaper, In Ample Supply

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadians may eat more heartily at Christmas dinner tables this year. Some foods will be cheaper.

Cranberries, the usual turkey trimming, will be at least 10 cents a pound cheaper than last year across the country, a Canadian Press survey shows. Dried fruits will be cheaper in Alberta, and mixed nuts, some candies, raisins and dates will be cheaper in Quebec province.

The price of turkeys, main dish in many homes, was uncertain this far ahead of Christmas but supplies were ample. Turkeys now are selling at about 69 cents a pound at Toronto.

In some sections Christmas foods were moving slower than usual at this time of year. Chain store officials blamed unseasonably mild weather for keeping people's minds on other things than Christmas.

Old - fashioned plum puddings ranged in price from the fanciest, in cloth bags with red bow ribbons, at $1.25 a pound, down to 40-60 cents a pound in tins.

Supplies of cranberries are greater than last year. Prices are about 30 cents a pound, compared with 1952's 40 cents.

Other Christmas goodies were in ample supply across the country at prices about the same as last year.

Misfortune Strikes Roseneath Family

ROSENEATH (ENS)—The old adage, "One trouble never comes alone" seems true to Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Timlin and family.

About six weks ago Mrs. Timlin was taken to Cobourg Hospital, following a heart seizure and remained there for two weeks. Next, their son, Royce Timlin, 24, was rushed to the same hospital with a leg ailment, remaining there a week. Two weeks ago Mr. Timlin was returning home when the rear tire of his car blew out, breaking a telephone pole and turning over in the ditch, causing extensive damage to the car. On Sunday, Catherine, 15, the Timlin's only daughter, was rushed to Cobourg hospital for an emergency operation.

The Timlins reside on a farm on Concession 1, in Alnwick township, one-half mile south of the Alderville War Memorial.

Traffic Problems Need Intense Study

NEW YORK (AP)—Freight absorption is on the increase among steel companies in the United States, but the complicated traffic problems involved are making intense studies necessary, Iron Age, the national metal-working weekly, reported today.

Many big buyers of steel had managed to get some equalization concessions, but the complexities of figuring out how much freight charges to absorb to meet competition were "more perplexing than before."

During the last few years practically all American steel was sold on an f.o.b. mill basis and freight rates weere largely the worry of consumers. The weekly said the steel companies thus neglected to keep their own figures up to date on rail, truck and water freight costs.

Planes Call At Islands Ruled By Scots "King"

WASHINGTON— Airplanes instead of floating barrels now bring the luxuries of civilization over the Indian Ocean to the Cocos, or Keeling Islands, ruled for five generations by "kings" of Scottish origin.

A World War II airstrip on West Island, largest of the group, has been rebuilt into a $2,000,000 base serving flights between Australia and South Africa, reports the National Geographic Society. Planes bring the books, special mail and table delicacies once dropped by passing ships into the near-by sea for the islanders to recover.

There are five main Cocos Islands, all coral, surrounding a broad lagoon alive with fish. Twelve degrees below the equator, they are halfway between Australia and Ceylon and about 600 miles south of Java.

SETTLED IN 1827

Tradition says they were discovered by Capt. William Keeling of the British East India Company in 1608-9. The first Scots "king", John Clunies-Ross, arrived with his wife, children, mother-in-law and a few companions in 1827.

Ross the First established coconut plantations and equipment which extracted premium oil from then uts. He ridded the Islands of undesirable adventurers, issued currency, made wise laws to govern his people and turned the Cocos into an Eden where there was no crime or want.

Eventually Britain annexed the Islands. Members of the Clunies—Ross family ever since have been named governors of the colony and given an unusually free hand in the conduct of its affairs. The present governor is another John Clunies-Ross. He is only 24 years old.

Queen Elizabeth II is to visit the Cocos on her forthcoming visit to British possessions around the world. In two wars, the atoll has had far less welcome visitors.

EMDEN ARRIVES

Personnel manning the important cable station on the colony's Direction Island sighted a strange warship on the horizon in 1914. They had only time to report her as the German raider Emden before a party came ashore to wreck cable and wireless facilities.

But the SOS sent from Cocos was enough to seal Emden's fate. The near-by Australian cruiser Sydney steamed over to engage her and drive her ashore on North Keeling Island, 15 miles north of the main group. Cocos Islanders for years salvaged steel from the wreck.

The Japanese bombarded the cable station in World War II. Thinking they had destroyed it, they did not bother to land. The station operated for the rest of the war under secret code names.

Cocos Islanders, a mixture of many races brought in from the Far East as workers, number about 2,000. Because the Islands are badly overcrowded, some are leaving. They go with reluctance for an old rule on Cocos is that anyone who goes may not return lest he bring back vice and disease from the outside.

Dutch Move Up To 6th Place In Shipbuilding

ROTTERDAM, Holland (Reuters)—Holland's post-war shipbuilding boom in the last two years has lifted her from sixth to fourth place among the world's shipbuilding nations and has made her the world's leading exporter of ships.

Only the United States, Britain and Germany now send more ships down the ways today than Holland.

Holland's 300 shipyards are now fully booked with orders up to 1956, for vessels ranging from big passenger liners down to Rhine river barges. Roughly half the shipping now under construction goes for export. Last year, the industry brought in 375,000,000 guilders (about $103,000,000).

The main reasons for Holland's shipbuilding success are a tradition dating back hundreds of years, relatively low wages for long hours and the fact that strikes are almost unknown.

But although wages are low here, so is the cost of living, and the riveter or welder in Holland lives as well or better than those in other European shipbuilding countries.

The Dutch shipyard worker enjoys a vacation bonus of one week's wage as well as his two weeks' vacation with pay. Many of the big yards run a profit-sharing plan under which the men can earn up to three per cent of their annual wage.

Prefabricated parts are used on a fairly wide scale, particularly for superstructure. But traditional building methods are generally followed.

Speed, both in shipbuilding and repair, is perhaps the biggest inducement which Dutch shipyards offer to the foreign owner, as well as high standards of material and workmanship.

More than one-third of Holland's shipyards are concentrated in the Rotterdam harbor area, while other main centres are Amsterdam and Flushing.

Building Boom

CALGARY (CP) — Like other western cities, Calgary is experiencing a building boom this year. Value of building permits issued to the end of October was $38,020,000, compared with $34,665,000 for the same period of last year.

Pronunciation Guide For Maori Names

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The New Zealand broadcasting service is sending to broadcasters in other countries a guide to the pronunciation of Maori names which will crop up in the news during the visit of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

New Zealand abounds in old Maori native place-names which often trip up New Zealanders themselves. Many highly-involved names will have to be negotiated during the royal tour.

TAKE IT SLOW

As a sample, one signboard in New Zealand reads:

Taumatawhaka; Tangihangakoauan; Alamaleapokai; Whenuakitanshu.

Koroki, the Maori king, lives at a place called Turanagawaewae, which New Zealanders explain helpfully is near the town of Ngaruawahia.

The big Maori reception to the Queen will be near the village of Whakarewarewa and she will pass through many towns with equally involved names.

The problem is complicated by the way most New Zealanders anglicize and abbreviate Maori names. If a New Zealander talks of the town of Coke, he means a place in the far north spelled Kokukohu. When he talks of Fenookit, he means Whenuakite, and Piecock stands for Paekakariki.

Strangers are often persuaded that the Wellington suburb of Petone is pronounced pet one, whereas in this case the full Maori pronunciation of pet-owe-nee is used.

ALL VOWELS COUNT

Even short names like Oue and Oio have their pronunciation problems.

The general rule is to pronounce every vowel and give it full value, with equal emphasis on each syllable. The result is not always in line with current pronunciation in New Zealand, but is nearer the correct Maori version than those in current use.

The broadcasting service in New Zealand normally sticks to the Maori pronunciation even when local versions differ. It makes exceptions where names have been only slightly anglicised, but as soon as a name gets far from the Maori, the announcers use the native version.

The town of Paraparaumu, for instance, has nowadays been shortened in general usage to Parra-P'ram, but the radio services use the full version. This policy has resulted in many New Zealanders becoming more conscious of the liberties being taken with place name pronunciation and is tending to restore the Maori version in some cases.

Peking's Propaganda Machine Reveals Weakness Of West

By O. M. GREEN

LONDON (OFNS)—There is one weapon in the use of which the Western nations are lamentably inferior to the Communists: and that is propaganda.

The West seems to think it enough to issue a single contradiction of a Communist lie, perhaps repeated two or three times at long intervals, and often in connection with some official meeting, the report of which is studied only by a handful of newspaper readers.

The Communists, once they have decided to propagate a falsehood, never let it drop. Day after day, month after month, it is repeated, enlarged and embellished with fresh "evidence."

Early this year, Peking published a three hundred thousand word report of the findings on germ-warfare of an international commission of six scientists, including such eminent men as Dr. Joseph Needham, Fellow of the Royal Society, of Cambridge University, and M. Jean Malterrre of France, who were brought out to China to investigate the charges.

HERESAY EVIDENCE

The closest study shows that the report contained no evidence that an impartial committee would have accepted for a moment. It shows clearly that not only did the foreign scientists take all their evidence at sceond-hand, but that the Chinese doctors and scientists whose statements they accepted were also quoting what they had been told by others. Some of the stories accepted by the foreign scientists were farcial.

The United States airmen have now been released from captivity and are free to describe the tortures used to force them to sign the germ-bomb confessions of which the Communists made so much. But Peking Radio has returned to the charge with redoubled vigour; not once but again and again.

Long quotations from the "People's Daily" of November 12, now issued in London by the New China News Agency, show how the original accusation has been embellished.

PREPARED FOR STORY

"The American aggressors" says the article, "had been actively preparing for the use of germ weapons in Korea as early as in the autumn of 1950. That was when the Chinese People's Volunteers entered Korea...

"At a meeting of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff the decision was made and the plan adopted for the launching of germ warfare in Korea for the winter of 1951. The decision was delivered in a secret directive to General Matthew B. Ridgway, then Commander - in - Chief in the Far East, at Tokyo...

"At each lecture (the "confessions" of prisoners had described how they were carefully lectured in Tokyo before being sent out to drop germs) or on each germ war mission, the men were strictly reminded not to disclose any matter concerning germ warfare, and they were absolutely prohibited to discuss it even amongst the Air Force personnel themselves."

KINDNESS TO PRISONERS

However—says the article— the extraordinary kindness with which the airmen were treated by their Chinese and Korean captors gave them "qualms of conscience" for "participating in the crime of germ warfare," and they "voluntarily" revealed the "wickedness" of their Government.

It is doubtful whether Peking Radio expects this sort of thing, and the wealth of other detail and abuse of America too protracted to quote, to influence Western readers—except those fellow-travellers who already believe anything Peking says. More probably the audience at which Peking Radio aims is the Chinese people, and beyond them, all Asians. There is unending proof of how adroitly and persistently the later are fed with Communist propaganda by Peking. And yet, in this particularly inflammable area, the West's propaganda lags far behind.

Engineer Asked To Survey City Sidewalks

The city engineer has been instructed to make a survey of the condition of downtown sidewalks and report to city council the best method of making an improvement.

The matter came up at the board of works meeting Monday night when a letter was read from the general-manager of the utilities commission, offering to share the cost of repairing the sidewalk on the west side of George St., south of Simcoe St., where the commission has recently been installing underground wiring.

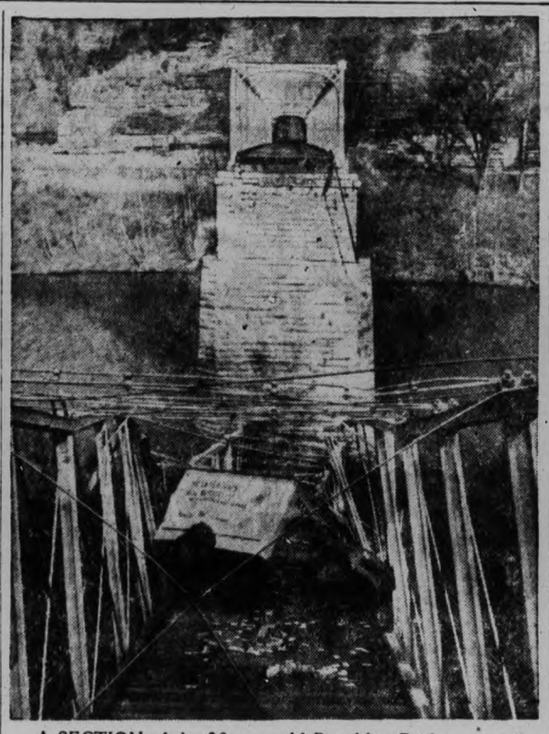
This led to a discussion of downtown sidewalks, which, it was generally agreed, were in pretty bad shape. All sorts of startling revelations were made, including the fact that some of the present streets were built over old stumps, which had rotted and were causing the pavement to sink.

But Ald. Syd Black made what was probably the most surprising disclosure. He informed the board that there was a tunnel running underneath Charlotte St., just west of the McGillis hotel, which he thought was causing the pavement to sink. He said the tunnel was originally built in order to heat two office buildings on opposite sides of the street with one heating plant.

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers was as surprised as anyone else by this news.

"You gentlemen might be interested to know," he said, "that when we did the patching in that part of the street we used 90 tons of asphalt."

"But he considered the depression in the pavement which caused the water to collect there during a rain was due to the fact that the gutters had deteriorated.



Ald. T. D. Miller suggested that a layer of asphalt be placed over the present sidewalks. Other members expressed opposition to this, favoring cement walks but the engineer claimed asphalt was more resilient and what Ald. Miller had proposed was being done in Montreal and Ottawa.

"I suggest we do a little bit of both," the engineer proposed. "You can't tear up all the sidewalks; you'd be in an awful mess."

Finally it was decided to have the engineer made a report on the sidewalks.

Farm Home Destroyed

COLLINGWOOD (CP)—The farm home of Ellsmere McAllister, two miles south of here, was gutted by fire Tuesday. The blaze broke out when McAllister was lighting an oil stove. Firemen were able to save an adjacent barn. There was no estimate of damage.

A SECTION of the 80-year-old Brooklyn Bridge over the Kentucky river near Harrodsburg collapsed under the weight of this light truck recently. The driver suffered a back injury but neither he nor his truck went into the water. Warning signs posted on the bridge limit loads to six tons and provide for a five-mile-an-hour speed limit and a 200-foot interval between vehicles.

Russians Have Stranglehold On Poland's Industries

By JOHN MILES

LONDON—(OFNS)—Efforts to bring Poland's industries under Russian control by means of "technical aid" are being made as resolutely under the Government of Mr. Malenkov as they were under that of Stalin. Under which is called the "Polish-Soviet Commission for Scientific and Technical Co-operation" there is to be a fresh invasion of Soviet experts and advisers.

This body met in Warsaw, the Polish capital, on November 5. According to the agreement signed, Russia will also supply plans, blue prints, equipment and materials for the chemical, metallurgical and building industries, and —following the new policy —for a number of consumer industries.

In addition to receiving technical assistance on the spot, Poland will send its own specialists to Russia for training. A further clause says that by Polish request "the Soviet Union is to examine and pass opinions on projects worked out by the Polish designing offices.

For its own part of the bargain, Poland is to supply Russia with technical formulas for making glass, chemicals and other products. It will also "enable a group of Soviet experts to acquaint themselves with achievements attained in various branches of the national economy."

SOVIET ADVISERS

Since Marshal Rokossovsky was sent by Moscow in 1949 to be Poland's Minister of National Defence, there has been a steady infiltration of Soviet advisers into heavy industry. Most new plants of importance have received some measure of Soviet supervision. Nowa Huta, the huge steel plant near Cracow, is Soviet designed and equipped—a fact the Warsaw regime is constantly obliged to mention. Despite Soviet assistance——or perhaps because of it —Nowa Huta, already under construction for three years, has been constantly behind-hand. In May this year, Warsaw had to issue a decree freeing labor and materials in order to hasten the work.

In the arms drive last year, plants reported to be under Soviet supervision included the new tank works at Zeran, near Warsaw; the Ursus Armaments factory; and motor works at Starachowice and Lublin, which were being equipped with Soviet machinery to produce army vehicles.

From time to time, discreet reference has been made to Soviet technical personnel in the Silesian mines, where their task is presumably to expedite coal deliveries to Russia. An official report in May said that Soviet help had been an "important factor" in modernizing the Lodz textile mills and had resulted in a "new import in May said that Soviet help textile output goes to Russia.

BUILT BY RED ENGINEERS

Coastal installations, and the submarine base near Gdnyia, are known to have been built by Soviet engineers. Soviet technical aid and equipment—the two go together—have been publicly acknowledged in connection with almost all large building projects in Poland. The construction of the Stalin-donated "Palace of Culture" skyscraper in Warsaw, was probably the means of introducing some element of Soviet control into the city's rebuilding program.

Although probably small in numbers, the importance of these Soviet technical advisers in Poland lies in the key positions they hold. No other satellite state has had to subject its industries to the same degree of surveillance; and now apparently this is to be intensified under the new Polish-Soviet Commission. But despite the Commisison's high-sounding name, it is likely that motives of security as much as of economics are behind the scheme. The Polish Army operates as a unit of the Russian Army. Moscow is designing a similar fate for Polish industry.

Gamble In Middle East U.S. Is Taking Long Range

WASHINGTON: — The United States is undertaking a long-range, long-shot gamble in promoting joint development of the Jordan River valley's water resources as a major step in its efforts to end the Arab-Isreal war and stablizez the tension-ridden Middle East, writes Ned Russell in theh Montreal Star.

At present, this program is largely in the hands of Eric Johnston, head of the U. S. Motion Picture Producers Association and a top trouble-shooter for three presidents, who returned last week from a special mission to the Middle East as President Eisenhower's envoy.

Mr. Johnston went to the capitals of Isreal, Syria, Jordan and Lebanon and persuaded them, after considerable difficulty, at least to look at the United Nations-United States outline of a $121,000,000 development program for the Jordan River.

On his return, the White House announced that Mr. Johnston had told President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles that the four governments concerned in the proposed project were studying it "with an open mind." He added that he had "reason to believe" that they would eventually be attracted by it.

Despite the qualified optimism reflected in Mr. Johnston's report to the president and Mr. Dulles, officials closely connected with the problem stressed that the outlook is hopeful primarily because Mr. Johnston's proposals were not rejected out of hand.

Two fundamental issues lie at the heart of the problem confronting President Eisenhower and Mr. Dulles in their efforts to ease the explosive tension in the Middle East. These are:

1. The bitter Arab hostility toward Isreal and a widespread resistance to any proposals that involve economic collaboration with the new state.

2. The ancient struggle for water in the Middle East and the intense rivalries which this sets off.

These two elements, according to responsible officials, have combined to create a situation of the most extreme gravity. Some of the West's most responsible authorities fear that the Middle East is the most dangerous potential source of World War II in the present world situation.

Accordingly, officials closely connected with Mr. Johnston's mission to the Middle East believe that the slim chances existing for its eventual success hinge primarily on the prospects for reducing certain specific areas of tension and preventing the recurrence of at least large-scale raids across Israeli frontier.

Specifically, these officials hope that the United States can help to ease the tension between Israel and Syria by reviving bilateral conversations aimed at settling their dispute over their demilitarizezd frontier zones. Such talks broke down more than a month ago.

Additionally, these officials hope that the United States can use its influence in the UN to create conditions which will prevent recurrences of last month's Israeli raid on the Jordan village of Qibya in which more than 50 Arabs were killed. The Security Council now has before it a resolution sponsored by the United States, Britain and France expressing "the strongest censure" of Israel for the attack.

The Qibya incident combined with the intensification of Syria-Israel bitterness resulting from Syria's complaints to the UN regarding Israel's work on a Jordan River diversion project, reportedly almost broke up Mr. Johnston's mission before it was under way. It is known that he was advised not to go to Amman, capital of Jordan, because of fears that he might be assassinated.

Israel's Jordan River diversion project has now been suspended pending a UN ruling on whether it violates the Israel-Syria armistice terms as Syria has charged.

During Mr. Johnston's tour of the four countries concerned in the UN-United States proposal for development of the Jordan River Valley's water resources, he was met with harsh hostility at first which was turned into reluctant agreement to study the idea.

But when he left the area, he felt that he had achieved a considerable measure of success. Yet it is understood that he himself does not overestimate the chances for final Arab and Israel agreement on the plan.

Unquestionably, according to responsible officials, Jordon remained the most adamant in its hostility to the river development scheme. Mr. Johnston was told firmly at Amman that Jordan would suffer any economic consequences rather than co-operate economically, "directly or indirectly," with Israel. Syria was not much more encouraging.

The situation in Lebanon appeared to be the most encouraging of the Arab states; two Lebanese newspapers actually published editorials urging the government to examine the river plan to see whether it contains any advantages from Lebanon. Israel, while fearing the whole project was politically unrealistic, nevertheless agreed to examine it in a more hopeful manner.

Sold Brass Bars In Gold Transaction

TORONTO (CP)—Czeslaw Malicki, 49, Tuesday was sentenced to one year for selling 14 brass bars as gold to a member of the Polish air force in 1945.

FO. Leopold Zabrewski of Montreal, now a member of the RCAF, testified Malicki told him gold transactions were legal in Canada and advised him to invest his money in the metal.

J. Murphy, defence counsel, said there was evidence the officer regularly bought gold from Malicki for $50 an ounce and flew it to Africa where it was sold for more than $100.

Australian Meat

CANBERRA (CP) — Australian meat production in the 12 months ended June 30 reached a record of 1,152,000 tons, according to current figures of the Australian meat board. Output was nearly 100,000 tons more than the previous record in 1942-43. Canned meat production also set a record of 94,400 tons, nearly all of which was exported.

Unexplained Fire Damages Warehouse

LINDSAY (ENS)—Fire of unknown origin Tuesday night caused some $3000 damage to a frame warehouse and garage owned by the Willis Milk Transport Co. on Ridout St. in Lindsay.

Chief Alex Wyle, of the Lindsay Fire Dept., said after the blaze had been brought under control, that he was at a loss to explain its cause. The damage was confined to the interior of the building and the contents which included a jeep, was destroyed by the flames and the front end of one of the town busses, owned by Abbott Crimmons.

The blaze was first noticed by a boarder at the home next to the garage as she was taking a telephone call. Two alarms were sent to the Lindsay fire hall from the scene, and volunteer firemen were called out from the Lindsay Arena, where many of them were watching an intermediate game.

The flames were feared to be burning close to the gasoline storage tanks maintained by the transport at the garage site, but this was avoided by the firemen. Investigation of the blaze is proceeding.

No One Blamed For Sudden Death

TORONTO (CP)—A coroner's jury Tuesday night found that 32-year-old Dorothy Kelver died Sept. 15 in a Toronto hospital from an acute kidney infection and attached no blame to anyone for her death.

At the same time, the jury recommended strongly that in the future any person re-examined medically and found seriously ill, be returned to the same hospital where they were previously examined for treatment.

Miss Kelver died in police custody today, two days after she was examined by an intern at one hospital and considered to be undernourished and an alcoholic. Dr. Chester McLean, provincial pathologist, said she died of uremia, a disorder of the blood which brought kidney infection. He said she had suffered the disease several days before death.

No Penalty Breaking Building Bylaw

How do you enforce a law if there's no penalty for violators?

That's the gist of the question asked by the city engineer at Monday night's meeting of the board of works.

He is faced with what he considers a violation of the city's building regulations but the by-law provides no penalty. In brief, he wants to know what to do about it. So the board has decided to ask the city solicitor.

The engineer disclosed that last August a building permit was requested for a house in the north section of the city. But the proposed house did not have the required amount of floor space. So the plans were amended to include a sun porch and the permit was issued in September. So far the sun porch hasn't been built. What to do?

Ald. Gordon Farquharson brought his legal knowledge to bear on the problem and pointed out that the city couldn't force the owner to tear the house down.

It's hoped the city solicitor has a solution.

Sifton Syndicate Being Reorganized

WINNIPEG (CP)—A reorganization of the three Sifton newspapers resulting in a change in ownership was announced today in a newspage statement in the Winnipeg Free Press:

The announcement said: "Consequent upon the death of C. M. Sifton of Saskatoon, the Sifton newspapers have been reorganized, resulting in Victor Sifton being the sole owner of the Winnipeg Free Press and Clifford Sifton being the sole owner of The Leader-Post of Regina and The Star-Phoenix of Saskatoon."

It gave no further details.

Clifford M. Sifton of Saskatoon was editor of the Star-Phoenix when he died early this year at 33. He was the son of the late Harry Sifton.

Gardiner Delayed In London With 'Flu

LONDON (Reuters) — James G. Gardiner, Canadian minister of agriculture, made an unscheduled stop here Tuesday night while on his way to Rome to attend the conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization.

Mr. Gardiner is in bed in a London hotel with influenza. His condition is said to be not serious, and he hopes to fly on to Rome Thursday.

Mr. Gardiner was 70 last Monday.

Truck Leaves Road 2 Occupants Injured

BOTHWELL, Ont. (CP) — Two men were injured Tuesday night when their truck ran off a curve on Highway 79 just west of here and smashed into a tree.

Clifford Rea, 46, of Toronto suffered leg injuries and was in serious condition in hospital at Chatham today. Harold Huxted, 43, of Windsor was in satisfactory condition with face cuts and a hurt ankle.

Bothwell is 20 miles northeast of Chatham.

President Backs Dulles On McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, backing up State Secretary Dulles' blast at Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.), declared today that unity among free nations "is our only hope for survival."

Like Dulles, Eisenhower did not mention McCarthy by name. But the president told a press conference he is "in full accord with the statements made Tuesday by Secretary Dulles."

Dulles had asserted that criticism such as that fired by McCarthy attacks the very heart of United States foreign policy.

Eisenhower had anticipated questioning about the matter, and announced he had prepared his views in writing because, he said, they would be the only words he would have to say on the subject.

SHARP ISSUES

The president also took sharp issue with McCarthy on another subject—repeating that he believes the Communists in government issue will be out of the picture by the time the congressional elections occur next year.

McCarthy told a country-wide radio and television audience last week that Communism would be an issue and that the question of continuing his hunt for subversives would be the main issue in the election of a Republican congress.

It was in the same speech that McCarthy took some cracks at administration foreign policy. The gist of his criticism was that the U.S. should be tougher in dealing with its allies.

Eisenhower said that if the United States "should turn impatiently to coercion of other free nations, our brand of coercion, so far as our friends are concerned, would be a mark of the imperialist rather than of the leader."

In his prepared statement, Eisenhower repeated his view, first expressed off-hand at an earlier press conference, that the Communists-in-government issue will not figure to an important degree in the 1954 congressional campaign. He said:

"By next fall I hope that the public, no longer fearful that Communists are destructively at work within the government, will wish to commend the efficiency of the administration in eliminating this menace to the nation's security."

He said "the best way to keep subversives out of the government is not to employ them in the first place."

NO COMMENT YET

McCarthy was handed a copy of the president's statement in the senate office building. He read it carefully, then told reporters:

"Perhaps I will wait and give out a statement tomorrow morning."

He had previously scheduled a press conference later today.

McCarthy said he wanted "to go over this carefully" and also to spend more time going over Secretary of State Dulles' statement.

McCarthy said he probably would have a statement "around 10 or 10:30" Thursday morning.

Dulles refused to say he was talking about McCarthy, but he used some of the Wisconsin Republican senator's own words and thus left no doubt as to his target.

McCarthy contented himself with a quizzical: "Do you think he could have been referring to me?"

He reserved further comment because, he said, he wanted to study Dulles' statement. McCarthy initially called a press conference at the same time as Eisenhower's, but later announced it would be postponed to an hour, perhaps late today, which he did not set.

McCarthy, in his speech, had asked whether the administration would send "perfumed notes" to the Communists in Korea about prisoners who remain unaccounted for. And he had said that in some security matters the administration was "batting zero."

ARROGANT METHODS

Dulles blasted at "arrogant" methods of dealing with United States allies. He said John Paton Davies, whose continued employment by the Eisenhower administration was criticized by McCarthy, was undergoing a new security investigation to be completed in a month.

But the secretary of state left otherwise unanswered McCarthy's expressed fear that "my party might also fall victim to the same evil which beset the Democratic party." McCarthy said that was failure to root Communists out of government.

Qualifications Assure Election For Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS) — Contests for the Lindsay mayorality and the six council seats were assured when qualifications closed here Tuesday night. In addition, one of the seats open on the board of education will also be contested.

Former Alderman Lloyd Burrows, who lost the mayoral race last year to Charles Lamb, by three votes, and Deputy-Reeve A. E. Hick, making his first bid for the seat will battle for the town's highest post. With only two minutes remaining until the close of qualifications, the seventh canidate entered the lists Tuesday night to make a race for the six council seats.

Those from this years council making another bid are W. S. W. Breeze, B.C. Maidens, J. A. Harrigan and J. A. McQuarrie. In addition Harry Pierce, a former alderman, Russell Lamb, brother of Mayor Lamb, and a member of the board of education for some 30 years, and Wm. McCrae will contest the six seats.

In the board of education race a newcomer, George W. Keith, will contest the north ward seat with the incumbent and chairman Walter Peel. The other seat open for election this year were filled by the acclamation accorded Lawson Blakely in the south ward and Reginald Vickers in the east ward.

The seat of Deputy Reeve will be held by W. D. Stevens, a former alderman who was nominated along with two others, at Monday night's meeting but who was the only one to qualify. Reeve Richard Butler was also returned by acclamation.

bett promised his support in achieving an education government based on those five qualities.

REPAIR SCHOOLS

With the promise of embarking on a property committee program aimed at repairing older city schools, Mr. Huffman asked for support December 7.

Concluding a "very busy year" looking after the maintenance of 18 school buildings in the city involving a budget of $207,245, the speaker foresaw large expenditures in the repair of other schools.

The program, he said, will be started in 1954 and will be carried out within the next "four or five" years. Included in this project will be the repair of roofs of Queen Mary and King George schools, both constructed in 1912.

Appealing to the parents of school-aged children, Mr. McWilliam declared the job as a board trustee is more important than that of an alderman. Whereas a councillor's decisions affect only the present, those of the trustee can influence "a whole generation."

Himself a father of three school-age children and one of pre-school age, Mr. McWilliam admitted he had "no fault to find or quarrel" with the present board but urged his election for "stronger representation of the younger people," married couples with young children, and pledged to do his "very best."

The young candidate was nominated for the trustee board by incumbent Mayor Waddell.

MOST IMPORTANT

Contending education is "one of the most important problems of the modern world," Arthur Pitchford promised the continuance of "sincere and sound service" if elected. He has spent six of the past eight years on the board of education.

During recent service, he pointed out, the board had succeeded in reducing the demand on ratepayers in spite of lowered grants.

"Education must have a large share of government support," he said, and supported future representations to the premier to secure larger grants.

In her past four years with the board of education, Mrs. Rowell said she has worked on every committee and had actively supported the formation of school safety patrols which resulted in a decline from 28 motor accidents involving children to four. She had sought to promote good relations between teachers and Board with the result that a teacher-Board committee was not operating.

Advocating support of herself in the election, Mrs. Rowell said "a person must be interested in the best education possible in the city to become an effective member of the board."

Studebaker Lays Off 450 Employees

HAMILTON (CP)—A delay in the supply of upholstering cloth from Canadian manufacturers has resulted in a layoff of 450 workers at the local plant of Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Limited.

Gordon Grundy, vice-president, said production would be resumed Friday morning when sufficient cloth is expected to be available.

Occupants Evade Injuries In 4 Accidents

No one was injured in Peterborough accidents Tuesday although property damage totalled over $800. Four accidents were reported altogether.

Damage was set at $385 when a turning truck driven by Michael Martino, 46, of 517 Cambridge St., collided with another truck driven by Gordon Whatman, 17, of RR 1, Ennismore, on Hunter St.

Heavy damage was also caused to a car belonging to Frederick House, 63, of 139 Romaine St., as it collided with one pulling out from a Barnardo Ave. curb, driven by Frederick House, 63, of 139 Romaine St.

A bus-car crash on Armour Rd. north of Parkhill, resulted in damage totalling $125 to the car, driven by Wesley Johnson, 36, of Nassau and the bus, driven by Albert Dainard, 40, of 468 Benson.

Johnson had pulled to the centre of the road to avoid excavating trestles when the two vehicles collided.

Colliding at the unmarked intersection of Townsend and Stewart Sts., cars driven by Frederick Cathers, 20, of 509 George St., and Whitten Young, 50, of RR 7, Peterborough, sustained $85 damage.

Cathers was westbound on Townsend and Young, northbound on Stewart St. when the accident occurred.

United Counties Plan TB Survey

COBOURG (ENS)—Mrs. Margery Pewtress, executive secretary of the Northumberland-Durham Tuberculosis Association said today the department of health is making plans for a mass survey of Northumberland-Durham in 1954.

The mass chest X-ray survey is a special effort in the fight against tuberculosis and is made possible every four years through the co-operation of the local TB Association and voluntary organizations such as women's auxiliaries, service clubs, etc. The object of the Survey is to give a free chest X-ray to everyone in the community over the age of twelve years.

"As a result of many agencies, including mass surveys", Mrs. Pewtress said "deaths from tuberculosis have been reduced from 1 in 500 people in 1900 to approximately 1 in 8,000 in 1950. This does not mean there is that much less tuberculosis—it does show that people with tuberculosis are receiving treatment before it is too late.

Moscow Replies To Dulles

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio today accused State Secretary Dulles of the United tates of lying when he described Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania as "captives" of the Soviet Union.

Commentator Leontyev asserted Dulles was "not telling the truth and knows it" when he told a House of Representatives committee Monday that "the Baltic republics were seized by the Soviet Union."

Leontyev said Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia "joined the U. S. S. R. in the same way as did all other Soviet republics, as a result of free expression of the will of the Latvian, Lithuanian and Estonian peoples."

Leontyev said Dulles, who assured the three countries they were "not forgotten," was trying to "cover up his aggressive designs on that part of Soviet territory with a lie."

Youngster Suicides

GUNZENHAUSEN, Germany (Reuters)—Police disclosed today that a 13-year-old boy hurled himself in front of a speeding train and was killed after receiving a bad school report. They said the youngster left a letter at home saying: "My money belongs to Mo. Forgive me."

4,000 Acres Of Bushland, Cleared Soon For Camp

FREDERICTON (CP)—Contractors are aiming at Jan. 15 as the date when 4,000 acres of bushland will be cleared on the site of headquarters for Camp Gagetown. Work will start in the Oromocto are an 11 miles from Fredericton.

Canada's biggest army camp, to cover 436 square miles and cost $40,000,000, is expected to be ready for troop accommodation in the spring of 1956. It will be equipped to handle 15,000 men.

After the first phase of land clearing, construction work will start next spring. The triangular-shaped headquarters site will include administration, mobilization and training buildings. Lines have been marked for streets and avenues, yet to be named.

OPERATIONAL CENTRE

Construction of one building has started in the administration area. It's being erected by Defence Construction, Limited, as an operational centre for the camp builders.

Sept. 1 was the deadline for evacuation from the huge area expropriated for Camp Gagetown but an extension was allowed to permit crop harvesting. Most residents have left and the remainder plan departure before the year-end.

Families in thhe area when negotiations started for their removal numbered 438—about 1,900 persons—mostly engaged in farming and dispersed through rural communities. Some of the expropriated properties had been owned by the same families for five generations.

Few displaced residents left the province. Some settled in the dairy belt of Kings county and others moved to Carleton county but most are re-establishing themselves in nearby Sunbury and Queens counties.

FAMOUS VOLUME

The first complete Bible in English was published by Miles Coverdale in England in 1535.

BIGGEST ARMY CAMP — Work has been started at Camp Gagetown, 11 miles from Fredericton, where Canada's biggest army camp will be located. To cost $40,000,000 and to cover 436 square miles, it is expected to be ready for troop accommodation by 1956. One of the main sewer lines is being made ready and preliminary clearing work is under way.

Pakistan Gets Stiff Russ Note

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union in a stiff note to Pakistan Tuesday asked clarification of reports that Pakistan may permit United States air bases on her territory.

All Moscow newspapers published the text of the note. It said "the Soviet Union cannot regard with indifference the reports about the negotiations" between Pakistan and the United States.

The note added that there had also been press reports that the Pakistan government and the U.S. government "are conducting negotiations on the question of Pakistan joining in plans to set up a military aggressive bloc in the Middle East."

The reports that Pakistan and the United States have entered into negotiations for a bases-for-aid deal have been denied by top Pakistani and American officials.

Gouzenko Only Case Of Kind–Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said Tuesday that except for the case of Igor Gouzenko he knows of no other time when FBI agents questioned Canadians in Canada about matters of United States security.

Mr. Pearson was replying in the Commons to a question by Stanley Knowles (CCF — Winnipeg North Centre). Although he knew of no other similar instance, he would check further to see if there had been any.

Mr. Knowles' reference was to the former Soviet embassy code clerk here whose disclosures led to the 1946 exposure of a Russian spy ring in Canada. Mr Pearson said last weeks that Gouzenko had been questioned several times by the FBI for information which might help U.S. security investigations.

Actors Church To Be Sold, Torn Down

LONDON (CP) — The church which has been the worshipping place of the West End theatre world for almost 100 years is preparing for its last curtain.

Officials have decided that St. Peter's, "the actors' church" in Windmill street near Piccadilly Circus, must finally be sold and torn down. They made the same decision 25 years ago but a barrage of protests and petitions saved the old building.

St. Peter's is probably Britain's only church with a professional actor as vicar. Rev. Clarence May, 65, who took over the parish 25 years ago, holds a card with Equity, the theatre trade union, and has appeared in many stage productions.

CLOSED IN NEW YEAR

Archdeacon M. M. Hodgins, secretary of the Bishop of London's church reorganization committee, said in an interview that the church, built in 1861, will probably be closed early in the new year.

"There are more than half a dozen churches in the immediate area," he explained, "more than are needed, and we need more churches in the suburbs."

It is estimated that the building and property will be sold for about £50,000 ($420,000).

Oil Stove Exploded Taxi Booth Destroyed

MARMORA (ENS)—Fire apparently caused by the explosion of an oil stove destroyed the taxi booth of James Heath and threatened adjoining buildings on Matthew Street for a time about 3.45 p.m. on Tuesday.

The attendant, Doug Phillips, gave the fire alarm and volunteer firemen were quickly on the spot. Flames, however, had gained too great a headway and the booth and its contents were a total loss. The rubber on the hoses of the gas tanks in front of the booth also became ignited, and three large plate glass windows of the new Jackson and Killian service station at the rear of the booth were cracked. Efforts of the fire brigade were successful in keeping the fire from further spreading.

Trying To Tame Cannibals

By JEFFREY SMITH

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Australian patrols in New Guinea are trying to tame the cannibal tribesmen who inhabit the jungles of one of the wildest and most remote countries in the world.

The Australian minister for territories, Paul Hasluck, has directed the New Guinea administration to bring the entire western part of the territory under law and order by the end of next year.

In the wild, unexplored regions of the territory, which has been the scene of countless massacres, these fierce, stone-age tribesmen at present lead lives untouchd by any form of civilization.

Cannibalism has been practised among them for generations.

The job of the initial patrols will be to make contact with the many thousands of primitive savages, most of whom have never ever heard of a white man, and eliminate cannibalism, headhunting and "black magic." The work of these expeditions will be consolidated by other parties who will eventually set up fully-staffed permanent stations.

PENETRATE 90,000 MILES

More than 90,000 square miles of mountains, jungle, swamps, fertile valleys and grasslands will be penetrated by survey parties.

Patrolmen who have already entered the fringe of the forbidding areas have brought back evidence of terrible savagery. One patrol officer, W. J. Johnston, following a recent 60-day expedition into the southern highlands, reported to the administrative centre of Port Moresby that he had found 20 separate tribes of natives openly practising cannibalism.

He described how in one massacre native women were outraged and killed, and a native youth butchered and eaten.

FIRST SIGNS

Johnston and other patrol leaders have reported that the first signs of cannibalism have usually been gruesome finds of half-eaten corpses in blackened camp fires. Whether natives practise cannibalism simply to eat, or in order to maintain tribal customs and taboos, has not yet been ascertained.

After government stations have been established, approved missionary organizations will be allowed to enter the areas to promote Christianity in place of native taboos and customs. Agriculture and education will follow.

Canadian Lives With Primitive Africans

By ARCH MacKENZIE

LONDON (CP) — Anthropologist Clare Hopen, a clean-cut young Canadian, chucked a Saskatchewan farm to get an education and wound up living with a primitive nomad people inhabiting a West Africa area larger than continental Europe.

His farming background comes in handy. The 30-year-old graduate of the University of British Columbia helped milk and herd to get on good terms with the little-known Fulani tribe.

Now back in Britain after the first phase of his venture, the Margo, Sask., native expects to set out again soon, travelling light for the next 18 months by car, motorcycle, horse, camel, and shanks mare in a territory of Nigeria bordering the Sahara desert. He will share the backwoods native fare of ground corn, lots of milk and a speck of meat, fish or poultry once a weekk.

TO RETURN IN 1955

He plans to return in January, 1955, with a full report on the customs, habits and other culture data of the cattle-rich people whose background is an acknowledged mystery. He will touch a small but representative portion of the 3,000,000 Fulani, who occupy 1,000,000 square miles.

Back in London now he's writing up his first 18-month expedition and putting back some of the 40 pounds he lost due to assorted fevers and long treks. He doesn't expect to lose as much next time, if only because of his experience.

EARLY INTEREST

Youngest son in a large family of Norwegian extraction, Hopen cut his anthropological teeth on a Saskatchewan hilltop where, Indian legend said, an Indian tribe used to retreat from floodwaters. The spring plowing turned up plenty of arrow heads and other historic traces, which stuck in Hopen's mind after his RCAF discharge.

He was graduated from UBC in 1948 and finished post-graduate work at Columbia in 1950. Then he struck out for England to take potluck on any field trips that might be available. He was working at the Imperial Institute Museum when he was picked for the current project, financed by a Rockefeller grant through the International African Institute of Languages and Culture.

Hopen, like most scientists, is chary of sweeping observations, but he agrees that no one is sure who the Fulani are or where they originated. It is known they launched a holy war in 1804 to convert a number of Negroid tribes, and swept over the area they now share with the peoples they converted to Mohammedism by the sword.

LIGHTER SKINNED

Physically, the Fulani are lighter skinned than the nearby Negroid types. The women are good looking and can spit 15 feet. The Fulani hair may have long, deep waves unlike the Negroid kinky whorls.

Hopen speaks Fulani, one of Africa's thousands of tongues. It has more than 20 classes of pronouns and sounds to the untiated like a series of grunts.

CNR Vice-President Dies At Home

TORONTO (CP)—Gerard Ruel, 85, former vice-president of Canadian National Railways, died at his home Tuesday. Born in Saint John, N.B., he became chief solicitor for the Canadian Northern Railway in 1906. In 1920 Mr. Ruel was appointed general counsel for the CNR and Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and three years later became vice-president and general counsel. He resigned in 1932 to enter a law firm.

Joint British-French Rule Headache To Islanders

VILA, New Hebrides (Reuters)—The New Hebrides islands are under the joint rule of Britain and France. A "condominium," they call it—but the islanders call it just plain complicated.

All boats have to be fitted with two flag masts, one for the Union Jack and one for the French flag. Commercial and public buildings must have two flagpoles of equal height, even the homes of the district commissioners on lonely islands.

The island of Tanna, about 130 miles south of Vila, has two district commissioners, who live side by side on top of a hill, in similar buildings. In front of each house are two flagpoles. Recently, the British commissioner noticed that one pole was a foot shorter than the other. So he flew his "home" flag from the taller pole, on the left. Then he was told that the "home" flag should be on the right.

So the shorter pole was taken down, the missing length spliced in, and a crew of men tried to put it up again. But they got the stay wires tangled and both poles crashed across the jeep of a visiting missionary.

Flags Flutter Above Tension In Georgetown

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, —Just over a month after the dispatch of the cruiser Superb to this Colony and the suspension of the constitution, Georgetown looks superficially like a place which has experienced a coronation rather than a crisis.

Along the wide main streets of the city, by far the handsomest of the British West Indian capitals, Union Jacks and other Commonwealth flags flutter from official buildings, business premises and private houses, and one store even has its windows decorated with a line of plaques reading, "Long Live Our Queen".

The skirl of the bagpipes audible throughout the city's centre has a festive rather than a menacing sound, and "de soldiers in skirts" are still a source of constant fascination to the local young ladies.

Women shopkeepers in the poorer districts still address one amiably as "darlin" or "me love," and my only personal experience of proletarian hostility has been a little black boy in a nearby village who advised me, "White man get going." My inelegant tu quoque produced only good-natured amusement among his elders.

Nevertheless, the feeling of recent tension and near-panic is not far below the surface. In colored middle-class homes the political situation has ousted almost all other topics of teatime conversation and there is a feeling, reflected even more strongly in official circles, that the troops arrived just in time.

Most of the people who speak like this do so more in sorrow than in anger, and many indeed voted for the People's Progressive Party in the hope that it would produce a bit more much-needed action than its predecessors.

In the villages and on the sugar estates among the black and East Indian peasants and laborers there is also disquiet. They don't speak so readily to strangers, and this in itself is a measure of their state of mind.

The PPP has impressed itself on most of their minds as "their" party, and they feel there is a catch in any alternative presented to them, particularly by the Government or company officials.

Today managers and staffs of the estates are not the bogeymen of yesteryear and are often Guianese themselves, but the PPP has inflamed memories of the past of which, despite considerable housing developments and other improvements, the sordid old "ranges" still stand as a reminder, too often still inhabited.

One flower plucked from the nettles of danger has undoubtedly been the realization by formerly apathetic people that land resettlement, better housing and other problems, must be tackled with a good deal more energy than was shown by previous administrations, a realization which is being pressed home by the Governor.

Brinton-Peterboro Carpet Announces Appointments

A general re-alignment of executive personnel that has been taking place was announced today by George Morden, general manager of Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. Ltd.

The changes include some appointments of new men and re-appointments of established employees.

NEW DEPARTMENT

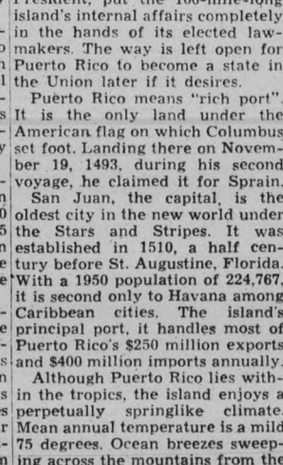
Richard Laver, 25, has been named manager of a newly formed time study and production scheduling department. He came to the Peterborough plant in March, 1952 as time study engineer from Valleyfield, Quebec. A native of Orillia, he has a wife and two small daughters.

Another employee brought to Brinton-Peterborough is the new cost accountant, Frank W. Raper, 39. He has considerable experience in accounting in Montreal firms. With his wife and three children he lives on Parkhill road.

An employee of the firm nearly 33 years, Clarence Corbett, 47, has been named personnel manager. Production manager for the three previous years, he has come up through the firm after starting as an apprentice in gripper weaving. After three years as a full-fledged gripper weaver, he was appointed assistant superintendent, foreman of finishing and shipping departments, than superintendent of gripper, wilton and starchhouse departments before being appointed production manager and finally personnel manager.

Two changes have been made around the sales order desk. Reg. Kingdon, an employee for 14 years has been in charge of the desks. A former order clerk and paymaster, he left the company for three years and returned in 1950 to take charge of the sales order desk until his appointment as manager of a new Toronto sales office.

To take his place Brinton-Peterborough brought in Kenneth Vaughan, 28, from Leaside. Married, he lives on George St.



SECRETARY-TREASURER

New secretary-treasurer of the company is Walter Cass, 39, FCIS. He came to the Briton in 1952 from Montreal as secretary of the company and secretary of J. M. Mackie, chairman of the board. Married, he has one daughter.

David Leether continues in his capacity of mill manager.

Other key personnel include Jack Hamer, 39, well known Peterborough artist, who has been Brinton-Peterborough's designer since 1936, with a year out for a trip to England, is chief designer. He, his wife and two children live on Bonnacord St.

A newcomer to Canada as well as to Brinton-Peterborough is Stanley Colbourn from Worcestshire, England. He is one of a very few fully qualified carpet designers from England in Canada. Married with one son, he also teaches art at the PCVS night school.

Self-Governing Puerto Rico Spurred By New Industries

WASHINGTON—Autonomy and industry are marching forward together in Puerto Rico.

Now in its second year of United States Commonwealth status, the crowded Caribbean island has raised employment 25 per cent in the last decade. National income has doubled, and per capita income is up 70 per cent. More than 150 newly established plants turn out textiles, toys, lenses, shoes, Christmast-tree ornaments and many other products.

With a population density matching that of New Jersey, Puerto Rico has long been plagued with unemployment, says the National Geographic Society. Lack of arable land and natural resources has further handicapped its economy. The island produces only half its food requirements.

Puerto Rico is the eastern anchor of the Greater Antilles chain of West Indies islands. Its 2,250,000 inhabitants are squeezed into 3,435 square miles. Among American states and territories, only Rhode Island has more persons per square mile.

The island's precious soil is intensively cultivated from the shores to the summits of its 4,000-foot-high mountains. Sugarcane is the major crop, sugar production averaging about one million tons annually. Before new businesses came in from the mainland, four major industries—sugar processing, needlework, tobacco, and rum—accounted for 75 per cent of manufacturing employment.

Puerto Rico's population has doubled since 1898, the year Spain relinquished its four centures of rule to the United States. Spanish is the language of the people, but English is common in business and government.

In 1917, territorial status brought U.S. citizenship to Puerto Ricans. On July 25, 1952, the island became a self-govering Commonwealth. A new constitution, approved by the U.S. Congress and President, put the 100-mile-long island's internal affairs completely in the hands of its elected lawmakers. The way is left open for Puerto Rico to become a state in the Union later if it desires.

Puerto Rico means "rich port". It is the only land under the American flag on which Columbus set foot. Landing there on November 19, 1493, during his second voyage, he claimed it for Sprain.

San Juan, the capital, is the oldest city in the new world under the Stars and Stripes. It was established in 1510, a half century before St. Augustine, Florida. With a 1950 population of 224,767, it is second only to Havana among Caribbean cities. The island's principal port, it handles most of Puerto Rico's $250 million exports and $400 million imports annually.

Although Puerto Rico lies within the tropics, the island enjoys a perpetually springlike climate. Mean annual temperature is a mild 75 degrees. Ocean breezes sweeping across the mountains from the cool North Atlantic temper the heat. Flowers bloom the year around.

Bacon Too Thin Senator Has Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—A western farmer Tuesday outlined to the Senate his plan to rid Canada of surplus meat. His idea: Stop "shaving" bacon into wafer-thin slices.

Senator R. B. Horner (PC—Saskatchewan) made the suggestion during the throne speech debate, adding it to his annual complaint that he can't buy roast beef in most restaurants and, when he can, it costs too much.

"First of all," he said, "I would instruct someone to have confiscated all those slicing machines that shave bacon to thin wafers. I defy anyone to cook such thin slices properly.

"If instead of slicing pork thin, it was sliced in good thick slices, we would soon get rid of our surplus meat."

Syracuse, founded in 734 BC, once was the wealthiest and most populous city in Sicily.

Laniel Met At Bermuda By Churchill

Premier To Press For Long Term Support Pledges

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda —(AP)—France's Premier Joseph Laniel arrived today for the Big Three Bermuda conference, determined to press for new long-term pledges of support in Europe from Britain and the United States.

Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden were at Kindley field to meet Laniel, his foreign minister Georges Bidault, and a team of 17 experts from the French foreign office. President Eisenhower will arrive tomorrow for the five days of conferences.

Laniel was reported also ready to tell Britain and the United States that France is prepared to examine any peace offers made officially by Ho Chi Minh, the Moscow-educated general who has been directing the long war in Indo-China against the French.

To the Americans, the major task of the conference is to prod the balky French National Assembly into ratifying the European Defence Community pact. It provides for a unified West European army including troops from France's long-time enemy, Germany.

NO PROMISES

Laniel can promise nothing because his government must resign Jan. 17, a month after France's new president is elected. But he was understood to have a number of conditions which French sources say must be met before there is any chance for assembly approval of German rearmament.

These include:

1. British-U.S. agreement to prod the West Germans into agreeing that the Saar basin, rich in coal and steel, will remain politically autonomous but linked economically to France. It was German before the Second World War, and the Germans want it back.

2. British and U.S. assurances that they won't pull their troops out of Europe and leave the French to face rearmed Germans alone.

3. Continued U.S. help against the Communist-led rebels in Indo-China, or Allied diplomatic support for a negotiated settlement with Ho Chi Minh's forces.

4. British-U.S. agreement to Moscow's proposal for a Big Four foreign ministers meeting.

Of these, only the Saar seems a major stumbling block, as resurgent West Germany so far has given no sign of concession.

BRITISH POSITION

Otherwise, the British-U.S. position shapes up this way:

1. Eisenhower is ready to assure the French that the United States will maintain "combat effectiveness" on the continent, if not necessarily the present number of troops it has there.

OUT OF THE STORM CLOUDS to sunny Bermuda, Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill arrived Wednesday with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden for a three-power conference to begin Saturday. Here the Prime Minister is greeted by Bermuda's Governor Sir Alexander Hood at Kinley airfield. The giant aircraft flew most of the trip from Gander above 20,000 feet to ride out a storm...— (Federal Newsphoto)

Hazy Focus

CHANDLER, Okla. (AP)—Policeman Hank Albritton promptly arrested a motorist for drunkenness when the driver, holding up traffic for blocks, demanded indignantly, "When's that light going to change?" The red light he was referring to was part of downtown Chandler's new Christmas decorations.

New York Papers Reject Union Proposal

NEW YORK (AP) — Publishers have turned down a photo-engravers' union proposal cutting demands by about half, a federal mediator announced, and the city's newspaper strike today went into its sixth day.

Prior to the newspapers' action, the union had rejected a proposal by the publishers for arbitration of four deadlocked issues, including wages and hours. Negotiations were recessed shortly before midnight and were to be resumed this afternoon.

"No progress was made," federal mediator Frank H. Brown said.

Brown said representatives of the six strike-bound newspapers turned down a proposal by Local 1 of the International Photo-Engravers Union (AFL) for a package increase of $7.50 a week. He added that the newspapers, represented by the Publishers Association of New York city, made no new proposal.

William Mapel, president of the publishers group, told reporters "We've made our offer." By this he meant a package of $3.75, including benefits, which the publishers had offered before the strike of 400 engravers started last Saturday. Average pay then was $120 a week for day work and $130 for nights, although the publishers say overtime boosted some wages to $10,000 a year.

ARBITRATION REJECTED

Last Friday, when a total of 12 issues were in dispute, the engravers voted to reject a publisher proposal for arbitration. The second union rejection of arbitration was voted as a membership meeting Tuesday, which also halved the demands.

The strike has left New Yorkers without a major city newspaper for the first time in publishing history. A total circulation of almost 5,500,000 has been cut off.

NEW YORK PAPERS (Continued on Page 2)

RCMP Put Poser To Gouzenko

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP will put this question to Igor Gouzenko: Do you want to be questioned by United States spy investigators?

On Gouzenko's reply will hinge the probable end to the Gouzenko controversy or a secret meeting between him and the United States Senate internal security sub-committee.

The Canadian government last week laid down three conditions on which Gouzenko could be questioned by Senator William Jenner's hunters of Communist-in-government.

These were: If Gouzenko agreed, if the meeting were held in secret in Canada, and if Canada approved any Gouzeno testimony which the U.S. investigators wanted to make public.

Jenner at first balked at the third condition, but announced acceptance of Canada's terms Wednesday.

BARED OPERATIONS

Gouzenko, former Russian cipher clerk here, bared operations of a Soviet espionage network in Canada in 1945. All the information he supplied then, and in subsequent interviews with the RCMP, was passed to the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation. Jenner has said he wants to question Gouzenko anyway.

The Canadian government has made no bones about its belief any meeting would be fruitless. It said that another U.S. Senate sub-committee which questioned Gouzenko in secret at Ottawa in 1949 unearthed no new information.

One of the major factors in the Canadian government's stipulation that any Gouzenko testimony be kept secret unless Canada rules otherwise is this:

Gouzenko in his testimony might refer to Canadians but against whom no charges could be proved. If this testimony were made public, these Canadians would suffer although there would be insufficient evidence to convict them or even place charges against them.

In short, the government is being extremely careful to prevent leakage of any testimony which might lead to a "witch-hunt."

Loses Control Through Ignorance

President No Longer Planning Genius, Now On Defensive

LONDON—(CP)—The Daily Herald, a Labor party newspaper, told its readers today that President Eisenhower is a sad and disillusioned man who has thrown away the leadership of the American Republican party out of political ignorance.

Two other London newspapers, The Daily Mirror and The News Chronicle, expressed dim views of Eisenhower's leadership on the eve of the Big Three conference in Bermuda.

SAYS IKE ILL ADVISED

Arthur Webb, the American correspondent for The Herald, said Churchill "will get a shock" when he meets Eisenhower. Webb added:

"Ten months in the White House has destroyed the bouncing enthusiasm of the general who staged the great crusade in Europe. In politics nothing has gone according to plan for a man who was a planning genius in war. It is true he has been ill-advised. He is handicapped by his own ignorance of politics and government.

"But if he had taken command during the first three months, he would not now be on the defensive against the attacks of senators McCarthy, Jenner and their supporters."

FEARS PARTY DIE-HARDS

Webb said Eisenhower will not dare "add to his troubles" by agreeing to meet with Soviet Premier Malenkov, as desired by Churchill. "He fears that once agreement is reached to meet the Russian leader, he will be denounced immediately by his own die-hards."

Western European papers hailed Eisenhower's stand Wednesday in backing State Secretary Dulles' blast at the Wisconsin senator.

In Britain, the Conservative Daily Mail declared, "Ike Backs 'War' on McCarthy." Lord Beaverbrook's independent Daily Express said "Ike Snubs McCarthy Again" and the Labor Daily Herald topped its story with "Now Ike Hits Out at Senator McCarthy."

The Liberal News-Chronicle headlined a story: "And Now Ike is Slapping Joe Down."

Asks U.S Recognize Communist China

LONDON (Reuters) — The Daily Mirror today urged President Eisenhower to agree at the Big Three talks in Bermuda to recognize Communist China and to hold talks with Russia.

This mass-circulation newspaper declared: "Much American policy dismays us. Your buddies, Chiang Kai-shek and Syngman Rhee, scare the daylights out of us. Senator Joseph McCarthy and his boys turn our stomachs.

"We say—recognize Red China. Give the Far East a new look. Let's have four-power talks to get the measure of Malenkov."

Friends May Have Caused Man's Death

HUNTSVILLE (CP) — Police speculated today that a man whose body was found Tuesday may have been killed by well-meaning friends trying to revive him.

The body of Kenneth Secord, 23, was found on the seat of his automobile, dead of a broken neck. Police said there were no marks or bruises on his body.

Medical-legal experts from the attorney-general's office in Toronto were expected to be called in to determine whether murder or kindness caused his death.

Elected President

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Jack Cropper Wednesday night was elected president of Branch 24, Canadian Legion, succeeding Reg Cleator, zone commander.

Industry In Britain Again Producing After 1 Day Strike

LONDON—(Reuters)—The wheels of British industry started up again this morning after a 24-hour stand-still forced by the greatest labor stoppage in the United Kingdom since the general strike of 1926. Between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 workers answered Wednesday's union strike call to back a demand for a 15-per-cent wage increase. About 4,250 shipwards, automotive and aviation factories, and other industrial plants were affected.

It was Britain's first national "token" strike, though they are common in continental European countries.

MAY BAN OVERTIME

The Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions' next move in the wage campaign, possibly an overtime ban, is being planned by the national committee of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, generally recognized as the leader of agitation. The union wields a powerful vote in the confederation.

The union's 52-man executive committee includes 15 known Communists and fellow travellers.

Effect of Wednesday's stoppage has not been fully assessed, but loss of production was estimated at more than £10,000,000. Wage losses totalled about £1,000,000.

WAGES ABOVE AVERAGE

The wages which the strikers want jumped by 15 per cent now stand at between £1 1s to £2 a day—in most cases somewhat above the British national average.

The strike was considered by the participating unions to have been highly successful, with a high percentage support among the rank and file. Many factories were totally deserted. In others, women and unskilled workers turned up for work.

UN Condemns Atrocities By Communists

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) The UN General Assembly today expressed its "grave concern" at Red atrocities in Korea and approved an American call for stiff condemnation of such actions.

Over Soviet opposition, the 60-nation assembly approved a Western-sponsored resolution of condemnation by a vote of 42 to 5 with 10 abstentions.

The balloting followed three days of vitriolic debate in which Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of the United States accused the North Koreans and Chinese Communists of killing nearly 38,000 UN soldiers and civilians in Korea as a part of high Kremlin policy.

The five negative votes were cast by the Soviet bloc. The 10 abstentions were mostly by Asian and Arab nations.

THE TERMS

According to terms of the resolution, sponsored by Britain, the U.S., France, Turkey and Australia, the assembly specifically:

"1. Expresses its grave concern at reports and information that North Korean and Chinese Communist forces have, in a large number of instances, employed inhuman practices against the heroic soldiers of forces under the United Nations command in Korea and against the civilian population in Korea.

"2. Condemns the commission by any governments or authorities of murder, mutilation, torture, and other atrocious acts against captured military personnel or civilian populations, as a violation of rules of international law and basic standards of conduct and morality and as affronting human rights and the dignity and worth of the human person."

Vishinsky said he and his allies voted against the resolution because it was "libelous, spurious and hypocritical."

Before the vote, a heated debate had included denunciation of Red atrocities by Western members and counter-thrusts from the Soviet bloc. The latter sought to prove that U.S. and South Korean troops were the atrocity perpetrators.

VERBAL DUEL

The result was a verbal duel between the chief U.S. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, and Russia's Andrei Vishinsky.

At the peak of the debate, Lodge charged that North Korea's military commander, Gen. Nam Il, masterminded the bloody Koje prison riots during the armistice negotiations at Panmunjom. Lodge also challenged Russia to let an international Red Cross committee make an unfettered check of the U. S.-alleged Red atrocities in Korea.

In retort, Vishinsky angrily denounced the Nam Il charge as "absurd" and unsupported by facts. The Russian called the U.S. challenge for a Red Cross probe "an 11th-hour approach, obviously of a demagogic nature."

Lodge had urged the investigation after Vishinsky labelled the atrocity charges "bosh."

2nd Group Elects Life With Reds

PANMUNJOM (AP)—A second group of 30 South Koreans today unanimously chose life under the Communists, giving Allied persuaders a total blank for two days of efforts to woo home balky war prisoners.

There was no violence, but many prisoners were more talkative than the 30 who listened passively Wednesday to South Korean explainers, then chose communism.

The United Nations command said 30 more South Koreans of 328 who refused repatriation will be interviewed Friday. There was no indication when the 22 Americans and one Briton will be called.

Negotiators working on plans for a Korean peace conference, meanwhile, met for 3½ hours and apparently made no progress.

United States envoy Arthur H. Dean warned the Reds that their insistence on seating Russia as a neutral might stall the conference "indefinitely and perhaps forever."

Suspects Held Payroll Snatch

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police today arrested three suspects in Wednesday's street snatch of a $3,600 payroll from two women employees of the Ontario Boys' Wear Company.

They are Harold Hancock, 38, Miles Simpson, 20, and John Fields, 26, all of Toronto, charged with robbery and theft of an automobile.

Mrs. George Newnham and Miss Virginia Aboud were taking a payroll from a bank to their office when a man jumped from a car and grabbed a briefcase containing the money. Mrs. Newnham fought for possession of the case and the man threw her to the ground.

Police recovered a stolen car, abandoned a few blocks from the scene. Bystanders said they saw three men in the car as it sped away.

$20,000 Fire Damages North Bay Dance Hall

NORTH BAY (CP)—Fire swept through the largest dance hall in the North Bay area Wednesday night, causing an estimated $20,000 damage. The hall was empty at the time.

Origin of the blaze at the Top Hat dance pavilion in suburban West Ferris township was not immediately known. Major damage was confined to the interior of the big frame structure.

London Doctors Separate Siamese Twins

LONDON (CP) — Doctors separated a pair of infant Siamese twins here today but one child died after two hours of desperate effort to keep it alive.

The child collapsed following the operation. Doctors attempted to restore it by means of heart massage but the attempt sustained life for only a short while.

The second baby was reported to be in "good shape."

FLOWN FROM NIGERIA

The twins were flown to London from Nigeria last month in a bid to save their lives.

The three-month-old baby girls were parted after a delicate surgical operation which lasted an hour and 35 minutes.

They received blood transfusions and began their separate lives in incubators. They had been joined at the lower part of the abdomen and lower chest.

"Things are going very well so far but there's still a lot to do," a hospital spokesman said.

FIRST IN BRITAIN

John Barron, a top British plastic surgeon, stood by in case either of the babies needed a skin graft. The skin would come from their mother.

It was the first "Siamese twin" operation ever performed in Britain, according to medical records.

Doctors said their plans had been greatly assisted by the film of a similar operation made by Dr. Eardley Allin of Edmonton, which was flown from Canada earlier this week.

OPERATION FAILED

Dr. Allin headed a team of 12 specialists in a 1950 operation in Edmonton to separate Brenda and Beverley Townsend, also joined at the abdomen. They survived only a few minutes after a two-hour operation.

Among reasons given by Dr. Allin for the failure were the extremely difficult separation of the children's livers and the position of their hearts.

The twins operated on today—both girls—are the children of a Nigerian clerk and his salesgirl wife.

Hidden In Car of Lumber Family Escapes Iron Curtain

LINZ, Austria (Reuters)—Bedrich Cach, 52, told today how his family, including two small children, survived starvation and bluffed their way across the Iron Curtain from Czechoslovakia, cooped inside their "wooden horse," a compartment secretly built in a trainload of lumber.

The five Czechs arrived in the American zone of Austria Nov. 26 at the end of a six-day journey in the train, which was carrying lumber consigned to Trieste.

With Cech were his son Marian, 30, a sawmill manager, his pregnant daughter-in-law, 24-year-old Drahomira, and their two children, Ladislaus, 4, and Vlasta, 2.

DAUGHTER WED GI

Cech told a press conference that the family planned to escape because he feared arrest after his daughter Vlasta fled into Austria in 1949 and married an American soldier.

They arranged to have lumber intended for Trieste loaded in their own yard, cutting it to leave a space big enough to hold the family. Inside the compartment they cached oxygen, food, water and plum brandy.

The train left Nov. 21 with the family safely aboard. Police searching for refugees at the frontier failed to find their secret compartment and the train moved into the Soviet zone of Austria—heading for freedom.

Overjoyed, the family ate the food and drank the water while waiting to reach the U.S. zone. Then the train unexpectedly moved back into Czechoslovakia.

CRIED FOR WATER

For three days they remained cooped inside the train, growing hungrier by the minute. Cech said they gave the children lumps of sugar soaked in plum brandy but little Ladislaus and Vlasta cried for water.

Cech decided to give himself up. Then a new idea came to them. They boldly presented their papers as state sawmill employees to the station master where the train was standing and demanded the immediate dispatch of the lumber saying it was urgently wanted in Trieste.

The station master agreed to move the freight the following day. Father and son bought beer and food for their family and stole back inside the compartment.

Next morning the train moved off. At the Czech frontier—their third crossing—there was another inspection. But they passed through safely and again heard German spoken in Austria.

The family now is in a camp near here awaiting permission to go to the United States.

Burma Charges Insincerity

RANGOON (AP) — Burma's Prime Minister N Nu Wednesday accused the United States, Britain and Russia of insincerity in their professions of defending democracy.

"All are building up their strength for global control," he contended.

Addressing a University of Rangoon convocation, N Nu said:

"In Africa the United States is supporting colonial imperial systems which are most loathsome to African. In Spain, also, the Americans support the Fascist Franco regime. In Indo-China, they are helping and encouraging French colonial rulers who are not acceptable any more to all the Indo-Chinese." . . . .

BALTIC EXAMPLE

Of Russia, N Nu said: "Soviet Russia, which has been most vocal about freedom from imperialist occupation, during the war became an imperialist power herself by occupying the small states of Latvia, Estonia and Lithuania. She was also guilty of aggression against Finland."

On Britain, the prime minister said: "If you look at Britain, their outcries, their slogans are again for democracy, respect of human dignity and salvation of civilization. That is one side of the picture. The other side is provided by Malaya, Kenya, British Guiana, Malta and the Gold Coast.

'They have not let go of these colonial possessions up to now. In Kenya natives who wanted to go back to their own lands have been subjected to bombs and machine-gunning."

RCAF Lancasters To Be Replaced

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has decided to replace its RCAF Maritime Lancasters with the modern United Kingdom Bristol Britannia aircraft, informed quarters disclosed today.

Plans for the new type of Bristol aircraft—a sleek four-engine, propellor-and-gas-turbine plane — will be obtained from the U. K. The construction will be carried out at the Canadair Ltd. plant at Montreal.

In all likelihood the gas turbine engines will be purchased in Britain, though the final decision on this point has not yet been made.

Informants said that about 50 of the aircraft will be constructed at Canadair which currently is producing the F-86 Sabre jet fighter.

Condition Unchanged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Fred Peters of Hensall who suffered fractures of hip, neck, ribs and nose and also chest injuries in a truck crash Monday, remained in critical condition at Victoria Hospital today. Attendants reported the 52-year-old man had regained consciousness but his condition was unchanged. His truck crashed against three trees seven miles east of Hensall.

Medicine Men To Perform

VICTORIA (CP)—Medicine men will perform tricks that date back into antiquity and are described by anthropologists as the weirdest in the world at an Indian potlatch opening a new Indian house here.

The three-day ceremony will be given by Mungo Martin starting Dec. 14 and 16, to officially open the Kwakiutl Indian house he built with his son David in the B. C. government's Thunderbird Park here.

The tricks will be performed before some 200 Indian guests before a huge bonfire in the house.

Mr. Martin said people will be made to apparently disappear into the flames and reappear at will; objects to appear to float through the air and strange voices to come from the fire.

Another trick will be the apparent driving of a stone wedge through a man's head.

Keep New Laws Clear Of Politics

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has reiterated the government's view that parliamentary consideration of proposed amendments to the Criminal Code should be on a non-political basis.

Mr. St. Laurent told a delegation from the Trades and Labor Congress Wednesday that he regards the code revision as a matter for Parliament rather than the government.

"We do not try to exercise pressure in this matter," he told TLC officials seeking some code amendments in their annual legislative submission to Parliament.

A 300-page bill overhauling the code has been introduced in the Commons. It is largely the result of the work of Senate and Commons committees which worked through the last session in non-partisan fashion.

Swimming On Sunday Vs. Polo

Anglican Vicar Chides Dr. Donald Soper

GODMANCHESTER, ENGLAND (AP)—A Methodist leader who condemned the Sabbath polo playing of the Duke of Edinburgh was himself named today as a Sunday swimmer.

Rev. Peter Disney, Church of England vicar here, said Dr. Donald Soper, president of the Methodist conference, "even goes to chapel with a swim-suit under his Sunday clothes."

Noting in his parish magazine that Dr. Soper has strongly criticized the duke for banging a polo ball around on Sundays, the vicar declared:

CHIDES DR. SOPER

"No, no, Dr. Soper, you cannot have it both ways. If it's wrong for the Duke of Edinburgh, then it's wrong for the president of the Methodist conference."

Dr. Soper admitted to reporters that, "When my wife and I are on holiday we go to chapel wearing swim-suits under our Sunday best and hope for a short sermon."

But his swimming and the sporting duke's activities are far different in their effect on churchgoing, Dr. Soper contended.

"When the Duke of Edinburgh plays polo it becomes a public event."

Forest Fire Problem Being Solved

Prime Minister Frost Hopeful Of Ontario Cutting Fire Losses

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost said Wednesday night he thinks the problem of keeping forest fires from destroying timber is on the way to being solved.

"Perhaps we have reached the point where we can contain those great fires that used to destroy such a great part of the province," he said in an address at the University of Toronto to students taking an extension course in conservation.

He said that one of the main problems facing the province is the conservation and proper use of water resources.

"Industrial water in this part of the province is a very important problem, so important that it may some day be necessary to pipe water in from the Great Lakes."

Frost Progresses Against Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Some progress was reported Wednesday at a meeting between Premier Frost and top union officials attempting to settle the strike of some 7,000 northern Ontario and northwestern Quebec gold miners.

The third in the latest series of meetings is scheduled for Friday morning between representatives of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines and union officials.

Premier Frost could not be reached for comment following the session but C. H. Millard, Canadian director of United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), said "some progress is being made."

He declined elaboration. The parties are deadlocked on the issues of wage increases and union dues checkoff.

Hollinger, which employs 1,500 members of the union, has been strike-bound since Sept. 24. It is the largest of eight mines in northern gold mining areas closed by strikes. A formula for settling the Hollinger dispute could pave the way for agreement at the other mines.

"Trial" Day Forecasts Fine Mild Weather

"This is trial Thursday," Lou Shaw of Otonabee reminded the Examiner today.

"Maybe the young people don't hear so much about it as we did at their age. The elders used to say when I was a boy that the weather on the first Thursday of a new season was an index for the next three months. I usually take a look at it on that day, and according to today's sunshine and mildness we shouldn't need to think of Florida.

"This is the first Thursday of the new winter, so from now to the end of February young people can decide for themselves whether this bit of weather lore is worth noting."

Polio Assumes New Prominence

OTTAWA (CP) — Poliomyelitis has assumed new prominence as a major public health problem in Canada, Health Minister Martin said Wednesday in the Commons.

He said preliminary figures of 8,243 cases and 354 deaths "indicate that this year's outbreak will prove to be one of the most serious on record."

Mr. Martin said the government has made more than $1,500,000 available to the provinces under the national health plan.

Of this, more than $730,000 was for the extension of research into the value of gamma globulin for Red Cross blood banks and for helping in increased production of gamma globulin.

The minister said many questions concerning the use and effectiveness of gamma globulin remain to be answered. While there had been reports of its modifying post-polio paralysis, it was still in the experimental stage.

Mr. Martin said plans have been completed with provincial authorities whereby facilities will be increased so that this year's Canadian production of gamma globulin can be doubled from the 25,000 doses of last year.

Fear Poor Basis For Co-operation

TORONTO (CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said Wednesday night that fear inspired the Western world to gird its strength against a potential aggressor but fear is no permanent basis for political or economic co-operation.

Addressing the Certified Public Accountants Association of Ontario, he said the fear of communism is a genuine one in some quarters but there are those who exploit this genuine fear for their own interests and ambitions.

"We must have a belief in our own society, in our own governments, in our own institutions. We must refuse to believe that the few traitors in our midst can destroy our free institutions. They cannot. We are stronger than our fears, stronger than those who exploit those fears."

In an apparent reference to the recent controversy about a request for Igor Gounzeko, whose disclosures broke a Russian-sponsored spy ring in Canada, to appear before a United States Communist-hunting sub-committee, Mr. Pearson said:

"In these matters, both governments must show in the future, as they have in the past, respect for each other's practices and not ask of the other what it cannot grant itself."

Cheese Producers Complimented By MP

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Roscoe Robson, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Hastings East, complimented the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association and the Ontario marketing board Wednesday "for a splendid job in selling cheese to Britain."

In an address to a special meeting of the cheese producers held here in conjunction with the British Empire Dairy Show, he said:

"It is better that the cheese industry get on its own feet and not depend on the government to do the job for you."

Mr. Robson said he hoped the dairy industry would aid the cheese industry in financing a $400,000 liability incurred in the recent shipment of 10,000,000 pounds of cheese to Britain.

"If the cheese industry is to turn the surplus milk production of this country into a saleable product then the whole industry should help bear the expense," he said.

OTTAWA (CP)—Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East) wants the Commons to set up a commission to investigate farm problems and recommend development policies.

In a notice placed today on the House order paper, he said he will ask that such a commission be empowered to look into needs for farm capital and credit, extension of markets and rural transportation, electrification and communications.

Farmers Urged Market Produce

VINELAND (CP)—Farmers and fruit growers were urged Wednesday to press for legislation enabling them to set up their own marketing organizations.

Jack Brodrick of St. Catharines, a director of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said in an address to the federation Lincoln county group the producers should stop looking to governments to do their marketing.

"We can't appeal to governments any more to do our marketing for us. They are dealing with politics and are not marketers of agricultural produce."

The meeting passed resolutions calling for a regulated peach-marketing organization, a price-spread investigation on foods, an investigation of pricing in the fertilizer industry, legislation compelling owners of trucks and trailers to instal rear-end crash guards, and for stricter testing of persons applying for drivers' licences.

By-Election Held In UK

LONDON (AP)—London's Paddington North area voted today in a sharply-contested parliamentary by-election, the 22nd since the Conservatives were returned to power in 1951.

The Conservative candidate, John Eden, is the handsome 28-year-old nephew of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

Enthusiastic but inexperienced, Eden is fighting Benjamin Theaker Parkin, a 47-year-old former Labor member of Parliament.

The by-election was caused by the resignation of Labor member W. J. Field.

LABOR SINCE 1945

Before the war, Paddington was a "safe" Conservative area, but in the 1945 general election it was caught in the Labor landslide and has remained Labor since.

Result of the election will not be declared until around midnight.

A third contender in the Paddington fight is a Socialist Trotskyite, bus driver William Walters, who is not conceded any chance for election.

Counsellors Of State Given First Assent

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret and Queen Mother Elizabeth Wednesday sent their first messages to Parliament in their capacities as counsellors of state in the absence of the Queen.

The messages, signed "Elizabeth Regina, Margaret," gave royal assent to a number of orders-in-council recently passed in Parliament. They were addressed to both the House of Commons and the House of Lords.

Lack of newspaper advertising has caused department store Christmas shopping to fall off.

PAY STOPPED

Pay was stopped Wednesday night for most of the 20,000-odd employees of the six newspapers whose action in honoring the engravers' picket lines forced the papers to close.

The Herald Tribune, which has been keeping its employees going through the motions of putting editions together, is continuing regular pay.

The publishers issued a statement that non-striking employees, most of whom belong to unions, have been dropped from the payroll until they return to work.

Papers affected by the strike are the Times, Mirror, Daily News, morning newspapers, and the Journal-American, World Telegram and Sun and the Post, evening papers.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL—(CP)—The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 2 15-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 97 19-32 cents. Pound sterling $2.74⅛, against $2.74⅜.

Chicago Exposition Rejects Three Canadian Entries

CHICAGO—(CP)—Three Canadian entries in the grain show held in conjunction with the International Livestock Exposition here have been disqualified for being too old. Harry Ryan, show superintendent, announced Wednesday night that samples submitted by R. P. Robbins, Shaunavon, Sask.; Albert Kessell, Rosetown, Sask.; and the William Lansdell Brothers Farm, Brampton, Ont., had been rejected. William Ogilvie, exposition manager, said a number of grain and hay samples are rejected each year on the same ground.

In Shaunavon, Robbins, a registered seed grower for 30 years who was named wheat king in 1950, angrily denied that he had submitted an old sample of wheat.

"There's a mistake, that's all I can make of it, and I can prove it," he said.

He said his sample had taken first prize at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto and "if it was good enough for them it is good enough for Chicago." He added that the Chicago exposition had rejected his sample of durum last year on the same ground.

William Lansdell said in Brampton that his peas had not ripened evenly this year and he took some of last year's crop to fill out the required amount for his entry. Kessel was not available for comment.

Longshoremen's Threat Police Ordered Keep Watch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Extra police were ordered today to keep watch during a threatened march on San Francisco civic centre by Harry Bridges' longshoremen protesting hearings by the House of Representatives un-American activities committee at city hall.

The protest, labelled a "stop work" meeting by Bridges' own Local 10 of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, could tie up 40 ships. It was called Wednesday night at a meeting attended by fewer than 600 of the local's 5,500 members after several Bridges aides were called former Communists by a witness before the committee Tuesday.

Representative Harold Velde (Rep. Ill.), committee chairman, denied ILWU charges that his committee is here to attack it. He stated: "We will continue our hearings against communism and subversion wherever we find it."

Police Chief Michael Gaffey ordered police to prevent mass entries into city hall and to keep pickets from blocking entrances.

NAMED AS COMMUNISTS

Louis Rosser, 47, of Los Angeles, who said he was a disillusioned ex-Red, testified earlier that these ILWU officers were Communists: Louis Goldblatt, secretary-treasurer and Bridges' No. 1 lieutenant; Charles (Chili) Duarte, president of Local 6; Richard Lyndon, secretary-treasurer of Local 6; Jack Olson, former Local 6 publicity chief; and Paul Heide, Local 6 business agent.

At Wednesday's hearings, Dickson Hill, an Oakland, Calif., radio store owner who said he and his wife worked undergrounf for the FBI for four years, said the Reds made the Emeryville, Calif., Westinghouse Electric plant one of their prime infiltration targets.

John W. Mass, San Francisco City College professor, was suspended for "unprofessional conduct" and violation of state law after he refused to testify on Red attempts to infiltrate teaching.

Fire Destroys Home Of New Immigrants

AYLMER, Ont. (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Anckeert and their seven children escaped Wednesday night from a fire that destroyed their home and all their household goods and personal possessions. Cause of the blaze was unknown.

The family, recent immigrants from Belgium, took shelter in an old shack on the farm after the fire. Neighbors banded together to provide aid.

Aylmer is 12 miles east of St. Thomas.

REGINA (CP)—A. W. Boland, contractor who has spent nearly 14 years in the sub-Arctic, says Canada doesn't have a "north country" any more. Now you can take a plane and go anywhere, he said in an interview here.

Food Prices Lowest Since Spring

Five Month Climb Halted As Prices Near All Time Record

OTTAWA — (CP)—Lower food prices may soon halt the steady, five-month climb in living costs. The consumer price index for October likely will be published Friday and indications are that it will show a softening in food prices, the first general decline since last spring.

Based on 1949 prices equalling 100 the yardstick of living costs reached a 16-month hight in September, rising half a point to 116.7 from 116.2.

An upsurge in food prices coupled with lesser increases in a large group of other items, brought living costs to 1.5 points below the all-time high of 118.2 in December, 1951.

The index climbed a total of 2.3 points in five consecutive months. Price boosts for a wide range of foodstuffs pushed the food column up 1.5 points to 115.5, highest in a year.

Prices rose for butter, eggs, pork chops, bacon, lettuce, fresh tomatoes, lard, shortening, oranges grapefruit and canned fruits.

DECLINES NOTED

These offset declines for potatoes, chicken, beef, lamb, veal, canned tomatoes, cabbage, onions and turnips.

Two records were made. The shelter column, including rents, increased by three-tenths of a point to a new high of 124.5. The household operations column edged ahead by one-tenth of a point to a peak of 117.5.

The miscellaneous column, called "other commodities and services," crept up by one-tenth of a point to 116, highest since last January.

Clothing was the only column to show a drop, down one-tenth of a point to 110.3—lowest since last June.

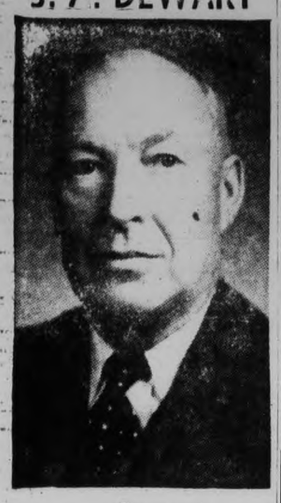
Big Gasoline Leak Threatens Harbor

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Firemen, police and dock workers kept constant fire guard on the St. John's waterfront today as 65,000 gallons of gasoline spread over the harbor. No smoking was allowed.

The gasoline escaped through a leak in hose lines at the United States Air Force dock in the city's east end, where the U. S. naval tanker Tonti was discharging.



The leak, discovered at 6 a. m., apparently was unnoticed for several hours.

The gasoline was a rapidly evaporating type but the emergency was expected to last most of the day.

Strike May Halt Norse Shipping

OSLO (AP)—Norwegian ship officers went on strike today in a dispute which may tie up most of Norway's merchant navy, backbone of its economy.

The deck officers complain they are not making as much as the men in the engine room.

Only a few ships were involved in the initial walkout but shipping officials estimated that at least 400 vessels would be idle within a month, barring drastic government action.

The mates demand a 12- to 22-per-cent pay increase. A first engineer now earns an average of $2,852 a year, a first mate $2,388.

The ship owners say a pay increase would put the mates' pay out of line with the general wage level in the fleet.

Big Expansion For Aluminum

TORONTO (CP)—The Financial Post, in a newspage story from Montreal, says "another important deal in the United States for Canadian aluminum is shaping up."

"It could mean," says the Post story, "A considerable expansion to Aluminum Company of Canada facilities at Kitimat, B. C.

"Completion of the deal may depend on the United States government calling a halt to plans for further expansion of U. S. primary aluminum production facilities.

"Olin Industries, Inc., of East Alton, Ill., now building a $5,000,000 fabricating plant and planning a still larger one . . . is reported negotiating with Aluminium, Ltd., parent company of Aluminum Company of Canada, for 54,000 metric tons a year on a long-term basis—some reports say 21 years, starting in 1955."

Christmas Meeting Held By Keene WI

KEENE (ENS) — A beautifully decorated tree adorned the club room Wednesday evening for the Christmas meeting of the Women's Institute. There were 37 members present.

Program arrangements were in charge of Mrs. John McFarlane and Mrs. Jack Hope. The president, Mrs. M. Maloney, was in the chair. The meeting opened with the singing of the ode and repeating of the creed.

A silver collection netted $16. Mrs. J. Sexsmith, Mrs. Charles Nelson, Mrs. L. Wismer and Mrs. R. Tuthill were appointed to be responsible for catering to the next Lions Club dinner.

It was announced that dishes had been purchased for the kitchen. A letter from the Mental Health Association was read, acknowledging receipt of $7.15, proceeds from the penny-round-up bags.

A letter from the clerk of the township, thanking the ladies for clothing gathered, was read and also a letter renewing the lease for the Institute room from council for another year. A further letter in connection with Junior Homemakers' Club from Miss Jean Noble, home economist, department of agriculture, was read.

A cheque for $15 from the Peterborough Exhibition Board, first prize for the Women's Institute exhibit, was produced by Mrs. Herb. McFarlane.

Several Christmas carols were sung. Mrs. David Kempt and Mrs. Roy Frankish, delegates to the Women's Institute convention in Toronto, were called on to give reports. Several more carols were sung, followed by an exchange of gifts.

Refreshments were served by the committee, Mrs. Hugh McPhee, Mrs. Jack Bolin, Mrs. David Kempt, and Mrs. Roy Richardson, assisted by Mrs. Ross McIntyre.

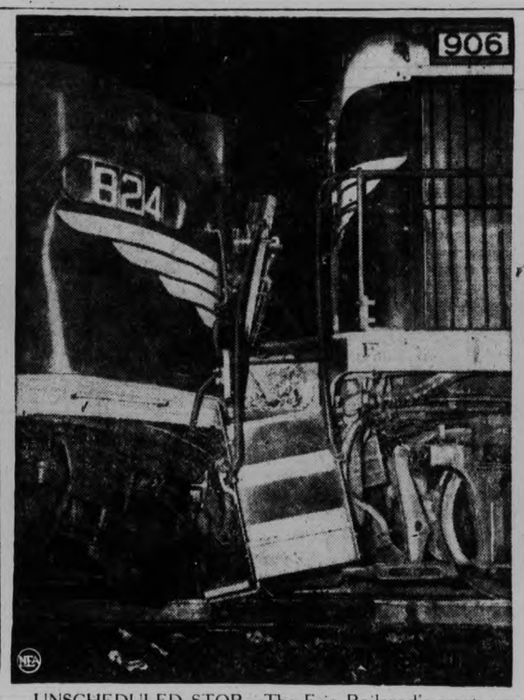
Crew Fatigue Blamed For Plane Crash

LONDON (Reuters)—Crew fatigue may have contributed to the loss of a British transport plane which disappeared over the Atlantic last February with 39 persons aboard, an inquiry report stated today.

At the time of the accident the crew had been on duty more than 19 hours, the report said.

A sudden interrupted distress signal picked up, at Gander, Nfld., was the last message ever received from the plane, a four-engined York transport owned by a private English company which was flying British troops and their families to Jamaica.

Mining Institute To Meet In Montreal



SUDBURY (CP)—The 1954 general meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy will be held in Montreal next April, C. Gerow of Toronto, secretary-treasurer, announced Wednesday night.

Speaking at the annual meeting of the Sudbury branch, he said the institute will play host to the Empire Mining Congress in 1957 at Ottawa. The group will celebrate its diamond jubilee in 1958 at Vancouver.

The last visit of the Empire Mining Congress to Canada was in 1927.

Press For Traffic Lights At Dangerous Intersection

COBOURG (ENS)—Alarmed by the fact that a child was struck this week by a car at the dangerous University Ave. and Division St. intersection, Councillor Jeff Rolph, chairman of the police committee, told town council that the department of highways should be prodded into speedy action.

Two weeks ago, council asked the department to make a survey of the intersection in question, with a view to installing traffic lights if the conditions appeared to merit it.

"They were supposed to send a man down to look into it," Councillor Rolph said. "Since that time a child was struck by a car at that intersection, but fortunately escaped injury. I am not satisfied with the delay and I think we should send a deputation up to the department to get some action."

The matter was left in his hands to take whatever steps he considered most effective.

ON HIGHWAY

The department of highways was brought into the matter because Division St. is on Highway 45. This intersection is right beside a school and is a busy spot.

Tenders for sanitary sewers on Burnham, Sinclair and Hardin streets were referred to the town engineer to study and report back.

A letter from Local 25 of the town employees' union formally advised that they would be ready to negotiate for a 1954 contract.

Roy Dodge, member of the recreational centre board, tendered his resignation to council. It was accepted. Mr. Dodge is running for town council this year.

Council received a copy of a resolution passed at a recent meeting of the utilities commission, which read as follows:

"That a letter be sent to the town engineer, pointing out that, should the town of Cobourg plan to pave any streets in the future within the municipality, the commission should be advised so that any alterations or betterment may be made to the waterworks system in advance of resurfacing the road." Council agreed to comply with the resolution.

SUBDIVISION

Some weeks ago a letter from the department of planning and development asked as to progress being made to certain subdivision bylaws. One of these had to do with the Benedict subdivision. Mr. Benedict had been informed by the department of highways that all his housing subdivision would be required by the new highway when it went through.

Council asked for more particulars as to the highway. The latest reply from the department of planning and development says, in part:

"—subsequently then, you want to know where the new highway will go. We shall ask the department of highways. No doubt part of it will be going through the subdivision in question."

A letter from the department of municipal affairs advised that the $15,682 local improvement bylaw for water mains on Burnham and Ontario streets had been approved.

Rotten Cricketer, May Be Good Husband

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — Keith Canning was really in there pitching.

In fact, he pitched the cricket ball right into Miss Gaynor Matherapike's face and broke her jaw. And while her jaw was in splints "I took the opportunity to pop the questions," Keith said Wednesday as the couple announced their engagement.

The romance started last October when Gaynor saw the Englishman practising cricket bowling and asked him if she could bat a few.

"I bowled easy balls to her until she asked for a faster one. That nettled me and I sent down a really fast one."

Then, literally, he bowled her over.

"He's a rotten cricketer," Gaynor said. "But I think he'll make a good husband."

They are keeping the cricket ball for their grandchildren.

Enthusiasm In The Civic Campaign

We are happy that so much enthusiasm and interest has developed concerning the approaching municipal elections. The public meeting held in Queen Mary Auditorium on Tuesday was an unmistakeable sign of the seriousness with which the city's problems are studied by its citizens and the high sense of responsibility which they expect in their elected representatives. Complacency in the electorate is an enemy of good government. Whatever choices are made on Monday next, the new Mayor and Councillors will know that the voters are watching them with critical and informed interest.

* * *

One point which came up at the Tuesday meeting, which we did not think was fully considered, was that of new industry for Peterborough. It is true that we have had no major industry added to our city since the war, but in thinking of this we should not ungratefully pass over the great developments which have been made in the industries which have long been settled here. Peterborough has not grown from a city of 27,000 to a city of over 40,000 without a reason. And the reason, as everyone knows, is that our three major industries—Canadian General Electric, Outboard Marine, and Westclox—have very greatly increased their operations here. What single industry could have come to Peterborough which would have equalled what their expansion has done for this city?

* * *

The desire to see Peterborough grow is natural and laudable. When the whole country is developing rapidly, we do not want to stand still. But it is not new industry alone which brings growth. The development of the three large factories which we have mentioned has been parallelled, on a proportionate scale, by dozens of smaller businesses in Peterborough. In our demand for new let us not forget the solid and healthy growth of what we already possess.

How To Figure Whether Your Taxes Will Be Less

You have received your new assessment notice. Your assessment is higher, probably much higher than it was. This increase looks bad. It looks as if your 1954 taxes will be higher, too, for taxes are based on the assessed value of your property. However, if you do a little simple figuring you may find that your taxes are likely to be less next year than they are this year, even though your assessment is higher.

The reason for this is that the sum total of all assessments in the city is forty per cent. higher. If your own assessment is not forty per cent. higher, then your taxes will be less. For instance, if your assessment this year was $3,000 and it was raised to $4,000 in your new notice, the increase of $1,000 is only 33 1/3 per cent. Your 1954 taxes should thus be a little less than they were this year. If your new assessment is $5,000 and the old was $4,000, the increase is 20 per cent. Therefore your taxes will be appreciably less next year.

The way to figure it is this. Find the difference in dollars between your new and your old assessment, by subtracting one from the other. Add two zeros, then divide by your old assessment. The answer you get is your percentage increase. Here is an example. New assessment $3,750. Old assessment $3,175. The difference is $575. Add two zeros (57500) and divide by the old assessment ($3,175). Answer: 18 and a bit. Thus the percentage increase is a little more than 18. So taxes on this property next year will be quite a bit less than they were this year. Any percentage under 40 is likely to give the property owner a smaller tax, and the lower the percentage increase the less the taxes.

What does this mean in actual dollars? The old mill rate was 64.5; that is, for every dollar of your assessment you had to pay, in taxes, about 6½ cents. If the civic spending next year is about the same as it was this year, the new mill rate should be about 47 mills on the dollar, a little more than 4½ cents on each dollar of your new assessment. How do you figure what your new taxes might be? Take your new assessment in dollars, multiply it by 47, chop off the last figure, then put in the decimal point between dollars and cents. Here is an example: New assessment $3,895. Multiply by 47 and you get 183065. Knock off the 5 and put in the decimal point and you get your new possible taxes as $183.06. If this method is too complicated, multiply your new assessment by 5 (a rate of 50 mills) and put in the dollar and cents point. This should give you the very most that your new taxes will be.

How is it possible that the majority of property owners in the city will have to pay less taxes next year? The reason is that the highest increases in assessments were made on industrial and commercial properties, not on homes. There is also a considerable number of new residential properties formerly in townships which are now in the city and will be paying city rather than township rates, since they now have city services. There are also increases on houses divided into rental quarters. When Mayor Waddell and his council decided to accept the Province's recommendation that a re-assessment be made, they felt it would be in the best interests of the majority of Peterborough people. The results are proving this to be so.

Peterborough's Nativity Play

Next week, from Tuesday onward, Peterborough will have a Nativity Play which is, in a true sense, a community effort. For some years the churches in Canada have warned against the growing tendency to look upon Christmas as a secular holiday, forgetting its sacred origin. Moved by a desire to give some practical help in offsetting this trend the Peterborough Little Theatre, and the Coventry Singers, are joining forces with Trinity United Church and St. Luke's Anglican Church to present the Coventry Nativity Play for five performances, hoping that many people will welcome a Christmas celebration of this kind.

To this venture the churches give their support and their buildings. A play which sets forth, with proper reverence, the story of Our Lord's birth, is far better housed in a church than it can ever be in a theatre. For hundreds of years such plays were part of church life, and people were able to see representations of sacred history in the same place that they knew through their regular acts of worship. The associations and atmosphere of a church give a quality to a Nativity Play which could not be achieved by theatrical means.

The Little Theatre and the choir bring to this venture their experience in the arts which are necessary to put on such a play in a fully appropriate and expert manner. The presentation of such a play, and the costuming and setting of it, require skills which are not immediately uncovered in any community; the rendition of the music which goes with such a play is a specialized form of choral work, even within the great tradition of church music.

The churches, the theatre group, and the choir, are not undertaking this rather ambitious venture in the hope of making money; the special problems of such a production make any such outcome extremely uncertain. They are, humbly and sincerely, attempting a celebration of Christmas which places the emphasis on the Birth of Christ.

The play itself is one of the oldest examples of drama in the English language; no one knows exactly how old it is, but we know that it was not new even in the reign of King Richard II, who died in 1400. The play is a very simple one; stripped of any merely theatrical trappings, it tells the Nativity story in a combination of simple play and pageant. Of the music which accompanies it, several numbers are of great antiquity.

This is, in a true sense, a community effort to emphasize the sacred origin of the great holiday which approaches. Some years ago the same play was undertaken by St. George's Church, and for three years it seemed to fill a need in our Peterborough life. The performances next week will not, we hope, reveal that that need has grown less.

No Matter How You Slice It

Senator R. B. Horner of Saskatchewan has a plan for getting rid of surplus meat. It is a plan pleasing to his own palate. Slice bacon thicker. "I would instruct someone to have confiscated all those slicing machines that shave bacon to thin wafers. I defy anyone to cook such thin slices properly."

Senator Horner's plan does not whet our enthusiasm. Some people like their bacon thin and fried to a crisp. Anyway, you still have to pay for it, thick or thin, by the costly pound weight. Further, it is not bacon that is stored in the millions of tins of meat which the Federal Government has on its hands and is giving away for a song; it is other parts of the pig.

The plan reminds us of a remark made by a Finnish steward on the boat from Stockholm to Abo, western port for the capital of Finland. He served butter in cubic inch pats. (This was before the war.) He said that the trouble with Finland was that the English would not eat enough butter; their butter pats were wafer-thin. If the English ate more butter (Finnish, we presume) Finland would not have a worry in the world. Events closely following on the Finnish steward's observations proved that Finland had more roots to her troubles than dairy fat could smother.

Senator Horner over-simplifies, likewise.

Senator Horner
Sat in a corner
Eating his morning rasher;
He doubled the pork
To put on the fork
And said "This idea's a smasher"

SMART LONDON CLUB

Spy In The Citadel

By MICHAEL DAVIE

LONDON CLUBS are numerous; some of them are eccentric; but there are only two or three—some people with lower standards might say four—which are really smart in the social sense. To make my meaning clearer, I should explain that in this sense the Athenaeum—the most famous London club, and certainly the one with the most distinguished membership (it includes great philosophers, scientists, prelates) — is not smart at all. Few of its members would think smartness important.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE OTHER DAY I lunched for the first time at one of the three really smart clubs. I felt like a spy from the Welfare State infiltrating one of the last citadels not yet taken. I had dressed carefully; but I did not feel confident as I went up the steps. It was down just such steps, of just such a club, I remembered, that Mr. Aneurin Bevan was kicked.

✧ ✧ ✧

INSIDE the hall everything seemed well-polished. The servants here must be fanatically devoted. Even one or two of the members gleamed, the light reflecting off them this way and that. The members around the bar, which was geographically indistinguishable from the hall, gave off a glow of well-scrubbed well-being.

✧ ✧ ✧

SO THIS was where the "They," held in such awe by the working-class, assembled; this was The Establishment. Some were young, with high waistcoats and watch-chains. Some were Men of Distinction. I recognized a former Minister standing with his legs apart, swinging a bunch of keys on a long chain as he talked and talked.

✧ ✧ ✧

I HAD NOT met my host before. He instantly took me by the elbow and steered me through the small crowd to the bar. A man was jingling the money in his pocket and talking, in the flat, crackled drawl of the English upper-class male, about someone called Yasmin.

✧ ✧ ✧

I WAS introduced to a retired air marshal (one of the few smart Service chiefs). After a minute the barman came up to him and said: "Did I get you your drink, sir?" The air marshal did not turn his head, did not turn to look at his questioner like a normal mortal answering a question, but simply added his reply into his sentence, as it were, between dashes—"You didn't get me a damn thing yet"—without moving.

✧ ✧ ✧

CONVERSATION all round us was full of tremendously self-confident generalisations: "Any island is soul-destroying after two months." "No American car's any good."

✧ ✧ ✧

I HAD ARRIVED late. After an hour, at the time when I should normally have been thinking about going back to the office, my host looked at his watch. "No point in eating yet awhile," he said.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN THE EARLY afternoon we mounted a wide staircase, between rows of pleasant pictures, to the dining room. Outside the big windows, shiny cars parked in St. James' street. Beyond St. James' street, the waste land of the Welfare State. My host stopped at other tables as we went to ours, with a word of light banter here and there. We started a magificent lunch of grouse.

✧ ✧ ✧

"THAT'S X" said my host. X built up one of the biggest industrial combines in Britain. No club, however exclusive, could keep him out if he wished to get in.

✧ ✧ ✧

X ROSE, his life over, toppling into decay. He came down between the gleaming table-tops, tweed-suited, like a harpooned sperm-whale, docile and losing blood rapidly, but still capable of capsizing companies with a flick of his tail. He stooped. "That your third or fourth?" he blurted out, pointing to my host's tankard.

"First."

"Ha, Well done."

✧ ✧ ✧

HOW I thought, the Treasury must be watching him: waiting for the last flurry, waiting for the great slice of death duties.

In mid-afternoon we descended for coffee. Groups, apparently of the same men, still attended the bar. A circle of youngish men sat in the corner of the coffee room, laughing. "I remember one time a very distinguished old judge came down to stay with my people when I was a boy and . . . . . "

✧ ✧ ✧

A RATHER bent man, in a coloured shirt and a bow tie, came in and perched on the padded fender, listening to them carefully. He seemed to have come from another similar club, perhaps from another padded fender.

At tea-time lunch was over.

Most Powerful Station

The B.B.C. has ordered both vision and sound transmitters for the new London television station at Crystal Palace, which will replace the existing station at Alexandra Palace. The new station will take about two years to build.

When completed, the Crystal Palace will be the world's most powerful television station, and will bring some of the existing Alexandra Palace "fringe" areas into full range.

Crystal Palace will have two 15 kilowatt transmitters designed, for parallel operation, with a combined output of 30 kilowatts. These will raise existing high standards of reliability and service, since the failure of one of the transmitters results only in the lowering of the radiated power and not in a complete shutdown of the station. Effective radiated power is expected to be between 200 and 250 kilowatts—twice that obtained from any of the existing regional transmitters. In order to achieve this the B.B.C. will, for the first time, use a high gain aerial system, thereby utilizing a transmitter output which is only 60 per cent. of the regional transmitters.

The vision transmitters are of a new design built around a new type of tetrode valve, which simplifies the design, considerably reducing the physical size.

They are part of the latest range intended by a U.K. firm for the export market and can be used equally well on British, Canadian or other standards.

A GOOD SHOW

On the way home from church father criticized the sermon, mother didn't like the organist, and their daughter thought the choir terrible. With schoolboy instinct for fair play, the son chipped in with: "Well, I think it was a jolly good show for ten cents."

TOKYO YESTERDAY AND TODAY—I

Toot-Happy Capital

By CHESTER WILMOT

(Foremost Military Correspondent)

(First series of three articles)

AT the Tokyo International Airport the other day, several thousand excited Japanese gathered to give a "Banzai" welcome to an incoming aircraft—a welcome complete with national flags, chrysanthemum girls in traditional costume and cars bedecked with garlands. The occasion of this enthusiastic demonstration was the arrival of an American dance band which was hailed—so the welcoming said—as "The Philharmonic of Jazz."

This demonstration reminded me of another I saw in Tokyo sixteen years ago. In September, 1937, at the start of the "China Incident," I stood at Tokyo Central Station, watching a crowd of almost the same size bid fairwell to a detachment of soldiers bound for war. Then, too, there was much shouting of "Banzai" and waving of flags, much presenting of flowers and parading of banners which proclaimed the glory of the "Greater Asian Co. Prosperity Sphere."

In those days there was no dancing in Tokyo's bars or restaurants, for there was a strict ban on "American jazz," except in two specially-licensed dance halls set aside for foreigners and for those few Japanese who, failing to appreciate the gravity of the hour, were rash enough to ape the decadent West.

Tokyo then was an austere and sombre place, living under the shadow of a dictatorship that was justified to its inhabitants by the urgent need to gain new economic outlets for Japan's thronging millions, and by the well-fostered fear of attack by Russia.

✧ ✧ ✧

SEVERAL TIMES in September, 1937, the entire city was brought to a standstill by air-raid exercises, carried to the point not only enforcing a black-out so strict that all smoking in the streets was forbidden, but also of starting experimental fires among the inflammable houses of board and bamboo in order to test the ability of nearby householders to save their homes.

In 1937 the Ginza, Tokyo's main shopping street, was lined with bright shops, as the rebuilt Ginza is today, but then, by official edict, luxury articles had been withdrawn from display, and there were frequent exhortations to loyal citizens to be sparing even with necessities. Tokyo restaurants had their fishless days, and street lighting was dimmed to save power.

No juke-boxes blared from cafes and bars, and on the streets at night the only girls who troubled passers-by were earnest young patriots collecting money for the war in China.

At that time Tokyo was a city of few cars, many policemen and quiet, orderly traffic. Electric horns were forbidden by order of the Army, and the errant pedestrian was given warning by nothing more alarming than the "honk-honk" of an old bulb horn or the clang of a tram's bell.

Today this is a raucous, foetid city with brazen voice, lurid make-up and grasping hand. The streets are alive with automobiles, most of them big American-made sedans, driven with reckless speed and wanton noise —for drivers are required by regulation to sound their horns on approaching or overtaking any vehicle or pedestrian.

INTERPRETING this regulation liberally, Tokyo's driver developed the habit of tooting the moment there is a check in the traffic. Even when the lights turn green or the obstruction is cleared, they react with a simultaneous assault on horns and accelerator, venting their annoyance at having been held up at all. In this bedlam the trams make themselves heard only by sounding a deep-throated siren, and cyclists raise a plaintive note on small brass trumpets.

The civic authorities have now initiated an anti-noise campaign to curb this nuisance. But the Japanese driver with his hand on the horn is more than a nuisance: he is a warning. He reflects the urgent desire of an industrious, energetic and ruthless people —eighty-five million strong—to find new outlets and regain old markets. The Japanese today are restless and bewildered, and the Tokyo driver is a symptom of their frustration.

In 1937 Tokyo was an alarming city, for it had an atmosphere of relentless purpose inspired by the national determination to expand by conquest. Today Tokyo is equally alarming for the opposite reason: that there is no sense of purpose at all, beyond the immediate objective of raking in the dollars and exploiting the present spurious prosperity while it lasts.

In this the Japanese are highly proficient. Since the end of fighting in Korea, more United States troops have been coming to Japan for "Rest and Rehabilitation," and for the past three months the Japanese have been benefited to the tune of more than a million dollars a day from "R and R" spending alone.

✧ ✧ ✧

SINCE 1946 the Japanese economy has been sustained by United States dollars through direct financial aid, and through military expenditure on behalf of the United States forces and in support of the Korean war, as well as through the recreational spending of the troops themselves. During the three years of the Korean war this expenditure, amounting to nearly two thousand million dollars, more than covered the deficit in Japan's balance of payments. Moreover, it allowed the country to double its reserves of foreign exchange, even though the volume of its imports rose by eighty per cent.

This flood of dollars is starting to dry up, for there has been a sharp curtailment in U.S. procurement orders since the Korean truce was signed; and that curtailment is not likely to be offset by the 180 million dollars which the United States is making available to support Japanese rearmament.

Nevertheless, the Japanese Government has been slow to adapt its economic policy—which is essentially laissez-faire—to meet the new situation. Although internal prices continue to rise, the volume of domestic consumption (and particularly of clothing, household goods and semi-luxuries) is still increasing. The true trade balance is steadily worsening, since exports are falling while imports go on rising; but no special controls are being applied by the Government, either to curtail imports or to encourage exports by restricting home consumption.

Letters To The Editor

MALE OR FEMALE?

Sir: Recently the laboratory staff of a local hospital was called upon to examine a very unusual specimen sent down by one of the departments. An observant member had discovered it in a patient's bed. Properly packaged, the subject in question was labelled as 'worm'. The test required was the determination of species and the sex.

After a close microscopic study the following conclusive report was drawn — 'specimen, pieces of plastic tubing'. And to this was added simply—'sexless'.

DARBY AND JOAN CLUB FOR PETERBOROUGH

Sir:

In your issue of Nov. 14 last was an article on the "Golden Mile" Club, sponsored by the Soroptimist Club, for elderly ladies, which appealed to me very much, as similar clubs are quite popular in the old land (England), but are for both sexes, and are often named "Darby and Joan" Clubs, and the members must be 60 years of age and over.

I think there is room for such a club in Peterborough today, as one sees so many men being retired on pension because they are over the age limit recognized by their employer (usually a limited company), and yet those same men have spent the best years of their life with the firm and when pensioned off are like a ship without a rudder, unless they are fortunate enough to have a hobby that will hold their interest for a large part of their spare time. If they have no such hobby, they find it rather hard putting in the time, especially when so many of them are quite able to work, but are not given the opportunity because they are "too old."

Of course, the gentler sex have it over the men, because actually they never retire, as they always have the interest of their housework and their homes, and when the husband retires and hangs around the house the wives often wish him somewhere else. So the man is not wanted anywhere.

The Darby and Joan Clubs are run much the same as the Golden Mile Club judging from your report, with the members meeting every two weeks throughout the year, usually in the afternoon. Light refreshments are sold at a nominal fee and games (cards, chequers, dominoes, etc.) were played for a couple of hours and every one seemed to enjoy the social gathering.

The clubs we visited generally have an outing in the Fall, and we were fortunate enough to be invited to go with them as we happened to be in the vicinity at the time. They had hired two motor coaches and went about two hundred miles, with various stops for meals and sight-seeing en route. It was a very enjoyable trip to us and apparently to everyone there.

If such a club could be organized in Peterborough, possibly under the sponsorship of the Y.W.C.A., I think it would really be appreciated, as some lasting friendships could be made which the men have been too busy to have made before.

Would like to hear some more views on this subject.

Yours truly
FRANK C. WALLWORK

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now the birth of Jesus Christ was on this wise: When as his mother Mary was espoused to Joseph, before they came together, she was found with child of the Holy Ghost. Then Joseph her husband, being a just man, and not willing to make her a publick example was minded to put her away privily.

But while he thought on these things, behold, the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost. And she shall bring forth a son, and thou shalt call his name JESUS: for he shall save his people from their sins. (Matt. 1:18-21.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And she brought forth her firstborn son, and wrapped him in swaddling clothes, and laid him in a manger; because there was no room for them in the inn . . . And the child grew, and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom: and the grace of God was upon him. (Luke 2:7, 40.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And Jesus went forth, and saw a great multitude, and was moved with compassion toward them, and he healed their sick. (Matt. 14:14).

✧ ✧ ✧

Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest; and how can we know the way?

Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father, but by me . . . Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me; or else believe me for the very works' sake. (John 14:5, 6, 11.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. (Phil. 2: 3.)

Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! (Ps. 133:1.)

Skunks and Garlic

(London Express)

Scents—and smells—may be used down Britain's coal lines as part of the newest safety devices.

Experiments have already shown that the scent of violets can be made to carry a mile in the underground galleries; the smell of skunk and garlic, nearly a mile and three quarters.

The idea is to attach a capsule of the scent —or smell—to any part of the machinery likely to overheat and cause fire and explosion. When the temperature rises to danger point, the capsule melts, releasing its contents to warn miners nearby.

A similar scheme to warn engine drivers of over-heated bearings is already used on Britain's railways.

A BRITISH OPINION

"Just let one of 'em say they've seen a flying saucer."

Jack Sharkey Counts Out Atkins And Montana In Main Pro Grapple Bout

The main pro mat bout at the Brock Arena last night before a big crowd of fans wound up in a draw when fierce Fred Atkins and powerful Hombre Montana finished their fight out of the ring. They were slugging it out hard after going through the hemp in front of ringside customers when Referee Jack Sharkey tolled off the 10-count. That didn't end it by any means, as hot action erupted in and out of the ring with the four gladiators and two referees embroiled. It ended finally with Montana and his partner, Whipper Bill Watson, piling up Lord Athol Layton and Atkins on the floor as the milling crowd cheered heartily.

The two finalists of the tag team match, Atkins and Montana, staged the hottest show of the four, as Whipper Watson didn't see too much action and Layton did most of his damage with that slashing side-hand cut to the throat. But the bulky, bewhiskered Montana was a solid character throughout with his strength and mat tactics, while Atkins was his usual dead-game aggressive self, and as mean as ever in the ring. He threw Montana out toward the last and wouldn't let him back in, so the South American yanked the Australian out, and that's where it finished. The fall was just three minutes.

Hombre fell to Atkins in the second round in 19 minutes, but the latter had an assist. Montana was chucking Fred around and he threw him once at Referee Sammy Gotter, who was knocked clear out of the ring, hurting his back. The other ref, former heavyweight boxing champ Jack Sharkey, went to his aid. Meantime, the grapplers were at it hot and heavy in the ring. Hombre had Atkins up on his shoulder to finish him with a back-breaker when Layton leaped into the enclosure, knocked Montana over with a slash and jumped quickly out again. Atkins promptly pinned the South American just as the refs arrived back in the ring and that was that, though the fans booed hard and Watson argued hotly.

The 320-pound South American champion won the opening fall in 14 minutes over Atkins, scaling 291, with a shoulder back-breaker. The two referees kept the usual corner skullduggery down to a minimum in this round, though Whipper (at 268 and the tall 272-pound Layton were ringwise and missed few bats in the team bout. Watson started it off against Atkins and more than held his own, but later Montana took over and edmonstrated his strength (much like the power of Yukon Eric) against all the rough stuff Atkins or Layton could serve up. Sharkey clipped the Australian once in breaking an illegal grip and had little more trouble from rough Fred. Montana blocked Atkins on a flying tackle off the ropes to set him up for the back-breaking grip as fans cheered.

Towering Hi Lee, who bumps the beam at 292 pounds, won the semi-final in 18 minutes over popular 224-pound Johnny Harmon. He used two knee pile-drivers and a knee back-breaker to flatten him after a lively match. Johnny several times had the huge Arkansas grappler set for the fall in the 30-minute bout but every time Lee jerked him over by pulling hair. Referee Sammy Gotter was very slow in breaking illegal holds and missed plenty of the rough tactics used by the shaggy-maned and guttural-voiced Lee. However, Harmon was fast, clever and faked injury smartly to come back strong until the final roughing-up process and fall for the three-count.

Bill Stack, at 241, took the prelim over Al Costello, scaling 236, in 21 minutes with a toe-hold and shoulder stand. He crossed rough Al up for the fall when Costello had Stack in a rolling cradle, husky Bill's leverage catching the other off-balance enough to turn the tide. The pair dished up a good variety of holds and neat mat work, but Costello played it rough most of the way, even resorting to biting and paying no heed to useless warnings from Gotter. Bill eventually put the teeth to Al to stop that nonsense and they went at it hard, both being banged in the ring turnbuckles. They were mixing it hot and heavy, on about even terms, when Costello applied the McCready specialty, the rolling cradle scissors hold, and Stack came out on top to draw applause.

Vessels, the ex-Oklahoma star and winner of the Heisman Trophy as outstanding US college player last year, was picked by sportswriters and broadcasters across the country. In addition to the trophy he received $1,000, a permanent plaque and a diamond tie-bar. Vessels will give some of his money to Edmonton junior football clubs.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

When you see prominent doctors, dentists and businessmen out selling Christmas trees you can be excused for wondering how bad business can get, or how poor the professions pay. We're referring, of course, to the Orfuns' grid executive here. Theirs is an altruistic approach—they sell Christmas trees for the sole purpose of putting the football club back on its financial feet. On a black footing, you might say, rather than remaining mired in the red. Football has a short, sharp and highly expensive season and just one poor home gate in the brief schedule can make the season a losing one financially. The Orfuns won the ORFU intermediate "A" title this fall but dropped more than $3,000.

* * * * * * *

How come, you ask. None of the players or executive got paid—it was truly an amateur effort. But grid equipment is very expensive. Players require heavy pads from stem to gudgeon, big cleated boots, helmets, uniforms, a ball a game, tape, liniment, etc. Some three dozen players are carried, and then transportation and meals come high, as does insurance and time off work. Injuries, too, even with insurance. Match all this against several poor home gates and you can see where the deficit piles up. That's why officers are out selling Christmas trees, fellows like Dr. Don Aitken, Gordon McGavin, Dr. Wilf Preston, Dennis Fitzgerald, Stan McBride, Dr. Ralph Smyth, Gord Beatty, Wally Farr, Dr. Les Calvert, Bill Shadgett, Bud LaBranche, Don Bark, Don O'Connell and others.

An Interest in the AHL

Glancing over some American Hockey League copy on the desk we noted where Joe Levandoski is going good on defence for Providence Reds. Last summer he player outfield for Ottawa in the Border Baseball League, but before that he performed for Kingston Ponies against Petes in the COBL. We have been interested in the AHL—or its counterpart—as good many years as many puckists from this city performed there. We recall when Bert McLeod, Biffer Ranger and Mickey Murray went over there, and later Bill Calladine and Jake Wade were good enough AHL players to get fling at the NHL. Ike Hildebrand stepped up this year, and Red Sullivan presently leads AHL scorers. Don Ashbee is there, too.

* * * * * * *

Mike Rodden phoned up yesterday from Kingston to sound us out on what we thought of the Kingston-Petes' senior puck outcome here this Friday. We said: "The Petes are improving rapidly now, Mike, and should start taking the leaders anytime. They deserved a win over Oshawa last game". Mike didn't seem impressed, figuring Oshawa and Kingston were the class of the loop. Evidently he forgot that Petes beat Goodyears right in Kingston this semester. Yes, we believe they're rolling right at last and should chalk up a lot of wins. This one tomorrow promises to be a hot fray between the second-slot K's and third-place Petes. The Redmond men should take it.

Petes Push Ports Back

Local junior "B" puckists kept well up in their group race here last gleaming by dumping Port Perry's pack from Oshawa 10-6. Red Creighton's crew got away to a flying start and the scrappy Ports could not catch them. Once again Gary Kearns was the Petes' sparkplug as he pitched in three goals and helped on another, O'Connor of Oshawa being in four for the losers. It was a fast open tussle, chippy enough at times as these juniors are full of fight and hustle. Goalie Delahey turned in a neat net-minding chore for the winners before nearly 500 free customers. 'Tis hoped the folks liked he action and will be back for future junior jousts. Locals trek to Collingwood on Saturday and have Lindsay here next Monday p.m.

Fun and fury at the pro mat matches along the Rue Brock last eve before the season's best grabble crowd. Former mitt champ Jack Sharkey aided Sammy Gotter referee the main bout, a tag-team affair pitting Whipper Bill Watson and one Hombre Montana against Lord Athol Layton and Fred Atkins. It ended with Atkins nd Montana slugging it out of the ring before the pew-holders as Sharkey counted to 10. Then all four mixed it hotly for several minutes before peace again descended on the arena and excited fans filed out. Most of the hectic action in this bout was dished up by bad-tempered Atkins and the powerful, bearded Montana. Horrible Hi Lee won the semi-final o'er Johnny Harmon, while Bill Stack pinned Al Costello in the prelim.

4 Rinks Remain Semi-Finals Of Sr. Bonspiel

HAMILTON (CP) — Rinks from Sarnia, Chatham, Galt and Hamton remained in the running today after the second day of the major event of the seniors' bonspiel.

They were skipped by C. E. Fleming, Galt; J. D. Eastman, Hamilton Thistles; H. Lockhart, Sarnia, and Peter Gilbert, Chatham.

Semi-finals will be played this morning with finals in the afternoon.

Dr. A. E. Walkey, skipping a favored rink from Hamilton Victorias, was eliminated from first event being defeated 9-5 by the Fleming rink from Galt. E. C. McDonald's Toronto High Park entry bowed out in the afternoon round to Gilbert's Chatham rink.

A Glanford rink skipped by W.E. Finch could not get by a stronger foursome from the Hamilton Thistle Club led by J. D. Eastman and lost 14-6. J. W. Currie of Paris, who entered second round play by default and advanced with an 8-6 win over W. G. Hardie's Hamilton Thistle rink, was shunted from further competition after a 12-6 defeat by Lockhart's quartet.

GALT RINKS WIN

Three Galt rinks won berths in today's semi-finals in the second event. They were skipped by D.W. McCormick, J. C. Marritt and J. L. Tutton. The fourth to qualify was a Toronto Royal Canadian rink skipped by R. A. McCowan.

In the third event, for the Doolittle Memorial Trophy, it will be Thistles against Thistles, and Brantford against Brantford in the semi-final.

Rev. R. M. Young's 11-10 verdict against Earl Green's High Park quartet placed him in the morning draw against C. M. Sheppard, also of Brantford. M. G. Sheppard's rink won by a 10-7 score over W. H. Doherty's Thistle entry. The two Thistle rinks who will battle for a final spot were led by A. D. Somerville and W. G. Hardie.

300 Delegates Expected

TORONTO (CP)—More than 300 delegates are expected to attend the 20th annual meeting of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association here Saturday. Mike Weichel, recently re-elected president by acclamation, will preside.

Young Petes Earn Victory Against Port Perry In 10-6 Junior "B" Fray

The Peterborough Junior 'B' team trounced Port Perry 10-6, in a wide open game at Civic arena Wednesday night. Gary Kearns lead the locals with three goals and one assist played an all out game offensively and defensively. Scores by Byrne, Twist and Kearns put the Petes ahead 3-0 in the first period, the second goal being scored while two Port Perry men were serving time in the penalty box. The score in that period and throughout the game might not have been so one-sided had it not been for the steady defensive play of the Peterborough team, especially that of Delahaye in the nets.

OPENED IT UP

During the second period things really opened up with the Petes sinking 6 goals and the visitors 3. Tempers flared too. Romanvik and Copeland of the Port Perry team were given two minute sentences, and when Copeland disagreed with Morris Walsh's decision he was handed a 10 minute misconduct to boot.

During this period, Masters opened the scoring marker for the visitors with two quick goals receiving assists from his line mate O'Conner on both trys. Later in the period, Myles slipped one by Delahaye on a pass from Till to make the score 9-3.

LAGGED A BIT

The Petes began to lag during the final frame and the visitors scored three goals to the locals' one. The final Pete's score was made by Gardner, assisted by Kearns and Doris. O'Conner bagged two of the visitors' final goals, while Copeland got the other. O'Conner and Kearns were high-point men for the night with four apiece.

A crowd of some 450 watched the game admission free.

Black Hawks Come Back After Recent Thumpings Tie 3-3 Against Rangers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sid Abel, old Bootnose himself put on his skates Wednesday night for the first time this year. Al Rollins was back in the nets. And for the first time in weeks, Chicago Black Hawks looked like a hockey club. They only tied with New York Rangers 3-3 in their National Hockey League game, but still, that was better than the 9-0 and 9-4 thumpings they took from Detroit Red Wings last weekend while Rollins was out with chicken pox and Abel was coaching from behind the bench. The Hawks, who have won only three games in 26 starts this season were inspired. They were winning until Wally Hergesheimer, the high-scoring right-winger, tallied at 11:35 of the third period to tie it up.

Rollins, one of the hottest goal-tenders in the big time, turned back 32 shots, many of them on one-handed stabs. Although the 35-year-old Abel didn't score, he provided most of the drive as the Hawks fired 34 shots at New York netminder Johnny Bower.

FOURTH TIE FOR HAWKS

It was the only NHL game of the night and gave the last-place Hawks their fourth tie. It also gave the fifth-place Rangers 18 points, six behind Boston Bruins.

Hergesheimer beat Rollins 39 seconds after defenceman Al Dewsbury put Chicago in front 3-2 with his first goal of the year.

Larry Wilson scored twice for the Hawks in the first period. Don (Bones) Raleigh and Andy Bathgate accounted for the other New York goals.

Abel probably will go into the line-up tonight when the Hawks meet the Bruins. In two other games, the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs meet the second-place Canadiens in Montreal and the Rangers travel to Detroit for a game against the leading Red Wings.

The Leafs and Canadiens are still having injury woes. Montreal's two star centres, highly-paid Jean Beliveau and veteran Elmer Lach, are doubtful starters.

The Leafs are down to one right-winger, Ron Stewart, and have only the line of Stewart, Ted Kennedy and Sid Smith intact. Out are rightwingers George Armstrong, Eric Nesterenko and Howie Meeker and leftwinger Gord Hannigan.

Bisons Lead In AHL, Tie Reds 2-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Buffalo Bisons still are in sole possession of first-place in the American Hockey League, thanks to goaler Jacques Plante and forward Gord Pennell.

In the games played Wednesday the Bisons managed a 2-2 tie with Providence Reds, and second place Hershey Bears pawed Pittsburgh Hornets 4-2. Buffalo now is one point ahead of Hershey.

At Buffalo, Pennell counted with less than six minutes remaining in the final period to force Providence into an overtime period. Bison goaler Plante saved on two Red breakaways in the extra stanza and the game ended in a stalemate. Pat Egan and Pete Kapusta scored for Providence, while Ed Slowinski was the other Buffalo goal-getter.

At Pittsburgh, Skip Teal of Hershey broke a 2-2 deadlock near the end of the second period and Dunc Fisher scored midway through the third. Danny Lewicki opened the scoring for Pittsburgh in the initial stanza but his effort was nullified by Norm Corcoran's tally late in same period. Willie Marshall and Hershey's Red Sullivan matched goals in the second before Teal got his game-winning marker.

Williamsburg Scores Impressive Victories

TORONTO (CP)—Williamsburg, owned by Parker Locke of Morrisburg, and Hi Handy, owned by W. Barry of Victoro, N.Y., scored impressive heat victories in the junior free-for-all pace, the featured harness attraction at Dufferin Park Wednesday.

Glendale Doctor, owned by Louis Slater of Rochester, N.Y., and Miss Mary Van, owned by G. J. Barron of Brantford, divided the class 'AA" trot, the secondary feature. Each won a heat and placed second in the other.

Lloyd Jackson Returned Hamilton Mayor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mayor Lloyd D. Jackson of Hamilton, was re-elected Wednesday in a resounding victory over his only opponent, ex-controller Hugh M. McIntyre, who had campaigned on a retrenchment program with criticism of the rates of spending and taxes.

Mayor Jackson, a bread company operator, polled a higher vote than last year although officials said the total vote was considerably lighter than last year's 44 per cent of the possible ballot.

With the count all but complete, the vote was: Jackson, 30,142; McIntyre, 17,043.

OTHER ELECTIONS

Elsewhere on the Ontario election front, Percy England received an acclamation as mayor of Owen Sound. Mayors of towns elected by acclamation were Sid Arbour, Tecumseh; Lawson Cross, Perth, and Albert Houle, Massey.

In the Hamilton voting, Jack McDonald, 26, polled the heaviest vote for board of control to become vice-mayor. He will serve his second term on the board. Other controllers re-elected were Leslie Parker, Sam Baggs and Sam Lawrence.

Voters turned down a $250,000 grant to Hamilton college and approved a two-year term for council.

HEADS CMA — John C. Whitelaw, 46, has been appointed general manager of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, succeeding the late G. K. Shiels who died November 22. Mr. Whitelaw switched from a law career to join the CMA in 1940 and 13 years later, November 1, 1953, was appointed assistant general manager in Toronto. He was born in Montreal in 1907 and graduated from Loyola College, later taking a law degree at University of Montreal. He was made a King's Counsel in 1946.

WORLD WHEAT KING—Fred W. Hallworth, of Taber, Alta., an electrician turned farmer, has been named world wheat king at the Chicago International Livestock Exposition. WMS Urged To Give All Possible To Church

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Speaking on Christian Stewardship, Mrs. P. H. Darling addressed the Christmas meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church on Tuesday afternoon. She stressed the importance of being good stewards by not thinking of how much we should give, but rather how much we could give.

"We all have God-given talents and gifts of personality, special abilities, talents developed or undeveloped," said the speaker. "Shall we do as the Wise Men, who, when they saw the young child with Mary, His mother, fell down and worshipped Him; and when they had opened their treasures they presented unto Him gifts—gold, frankincense and myrrh. They offered not their residue, but their treasures."

Mrs. E. J. Millage presided for the worship service in which the singing of Christmas carols was interspersed with readings from the Bible, by Mrs. Sandy Millage. Mrs. T. Payton sang a solo, accompanied by Mrs. M. Kennedy.

During the business period, in charge of the president, Mrs. H. J. Brown, it was decided to hold the "Love Gift" meeting at the home of Mrs. W. W. Yale on December 11.

The report of the nominating committee was given by Mrs. Bruce Charlton and the officers will be installed at the January meeting which will be held at the manse when the society will be guests of Mrs. H. C. Wolfraim.

Mrs. W. W. Leonard and Mrs. E. J. Millage were appointed auditors for the year.

A letter regarding clothing for overseas relief was read by Mrs. Frank Darling and the matter will be attended to at the beginning of the new year.

Child Badly Burned Playing With Fire

TORONTO (CP)—Alfreda Cook, 2, turned herself into a human torch Wednesday when she accidentally set her clothing afire with a flaming stick of kindling wood. Her condition was described as critical.

Police said the child was one of several playing with a box of matches outside the kitchen door of a home. The children lighted a piece of firewood which Alfreda carried into the kitchen. She tried to put it into a stove belonging to her aunt, who was away from home at the time.

Her cousin, Frankie Nigh, 4, described the incident:

"She reached the stove and tried to push the wood through a hole in it. Then her clothes caught fire."

Annapolis Royal in Nova Scotia started as a French settlement called Port Royal in 1605.

Economic Factors To Blame For Trouble In Colonies

LONDON—Ever since the end of the war there has been unrest in several of our colonies, writes P. E. Witham, in the Montreal Star. At times it has flared up into open rebellion; on other occasions it has only been checked by a last-minute display of force. Bandits in Malaya, Mau Mau in Kenya, Communism in British Guiana. How is it that these overseas territories have suddenly departed from their old pattern of tranquility? Is something radically wrong with the British Colonies?

Most people in Britain are puzzled and perhaps a little resentful of this growing tide of feeling against the Mother Country. We feel that over the past few years we have handed out a measure of self-government never previously known and this should surely make the colonial peoples more satisfied—instead of causing fresh indications of unrest every few months.

The British have always considered themselves to be in the top rank of colonial administrators. We have up to now been perhaps a little patronising towards the efforts of other colonial powers. When, therefore, something goes wrong and a colony begins to show an open dislike of British administration, we are all the more hurt and rather bewildered.

The war undoubtedly has had quite a lot to do with it. Men were recruited into the Army from primitive bush villages and taken overseas, where they were fed and paid better than they had ever been before; on their return they expected something more than they had left behind at the beginning of the war.

Then, too, more students have come to finish their education in Britain and not unnaturally have contrasted the standard of living over here with that in their own native land. Unforunately many of these students have picked up doctrines which were of a distinctly subversive nature. These doctrines they spread on their return among a people who had begun dimly to feel that they were entitled to more than they were getting. Reports came through of independence won by Pakistan or Indonesia and the seed of discontent was sown.

We cannot blind ourselves to the fact that in many colonies there is room for improvement in condition of employement, housing and education, although very much has been done. Figures of grants-in-aid or of other development work convey very little to the illiterate masses, whereas the glib oratory of agitators can only too easily stir up a people who are undernourished or unemployed. Remove these causes of trouble and a contented people will pay little heed to the voices of agitators.

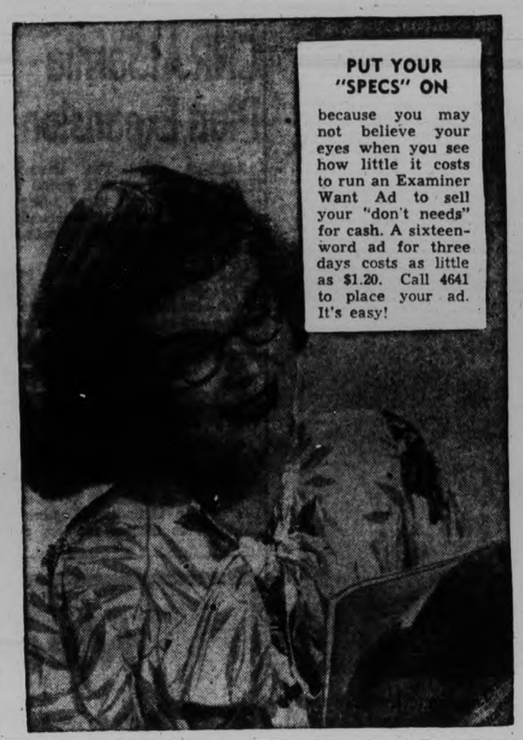
Apart from Malaya, which has been fundamentally a Communist-inspired outbreak, all the other colonial troubles can be traced to economic causes as an original background, though other factors may have intervened later.

INSPIRED BY AGITATORS

The Gold Coast riots were inspired by agitators—who have now assumed the mantle of respectability — principally among returned soldiers who were dissatisfied with pay and living condition. British Honduras had trouble also arising out of economic factors, although here the issue was magnified by the neighboring state of Guatemala laying claim to this colony without a vestige of legal right.

More recently Kenya has afforded the worst example of outright colonial insurrection. Unemployment and land hunger cleverly exploited by the Mau Mau leaders coupled with all the superstition to which the uneducated African is a prey. Had there not been a background of economic grievance the rebellion would never have reached such terrible proportions.

Nyasaland very nearly flared up when the African Congress Party tried to make out that the Africans would be worse off economically under a Central African Federation. Finally we averted a catastrophe in British Guiana — although trouble is by no means over yet in that colony.



In our anxiety to give self-government we have perhaps been a little too precipitate. We have not always weighed up the individual peculiarities of the colony to the persuasiveness of local politicians.

Each colony possesses different characteristics and varying degrees of preparedness for self rule. In the case of British Guinana we handed out universal adult suffrage to a people never before accustomed to exercising the vote and are dismayed and hurt when the experiment falls down through local agitators utilising economic conditions to their own ends. Next year British Honduras is to receive a similar constitution with universal adult suffrage, again to a people equally irresponsible in electoral usage. It would not be very surprising if here too the experiment of self-government proved to be a failure at first.

This does not mean that the bestowal of self-government has been a failure everywhere but it has only succeeded where the people concerned were in a position to use this new power judiciously. The experiment of granting a greater measure of self-rule to the native kingdom of Buganda within Uganda, seems to be proceeding well and, incidentally, in this instance there is no processing economic difficulty.

The mandated territory of Tanganyika will, within the next five years, receive a new council in which the unofficial—or elected—members of the Legislative Council will be divided among the three main races, Africans, British and Indians. Here again a policy of giving increasing responsibility is justified by local conditions.

The guiding rule therefore seems to be the ability, which must be based on education, of any colony properly to function with new powers and not a sentimental desire to bestow self-government indiscriminately. It may well be that we have tried to set the pace too fast in certain instances with regard to politics and not fast enough in the field of economic development. Our efforts at development could certainly be improved and, when this is achieved, with the consequent removal of economic difficulties, there will then be no handle for the agitator to use in a colony fully capable of guiding its own destinies.

Nine Candidates Seeking 6 Council Seats

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — When Campbellford voters go to the polls on Monday, they will have to choose six councillors out of a field of nine candidates. Those aspiring to a seat on the 1954 council are: G. I. Blair, W. A. Kingston, F. S. Linton, Wm. J. Masterson, D. E. Ness, George Nicholls, F. M. Rutherford, Isobel C. Tatham and George H. Vice. Only three of the candidates are on this year's council. They are Messrs. Ness and Rutherford and Mrs. Tatham.

NEW REEVE

Last year's deputy reeve, Douglas Maybee, steps up this year to reeve, elected by acclamation. George H. Free, a member of last year's council, steps up to the position of deputy reeve, also by acclamation.

There was also an acclamation of the three public school trustees. They are Mrs. Helen Cowell, F. E. Frederick and Dr. W. W. Baker.

The electors will also have to pick two Public Utilities commissioners out of a field of four. Two members of last year's commission board, who are up for re-election are the chairman, A. J. Meyers and Howard E. Hogle. Two newcomers to the contest are Dr. Ross F. Richardson and W. A. C. Withun.

There are two candidates for mayor. Last year's Reeve Wm. R. Nicholas is running against R. J. Locke, who was mayor of Campbellford during 1953.

BBC Apologizes For Wrong Number

LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corporation was making profuse apologies today, but didn't know to whom.

The BBC was caught in the toils of a wrong-number mix-up as a result of a broadcast by comedy star Jack Buchanan Wednesday night, when he pretended to be trying to telephone a police station and was constantly getting a wrong number.

Listeners all over London started calling the number used in the broadcast on their own phones, and to the BBC's embarrassment it turned out to be a real—but privately listed—number.

The gentleman who answered was in no mood for humor. His blood pressure went up and up as the number of calls increased.

Finally the phone was reported out of order; there was some suspicion that he had torn it out of the wall.

Inquiry Requested Into River Pollution

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal senator from Ottawa Wednesday urged the government to inquire into pollution in the Ottawa river which is threatening the national capital plan.

Senator Norman P. Lambert said during the throne speech debate that such an inquiry should be undertaken by a joint parliamentary committee or the Senate's committees on health and on natural resources.

He recalled that a joint parliamentary committee in 1944 said a sewage disposal plant was an urgent need. A site was bought but construction had not started.

Warsaw News

Miss Marlne Darling was hostess to a group of friends from the Peterborough Collegiate last Friday evening. They enjoyed dancing and games and at the end of the evening, the hostess served a delicious lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland Payne spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mann in Trent River.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Sanderson and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Howden of Peterborough were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Payne last Sunday.

UN REACTIONS—Expressions and mannerisms are many and varied at sessions of the United Nations General Assembly in New York. Above, Hon. Alcide Cote, Canada's Postmaster General and vice-chairman of the Canadian delegation, turns to speak during the debate on Communist atrocities. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (top left), permanent U.S. delegate to the UN, gestures emphatically as he lodges a strong complaint against the Red policy of "wholesale brutality" in Korea. His charge that 38,000 UN soldiers and Korean civilians were victims of this policy brought from Russia's Andrei Vishinsky (lower right) a yawn that he made no effort to stifle.

ALASKAN REINDEER

The first reindeer in Alaska were brought in from Russia in the 19th century.

Freighter Aground In St. Mary's River

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—The American Great Lakes freighter Sullivan, downbound and loaded with oats, went aground Wednesday night in the shoals of the St. Mary's river.

The United States coast guard said the Sullivan skidded far enough on the shoals to lift her two feet above her normal draft with a load but that she was in no immediate danger and was not endangering navigation in the international river.

Cause of the grounding was not immediately determined.

The Sullivan is owned by the Garland Steamship Co., of Chicago, and was en route to winter-docking with its load of grain.

Quebec Whips Royals To Lead League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec grabbed a thrilling 5-4 overtime victory over Montreal Royals Wednesday night to take the lead in the Quebec Hockey League standings. The teams had been tied for first place.

In other games, Ottawa Senators beat Sherbrooke Saints 3-1, and Springfield Indians thumped Chicoutimi Sagueneers 5-1.

At Quebec, Ace's Ludger Tremblay scored the winning goal only nine seconds after the overtime period began. Rags Raglan, Michel Labadie, Ken Wharram and Ray Powell were the other Quebec marksmen. Centre Skippy Burchell of Montreal was a standout—he scored twice and assisted on the two other Montreal goals by Ted Hodgson.

SENATORS OVERCOME LEAD

Senators came from behind at the capital city for their first win in four starts. Nels Podolsky put Sherbrooke ahead but goals by Bep Guidolin, Bill Johnson and Jackie Giesebrecht gave Saints the victory.

At Springfield, the Indians smashed in for four goals before Chicoutimi could answer. Johnnie Bobenic got two for Springfield, Ed Leiser, Ken Schinkel and Bus Gagnon racking up the others. Jimmy Moore scored the lone Chicoutimi goal.

Queen Alex Victors

Queen Alex beat Central 5-3 at Civic to open the senior Public School Hockey League. Central counted first and later tied it at 2-2 but Queen Alex finished stronger in the second period to make it 5-2, Central getting one more in the third. Bob Whitnell got three for the winners, Marvin Tighe and Gren Dafoe tallying one each. C. Sorrie, P. McInroy and K. Aulbrook counted for Central. Whitnell, Tighe, Tucker, Williams, Armstrong and Aulbrook all looked good.

Quene Alex: Williams, Tucker, Harrison, Nelson, Whitnell, Tighe, Perritt, McDougall, Dafoe, Levine, Kilborn, Ross, Sanderson.

Central: Armstrong, Sorrie, McInroy, Vilneff, Findlay, Knox, Mills, Chalmers, Gray, Harrington, Frizzelle, Riel, Aulbrook, Duncan.

J. Pammett Hits 311

Jean Pammett rolled high single of 311 in the Girls' City Bowling League and M. Sanderson's 530 was best double. Joan Pope with 361 took the 360 blind score. Curtin's, Marines and Bassel's blanked Sevenaires, Togs and Collis, as 2-1 wins went to Cardinals over Austin's, and Davis over Aces.

Good singles were: M. Sanderson 305 and 225, T. Grierson 287, B. Morrow 268, M. Hawthorne 274, B. Peterkin 244, M. Thompson 254, D. Mason 250, M. Knights 239, B. Belisle 224, R. Pearse 243, A. O. Watson On Top

In the girls' Wednesday afternoon bowling at Playfair, O. Watson took top three of 739 and best single of 297, besides a single of 255. A. Lucas had a 230 single and 606 triple, and D. Pacey rolled (248) 601. Eager Beavers led teams with an 865 game but Whizz Bangs had high pinnage of 2,346. Rockets, Beavers and Dinkies took three points from Playfair, Tornadoes and Ramblers, as Terrors, Whizz Bangs and Bombers took two from Wild Cats, Happy Gang and Cisco Kids.

Champion Older Mare

NEW YORK (AP) — Sickle's Image, five-year-old daughter of Sickletoy owned and bred by Clarence Hartwick of Oxford, Mich., has been selected as the champion older mare of 1953 by the thoroughbred racing association.

The decision was as close as any of the 26 victories Sickle's Image has scored during four years of campaigning. She received 14 votes, with 12 going to Calumet Farm's Real Delight and 10 to the Darby Dan Farm's Atlanta.

65-56 Victory

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Niagara Falls Jolleys Wednesday night scored a 65-56 victory over St. Catharines Queensways in the opening game of the newly organized International Triple A Basketball League. Other teams entered in the senior group are Toronto Tri-Bells, Brantford Mustangs, Hamilton YMCA and Tonawanda, N.Y., Eldridges.

FIRST MINESWEEPER to be manufactured in Canada for a NATO country was turned over in Sorel recently to the Royal Canadian Navy in a short but impressive ceremony on Sorel's wind-swept waterfront. The ship, HMCS Chignecto, was the first of 14 minesweepers under order to be accepted by the RCN. Orders for the vessels have been spread out among several Canadian ship-building yards. The Chignecto is 152 feet in length with a beam of 28 feet. She has a 452-ton displacement and carries 33 officers and men.

Queen's Ship Nears Equator

ABOARD S. S. GOTHIC (AP)—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, voyaging towards the Fiji islands, are expected to cross the equator at mid-day, ship's time, Friday and may watch the traditional ceremony of King Neptune being received on the escorting cruiser, HMS Sheffield.

No ceremony is expected to be held aboard the Gothic as most of those on board have already crossed the line. The Queen did so in HMS Vanguard on her South African trip in 1947.

At noon Wednesday, the Gothic was 130 miles north of the Galapagos islands, which straddle the equator.

At one time, there was excitement as the Queen and the duke spotted two blue sharks swimming off the port quarter about a quarter of a mile away.

$13,000 Needed Buy Juniors

KITCHENER (CP)—The Ontario Hockey Association waited today for local fans to kick in enough money for a possible deal to buy back their junior hockey club from the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens.

Association president Tory Gregg said he will wait until Friday to decide whether to try to swing the sale. It all depends on the cash Kitchener citizens are willing to put up.

At least $13,000 is needed, Gregg said. That would cover only the players. More would be neeed to continue the club's operation in the nine-team junior A circuit.

Canadiens bought the team last week. The OHA executive council said it didn't know about the sale until Monday.

RAISE PROTESTS

Montreal sent nine Greenshirts to four junior teams in Quebec and one in Ontario. The transfers raised flurries of protests from OHA officials and officers of other junior A clubs.

Gregg said some Kitchener business men reported to have put up $15,000 to buy back the club have not come through with all the money. He said he will wait for more offers.

The club, previously owned by a group of Kitchener business men, was sold to Canadiens because gate receipts were low. Club president Walter Weber said operation losses ran to about $1,000 a week.

Calgary Stampeders Sign New Fullback

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union said Wednesday they have signed Howard Waugh, a fullback they hope will fill the hole left by all-star John Henry Johnson.

Johnson, voted the most valuable player in the WIFU this season, signed with San Francisco 49ers.

Waugh was leading ground-gainer in the United States in 1952 while playing with Tulsa University.

Plant Life Processes Ahead Of Man

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Research Council says plant life is miles ahead of man when it comes to manufacturing processes.

Two of the council's scientists found that plants can change air into wood in less than 10 seconds. In this period carbon dioxide becomes solid cellulose, the material which forms the framework or skeleton of most plants.

Dr. Paul M. Laughton and Dr. D. C. Mortimer, of the plant physiology section of NRC, exposed sugar beet leaves to small amounts of carbon dioxide under a bright light.

WORK QUICKLY

The carbon dioxide was first made radioactive so it could be identified when it got inside the plant. The leaves were allowed to absorb the gas for varying periods and then were killed in boiling water.

Radioactive cellulose was found in the leaves even though they had absorbed the gas for only 10 seconds.

"This cellulose must have been made from the radioactive gas," the council said. "It follows that the plant can make these extremely complex changes, from air to wood, in less than 10 seconds."

THE BOYS AND GIRLS in the picture with their choirmistress Mrs. Meita Macpherson are touring Ontario and will give a concert in the George Street United church next Wednesday night. But the man who formed the choir and made the first tentative arrangements for the tour did not live to complete a task dear to his heart. He was the Rev. John R. Macpherson, of Kirkintilloch, Dunbartonshire, who died eight months ago. It is his widow who has carried on the work and conducts the Kirkintilloch Junior Choir, which since its formation in 1936 has been winning laurels not only in Scotland but abroad. Each year it wins the first prize at Glasgow Musical Festival, has toured England, Northern Ireland, Denmark and Holland, has made a number of successful records. Ages range from seven to 20, and the party for Canada will consist of ten boys, fifteen girls and Mrs. Macpherson. The songs they will sing include old Scottish favorites, hymns, and the Psalms in Scots. They will be back for their Christmas Eve concert in Glasgow, concluding with the midnight singing of a carol.

Scientists At Naval Base Seek Better Instruments

VICTORIA (CP) — Improvement of the complicated instruments used in modern naval warfare is the aim of a group of scientists at HMC Dockyard here.

They work at the Pacific naval laboratory among an array of mysterious equipment that would be at home in a science-fiction thriller.

There are "eyes" that can pierce ships' hulls, sounding devices to measure ocean depths with uncanny precision, thermometers that register quick and minute changes in temperature of the sea far below the surface; and a tank that shows graphically how sound aves are "bent" under water by any combination of warm and cold water layers.

Chief interest of the laboratory, waves are "bent" under water by underwater physics.

Among other things, the laboratory is studying ways of reducing corrosion on hulls of navy ships and improving methods of paint application.

The Pacific naval laboratory was established by Canada's Defence Research Board and has been operating only since 1948. A new $600,000 building is being built at the dockyard to provide more elbow room for the 58-member staff, now crowded in wartime emergency huts.

Whisky Off Ration List For New Year's

By ANNE KRAMER

LONDON (AP) — Whisky-parched Britons will be able to ring in the New Year in style. For the first time since the war's end, whisky will be off the ration lists.

For eight years most of Scotland's whisky output has been exported to earn dollars. Supplies for home consumption were reduced to a mere trickle.

Now, with production boosted, the government is abandoning the program which gave liquor merchants a yearly quota based on a small percentage of their pre-war sales.

A familiar figure, debonair and monocled and lad in well-cut tweeds, is returning to national magazines to invite readers to a "whisky and soda."

BAD FOR BLOOD PRESSURE

And every time a Scot sees the ad his blood pressure will shoot up at the stupidity of the English—spoiling his national drink with a fizzy soda substance which he claims destroys its potency, changes its taste and "transforms a mellow beatitude into a gaseous frivolity."

WATER ONLY

Scots stoutly maintained that whisky is not to be used lightly as an ingredient in "a fashionless clamjamfrey o' a cocktail."

The scot will allow a little plain water or even an ice cube, but he prefers to drink it neat and wash it down with a gulf of water.

The Scots are partial to malt whisky which they call "uisge bheatha." That's Gaelic for water of life.

CLOSE SECOND

Grain whisky, made from cereals in a patent still, runs a close second to malt but before it was accepted in Britain there was a long drawn-out battle. Conservative distillers said it wasn't genuine whisky. It took a royal commission in 1909 to establish its right to the name.

For the Scot malt whisky remains the aristocrat. Savoring the distinctive flavor it acquires when the malted barley is spread on perforated plates to dry over a slow peat fire, he'll orate on the distinction between malt and grain while debating the relative merits of a speyside or an islay. (Speyside whisky is made of highland malts produced chiefly in the Speyside or Glenlivet district. Islay whisky has a particularly strong flavor due to the "peated" Malt.)

Among its other mineral wealth, Alberta has many gypsum deposits, pottery clay and salt.

Take Pictures Inside Hole

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. Army engineers have developed a camera which can take pictures inside a small hole deep in the ground.

Engineers and others can make good use of such underground observation—in planning big construction projects, locating leaks inside pipelines and spotting underground ore formations.

Officials said the camera might even be adapted for taking picture of tissues inside the human body.

The camera is operated electrically, snapping a picture each three-fourths of an inch in depth.

The pictures can be shown on a flat screen. Looking at them gives the illusion of looking downward into a hole. By means of an angled mirror, the pictures also can be viewed on a circular section of ground glass.

Engineers who eveloped the camera said mining interests were considerably interested because the camera can take color pictures underground, valuable in locating ores.

New Building Planned

OTTAWA (CP)—A building permit covering construction of a new Le Droit printing plant on Rideau street was issued Wednesday. The three-storey, L-shaped building will be located on the north side of Rideau between Nelson and Friel streets. The building is to be completed by September, 1954.

FLYING FASHION — British jet pilots might take a razzing about their new kimono-style cooling suit, but it could mean the difference between life and death for airmen flying at high altitudes. The suit, manufactured by a Woking, Eng., parachute company, has lines throughout the suit which supply air to 100 parts of the pilot's body.

Pidgin English Odd Jargon

WASHINGTON — "Me tire too-much. Bel belong-me plenty walk-about. Me like kigh-kigh."

To some 30 million of the earth's people, the above is easily translatable. It means: "I'm tired and hungry; let's eat."

The language is pidgin English, an odd jargon that has served as a common tongue between East and West for over 400 years, says the National Geographic Society. Originated by traders — pidgin means "business"—it is today a language in its own right, not merely corrupt English.

Various versions are spoken throughout the western and southern islands of the Pacific. Most widely used is the Melanesian dialect. To natives of New Guinea, the Solomons, the New Hebrides and New Caledonia it approaches the status of mother tongue.

Australian aborigines speak a pidgin dialect. The Tonkinese, Malayans, Polynesians, Micronesians, and coastal Chinese are fluent in it. Even on Africa's far-removed west coast, some native tribes use a modified pidgin.

A conglomeration of English, French, German, Portuguese, Spanish and Malayan words, pidgin English has its own grammar, vocabulary and special way of saying things. Its rules are as firmly fixed as those of English.

Parts of speech are similar to English, but forms are different. Nouns, for example, have no plural. "One man, two men, many men" becomes "one-fella man, two-fella man, plenty-fella man" in pidgin.

Pidgin verbs have no tense, person or number. "Me come" may mean either "I come," "am coming," "do come," "I came," or "I will come." In the special "objective" form, not found in English, "im" or "em" must be added to a verb whenever there is a direct object. "Me look-im dis-fella man" means "I see this man." "Call-im name belong you?" is the manner of inquiring one's name.

Since pidgin vocabularies contain only a few hundred words, a single word may do the work of six. "Grass," for instance, may mean grass, beard, feathers, fur or hair. All native women are "marys;" all employed native men are "boys."

There are but two prepositions in pidgin. "Belong" means "of" and "for." "'Long" serves as from, with, to, at, by, near, and away. Conjunctions are rare. Sentences are usually made as simple as possible.

All time and distances are given in terms of the sun's position. To ask a native, "How far is it to Rabaul?" for instance, the questioner must say the equivalent of "I leave here at dawn (or any time), where is the sun when I get to Rabaul?" In pidgin this comes out: "Spose me loose-im place 'ere along too-light, bimeby sun ee stop where, now we come up 'long Rabaul?"

Counting coincides with the English style except "fella" or "pella" is added. "One, two, three" is spoken as "one-fella, two-fella, three-fella." Eleven is "one-fella ten one." Twenty is "ten-fella ten."

During World War II thousands of GIs became fluent in pidgin. Vocabularies were published in every Pacific theatre, and the armed forces frequently conducted classes in the crude, often funny tongue. Despite attempts of some Pacific communities to ban its use, pidgin English now ranks as the common language of the South Seas.

Plane Treatment Improves Facial Scars

NEW YORK (AP)—In one terrifying instant, an auto crash leaves a woman's face marred with a scar.

Or birthmarks, scars from pimples or smallpox, or wrinkles take a daily psychological toll of self-conscious men and women.

Now a New York physician, Dr. Abner Kurtin, tells of a new method of scraping or planing skin defects, allowing growth of smooth new skin.

Sandpapering is used successfully against scars and defects, but the freeze and planing method has some advantages.

Dr. Kurtin writes in the archives of dermatology and syphilology of the American Medical Association that the planing method has been used successfully on 273 patients. Sometimes the scar can be almost completely removed. Other times there is vast improvement.

The skin is first chilled with a chemical ice pack, and cleaned with alcohol. Then the area is frozen with a spray of ethyl chloride. It becomes rigid, without feeling.

The scar or defect is planed away with a brush made of curved strands of stainless steel wire, spinning at speeds up to 12,000 rotations a minute.

The top layers of skin are flaked away without bleeding or pain. Dry gauze is put over the wound. The skin usually is completely healed within a week. The healed skin is soft and pliable and returns to normal color, Dr. Kurtin writes.

Two or more treatments, given a month apart, are necessary for some defects.

Jail Has Failed To Soften Up Nazi Murderer

Kurt Meyer, former Nazi commanding officer of a Panzer division, who was tried and convicted and sentenced to life imprisonment for murdering Canadian prisoners in World War II, is in jail in Werl, writes Wessley Hicks from Werl, Germany, to the Toronto Telegram. And the streets of the town are now becoming accustomed to the steel-cleated ring of Canadian Army boots. Somehow, there is irony and futility in the situation.

Kurt Meyer is imprisoned in a civilian jail. It is called the Allied National Prison and confined in it are 50 war criminals, along with civilian law-breakers.

STUCCO TOO CLEAN

The jail is about twice the size of the Don Jail in Toronto and looks about as old. Today, workmen were erecting a white stucco addition on the front of the prison. The stucco looked too clean and almost false against the grayish-brown stone of the old buildings.

There are no walls around the prison in Werl. The buildings themselves form the walls, enclosing the courtyard.

There are pleasant homes around the Allied National Prison. The green lawns of back yards sweep up to within the width of a narrow roadway from the front gate.

There is a car parked in front of the gates and two youngsters about 12 years old are sitting in the car. They are both handsome, fair-haired kids and they have a radio in the car tuned into the British Forces Network radio station. A cowboy band is playing "Home on the Range" and the kids are singing the song in German. It sounds strange and alien.

The German guards in their dark blue pants and light green coats, which look as though they had been made from billiard table covers, are polite. They hustle off to consult Colonel Meach, the British governor of the Allied National Prison, about the possibility of Kurt Meyer having a visitor.

And while they are gone, you think of this man Kurt Meyer. He was one of the youngest generals in the history of the German Army. After his conviction as a war criminal, he was imprisoned in Dorchester, N.B., from 1946 to 1950, when he was returned to Germany.

LEAVE WITH WIFE

Last year, he was discovered spending a leave away from prison with his wife. Now he sits in this antique civilian jail. And outside, the sun is shining and the autumn colors are bright and gay and laughing.

Colonel Meach, the governor of the Allied National Prison, is a ruddy-faced, white-haired man. He has been in his present position for just a few weeks and he is somewhat bewildered by the vituperation the German press has been heaping on him. For the press in Germany is agitating bitterly and relentlessly for Kurt Meyer's release.

But he is firm in his refusal to allow anyone to visit Kurt Meyer.

"Absolutely not," he says. "He's here to stay. No one sees him."

But he will discuss his prisoner.

"He has a bit of arthritis," he says. "He takes bath treatments for that. The arthritis isn't too bad and he moves around all right. That's about all I can tell you about him."

He rubs his chin, then, and smiles ruefully.

"He's still inclined to be arrogant," he says.

And then you step out into the bright autumn sunshine again. Werl looks like a Hansel and Gretel town. The houses have high, peaked roofs and quaint, sweeping gables and the streets are cobblestone.

The kids are ambling down the street from school with their schoolbags strapped high on their backs, the way German children carry them. And they are happy and noisy and their voices fill the street and echo off the lovely old houses.

And you turn from that and look down the narrow, tree-lined driveway that leads to the prison which holds Kurt Meyer. And you know, then, the price he is paying.

New Deal Turns Greenshirts Into Hockey Second-Raters

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A $15,000 cash deal has turned Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts into hockey's second-raters overnight.

The Greenshirts, who lost most of their star players last Monday when the club was sold to the National Hockey League Montreal Canadiens, apparently are on the way out as strong contenders in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

They lost both games since the deal—and by big scores. Wednesday night Toronto St Michael's College Majors walloped the Greenshirts 10-0 in one of the weakest performances by Kitchener this year.

The Greenshirts, in third place Monday, have slumped to fifth.

In the other Wednesday night game, the second half of the Toronto doubleheader, Toronto Marlboros squeezed out a 3-1 victory over Barrie Flyers

CAFFERY GETS THREE

Jack Caffery fired three goals in the third period to lead the Irish marksmen. Paul Knox added a pair and singles went to Bill Colvin, Dick Duff, K[illegible]bbons, Ken Linesman and [illegible]zini.

To add to their troubles the Greenshirts may have lost another of their few-remaining regulars. Centre Claude Boileau returned from a nose injury earlier in the game and suffered an injury to his left ankle. Preliminary examination revealed he may have a broken bone.

In the second game, the outcome was in doubt until Tom McCarthy fired the winner for Marlboros six minutes before the end of regular time. Billy Harris scored a couple of minutes later to salt it away.

Defenceman Bob Duncan had given the Dukes a 1-0 margin in the second period but Bob White erased it with his goal before the period was over.

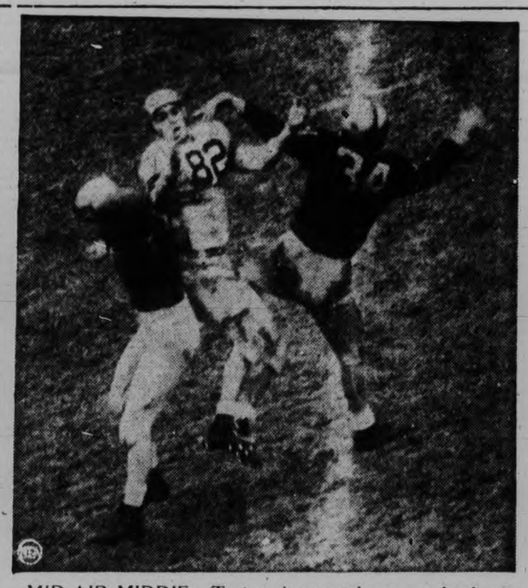
Kitchener meets the Biltmores in Guelph, Quebec Citadelles travel to Barrie Flyers and St Michael's go to St Catharines TeePees in league action Friday.

Dutchmen Take OHA Lead By Defeat Of Maroons 2-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham Maroons have yet to beat a jinx that started last year It's costing them hockey games

The Maroons, in fifth place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, dropped their 10th straight game to Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen Wednesday night Eight of those defeats came last season and the Dutchmen apparently can still apply the hex.



They defeated the Maroons 2-1 for their second victory over Chatham this season. The victory hoisted the Dutchmen back into first place, one point in front of Windsor Bulldogs.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Pembroke Lumber Kings shut out Sault Ste Marie (Ont) Greyhounds 2-0 in Sault Ste Marie. Their fifth victory of the season pulled the Lumber Kings to within four points of the fourth-place Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians.

The Maroons put on a last period rally against the Dutchmen in Chatham but it fell short. Gerry Theberge led the Kitchener marksmen with two goals. Jim Connelly matched his effort for the Maroons. George Scholes and Charlie Brooker got the others for the Dutchmen.

Lumber Kings did all their scoring in the first period with Ken Clarke and Jim Maxwell the snipers.

Owen Sound Mercurys are at Niagara Falls Cataracts in the OHA tonight while the Indians meet the Trappers in North Bay in NOHA play.

MID-AIR MIDDIE—Trying desperately to get back into the ball game, Navy's back Frank Knotts passes to end Don Fullan (82). But Army back Pat Uebel (34) and another Army player bat the pigskin down. The game was the traditional Army-Navy match at Philadelphia's Municipal Stadium. The cadets won, 20-7.

NAME LEAFS MANAGER

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Luke Sewell was named manager of Toronto Maple Leafs and quickly named Bruno Betzel, former Syracuse manager, to be his coach with the International League club.

Sewell managed St. Louis Browns to their only American League pennant in 1944. He managed Cincinnati for 3½ years until replaced by Rogers Hornsby in August of 1952. Sewell was out of baseball last year, working for a rubber company. At Toronto he succeeds Burleigh Grimes, whose contract was not renewed after a fifth-place finish.

Betzel has managed at Montreal, Jersey City and Syracuse in the International. He was left out at Syracuse after the 1953 season when the club changed hands.

Sewell, 53, is a former catcher with Cleveland, Washington and Chicago in the American League.

No salary terms were announced for the one-year contract with the independently operated Canadian club. Jack Kent Cooke is the present owner.

DANCER TOP COLT

NEW YORK (AP)—Native Dancer was unanimously voted as the champion three-year-old colt of 1953.

The selections board of the Thoroughbred Racing Associations gave Alfred G. Vanderbilt's great grey all its votes. Last year the Dancer was chosen two-year-old champion.

Native Dancer was unbeaten as a two-year-old in nine races. This year he lost only once—to Dark Star in the Kentucky Derby upset.

He won nine of 10 races this year for $513,425 and shot his total to $743,920—fourth on the list of the world's greatest money-winning horses.

DEMPSEY TOP FIGHTER

MILAN (AP) — Jack Dempsey, the Manassa Mauler who held the world heavyweight crown from 1919 to 1926, was voted the greatest prize fighter of all time in a poll of boxing journals in 22 countries.

Results of the poll were published Wednesday in the Italian weekly magazine Tempo. It said the vote was taken among leading boxing publications in Europe, Australia and the United States.

Dempsey was followed by four other Americans — Joe Louis, Sugar Ray Robinson, Henry Armstrong and Gene Tunney.

COMPETITION STIFFENS

CALGARY (CP)—Manager Bob Robinett of Calgary Stampeders, back from a scouting trip in eastern Canada, reports that Western Interprovincial Football Union clubs are running into stiffer competition from Big Four teams in the player market.

Robinett said receipts from television are being applied to player budgets in the East and Big Four clubs can offer youngsters more inducement to sign contracts.

✦ ✦ ✦

LIMIT SACRIFICE RULE

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The major-minor league committee on playing rules Wednesday decided to limit the recently adopted sacrifice fly rule to foul balls.

James Gallagher, committee chairman and Chicago Cubs' business manager, said the decision to rule out long fouls that might permit a base runner to score after a catch was made after much discussion.

The sacrifice fly rule, adopted earlier this year in New York, provides the batter shall not be charged with a time at bat when his fly ball scores a runner.

Overtime Illegal Says President

PROVIDENCE, RI (AP)—Lou Pieri, president of Providence Reds of the American Hockey League, has protested Cleveland's overtime victory over the Reds Tuesday night in Cleveland, maintaining that the overtime period was played illegally.

The Reds and Barons tied 2-2 in regulation time and a 10-minute overtime period was to be played League rules call for a sudden death play.

Pieri's protest is on the grounds that Jim Henry, general manager of the Barons, insisted that the rules be followed, asserting that if his team scored first he would take them off the ice. A fine of $5,000 against the Reds then was threatened by Hendy, Pieri said.

The overtime went the full 10 minutes, Jack Stoddard scoring the winning goal for Cleveland at 7:50.

Pieri said the rule, written by the league's board of governors, of which Hendy is a member, specifically calls for sudden death play. He asked that the score revert to the end of regulation time and that each team receive one point

Says Declined Job As Coach

MONTREAL (CP) — Buddy O'Connor, former National Hockey League player, said Wednesday he has been offered and declined the job as coach of Quebec Citadelles, junior team playing in the Ontario Hockey Association.

O'Connor said he was approached about a week ago by owner Frank Byrne of Citadelles and was given a coupie of days to think about the matter. He said he didn't want to leave his present business position in mid-season.

He said Byrne didn't indicate one way or another what would be done about Phil Watson, present coach.

Citadelles have won only six games in 22 starts in the Ontario junior circuit and are at the bottom of the nine-team standing.

In Quebec, Byrne said he had no comment.

But 18 Quebec players and trainer Georges Bergeron gave their support to Watson and termed "false" reports Watson may be replaced.

Davis Cup Players Star In Aussie Tennis

MELBOURNE (CP)—Australia's youthful Davis Cup stars today advanced to the singles final of the Victoria state tennis championships.

Top-seeded Ken Rosewall downed George Worthington 6-1, 2-6, 6-0, 6-1 and Lewis Hoad whipped Rex Hartwig 2-6, 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 in today's all-Australian semi-finals after earlier elimination of the American contenders.

The top U.S. entries, Vic Seixas and Tony Trabert, were knocked out after matches in which tempers flared both among the spectators and the American players over a number of foot-fault decisions.

Playing Coach Joins Louisville Stars

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (CP)—Centre Ray Marshall, playing coach last season with Cornwall of the Eastern Canada Senior Hockey league, took on the same job with Louisville Stars of the International League Thursday night.

Ralph Griffiths, president of the club, announced the appointment of Marshall, the team's high scorer, shortly after Alex Wood resigned as coach because "he didn't see eye to eye with many of the policies of the owners."

Council Raiding OHA Juniors

MONTREAL (CP)—Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, said Wednesday the junior council of the Ontario Hockey Association seems to have delegated to itself the right to raid junior teams all over Canada without being willing to extend the same privilege to other branches.

The statement was prompted by word from Kitchener that the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league council is moving to block transfer of players from the Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts to four clubs of the Quebec Junior Hockey League and also to keep the Greenshirts team from disbanding.

Canadiens, former sponsors of the Greenshirts, purchased the club last week.

Mr. Selke said that for years the strong junior teams in the OHA have taken the best players out of western Canada and last summer succeeded in exacting a promise from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association executive that the bar on East-West transfers would be lifted at the association's meeting in January.

Kidnapped Woman, Son Returned Home Unharmed

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP)—Pretty Mrs. Gloria Bullock Weaver, 22, mother of an infant son, is safe at home today and FBI agents are hunting for two men accused of kidnapping her Tuesday.

Found unharmed on a downtown street near the Chattahoochee river bridge Wednesday night, she said she was released by her kidnappers on the Alabama side of the bridge.

Her husband, Arthur H. Weaver, a building contractor, spotted her on the Georgia side of the river shortly after she telephoned home from a drug store near where she was released.

NOT HARMED

Mrs. Weaver said an unidentified man entered her home in her husband's absence Tuesday night and ordered her to an automobile parked outside. She said he did not use force.

She related that she got into the back seat of the car with another unidentified man at the steering wheel. While one held her arms, the other blindfolded her with her own scarf.

While they rode for what seemed to her like hours, they told her she would not be harmed if she made no outcry. Finally she was put in a room of a house. The men occupied an adjacent room, she said.

After darkness, she was blindfolded again and put back into the automobile.

$15,000 DEMANDED

The blindfold was removed when they reached the outskirts of Phoenix City, Ala., just across the river from Columbus, and the men let her out with instructions to go home.

Weaver received a telephone call Wednesday from an anonymous man who demanded $15,000 for her return. But no ransom was paid.

The FBI declined comment.

DECEMBER THIRD ON GEORGE ST., with the thermometer rising to 45 degrees at noon today, as a bright sun shone, encouraged some people, such as Helen Rusk, Donna Hayes and Mary Dewan, to carry their light topcoats. Many other citizens felt like doing so. The weatherman promises very mild weather tomorrow followed by rain, a warning to break out umbrellas instead of straw hats.

Jewellery Display Attracts Many At St. Paul's Tea

A new feature for the afternoon tea was the modelling of fine jewelery and display of pieces for sale which attracted so much attention of tea guests of St. Paul's church Ladies' Aid on Wednesday afternoon.

This jewelery of outstanding workmanship and design was all made in Peterborough, except for a few metal necklets and bracelets and the manufacturer was present to take orders suiting individual taste.

Modelling the jewelery were Mrs. Noel Rishor, Mrs. Herbert Mason, Mrs. Roy Taylor, Mrs. Cameron Craig, Mrs. R. B. McWilliams and Mrs. H. K. Bletcher.

Guests were received on entering the church parlours by Mrs. C. G. Boyd, wife of the minister of St. Paul's, and Mrs. Fred Board.

Hostesses in the upstairs tea room were Mrs. W. J. Gordon, Mrs. Gordon Hill and Mrs. R. G. Huggins.

A border of tiny Christmas trees and evergreen boughs artistically placed over the alcoves and on walls combined with the effective candle lighting on tables to make the tea room a most delightful place for the occasion. Two tea tables were arranged identically with Christmas centrepieces highlighted with candles, and single candles pointed up each of the quartette tables set in the alcoves.

Pouring tea the first hour were Mrs. John Hornal, Mrs. K. Campbell, Mrs. L. Reid and Mrs. C. G. Law, and the second hour it was Mrs. J. H. Easwood, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. F. Rowan and Mrs. W. S. Hill.

Mrs. R. W. Buchanan was general convener of the tea arrangements and was assisted by members from all groups of the Ladies' Aid. In the decorating she was assisted by the Flower Guild members. The serving of refreshments was in charge of Mrs. Laura Howson.

A children's tea room downstairs was in charge of Mrs. W. G. Constable and each young guest was given a balloon as a gift. As well as having refreshments, they enjoyed carol singing led by Mrs. Laurie Mitchell and Mrs. Adam Sands.

In the Guild Room there were various bazaar tables, including a large assortment of home baking, and also Christmas cakes. All were well patronized and contributed handsomely to the success of this annual event.

USED TO THE WEATHER—Freezing weather in Chicago, Ill., is no problem for these two 4-H delegates from Alaska. Neola Sandvik, left, of Palmer, and Richard Buzby, of Fairbanks, arrive in the Windy City wearing their native wolf-skin jackets, which they say stop even Chicago's howling winds.

Sea Captain Makes Career Of Writing

VANCOUVER (CP)—A retired Vancouver sea captain with an agile mind and a gift for story-telling is making a new career writing about his adventures afloat.

Capt. Thomas Gilchrist has more than 30 years of salty experience to inspire the fiction stories and plays rolling from his typewriter.

A genial, soft-spoken man with a shock of wavy, grey hair, Capt. Gilchrist commanded a tug during the Nanking uprising which was the embattled white population's only link with British and American warships standing by to rescue them.

His back bears the scars of four stab wounds he received in the Chinese Communist rebellion in Nanking in 1925 and his right leg is still tender after being fractured by a bomb splinter when he commanded an armed merchant ship supporting a landing under Japanese fire in the Pacific islands during the Second World War.

CONCENTRATES ON WRITING

Capt. Gilchrist quit his command of a Saguenay Terminals Limited freighter last July to concentrate on writing about these feats.

Already this year he has written 18 radio plays, two novelettes and four short stories.

CBC audiences heard his series of plays "Fiddler's Green" this summer.

The doughty-Scots skipper thinks he's ashore to stay.

"I can make as much now writing as I can at sea, so I may as well live at home."

Attends 4-H Clubs' Chicago Convention

STIRLING (ENS) — Robert Burkett, of nearby Frankford, is representative from Hastings county at the national 4-H conference in Chicago.

Contestants are chosen for their all-round participation in 4-H and Junior Farmer activity.

Robert has been active in club work since 1947. During that time he has completed nine 4-H club projects, representing swine, calf, grain, grain corn and forestry. Two years ago he was a member of the Hastings 4-H grain club in inter-club competition at Guelph and this year placed second as member of a swine team in provincial competition.

He was also this year's winner in junior swine judging at the Canadian National Exhibition and is president of the county Junior Farmers' Association.

Government Vetoes Partners For Bachelors

MELBOURNE (Reuters)—A reported Australian government veto on partners for bachelor members of Parliament at the state ball and banquet in honor of the Queen Feb. 16 has roused ire in the ranks of the Labor opposition.

The Canberra correspondent of the Melbourne Herald today said the Labor members have decided to protest to Prime Minister R. G. Menzies.

Arthur Calwell, Opposition deputy leader, said members can take along only wives or married daughters. No provision is made for spinster members to nominate escorts.

Higher Pay To Boost Military Careers

WASHINGTON (AP)—A group of generals and admirals called today for a military pay boost and other actions to halt what they termed an alarming deterioration in the career military service of the United States.

"Military service has lost much of its attractiveness as a career," said a study committee named by Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson last spring at the direction of President Eisenhower.

Life Intolerable

BALTIMORE (AP)—A railroad official's wife was awarded a divorce Wednesday after testifying she refused to live with her husband in a West Virginia town "where little girls four or five years old chewed snuff and the boys had tobacco in their mouths all the time." Mrs. William J. Cook said she had tried but could not tolerate life in an unheated, rat-infested apartment in Shinston, W.Va.

Threat To Quit Because Of Expense Cuts

TORONTO (CP)—W. J. Grummett, CCF house leader, Wednesday threatened to quit the legislature's reforms committee when he learned the provincial secretary's office had turned thumbs down on an all-expense trip for committee members to the United States.

"They'll probably tell us next what hotels we are to stay at and what we can eat," Mr. Grummett said. "When civil servants become as sticky as that I don't fancy serving on the committee any longer."

The committee had planned to visit a penal reception centre at Elmira, N.Y., and a penal institution in California.

The provincial secretary's office said that under Ontario statutes committee members making such a trip would be entitled only to railway fares and berths. Hotel bills, meals and other expenses would have to be met out of the $20-a-day pay of the members.

Mr. Grummett's action left the U.S. trip in doubt.

Little Girl Interviews Cowboy Autry

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Nancy Thomas, who is blonde, independent and five years old, was supposed to write this story about Gene Autry.

But she is too busy working over her jumbo western coloring book, so her leg man will have to carry on.

Nancy, you see, just had her tonsils taken out, an awful experience for young or old. Since she came through so admirably—her only real indignation was over getting a shot where she sat down—she deserved a reward. That was tagging along on, or conducting, as it turned out, an interview with one of her TV heroes, Gene Autry.

Gene was absent when we arrived but we were ushered into the Autry den, where Nancy examined the cowboy relics. She asked about an object on the desk. I explained that it was a telegraph key to send messages and that Gene used to be a telegrapher before he became a movie cowboy.

"QUITE INTERESTING"

"Quite interesting," she allowed.

Gene arrived and came in with a big hello for Nancy. "He looks just the way he does on TV," she observed.

He showed her around the place and explained a glass-enclosed tableau of wood-carved cowboy figures: "Now that's the man riding the bucking bronco and that's the owner of the horse and—"

"Where's the villain?" TV-wise Nancy wanted to know. He had to explain that there wasn't any.

She admired his red-and-green cowboy boots and he offered to show her more. So we went upstairs and he displayed a closet full of boots, all kinds and colors. He also showed us enough shirts to clothe a rodeo.

"How old is Champion?" asked Nancy, moving on to other matters.

"Why, he's around 15, honey," Gene replied. "Gettin' pretty old for a horse."

CUT INTO TRADE

I wanted to know what was happening to the program western. That old movie fixture appears to be dying out; Rex Allen is the only cowpoke making a series for theatres now. Gene discontinued them recently, joining Roy Rogers, Johnny Mack Brown, Charles Starrett, Bill Elliott and other stalwarts of the Saturday matinee.

Gene explained: "The program western has been hard hit. You see, we used to have the week-end trade to ourselves. But then the big-name stars moved in. There was Jimmy Stewart with 'Bend of the River' and others, and Gary Cooper with 'High Noon,' and Gregory Peck. And John Wayne makes westerns every once in a while, and Randolph Scott makes two or three a year, and Joel McCrea.

"These pictures naturally cut into our trade. But I think the program western will come back. Westerns have taken a beating before—I remember it happened just after sound came in. The thing is that you'll have to keep your costs down, because the market is smaller."

Can't Sell Travel By Radio–Dolan

OTTAWA (CP)—D. Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian government travel bureau, said today he was not criticiing radio advertising in general when he told the federal-provincial tourist conference Monday that "you can't sell travel by radio."

Mr. Dolan was referring Monday to a 13-week program on the CBC last spring and winter urging Canadians to visit their national parks. He said the program, produced at a cost of $44,000, resulted in only 383 inquiries.

Mr. Dolan told the final session of the conference today that radio has done a "wonderful job" in Canada in the advertising field but "up to date has not been beneficial in promoting travel."

INTEREST OF VOTERS

"If attendance at the municipal nomination meeting and the hearing of candidates at Queen Mary School is an indication of electors' interest, there might be a record vote Monday," said a main streeter today.

SMALL TAX ARREARS

Tax arrears at this date, not including penalties and interest, in North Monaghan township are only $639 "That's very low," commented Township Clerk Bruce Johnston. "A mighty good showing for North Monaghan." The total tax roll for the township in 1953 is $44,165.

LEAKING AMMONIA

Firemen used two air packs today when amomnia fumes were reported at G. Walter Fitzgerald's home at 174 London St. At 10:10 p.m. Wednesday the firemen went to Mrs. A. McIntyre's home, 559 Aylmer St., when a boiler valve went defective and steam began to escape.

LONESOME PINES

Christmas tres stacked on the odd corner lot in the city had a lonesome look about them today as if they had been snatched untimely from their woodland setting. However, three inches of snow would restore something of their festive promise.

GREMLINS AGAIN

Gremlins went to work again on The Examiner's account of a speech by mayoralty candidate Norman Graham at Tuesday evening's meeting in the Queen Mary auditorium. Mr. Graham was reported to have said he thought a lot of interest was being taken in the working man. What Mr. Graham said was: "We are not taking enough interest in working men."

IN GOOD CONDITION

Joseph (Gus) Sheehan, 21-year-old Douro trucker, is reported in good condition in St. Joseph's Hospital today after receiving facial cuts and other head injuries in a car-truck accident early Wednesday morning. In the accident at the junction of the Douro and Warsaw roads, east of the city, his car was wrecked when it ran into the side of a seven-ton dump truck.

OUT OF HOSPITAL

Herb Payne, of 273 Romaine St., injured in a fall while repairing garage doors, has been released from Civic Hospital. Mr. Payne received a compound fracture of the right wrist and a gash in his head requiring 54 stitches to close. He will be confined to his home with his arm in a cast for a few days. Some of the stitches have been removed.

Trial Run

Some little boys will probably be sick in bed today as a result of a theft from the CPR freight sheds Wednesday afternoon. A case of 1,000 cigars was taken from there about noon and later in the day two boys, nine and 10 years old admitted the theft. They told police they had given some of the cigars to chums and showed officers where the rest were hidden. All but 60 were recovered and it is believed the remainder were smoked or partially smoked by the lads.

Women Senators Still Too Few -Sen. Iva Fallis

OTTAWA (CP)—A veteran woman senator Wednesday said in the upper chamber that the government's appointment of three more women senators isn't the last word on that subject.

Senator Iva Fallis (PC—Ontario) a member of the Senate since 1935, said during the throne speech debate that she will continue her campaign for more women senators.

The Peterborough senator noted that the government raised the number of women in the 102-seat chamber to five from two with the appointment this year of Senators Amarianna Beauchamp Jodoin, Muriel McQueen Fergusson and Nancy Hodges. The joined her and Senator Cairine Wilson (L—Ontario), a member of the Senate since 1930.

She said the appointments are a good beginning and a sign that there is an awakening to the value of women.

TWO DEFECTS

During recent years, she said, she called attention to two defects in the Senate. One was the small number of Opposition senators and the other the small number of women.

She said she regrets that circumstances had not permitted a remedy to the former. But a beginning had been made on the latter. The present Senate standing is 81 Liberals and eight Progressive Conservatives.

Senator Fallis urged that the government give some younger women, regardless of political affiliation, an opportunity to observe and train in international affairs.

She made the suggestion in referring to the activities of women in the United Nations. She said it seems only logical that women have equal representation at every international meeting.

Perhaps in the next few years, if her suggestion is followed, Canada will have her own Eleanor Roosevelt or Madame Pandit, she added.

550 CGE Workers To Lose Their Jobs

TORONTO (CP) — About 550 workers at a Canadian General Electric Company plant here will lose their jobs when the company moves its power division to a new plant at Guelph next year.

A. L. Graham, works manager, said the company's payroll at the plant in West Toronto will drop to 1,200 from 2,000. About 250 workers would be transferred to Guelph.

Officials said the new Guelph plant allows for expansion of the power transformer department.

Residents Ask To Be Zoned

Owners In Subdivision Seek To Block Apartment Buildings

New property owners in the Queen Elizabeth subdivision have petitioned the city planning committee for zoning regulations in their area. Their letter Wednesday night requested that zoning be made effective as soon as possible.

They particularly protested against the issuing of a permit to Samuel Moldaver for a multiple apartment building at the southwest corner of Dumble Ave. and Argyle St. To that objection it was said that this building was on the fringe of the subdivision, not within it, and besides construction was already advanced.

The committee decided to meet next Thursday night, Dec. 10, and to write the first signatory of the petition suggesting that a small deputation from their group present their case.

"We have found that a meeting of that kind is about the best way of hearing people and discussing with them the request they wish to make," said Mayor Waddell.

TELL OTHERS

It was suggested that several other applicants for apartment permits be informed of this meeting. A. L. Elliott presented an application from Louis and Harry Cherney for permission to build a six-unit apartment at the southeast corner of Argyle and Dumble. He is being asked to attend the meeting next week.

Board Approval Not Needed For Workbench

It would have been all right with the city planning committee Wednesday night if Stanley Hayman, an engraver in metals, had said nothing about his intention of fitting up a work bench in his basement.

He is planning to build a house in the Westbrook subdivision, north of Civic Hospital, and has made a payment to hold a lot until he felt certain there were no impediments to his plans. Mr. Hayman felt that the workshop in his cellar might be contrary to the building code in that area.

The Westbrook people made no objection; City Clerk Outram told him he couldn't do it. He ran into divided and contradictory opinion.

If Mr. Hayman had not pressed for definite direction, no one would ever have raised question about his home work. That was the expression of one of the members of the committee.

The implement Mr. Hayman uses most is a small drill, about the size of a dentist's, and doesn't make more noise than it. Residential zoning frowns on business operations, setting out advertising signs and so on. The regulation is not merely exclusive, its purpose as Hubert Sills said was to protect the property values of others and the right of enjoyment of their homes.

"What happens in the case of a music teacher?" A. L. Malby asked. No one came up with an answer.

"Or any artist, painter and so on?", City Engineer Chalmers suggested. "A man writing a book," said J. S. Craig.

"Don't you think this is a matter in which we should use some judgment?" Mr. Malby proposed.

"I don't think we have any jurisdiction over that area any way," was Mr. Chalmers' opinion.

North Monaghan couldn't deal with the land requirements of the subdivision and annexation is not yet ratified.

Mr. Hayman told the committee much of his work is delivered through the mails, some by express, but there is no evidence of business attached to it. A motion by Mr. Malby and Gordon Hancock cleared away any of his doubts about right to rig up his work bench in his cellar. It is understood that there will be no conflict with any regulation of the city.

FOR SERVICE STATION

M. K. Reid applied for permission to move his gasoline pumps across Park St. and set up a service station at the northwest corner of Chamberlain St. His pumps are at the Perry St. corner with scant room for customers. Mr. Reid proposes to continue using his garage for a repair shop, and enlarge his service station area at the other corner.

These enquiries receive careful and friendly attention of the committee, but it was not explained last night why Mr. Reid's letter had been on committee file since September. And it was mentioned that even with approval of his project here, the assent of the provincial Planning Department might not be received for months.

The C.P.R. is on one side of the Park-Chamberlain corner, two factories are within a stone's throw. But, it is zoned as residential area.

Mr. Malby moved that Mr. Reid endeavor to obtain the agreement of George Chalupka, around the corner of Chamberlain from Park St., consenting to the change of land use, that he prepare an outline sketch of the location of the service station on the site; and finally that re-zoning of the area be reconsidered. Mayor Waddell seconded that motion. It carried.

Ald. Harold Rehill expressed objection to any "pressure" being directed toward the committee; in this case it would probably be neighborhood approval of the Reid scheme. He said the committee should try to get all the facts, and on them base decisions.

DUPLEX DENIED

The application of Don W. Clarke for permission to build a duplex house in an area zoned for single family dwellings was not granted. It was a Malby-Waddell motion.

The lot is on Lansdowne St., east of Park St., four or five houses from the Royal Bank. Mr. Clarke's plan was for first and second storey apartments. He has a cellar excavation for a bungalow, it was reported to the committee. On one side there is eight feet to the next building, and on the other, 20 feet. Committee decided to adhere to the zoning restriction.

Hubert Sills presided, and the other members present were: E. C. Braund, Ald. H. S. Longhurst, Mayor Waddell, Ald. H. T. Rehill, Mrs. W. H. Morton, Mr. Malby, J. S. Craig and Mr. Hancock.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPING JAMBOREE'S first TV set give-away for a merchandise purchase coupon went to Miss Clara Seens of 268 Reid St., centre, who filled out the slip at the store of participating merchant Sam Chamberlain of 280 Park St., at King. Jamboree chairman Allan B. Collis, left, congratulates Miss Seens; the winning ticket was drawn by Mayor Waddell at the Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the program, Wednesday afternoon.

Buckhorn Road Cost $98 Less Than Estimated

Jack Kean, county engineer and road superintendent, estimated the total cost of paving the Buckhorn road almost exactly.

Before the paving was started he said it would cost $70,000. When all expenses are added up — including $400 for white-striping the centre of the road — the cost will be $69,902.

Construction costs are as follows: preparation of road (payrolls, materials and machinery) $4,039; mulch (payrolls, county trucks and machinery, and mixer) $7,647; gravel (8,690 cubic yards from county at 80 cents a yard, and 6,032 from R. A. Blyth at 65 cents a yard, plus trucking) $15,326; asphalt and primer (143,-545 gals. of asphalt at 19.3 cents, and 25,079 gals. of primer at 19.3 cents a gal.) $32,543; spraying and rolling $9,946.

12½ MILES LONG

The Buckhorn road is 12½ miles long. The suburban area roads commission had $15,000 in their budget to do their share of 3½ miles. Cost of the other nine miles was made up as follows. $14,000 from the county, $14,000 from the city, and a department of highways subsidy of $28,000 matching the combined expenditure of city and county.

However Mr. Kean did make a frank admission. He estimated repairs and road preparation would be $5,000 and actual construction $65,000; instead repairs were $10,000 and construction was just $60,000.

BUILDING PERMIT

John Pirie, 71 Crescent St., was granted permission to extend the building in which he turns out monuments. The enlargement will be 18 feet southward by the 22 feet width of the present building. The permit was recommended by the city planning committee Wednesday night.

City's Established Industries Expanded, Burnie Reports

The year 1953 has brought considerable industrial expansion in Peterborough, which will result in considerably increased production in manufactured products, Industrial Commissioner W. L. Burnie stated in his annual report to city council. This industrial expansion has already brought with it a considerable growth and expansion in commercial buildings. The result should be a very marked increase in the city's tax revenues, he predicted.

Several industries have made substantial additions to their existing plants.

OUTBOARD ADDITION

The Outboard, Marine and Manufacturing Co. has under construction a building with 38,500 square feet of floor space, which will cost approximately $450,000. Their overall expansion program will total about $1,000,000.

The Western Clock Co. and the Canadian General Electric Co. buildings, started last year and finished this year, are in production. Fisher Gauge Works added about 3,500 square feet to their building, at a total expenditure of about $35,000. Canada Dry Co. have erected a new building for a bottling plant.

Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Supplies Ltd. and Trent Metal Ltd. have purchased a block of city industrial land on Lansdowne St., on which they propose to erect a new plant. H. B. McGinness Ltd. have erected a new building of 35,000 square feet for a new plant on Lansdowne St.

There have been a large number of commercial buildings or expansions. Outstanding ones are the extension to Zeller's Ltd., the new building of F. W. Woolworth Co. and the development brought about by the establishment of Simpsons-Sears in the Lansdowne St. area.

NEARLY MOVED OUT

"Your committee and the Council as a whole have been an active factor in all these developments," Mr. Burnie reported. "The H. B. McGinness Co. had just about completed arrangements to move their industry out of the city entirely, while the developments in the Lansdowne St. area, east and west, are going to help build up available commercial areas in these districts, which will greatly improve conditions throughout the whole city.

"The location of H. B. McGinness required the extension of city water services, which will greatly add to the value and development of that section of the city.

"Since my appointment, I have been building up the Peterborough connection with various people, agencies and government departments connected with the establishment of new industry," Mr. Burnie reported. "I have also been establishing direct contact with manufacturing firms in the United States, Great Britain, Europe and Canada."

11 VISITED CITY

Mr. Burnie made direct approaches to 230 companies, corresponded individually with 798, conducted 102 personal interviews

Vehicles Collide On Dummer Rd.

A car and a half-ton pickup truck were in a sideswipe collision at 5 p.m. Wednesday on the 9th Line of Dummer township, six miles north of Norwood.

Neither driver was injured and damage totalled $450.

Claude McAdams, 20, of RR 2, Campbellford, was driving south on the township road and came into sideswipe collision with the northbound pickup truck, driven by Mrs. Kathleen Lee of RR 1, Norwood, on the crest of a hill. The road at that point was slippery and narrow, and the drivers didn't have time to avoid an accident when they first saw each other.

The car was jolted to the west side of the road by the impact and received $300 damage on its left side. Damage of $150 to the 1951-model truck was mostly on the left front fender and left headlight.

OP Constable Ken Barber investigated.

Accused To Get Examination

Gratton Harris, 50-year-old proprietor of Lakefield's Coronation Inn charged with arson in connection with a fire there Sunday night, has been committed for a mental examination in Kingston.

Appearing this morning in magistrate's court, he was charged with "being mentally ill within the meaning of the Mental Hospitals' Act."

He was remanded for observation there for a period not exceeding 60 days. The charge was laid by his son, John J. Harris.

The restaurant owner had been remanded Tuesday on $5,000 bail on the charge of arson.

Owners Appeal Against Charges For Improvements

Appeals against higher assessments, brought about by local improvements, were heard Wednesday afternoon in the court of revision. In all cases judgement was reserved. The CPR claiming exemption from paying extra for storm sewers that have been laid on both sides of Rogers St., from Maria to James St. Extra assessment on the CPR's right-of-way was 79 feet on the east side and 81 feet on the west side. Both these extra assessments should be cancelled, argued their legal counsel, John Duffy. He based his claim on law as it affects railroads:

1. Storm drains are of no benefit to the railroad, and even if they were the city would have to stand the cost. They have a statutory liability to maintain a railway, and the right-of-way is not suitable for building purposes and therefore does not come under the Local Improvement Act.

2. According to legal precedent, anytime pipes for sewers are laid under a railway, the cost must be borne by the municipality.

City Engineer A. E. Chalmers also produced a brief, setting forth the city's case. The city solicitor, Wilfrid F. Huycke, QC. will be asked to look into the CPR's argument before the court of revision gives a judgment.

Three Maria St. residents were heard:

A. E. Anstey of 156 Maria and Raymond Stewart of 160 Maria, both called the court's attention to the fact that the frontages on which they were assessed for local improvements were greater than the size of their lots. However, they were satisfied when Thomas C. Ephgrave of the revision court explained that they were assessed according to their frontage on the street, not according to the width of their lots. There was a difference because the lots are offset, fronting Rogers St. at an angle.

SHORT NOTICE

Both Mr. Anstey and Mr. Stewart were irked because the revision court heard them on Dec. 2; yet they were expected to pay the extra assessment by Dec. 4.

"It was very short notice," said Mr. Anstey who is assessed for $64.13 and will have to pay an extra $30 if he doesn't meet the deadline. "We surely could have been given some extra time. In ordinary business—say, when you purchase your sewer pipes—you get 30 days or more."

Clerk E. A. Outram apologized for the short notice—only two days. But he said he had been instructed by the city treasurer to have payment by the 4th. The difficulty is this, he said: If debentures are to be sold before the new year they must be in the hands of purchasers not later than Dec. 15.

During the holiday season people with money are "playing Santa Clause" not playing the money market, Mr. Outram explained. If debentures to pay for these improvements are to sold they must be sold right away.

Mabel Scott of 114 Maria also protested her assessment. She was being billed for her share of a storm sewer that didn't even come as far as her house, she said.

"There's just a ditch in front of my house. Water accumulates in it, runs under the sidewalk and into my cellar and garden. . . There's no sewer. . .Why should I pay?"

City Engineer Chalmers said that ultimately the water was drained away from Miss Scott's home through the storm sewer, and he thought the asessment was legitimate. He said he would go around to Miss Scott's place and fix things so the water from the ditch would not drain onto her property; however this had nothing to do with the court of revision.

Four residents of Braidwood St. also went to the court of revision because they had a flooding problem. They were told it was not the responsibility of the court, but as City Engineer Chalmers was there he gave them a hearing and promised to look into it.

Cheque Artist Despite Plea Jailed 5 Months

Arnold Hayes, 26, of RR 1, Bethany, was sentenced to five months definite and two months indefinite in the Ontario reformatory Wednesday on several charges of passing cheques amounting to over $200 during October and November.

Married with a family of five Hayes asked for leniency but Magistrate Philp told him "I doubt if any court in the country would even consider a suspended sentence."

He admitted previous theft convictions in New Brunswick, Toronto and Bowmanville in 1947, 1950 and 1952.

Although Major Harry Everitt of the Salvation Army appealed on the accused's behalf for a short term "on the hill," Crown Attorney Bradshaw urged the court "not to lose our sense of proportion."

"If the reformatory isn't the place for him, then I suggest Collin's Bay for two years."

Hayes received five months definite and two indefinite on each charge, to run concurrently.

$120 Stolen From Armouries

An estimated $120 in cash and $210 in cheques were stolen from the Peterborough armouries officers' mess Wednesday night. The theft was discovered about 9:20 at night by Harry Bassett, mess steward. It is believed the door leading into the bar was jimmied and the money taken from a drawer. Detectives of the city police department are investigating.

Grandmother Top Woman Wolf-Killer

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—Algoma's top woman wolf-killer is eagerly awaiting the day she can add another notch to her rifle butt.

Mrs. Roy Beharriel, trim blonde whose appearance belies her age (she's a grandmother) is looking for wolf No. 5.

"I'm just now beginning to get out and enjoy life," says the sharpshooting farmer's wife.

Known throughout this northern Ontario countryside for her prowess in killing wolves, she doesn't go hunting for them. They seem to come to her, with fatal results.

WOLF KILLER BADGE

The Canadian Tourist Association presented her with a wolf killer's badge following her third wolf kill Oct. 12. She is one of the few women so honored. Oct. 29 she got her fourth wolf in a nearby field as it attempted to prey on the Beharriel sheep flock.

"I never shot anything bigger than groundhogs and squirrels before these wolves," Mrs. Beharriel admits.

The former Agnes Draper, born at Iron Bridge, first learned to shoot as a girl of 10. At that time her father had a maple sugar bush where the children shot squirrels while he was making sugar.

Mrs. Beharriel shot her first wolf back in March of 1951. She spotted the sneaking predator through a dense fog behind the farmhouse and stopped him cold less than 100 yards from the barn.

HAD 'REAL SCARE'

Her second wolf, shot in March of 1953, gave her a "real scare." Her young adopted son Wayne called out that he could not shoo the big grey "dog" off the road. She ran out to find a wolf on the road with the child. Grabbing her 30-30 rifle she felled it with one shot, and dragged the supposed dead animal into the house. The wolf, revived by the warm kitchen, began growling and snapping. In sheer panic, Mrs. Beharriel grabbed a hockey stick which was handy and clubbed it until it stopped moving.

The Beharriels live on a 160-acre farm near Dean lake. They have about 70 sheep on their flock. With a thoroughbred ewe costing $75, three wolves must be shot at the present bounty of $25 in order to pay for the loss of one ewe.

Hungry wolves have played havoc with their flock.

DON'T COVER LOSSES

"The few I have killed still do not cover our losses to these hungry, preying beasts," Mrs. Beharriel said.

What does Mr. Beharriel think about his wife's hunting? "All this publicity is bunk," he exclaims. But his proud grin and a twinkle in his eye show he really thinks his wife is a remarkable person.

With housekeeping and farm chores, Mrs. Beharriel doesn't find much spare time. An enthusiastic equestrienne in her younger days, she more or less has let wolf-killing take its place.

The Beharriels have a 22-year-old married son beside Wayne. Mrs. Beharriel has also provided a home for two orphaned girls.

WOMAN WOLF-KILLER—Mrs. Roy Beharriel, a Blind River grandmother, is known throughout the Algoma district of northern Ontario for her prowess in killing wolves. She is after her fifth wolf but she doesn't have to go far to hun for them. They are all shot on the Beharriels' 160-acre farm. The Beharriels have a young adopted son and a 22-year-old married son.—(CP Photo).

Hydro Cliams Outside Rule Of Labor Act

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Lindsay Hydro Commission has invoked a section of the Labor Act in their discussion with the members of the national union of public service employees over certification of Local 31 as bargaining agents for the commission employees.

The employees organized under the union some weeks ago, but when they applied for certification, were informed by the labor board that the commission had invoked section 78 of the labor act.

This section, according to informed sources makes it possible for a municipal body such as the commission to declare itself a municipality under the conditions of the department of municipal affairs act, thus rendering it immune to the labor act statutes, and thus making it illegal for the employees to take any strike action in their requests for wages.

The commission took this action on hearing of the organization of the employees. A further letter from the employees, asking for another meeting with the commission to discuss the matter, has been acknowledged by the commission and will be answered at its next meeting.

Meanwhile, the union representatives, Frank Kitchen, states that the commission will probably find itself in an awkward position as a result of its action. "The employees are determined to get union recognition" he said "and therefore are continuing to ask for it."

East Simcoe MP Dies Of Heart Failure

ORILLIA (CP)—Dr. John D. McPhee of Port McNicoll, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for East Simcoe, died of a heart attack at his home Wednesday.

Dr. McPhee had attended a banquet in honor of J. A. Davis, retiring CPR agent, in the village earlier in the evening. On reaching home he complained of feeling tired and went immediately to bed. The attack occurred less than an hour later.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon of this week in Bonar Presbyterian church, Port McNicoll, where Dr. McPhee was organist for many years.

Iron Ore Shipping Over For 1953 Season

CLEVELAND (AP) — The 1953 iron ore shipping season is over, and the Great Lakes fleet has marked up its biggest movement ever in one of the shortest periods in modern marine history.

Ending their runs early by choice, rather than at the demand of the ice which later will clog upper lake ports, the shippers have hauled a total of 95,844,472 tons of ore, topping by nearly 4,000,000 tons the previous record set in 1942.

Last year's ore movement was 74,910,798 tons, but an eight-week steel strike during the summer of 1952 cut shipping operations considerably.

Abbott Reveals Success Secret

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott, who will be delivering his last budget next spring, says the secret of his success as a finance minister is his ability to relax.

"I've always been able to relax," he told a reporter, "and I don't take myself too seriously. I'm serious enough when seriousness is demanded. But when I can, I do my best to relax, to see the humorous side of life, and to come up smiling."

He's now in the midst of preparing his ninth budget.

"I think I've had it," he said. "Yes, this will be my last budget."

There is speculation that the 54-year-old Montreal lawyer may switch cabinet posts with Justice Minister Garson or be appointed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Abbott said he wouldn't mind the justice portfolio. But he declined to comment on the possibility of a Supreme Court appointment.

Accident Victim Said Progressing

PERTH, Ont. (CP) — A young French bride who was injured in a car accident Monday when her husband of only two days and his cousin were killed, today was reported "progressing favorably" by hospital officials here.

Mrs. Donald McNaughton, formerly Anne Weisig of St. Avold, France, suffered internal and head injuries when the car in which she and her 28-year-old husband were passengers skidded and hit a beer truck. George McNaughton of Coxvale, Ont., a cousin, was driving when the accident occurred at nearby Sharbot Lake, 50 miles north of Kingston.

The car was crushed by the truck which jacknifed and toppled beer kegs over the highway. A second truck piled into the wreckage.

The three were on their way to Sharbot Lake to visit George's wife, an expectant mother.

Mrs. McNaughton met her husband while he was with the RCAF in France last year. She has been told that he is dead. He was from Merritton, Ont.

BIG SQUEEZE—The biggest squeeze in Canada is being exerted at the site of the country's first steel-making plant near New Glasgow, N.S., where this monster press as high as a four-storey building is being tested on a 40-ton ingot of alloy steel in the Trenton Steel Works plant. The red-hot ingot, eight feet long and five feet in diameter, was shipped from Montreal and after being re-heated in a furnace was moved under the press and 7,000 tons of pressure applied. The press worked the ingot like a housewife kneading a loaf of bread, improving the physical quality of the steel and bringing it to specified shape.

Two Opposition Motions To Close Throne Debate

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons' throne speech debate today enters what is expected to be its final day after three weeks of speeches on the state of the nation.

Seven back-benchers took part in the debate Wednesday, carrying it toward votes expected late today on two opposition motions of non-confidence in the government. A CCF non-confidence motion was defeated last week 156 to 36.

The end of the debate will clear the way for consideration of government legislation. One proposed measure, dealing with housing, was referred to Wednesday by George Hees (PC—Toronto Broadview).

Mr. Hees said the main weakness in the proposed legislation is the requirement for a down payment of 10 per cent on the first $8,000 and 30 per cent on the remainder of the value of the house.

This would make the down payment at least $1,400 on the cheapest house available under the National Housing Act, "well beyond" families with moderate incomes.

He suggested the down payment should be 10 per cent on all houses up to $10,000.

LOWER INTEREST

Mr. Hees said low-rent housing could be provided by private industry if Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation loaned the necessary money at 3¾ per cent interest—the same rate given to subsidized housing projects.

One such plan proposed by private builders in Toronto could provide two-storey brick homes at a rent of $58 a month.

The government's planned amendments to the National Housing Act are expected to be introduced in a week or 10 days.

Another speaker in the debate, James A. Byrne (L — Kootenay East) said it was "regrettable" that Ontario's labor laws do not provide for the voluntary revocable checkoff of union dues.

The checkoff is a major issue in the present strike in northern Ontario gold mines.

Mr. Byrne said the government could not function if taxes were gathered through voluntary payments. Similarly, a union could not exist unless it gathered dues from members. He said he could not see the employers' argument against collecting these dues from union members who agreed to it.

Missing Man Sought

OSHAWA (CP) — Police across Ontario have been asked to look for William Germond, 36. Relatives said he left home last Thursday to attend a card party and did not return.

Seek Development Of Industrial Areas

FERGUS (CP) — Representatives of several neighboring communities, mostly from Wellington county, held discussions with provincial government officials Wednesday to explore avenues of further industrial development of the general area.

Industrial commissioners, councillors and interested parties exchanged opinions and listened to advice given by officials of the department of planning and development, trade and industry branch of the municipal division.

Discussion ranged around methods of industrial promotion, with particular emphasis on town planning and the attraction of industries.

Centres represented included Kitchener, Guelph, Elora, Fergus, Mount Forest, Arthur and Listowel.

Won't Recover Payments

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Martin said Wednesday the government does not intend to try to recover any over - payments made under the Old-Age Pensions Act.

Replying to Frank S. Follwell (L—Hastings South), he said the government has advised the provinces of this policy.

Hunt Pheasant Escapees

BRANTFORD (CP)—A big pheasant hunt is on in Norfolk county. Lands department officers are trying to round up 500 birds that escaped from the pheasant farm at Normandale when heavy snow smashed their pens last week. The birds are needed for restocking.

Supposed Disease May Be "Anxious Heart" Worries

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Worried about your heart?

There's a good chance you just have "anxious heart," with nothing actually wrong with the organ despite pains or other signs.

This anxiety heart disease was described today in a paper to the American Medical Association by Dr. Jackson A. Smith, department of psychiatry and neurology, Baylor University college of medicine, Houston, Tex.

Many soldiers of the First World War had this trouble. The emotional cause became clearer when the trouble cleared up within a week after the armistice.

Fear and anxiety cause it, in civilians as well as soldiers, and the person focuses attention on his heart, Dr. Smith said. Sometimes it's created or helped along when during a heart examination the doctor says or does something making the patient believe his heart is really physically in trouble.

AWARE OF HEART

In "anxious heart," a person becomes aware of his own heart beat or pulses in his head or throat, Dr. Smith said. His heart may seem to skip beats, and he fears his heart has stopped or will stop. Often he complains of being breathless and fatigued.

The personality type likely to have the complaint is one who is tense, easily embarrassed, sensitive to opinions, indecisive, overconscientious, and trying to live by standards which are realistically too high, the physician said.

It is true, he said, that one-third of Americans now succumb to diseases of the heart and blood vessels. But despite this, many people with "heart trouble" have no detectable physical disease. The anxiety heart disease does not significantly increase the incidence of real heart disease.

Man Who Helped Build CP Honored By Association

MONTREAL (CP)—Officers and members of The Canadian Press Wednesday thanked W. D. Neil, retired general manager of communications, Canadian Pacific Railway Company, for his co-operation in the establishment and development of Canada's national news service.

Frederick I. Ker of Hamilton, former president of The Canadian Press, on behalf of its member newspapers and executives, presented to Mr. Neil a silver tray inscribed with a message of appreciation.

Mr. Ker said Mr. Neil's association with CP dated back to 1907 when the present news services' predecessor—The Western Associated Press—was formed. At that time, Mr. Neil was chief clerk of Canadian Pacific Communications in Calgary.

He was eastern district superintendent in Montreal when The Canadian Press was formed in 1917. In 1930, he was named assistant general manager and was general manager of Canadian Pacific Communications from 1932 until his retirement last October.

AWARDED OBE

Mr. Neil was awarded the Order of the British Empire in 1946 for outstanding service in the field of communications in the Second World War.

Mr. Neil said his own career had run parallel with the expansion of special newspaper services in various parts of Canada into the present national news service network represented by CP. He expressed confidence past co-operation would be continued to the advantage of national development.

Messages from prominent newspaper men including CP pioneers were read at the reception for Mr. Neil.

Members and executives of The Canadian Press who came to Montreal and senior officers of the railway company were among those present.

Large Subsidies For Gas Supply

OTTAWA (CP) — Carl Nickle (PC—Calgary West) said Wednesday that the immediate delivery of Alberta natural gas to Ontario and Quebec can only be done through large-scale subsidies.

Speaking in Commons, Mr. Nicle urged that Alberta gas first be allowed to enter nearby markets in the United States.

The Calgary member, who has long been an opponent of the proposed all-Canadian pipeline from Alberta to Ontario and Quebec, said the pipeline would not be economic. The price of such a move would be "subsidies on a large scale."

Voters List Down

TORONTO (CP) — This year's civic voters' list shows 351,195 eligible to vote next Monday, 13,005 fewer than last year. Bulk of the drop was attributed to influx of immigrants, who are ineligible, moving into areas previously occupied by persons having a vote. A small drop in the city's population was believed to have had a minor effect.

Strapping May Stop Supplying Liquor To Minors

LINDSAY (ENS)—"I think a good strapping might stop this kind of thing," commented Magistrate E. A. Gee, in Lindsay police court Wednesday in sentencing Murray Walker, 20, of Janetville to a month in jail on a charge of supplying liquor to two other minors, Francis Teatro, 17, and Herbert Madderson, 18, both of Lindsay.

Walker pleaded guilty to the charge, which was laid after Constable Bill Mosley of the Lindsay police found the pair wandering on the town's main street last Saturday night, in an intoxicated condition. The boys were charged with obtaining liquor while minors, and fined $10 and $15.50 costs each or 15 days in jail.

According to police evidence, and that of Madderson, Walker had met the boys in a restaurant last Saturday afternoon. Madderson admitted asking Walker to buy a bottle of wine for him, and Teatro followed suit. Walker purchased the liquor, along with a bottle for himself, and the boys drank part of the bottles in Madderson's car on the highway north of Lindsay.

They returned to town, and parked where the boys consumed the rest of their bottles before going on to the main street where they were arrested. Madderson told the court it was the first time he had ever consumed wine. Both he and Teatro were sick when they entered the jail cells.

Investigation led to Walker who made a statement admitting the supplying of the wine to the boys. He pleaded guilty to a second charge of purchasing liquor while under 21, and was fined $10 and $2.50 costs or ten days extra on this count.

Madderson also pleaded guilty to a second charge of having liquor illegally. He was found in possession of a small bottle of rum on Sunday afternoon when police checked him again. He was fined $10 and $2.50 extra on this charge.

Walker is on suspended sentence for a forgery conviction registered a month ago in Lindsay, while Teatro is still on suspended sentence for theft from milk bottles earlier this year.

Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan recommended to the court that some adult counsel be found for Madderson, who is alone in the town, and who was appearing in court for the first time.

Clarence Copp CPR Agent Norwood Retires

NORWOOD (ENS) — Clarence Copp, 65, retired from active service as agent for the CPR in Norwood recently, after 48 years' service with the railway.

Born and educated in Havelock, he was trained as a telegrapher there by the CPR. He served as stations in Tweed, Peterborough, Kingston and various other places throughout his career. His lengthiest appointment was in Harrowsmith which lasted for 25 years. It was here that he met and married his wife, the former Irene Boyce.

While in Harrowsmith he was the vestry clerk at St. Peter's Anglican Church for many years.

NINE YEARS IN NORWOOD

His home has been Norwood for the past nine years and he plans to remain there now that he has retired; he and his wife will have plenty of times for the favorite hobby, growing flowers.

Mr. Copp is an ex-Legion zone commander and is the secretary of the Masonic Lodge in Norwood. He is also a member of the board of education for the Norwood and Norwood district high school.

During World War I he served with the 53rd Canadian Field Battalion and was overseas for three and a half years.

Last Thursday evening friends from Blairton, Havelock, Norwood, Indian River and Peterborough, gathered at the Norwood station to honor Mr. and Mrs. Copp on the occasion of his retirement. A. Aldred, master of ceremonies for the evening, led the group in community singing and square dancing. Mr. and Mrs. T. Bowles rendered some vocal selections and contests were won by Mrs. R. Cunningham and Mrs. G. Sproule.

Mr. H. W. Roche, a co-worker of Mr. Copp's, read an address in honor of the retiring man's service and Mrs. P. Greenly presented him with an electric clock and his wife with a bouquet of flowers.

Buffet lunch was then served by the ladies.

TLC Requests Voting Rights

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today asked the federal government to give voting rights to delegates of national conventions who are away from their home constituencies on election day.

The congress, whose annual convention in Ottawa this year fell on the Aug. 10 general election day, made the request in its yearly legislative submission to the cabinet. It said around 600 delegates were unable to exercise the franchise.

(Advance voting privileges now are extended only to a few groups such as commercial travellers' fishermen, the RCMP and transportation workers.)

The TLC also asked that:

1. Advance polling privileges for full-time representatives of unions who must do much travelling.
2. The voting age be reduced to 18.

Vegetable Growers Open Convention

HAMILTON (CP)—The Ontario Vegetable Growers Association opened a two-day convention Wednesday with committee discussions on marketing of various products.

At the annual dinner, J. M. Appleton, President of Greenmilk, Co., of Wallaceburg, said increasing efficiency in agricultural production offered more hope for the maintenance of a free and democratic society than any other phase of human activity.

He referred to expanded basic research in agricultural colleges and said that the improvement of the vegetable growing industry could best be carried out by co-operation of associated industries, canners etc.

A sound agriculture was the backbone of any permanent prosperity, he said. As Canada moved ahead industrially they should see to it that agriculture did not lag behind.

A MONTHLY SELECTION OF HELPFUL HINTS AND RECIPES

Bake a Merry Christmas Cake

Yield: Approx. 10 pounds

1 cup NEW QUICK-MIX JEWEL shortening
2 cups sugar
¼ cup molasses
5 eggs
3½ cups all purpose flour or 4 cups cake flour
1 teaspoon soda
½ tablespoon mace
1 tablespoon ground allspice
2 pounds seeded raisins
1 pound candied cherries
1 pound pitted dates
1 pound seedless raisins or currants
1 pound citron, lemon peel, orange peel, chopped
½ tablespoon cloves
½ tablespoon salt
1 pound blanched almonds
1 cup sour milk

Start baking now for the merriest Christmas ever! First cream together sugar and New Quick-Mix Jewel shortening—the shortening that gives you the finest results at the most economical price. Add eggs and molasses and beat well.

Sift the flour, soda and spices together and combine with fruit and nuts. Stir to coat each piece of fruit with flour. When you use all these delectable ingredients, you don't want to risk failure by using just any shortening. In all my tests I have never had a failure with New Quick-Mix Jewel.

Add the dry ingredients and milk alternately to the creamed mixture, beating well after each addition. Pour into fruit pans that have been lined with three layers of waxed paper rubbed with Jewel shortening. Place a dish of water in the oven to prevent cakes from drying during baking period. Place cakes in 250°F oven. Bake 3 to 5 hours, depending on the size of the cake pans. After the cakes have been in the oven for one hour, cover with wrapping paper to prevent excess browning. This makes one 8-inch and one 5-inch square cake, or one 10-inch round cake.

Cool. Remove from pans. Wrap with waxed paper or foil and store in a cool place. To serve, cover with your favourite Marzipan and decorate with icing sugar frosting.

Come-back-for-more Hot Mince Pies

JEWEL PASTRY MIX — Yield: about 8 or 9 cups

2 cups NEW QUICK-MIX JEWEL shortening
6 cups sifted flour
1 tablespoon salt

MINCEMEAT TARTS — Yield: 3 two-crust-3-inch pies

2 cups Jewel pastry mix
4 to 6 tablespoons water
1½ cups mincemeat

Christmas just wouldn't be Christmas without hot mince pies! So here's an extra special Jewel recipe for some extra special hot mince pies. This recipe was created just for the Jewel Pastry Mix, so I wouldn't recommend using any other shortening but New Quick-Mix Jewel.

JEWEL PASTRY MIX

Sift flour with salt. Cut in Jewel, using a pastry blender or two knives until the mixture is the consistency of cornmeal and small peas. Store in a covered container in a cool place. You can use this same Jewel Pastry Mix any time you want some extra special pastry. It's a wise homemaker who keeps a store of Jewel Pastry Mix on hand, especially at Christmastime!

MINCEMEAT TARTS

Put pastry mix in bowl. Sprinkle enough water gradually over mix, blending with fork until dry spots disappear. Shape into a ball. Let rest 15 minutes. Turn onto lightly floured board. Knead once or twice. Roll out lightly. Cut three circles to fit into large tart pans. Fill with your favourite mincemeat. Cut circles to fit top of individual pies. Cut in several places to let out steam in baking. Press edges together and shape.

If you follow these directions carefully, you can be sure of success, for Jewel always helps you turn out flakier, more tender pastry. Bake the tarts 20 minutes in hot oven (450°F).

Conservation Stressed To Ida Group

CAVAN—(ENS) — The fellowship Group of St. John's Anglican Church, Ida, had as their guest speaker Pete McGillen, outdoor editor of the Toronto Telegram.

Introduced by Mr. Clare Winslow, Mr. McGillen made a plea for conservation of woods and soil.

Southern Ontario, he said, is growing by leaps and bounds. Every highway and new housing subdivision is taking good agricultural land out of production. He warned that the top ten inches of the soil must be conserved and kept in a high state of fertility if we are to meet the food needs of our fast-growing population.

Few people, especially township councils, are trying to check erosion. Bald hilltops are far too common between Highway 28 and Port Perry.

WATER TABLE

He emphasized the need for retaining marshes, swamps and woodlots, not only as a habitat for wild life, but as a factor in keeping the water table at a high level.

Many swamps, cleared and drained, are of little value for agriculture; but their value as water reservoirs is gone forever. A number of year round streams of 50 years ago are now just dry creek beds.

People, he said, are becoming too dollar conscious in the country, as well as in the city, and need the counter-balance of fishing and hunting and escaping to the open spaces to guard against the enervating and unhealthy effects of our high-speed industrial economy.

He warned that it is every citizen's duty to see that the game laws of our province are rigidly enforced, if, in years to come, our waters are to abound with fish and forests to shelter our animals, which now make Ontario a sportsman's paradise.

Mr. L. McNeil thanked Mr. McGillen.

Canadians Help Modernize Ceylon's Fishing Industry

VANCOUVER (CP) — The fishing industry of Ceylon is rapidly being modernized with the aid of Canadian fishermen and fishing boats.

Don Hayward, British Columbia Packers Ltd. executive, loaned to the Colombo Plan to supervise the industry, said on his return here that two Vancouver - built boats sent to the island Dominion, the Canadian and the North Star, have already proved of great value in improving the potential fishing catch.

Each vessel, typical B. C. all-purpose fishing craft, has a crew of Ceylon fishermen who are being trained by fishermen from this coast.

SUPPLIED TRAWLER

Canada also supplied Ceylon with a British-built North sea trawler which is engaged in bottom fishing.

Mr. Hayward said there is now quite a colony of Canadians in Colombo. Besides fishermen and their families, there are also two fisheries research scientists from Canada, Dr. J. C. Metcalfe and Dr. A. W. Luntz, from the Pacific experimental station.

Canada has also agreed to finance construction of a cold storage plant in Ceylon. The fisheries plan in Ceylon is expected to cost about $2,000,000.

Shaw's Alphabet Bequest To Be Decided By Courts

By DEREK JAMESON

LONDON (Reuters)—The courts will decide early next year whether George Bernard Shaw's bequest for the study of a 40-symbol alphabet is a practical proposition or just the Irish dramatist's last fling against convention.

The government public trustee, who is administering the playwright's complicated will, has asked the court how he should spend the money.

Shaw died three years ago at the age of 94 and left £367,233 ($1,030,000). Death duties ate up about half the estate.

After bequests to servants and relatives, it is unlikely that more than $100,000 will be left for studying the possibility of introducing Shaw's lifelong ambition—an English phonetic alphabet.

ORDERS PLAY TRANSLATED

For propaganda purposes, Shaw also ordered that his play Androcles and the Lion should be translated into his alphabet by a phonetics expert and distributed to libraries. The money was to have come out of his estate.

Faced with the problems of executing Shaw's difficult—and expensive — plans, public trustee F. Wyndham Hirst will ask the high court to rule whether the beneficiaries next in line should get the money.

They are the British Museum, where Shaw studied at the start of his career, the National Gallery of Ireland and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

Few people have the remotest idea of what Shaw's alphabet looks like, though he claimed it would save a writer two months in every year.

ADDITIONAL SYMBOLS

Generally speaking, it is based on the existing 26 letters with additions of shorthand symbols to mark phonetic sounds which normally require a combination of letters.

Under his system all words would be spelled exactly as they sound.

Shaw's will has been severely criticized in Britain. Lady Astor, a lifelong friend of Shaw, called it ridiculous.

The playwright's will is not the first from the Shaw family to cause a headache. A British judge ruled in December, 1951, that a controversial bequest of $623,000 left by Shaw's wife on her death in 1943 was a true charity. The bequest was "to teach the Irish people self-control and the arts of social intercourse."

Petes Took 22 Of 24 Games In 1908 To Capture Midland League Title

BY HARRY THEOBALD

When the late Arthur T. Johnston, proprietor for years of the Windsor Hotel, Brock St., recruited for Peterborough in 1908 a baseball team from the Toronto Riverdale flats at the Don, he predicted: "We won't lose three games all season".

The "Petes" of that year ran up 22 wins in 24 engagements, topped the Midland League, and rated themselves champions of eastern Ontario, defeating a summer's succession of opposition from Picton to the senior amateur league in Toronto.

A recent photograph of Mr. Johnston and his 1907 team, which included five or six Peterborough youths was published in a special Saturday page of the Examiner. It reminded his son E. T. (Buster) Johnston, mascot of the Petes, then hardily big enough to hold the catcher's mit in one hand, his father's ardent interest in baseball, as a semi-professional before coming to Peterborough, and the group of players he took under his wing for three or four seasons.

"I think what happened here in 1908 was that some of the local players on the 1907 team thought the fellows from Toronto that year were getting a considerable preference several ways. So, the next spring they decided to organize the Athletics, and Dad brought almost a complete team from Riverdale. I imagine that likely happened, and those Athletics were a snappy lot. The Midland League Cup the Petes won in 1908 was given by my father as a trophy to the Central Ontario Baseball League when it was organized around the 1920's. I don't know where it is now. Anyway, it was his possession by that time."

TIGHT CITY LEAGUE

In contrast with this restless year, with its horizons far beyond the ball park, Peterborough had a tight city league. Dominated by the Athletics who took one of the two games the Johnston squad dropped that summer, there were the Park Streets, captained by Jack Pilling, and a group from the west end, whose diamond was on the big lot the city bought this year from Dominion Woollens and Worsteds, at Monaghan Road and McDonnel St.

Although he has only a small boy's dim memory of that summer, Mr. Johnston remarked: "The fans here must have seen a lot of good baseball, and also before and after that year, and just to think we couldn't raise a senior team this season."

"My father thought it would be good experience for the lads he brought from Riverdale," he related. "He was greatly interested in them because of the fact that he came from that section of Toronto, and had been a pretty good player himself. He loved baseball and Peterborough was a real ball town in those days. Mother and Dad looked after the team as if they were their own sons, everyone of them called her 'mother'. The place was like an athletic club, and you could always start a discussion or an argument by tossing in a baseball topic.

There were a few changes in the personnel of the team from 1907 to 1909 to '10. Three of those who were here the first year were: Harry Burridge, catcher; Red Chetham and Sid Haliburton. Burridge was a printer by trade, and later went into railroading. Gene Hurtbuise would remember him. They put on the odd wrestling bout."

The players of 1908 were: Cornie Burns, r.f., Con Murphy l.f., Fred Maddock s.s., Frizz O'Brien centre field; Mickey McDermott 2b, Cheltham 3b, Jerry Edmunds catcher, Dave Lawson 1st b., Fred Clements and Hawkins, pitchers."

The files of the Examiner provide the roster of the Athletics: Jack Conners c.f., Chris Graham 1b, Dubbie Shea shortstop, Rattray catcher, Mackrell 3b, Callaghan l.f., "Yeb" Flaherty 2b and p., Pilling r.f. and Ab Quinlan pitcher.

That was a smart team, with two clever pitchers in Quinlan and Flaherty, both of whom could take their turn at bat.

LOST ONE TO PORT HOPE

Art Johnston's team dropped a close game in Port Hope on Dominion Day by 9-8, and their only defeat by the Athletics was 7-1 on an August Saturday when they were outhit by 8-6. It was a win for Quinlan over Clements. Incidentally, the late Fred Craig played an outfield position for the Petes.

On Civic Holiday they took a double-header from St. Mary's, leaders of the Toronto senior amateur league, by 11-1 in the morning and 4-0 in the afternoon. In the Midland League series, the Petes trimmed Athletics three times, Port Hope twice, and Cobourg three. The lakeshore towns turned out big crowds in those days, and spent money to field strong teams. Some of the Johnston squad occasionally took off to Prince Edward county, also strengthening Bloomfield in a league around Belleville and Picton.

Other victims of the Petes that season were: Lindsay, Whitby, Belleville, Wellington, Bloomfield, two or three teams from the Toronto league, Peterborough Y.M.C.A., and T.A.S. and others.

Baseball was flourishing in those years, in contrast with its gradual decline probably as a result of the motor age.

"About 1910, Burridge, Edmunds, Murphy and some of the others went west and played on new "pro" teams that were forming out there," Mr. Johnston said. "I know that Jerry Edmunds also crossed the border, playing with Hibbing in a Wisconsin-Minnesota league. He owned a hardware store there for years, and then returned to Ontario. His home now is in Niagara Falls. Harry Burridge went with one of the railways and is retired. I think Dave Lawson is on the Orpen staff at Dufferin and Long Branch.

They were fine fellows, and certainly made themselves at home at our house. In fact, I have often wondered how my father was able to finance them. He could have told an interesting story about his years in Toronto ball. That was when the Toronto pros played their games at Sunlight Park, the site of the big plant of Lever Brothers, down near the Don.

My grandfather kept the Melbourne House at Queen St. and Carroll Ave., and most of the ball players used to stay there. Two of them he knew well were the great Bill Dineen, who was with Toronto around 1895-98. He went to the Boston Red Sox when the American League was organized. In 1903 he pitched three world series victories, two of them shutouts, a record that was beaten only by Christy Matthewson of the Giants. I met him at this year's World Series. In the first game the ball was thrown in by Cy Young, and the second by Bill Dineen. The other great player my Dad knew well was Bucky Freeman who had a batting record of 29 home runs until Babe Ruth came along.

GREAT BALL PERIOD

Later, when the Peterborough professional team was organized, my father was one of the shareholders, just to recall that he never lost interest in the game. That was a great ball period those years. Remember some of the men behind the team: Bill Denham of the Quaker Oats and I think George Edwards; E. G. Patterson and Bob Dobie of the CGE, and various others. Apparently men were more personally interested then in sports and public affairs than they are today.

"I salvaged the ball picture from the fire at the hotel, and I thought maybe the Examiner would use it as a reminder to the young generation today that we had some grand ball teams back before 1910. There were enough players around here to make three teams like we have these days in the COBL. Now you can't scrape up enough to play old cat."

Art Johnston had played semi-pro ball in Toronto about the time he graduated from the printing trade with a Typographical Union card. He kept up his dues for years, he and Sammy Jamieson, and used to stay the I.T.U. was the best of them all.

"My father took on a part time job at the Melbourne House with the proprietor, Robert Melbourne, and it was there that he met and married the daughter of the family. My mother was Sarah Melbourne. Later he bought the Windsor in Peterborough. His brother Percy (Shiner) came here to play on the ball team in 1907, when he was 17.

Just a final recollection. After the First World War, Jack Solomon was running a bowling alley here, and was another ball fan. About 1920 or '21 a group of fellows organized a ball team with Ward Patterson as president. Jake was manager. In 1922, my Dad suggested that we needed a good pitcher; so they brought in Al Heckman. Shiner had gone back to Toronto, finished his trade as a plumber and was working there. He came down [illegible] second base, and Hap Harrison came in as relief pitcher. He also played first. Max Swanston was catcher.

Dad had a Willys-Knight touring car, and could pack nearly the whole team into it. They used it for transportation to Lindsay, Cobourg, Oshawa, Belleville. That was when the Central Ontario League had its best years. My father put up the Johnston Cup as the trophy, and it is still somewhere in the district. Our house was practically a club headquarters, and if I do say so, practically all the fellows of the several teams my father had a hand in did well.

That was the heyday of baseball in Peterborough."

LONDON (Reuters) — A young British lieutenant, killed while leading a platoon of the "Glorious Glosters" in the regiment's famed stand at the Imjin river, has been awarded the Victoria Cross, it was announced today.

The VC has been given posthumously to Lieut. Philip Kenneth Edward Curtis.

Lt.-Col. James Carne of the Gloucestershire Regiment previously was awarded the VC for bravery during the Korean campaign.

The citation said Curtis was ordered to lead his platoon in a counter-attack in the first phase of the battle of the Imjin river in April, 1951.

The platoon finally was pinned down, but Curtis ordered his men to cover him and charged the enemy strongpoint alone with grenades. He was wounded and dragged back under cover, but broke free from the men wanting to restrain him and again charged the enemy. He was killed within a few yards of his objective.

Apple Group Affected By Lack Of Markets

LONDON (CP)—Canadian apple growers are having more trouble selling their crops than any other farm group in the country, Agriculture Minister James G. Gardiner said Wednesday.

The federal minister, who arrived Friday en route to the Food and Agriculture Organization meeting at Rome, said Canada's other main surpluses—wheat and cattle—can be sold in world markets.

Gardiner left today for Rome after being confined to bed with a slight attack of gastric influenza. He did not confer with British government officials, about Canadian food surpluses.

"Canada has the food to sell if the United Kingdom can buy," he said.

The minister said he isn't worried about Canada's wheat surplus.

Old Antagonisms Described By Butler Verse

LONDON (CP)—Old antagonisms between Canada and Britain have been summed up in verse by R. A. Butler, chancellor of the exchequer. He quoted these lines at a recent Canadian gathering:

"There were two moles of equal worth,
"But not it seems of equal birth.
"The one who said his blood was blue,
"Was much the bloodier of the two."

Butler said this typified old difficulties between the young Canada and the old Britain, which occasionally had had "snobbish" differences about which was the better country. Now, he said, people were beginning to realize things were pretty much equal.

Who wrote the lines? Butler later told a reporter he couldn't remember, and a search by the treasury failed to uncover the author.

Many Foreign Pilots Serve Dutch Airline

AMSTERDAM (Reuters) — One pilot in every three employed by the "Flying Dutchman", the world's fourth largest airline, isn't a Dutchman at all.

Of the 581 pilots who fly KLM Royal Dutch planes, 205 were hired from abroad to help the company's expansion since the Second World War.

Britain leads with 77 KLM pilots, followed by Australia with 41, South Africa 23, Canada 20, Sweden 15, United States nine, Ireland seven, Greece four, New Zealand and Iceland three each, Norway, Denmark and France one each.

Now, the intake from abroad has eased. The airline's rate of growth, like that of other air carriers, is levelling out, and more Dutch pilots are graduating from the government - aided national aviation school.

$25,000,000 Town Planned For Ontario

HAMILTON (CP)—An insurance agency has annuonced plans to build a new town between here and Toronto at a cost of about $25,000,000.

R. H. Gale, manager of H. W. Ford Insurance Agency, said work will start next February on 700 homes. Some 2,000 more will follow.

The Ford Motor Company has asked the government-owned Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to approve 350 of the homes as defence housing, he said.

The project will cover some 850 acres of farm land.

Tecolote Tunnel Tough On Men

GOLETA, Calif. (AP) — When Tecolote tunnel is completed it should be a cinch for the title: "Toughest tunnel anywhere."

Tecolote tunnel will cut 6.4 miles through the Santa Inez mountains, carrying water from Cachuma dam to Santa Barbara. The area is about 80 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

About 4,500,000 gallons of scalding water flows from the tunnel daily, seeping or spurting from porous rock walls. Paradoxically, steaming workers in the giant hot springs occasionally walk into jets of ice cold water which create thick clouds of sulphurous smog.

The air reeks of hydrogen sulphide. Heated droplets from overhead sting the eyes like an acid rain. The average air temperature is 107 degrees.

Gulf Islands Suffering From Slump

VICTORIA (CP)—The gulf islands off the British Columbia coast, one of Canada's most beautiful areas, are in a slump.

New farms and small industries now operate, due, residents say, to high cost of shipping products to Vancouver and Victoria markets and an infrequent boat service.

Lumbering, previously profitable has largely ceased, with timbermen cutting only enough for current requirements.

Log booms are anchored among the islands awaiting buyers. A year ago $12 or more for 1,000 board feet was paid. Now only $5 is offered to persons with timber on their land.

Population remains static at about 5,000 and residents believe tremendous increase in the tourist trade is the only hope.

Wealthy Americans, impressed by the area's beauty, have purchased several of the smaller islands, but to most Canadians the islands are unknown.

However, there is one busy island in the group—James island—where the explosives plant of Canadian Industries Limited makes dynamite.

Main Canal Finished In Dam Project

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Six years ago sod was broken for the big St. Mary river dam, key structure of the St. Mary-Milk rivers irrigation development. Today one main canal has been finished to a point east of Medicine Hat, five storage reservoirs are in service and four will be ready next year.

The project gave water for 107,000 acres this fall and will be boosted to 227,000 acres next spring.

The ultimate goal is 510,000 acres but it will be another eight years before it is reached. Then will come the land development.

Winnipeg Man Serves 2 Years In Foreign Legion

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two years ago Hugh Cawker found himself in Paris with nothing to do. He joined the French Foreign Legion.

Now he's back home, ribbons decorating his lapel, and his right arm gone after service in Indo-China.

The RCAF veteran won the Medaille Militaire and the Croix de Guerre with palm in an engagement around Thai Binh, southeast of Hanoi, last January. His right arm was amputated above the elbow by a burst of machine-gun fire from a Communist Vietminh guerrilla.

What prompted a young man to leave civilian life for a hazardous, $50-a-month stint with the Foreign Legion?

He says: "It must have been the war."

Cawker, born and educated in Winnipeg, worked for the Canadian National Railways before joining the air force in 1941.

Commissioned in 1942, he served with an air-sea rescue group and as an observer with a photo-reconnaissance unit. He finished the war on a British aircraft carrier in the Pacific.

Men's Wear Brighter

NEW YORK (AP)— Men's-wear retail sales should set a record in 1954 "because the American male is out of the rut, buying vests of satin and ties that shine in the dark," the annual convention of the National Association of Manufacturers was told today. Senate Committee Reviewed 18 Divorces

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate heard a hint Wednesday from the new chairman of its divorce committee that the annual grind of hearing divorce petitions from Newfoundland and Quebec may be finished early this session.

Senator A. W. Roebuck (L—Ontario) reported that the 17-member divorce committee, by splitting into sub-committees, has heard and recommended that Parliament approved 81 divorces.

He said a total of 300—perhaps 350—petitions are expected before the Dec. 23 deadline.

Senator Roebuck said he plans to divide the committee into as many sub-committees as possible to hear evidence.

"If my ambition is realized, we will clear up what would otherwise be a bugbear at a relatively early date," he added.

Millionairess — Dempsey Centre Of Marriage Rumor

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Daily News in a copyrighted story Monday said wealthy Mrs. Harmon Spencer Auguste was in New York for the announced purpose of marrying Jack Dempsey.

The former world heavyweight boxing champion was preparing to go to New York from Chicago, said the newspaper.

Mrs. Auguste, said to have inherited $35,000,000 from her late banker husband, left Palm Beach for New York Sunday said The News.

Earl Wilson, Broadway columnist, was asked by the newspaper to reach Dempsey and ask him if he planned to marry Mrs. Auguste.

"'Me?'" Dempsey was quoted as replying to Wilson. "'No, not as far as I know.'"

Wilson, who reached Dempsey in Chicago, told The Daily News "I don't know about that 'as far as I know' routine."

Mrs. Auguste once made front pages here by threatening to throw tomatoes at Jose Iturbi because of a supposed social slight.

Senator Begins Hearing Red Atrocities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Charles Potter (Rep. Mich.) began a hearing on Communist atrocities in Korea today with a statement that a Red Chinese nurse "cut off the toes of an American soldier with a pair of garden shears, without benefit of anaesthesia" and wrapped the wounds in newspapers.

Potter said this was a sample of the beast-like acts which U. S. soldiers, who were victims of eye-witnesses of Korean atrocities, would tell about at three days of Senate sub-committee hearings.

WILL ANSWER VISHINSKY

He said the testimony would make "a liar" out of Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Russia's spokesman, who told the United Nations General Assembly Tuesday that the atrocities charges were lies and propaganda.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, former commander in Korea and now army chief of staff, was called as first witness, and former prisoners of war were on hand to be heard later.

Potter challenged Tass, official Soviet news agency, to attend and cover the inquiry. Tass holds two cards admitting reporters to congressional activities.

Potter also asked that all U. S. information media cover the testimony of five U. S. soldiers he described as victims or eyewitnesses.

TALE NOT PLEASANT

The Michigan senator, a legless veteran of the Second World War, is in charge representing the Senate investigations subcommittee.

"It will not be a pleasant story," he said. He has heard testimony by the witnesses at closed sessions.

"This will show the true character of our Communist enemies," Potter said. "It is one of the most ruthless and bloody chapters in the history of civilization."

Potter acknowledged that the public hearings were timed to aid a resolution offered the General Assembly by U. S. ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Lodge on Monday asked the assembly to condemn such atrocities as death marches, mass tortures and beatings of U. S. and UN prisoners and Korean civilians by the Communists.

Provincial Debts Rise By $279,622,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Total debt of Canada's 10 provincial governments rose by $279,622,000 to $3,145,044,000 last year, the bureau of statistics reported today.

On a population basis, this worked out to $218.33 for each person in Canada, an increase of $13.37 for the year.

Ontario had the largest debt of $1,376,611,000—more than one-third of the total—while Prince Edward Island had the smallest—$17,859,000.

Canada Scientist Awarded Kelvin Medal

OTTAWA (CP)—Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, 65, prominent Canadian scientist, has been awarded the Kelvin Medal, the most coveted prize in the world of science-engineering.

Dr. Mackenzie, chairman of the atomic energy control board, said Wednesday he had been informed of the award in a letter from the secretary of the Institution of Civil Engineers in London.

The retired president of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and former president of the National Research Council, is the ninth scientist to receive the medal. The decoration is awarded every three years in recognition of achievement in the field of science engineering and commemorates the life-work of Lord Kelvin, distinguished British physicist.

Dr. Mackenzie said the award should be regarded as recognition of Canadian achievements in scientific engineering. He will receive the medal at a meeting of world engineering institutions in England early next year.

Now this grand new Instant Chase & Sanborn pleases everybody with "custom-made" coffee —gives mother priceless relief from morning coffee-making chores—cuts down dishwashing—eliminates coffee grounds.

Dozens of Uses

Housewives are finding that they can serve Instant Chase & Sanborn for many occasions—and they do! Nothing is more refreshing after a busy morning in the laundry or a tiresome afternoon shopping. It's so simple to pour yourself a cup, when you wouldn't think of putting on the coffee pot for one.

She stressed that members join as individual citizens and not as representatives of any group. Mrs. Fanning remarked on the increased interest and success of the group's annual candidate's meetings. Ukrainian Tells Of Christmas In Her Country

Dr. E. Dutkevich told an interesting story of Christmas celebrations in a Ukrainian city prior to being shut off by the Iron Curtain to the members of the Mary Nicholls Mission Circle at Murray St. Church Tuesday evening.

Dr. Dutkevich, who has found a home and work as a pathologist in this city, described the fasting and feasting during the Christmas celebrations and served to her listeners Ukrainian food used for these special occasions. Christmas Day is commenced by the children and youth parading from house to house singing carols, and carrying huge decorated stars, the centre of which depicts the Christmas manger scene. These Christmas celebrations continue until January 6th with parades in costume. All this, of course, was forbidden during the revolution.

Mrs. S. Malsch presided for the meeting, with Miss Myrtle Knapp taking the chair for the devotional which took the form to be used at the Women's World Day of Prayer service. The Christmas message was read by Mrs. Earl McNabb and prayers were offered for people in various parts of the world by Mrs. P. Johnson, Mrs. N. Barrie, Miss I. Scott, Mrs. H. H. Graham, Mrs. A. Haddow and Mrs. H. Sellon.

Reports were read by Mrs H Frise, Mrs. H. Welsh, Miss S. Eastwood, Mrs. N. Barrie and Mrs. S. Gillespie. A social half-hour was enjoyed at the close of the meeting.

The opening, with a short religious service, was conducted by the district secretary, Mrs. Col. Effer, from Belleville, who was introduced by the local secretary of the league, Mrs. M. Shadgett.

Alcoves of the Sunday school hall made excellent booths for the display of articles for sale, and each was gay with Christmas decorations. In the adjoining hall was the "Snowflake Tea Room," where the scene was changed to a blue and silver setting with attractive tea table and quartette centrepieces featuring the blue and silver balls with white figures. A handsome piece with reindeer, simulating a woodland scene, was also among these decorations provided by Miss Phyllis Braund, and set up by tea room convener Mrs. Ralph Braund and assistants Mrs. Ron Routly and Mrs. Murray Thomas.

Visits To Santa By Small Fry Highlights Tea

Santa Claus was the most visited person at the Christmas tea of the Evening Guild of St. George's Anglican Church Wednesday afternoon. Nearly all the little boys and girls of the south end managed to get into the church basement to have counsel with him about their Christmas expectations, and some aranged to come in several times.

There was a nursery for the small fry who accompanied tea guests and assistants, but quite frequently it became vacant when the charges ran out to see Santa again. Santa held court in the bazaar room right next door to the North Pole which was packed with small gifts for the kiddies.

President Mrs. Walter Bannon and Mrs. H. J. Scuse, the rector's wife, received guests at the door.

First they were heard to admire the decorations in red and white with evergreens on the fancywork tables, in charge of Mrs. H. Siddall and Mrs. T. W. Quinn, the "touch and take" and toy table attended by Mrs. R. Pearson, and the home baking table where Mrs. C. Crouter and Mrs. W. Wright were in charge. Mrs. M. Warner was at the "north pole" of tall glistening white, and the nursery was in charge of Mrs. W. Green, Mrs. A. Lissamon, Mrs. K. Roberts and Miss Beverley Hall.

Mrs. L. McLean took tea tickets as guests passed into a room where a lighted Christmas tree dominated the scene. The tea table was centred with a red and tinsel candle set in a bed of evergreens and colored balls. Pouring tea were Mrs. S. Parkes, Mrs. F. Farthing, Mrs. G. Harloff and Mrs. N. Thomas.

Mrs. W. Hall was in charge of the tea room and her assistants were Mrs. S. Hope, Mrs. E. Atkinson, Mrs. A. Siddall, Mrs. A Caccavella, Mrs E Hope, Mrs. G. Perks, Mrs. E. Fitten, Mrs. W. Parkes, Mrs. R. Ross, Mrs. A. Fowler, Mrs. D. Dawes, Mrs. J. Bright and Mrs. W. Reynolds.

Decorating for this event was done by Mrs. R. Pearson and Mrs. R. Nixon.

Sorority Pledge Banquet

Sorority Sisters in Beta Sigma Phi, an international cultural organization, from charter members to 1953 pledges enjoyed the Pledge Banquet held on Wednesday evening at Kawartha Golf and Country Club.

The banquet is an annual event on the Sorority program which precedes the secret cermony of the pledge ritual bringing new members into the sisterhood.

Seven new pledges were initiated, this being a larger number than for several years past. They were Mrs. Jack Belleghem, Miss Muriel Dickson, Miss Mary Dorset, Miss Grace Ingram, Miss Barbara Lawrie, Mrs. Garth Parnell and Miss Flinda Simmons.

The ritual of the pledge was conducted by Mrs. Iris Sorensen, Mrs. A. A. Mutton, Miss Rosemary Parker, Miss Marilyn Hollingsworth and Miss Barbara Nelson.

Mrs. Wm. Gray was chairman at dinner which began with repeating the Beta Sigma Phi Grace.

The pleasing dinner arrangements were made by Miss Moira Whalon, carrying out the table decorations and place favors in the gold and black colors of the Sorority. The emblem flower, a yellow rose, was featured and each new pledge received a flower in the ceremony, carried out in the light of yellow candles.

A welcome to the Alpha Theta Chapter was given the pledges by past president Mrs. Ernie McWilliam and she proposed a toast to the seven new girls. Miss Barbara Lawrie replied, thanking the sponsors for the opportunity to join in the program planned for advancement of culture and improvement of character.

The toast to the Queen was proposed by Mrs. Wm. Taylor.

Presentations of past president's pins were made to Mrs. Doug. Anderson and Mrs. Grant Clark who have been officers of the Xi Iota Chapter.

Last minute arrangements for the Bib 'N' Tucker Ball which the Sorority girls are holding this Friday evening, December 4th, at the Empress Hotel were discussed by conveners Mrs. J. Hiland and Mrs. Taylor.

It was announced that the members' Christmas party will be at Miss Mary Bolton's home on Walton street on Monday evening, December 14th. "Secret pals" for the year were chosen and Christmas gifts will be for the new name received.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Christmas Cookies Line Method

You amaze me. I've told you before that I have yet to ask for an elusive recipe without getting a response. For the Queen Elizabeth Cake recipe I have received dozens. All pretty much the same cake too. Some of the more venturesome and knowing cooks have changed it a little to suit their individual tastes. Thanks all of you.

Some of you are such experienced cooks I wonder if you shouldn't be writing this column, then I could write you letters. Would I ever ask you some puzzlers!

But we must get down to serious cookie making this week because we're in December and they could be made and put away for the Christmas rush.

THREE-WAY REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

Refrigerator cookie dough keeps well. The unbaked, unsliced dough should be chilled, wrapped, overnight, and will keep several weeks. This virtue of it induced me to try a big batch with three variations: Walnut Roll cookies, Pinwheels, and Chocolate Almond Slices.

If you like to do your work production-line style to save time and conserve fuel, this will appeal to you. One of our readers is making refrigerator dough with fancy variations and giving it as Christmas gifts with instructions to leave wrapped and keep cold until sliced and baked. You could use this recipe for that idea, wrapping rolls in wax paper, then in different shades of cellophane, attaching storing and baking instructions.

TRIPLE-RULE REFRIGERATOR COOKIE DOUGH

Four and one-half cups sifted all-purpose flour, 1½ teaspoons baking soda, 2¼ teaspoons salt (or 1½ cups each granulated sugar and packed brown sugar), 3 eggs, 3 teaspoons vanilla (or 1½ teaspoons vanilla and 1 teaspoon almond extract). Sift together the flour, soda and salt. Mix together until creamy and smooth the shortening, sugar, eggs and extracts. Gradually add the flour mixture and mix well.

For variations divide dough into 3 equal parts.

Variation 1—Shape one-third of this dough into 2-inch rolls and roll them in 1 cup finely chopped walnuts. Wrap tightly in double thickness of wax paper, twist ends

DOROTHY DIX

Wife And Mother Has Habit Of Making Acid Remarks

DEAR MISS DIX: I seem to be one of those people who enjoy saying something mean or sarcastic. No matter how much I resolve to change my ways, I invariably pick on a person's faults rather than his good points to discuss. Even when my husband makes a pleasant remark to me, my response is disagreeable. I'm not much of a "mixer," so I don't belong to any clubs or societies. I have two children.—P. L.

✧ ✧ ✧

SARCASM IS RESENTED

ANSWER: It's just as well you haven't attempeted to join up with a group; you wouldn't last long with it. Strangers wouldn't have to put up with your sarcasm; your family has little choice.

In spite of your protests that you know you are mean and want to change, I doubt if you do. You belong to the misguided individuals who think sarcasm is snonymous with cleverness, that sneeringly putting someone "in his place" automatically lifts you to a spot of superiority. Well, it just isn't so. Sarcasm, or the ability to make a quick and nasty "comeback," does involve a certain amount of fast thinking, but not the kind of which one should be proud. If one has a good mind and a responsive tongue, they can be put to much better use than hurting other people's feelings. The best treatment for people like you is precisely what you give others. If your family and friends would be as quick to hurt you as you are to hurt them, you'd soon realize the need for a change of disposition.

There's no reason, except for your own feeling of superiority, why you can't change. Just try biting your tongue occasionally when one of your brilliant remarks is ready to pop out. You'll soon overcome the fault—that is, if you really want to. Try to realize that wisecracks really aren't very wise!

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I was married at 17 and lived hapily with my husband and two children for over 20 years. Then my husband began going out with another woman. I accused him of it at the time, but he denied it. Now, several years later, he has told me of the affair, even the girl's name. I know he's been faithful since, but brooding is making me ill. My heart is crushed, and I can't eat or sleep. —Mrs. Y. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You are being a very foolish woman to make yourself unhappy over something that happened so long ago. If you keep it up, your man will get so fed up with you that he'll begin looking for cheerful company outside. Have faith in God and be thankful for your many blessings. Look toward the future, and not back into the past.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm just out of the army. Three weeks ago I met a girl and tried to tell her how much I care for her, but she doesn't believe me.—V. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Wise girl! Love at first sight is a romantic idyl. You're an impetuous young man, but mere impulse isn't enough to win a girl. Give the lady time.

and store in refrigerator to chill.

Variation 2—Add ½ or 1 cup chopped blanched almonds to another one-third of the dough, work them in well, then shape into 2-inch rolls, wrap tightly in double thickness of wax paper, twist ends and store in refrigerator to chill.

Variation 3—Add 3 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted, to another one-third of the dough, work it in carefully until dough is smooth. Turn out on sheet of wax paper, and chill dough to make it hard enough to roll. (The addition of the chocolate makes this dough soft.) Then when it is cold roll it in finely chopped almonds when 2-inch rolls are made, and wrap them in double wax paper and chill.

PINWHEELS

This is still another variation and requires plain white dough and plain chocolate dough, so you could leave some of your dough untreated with nuts. Between sheets of wax paper roll a piece each of light and dark dough ¼ inch thick. Peel off the top sheet of wax paper from each and turn chocolate circles of dough over white circle of dough, and peel off the wax paper, which was on the bottom and which is now on the top. Roll up like a jelly roll, with the help of the one remaining sheet of wax paper. Roll tightly. Wrap. Chill.

TO BAKE: Heat oven to 375 deg. Fahr. Slice chilled dough with very sharp knife to ⅛ or ¼ inch thickness, slicing off only what you need. Place on ungreased cookie sheet, and bake about 10 minutes.

If you make this triple batch you will have about 15 dozen 2-inch cookies in all.

If you plan to mail these cookies as gifts, wrap each one in a separate square of wax paper before packing them, and further cushion them in the box, with crushed wax paper.

I will give you more Christmas cookies next week.

McCarthy Lauds Eisenhower Not Challenging President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) stuck to his guns today in his disagreement with the administration on foreign policy, but said any contention that he is challenging President Eisenhower's leadership of the Republican party is "both ridiculous and untrue."

In a prepared statement, McCarthy said: "I will continue to give my utmost support to the Republican party now and in the future." But he emphasized:

"This does not mean that I will refrain from criticizing my party when I think it is making mistakes."

PRAISE IKE, DULLES

He praised both Eisenhower and State Secretary Dulles in the statement, but said he still thinks the U.S. should refuse dollar aid to any Allied nation "shipping any goods to Communist China so long as a single American remains in a Communist bloodstained dungeon."

"On this matter Secretary Dulles and I are in complete disagreement," McCarthy said.

"In a republic such as ours there must be room for honest difference of opinion. I respect the honesty and sincerity of purpose of Secretary Dulles."

WANTS NEW APPRAISAL

"However, I have such deep convictions on this subject that I shall continue to discuss the matter at every opportunity and I urge Secretary Dulles to reappraise our whole policy in this regard.

"It is my hope that such a reappraisal may result in a change of policy in this respect."

McCarthy's statement was a reply to the criticism from Eisenhower and Dulles as a result of McCarthy's radio-TV speech last week criticizing administration foreign policy.

Dulles said Tuesday McCarthy's views strike at the very heart of U.S. foreign policy. President Eisenhower said Wednesday he was in full accord with Dulles' statements.

City's Established

and long distance telephone calls. Of these, 96 firms were interested in Canada and 11 visited Peterborough. The list included 136 companies in 20 states of the United States, 18 in Europe, 38 in Great Britain, 13 in Ontario, 10 in Montreal and four in other parts of Canada.

Of these interested firms, 18 have located in various parts of Ontario "because any advantages offered in Peterborough did not compensate for cost of transportation on raw materials and products to markets." Eleven purchased going concerns or located in available factory space. Many of the others have expansion in mind for some unspecified time in the future, depending on general conditions.

Mr. Burnie pointed out that the list of his activities did not include considerable correspondence or personal interviews with many people or groups engaged in industrial work, through whom it was hoped to secure leads. Nor did it include visits of such people to Peterborough

"A few of our manufacturers and business people have given your committee real co-operation and suggestions as to prospective industries," Mr. Burnie said.

He distributed more than 800 copies of the city's "Industrial Review" to executive heads of manufacturing companies. Others have been distributed through government, bank and railway connections and offices in Canada, Great Britain and the United States. He attended the Canadian International Trade Fair, exhibitions and other gatherings where manufacturers exhibits their products.

"I constantly make contact with new firms who are showing an interest in Canada," Mr. Burnie said.

TESTED LAND

During the year, an engineering company took tests as to the load-bearing quality of the city's industrial site. They reported to the effect that this land is not suitable for any industry or factory building requiring a load of more than 2,000 pounds to the foot.

"This limits the use to which this land can be put," Mr. Burnie admitted. But it is useful for a large proportion of the industries constructing one-storey factory buildings for a widely-diversified line of industry."

Arrangemetns were made to survey and subdivide this industrial area. The low-lying corner was sold to Arnold Steele, contractor, Kawartha Plumbing and Trent Metals have purchased a block on Lansdowne St. A third site has been sold to Lemery Distributors Ltd.

Arrangements are being made to grade and drain the Erskine Ave. area and to have contractors fill the low-lying areas with heavy material.

"Your committee has avoided any heavy capital expenditures and has kept operating expenses down to a very low figure," Mr. Burnie said. "Promotion work of this type requires constant and sustained activity on the part of some experienced person who can devote his time to these matters.

"Peterborough has been getting advertising and publicity among manufacturers of the world and other people engaged in industrial development, for approximately one cent out of every $5.00 received in taxes, and I believe that, in time, this will show results in the development of new industry in this community."

Slight Error

BURNABY, B.C. (CP)—A 22-foot monument bought by children's pennies was placed on the international border at Point Roberts in 1861. It has been found to be three feet inside the Canadian side of the exact line and a committee has been set up to rectify matters and establish a border "peace park."

Return Of Competition To Business In States

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The return of rough and tumble competition to the American business scene is causing many people to "run to storm cellars" of production control, Ernest R. Breech, executive vice-president of the Ford Motor Co. said today.

In an address prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America, Breech said Ford had been urged by both unions and some dealers organizations to curtail production to spread out employment and sales.

"We didn't do it," he said, "and in the first nine months of this year, our dealers netted almost 18 per cent more in profits than in the first nine months of 1952.

"We believe there is no such thing as overproduction when people want newer and improved products and have the money with which to buy them."

mas for their special program, the ladies then sang a Christmas carol with Mrs. G. Munro at the piano.

Billie Edmondson was the first entertainer and sang three songs, The Friendly Beast, Old Santa and Mistress Boyd with accompaniment by his mother, Mrs. Eric Edmondson.

Mrs. W. G. McLaren told the story of "Christ's bread on Christmas Eve" and a poem, "Christmas Is Coming" by Reginald Hardie. Mrs. R. Y. Kenny played several piano selections beautifully, concluding with a medley of Scotch and Irish dances.

Miss Alexandria Howson then brought to fellow members some of the highlights from her trip abroad which commenced a year ago this month and took her to the Mediterranean zone for the Christmas season. She went to the Isle of Capri for Christmas day and enjoyed a boat trip to the Blue Grotto. Miss Howson displayed a most beautifully worked blouse she brought from Florence, to show members the fine work done by Italian people, and also their enamel work and hand-tooled leather.

Decorations for this occasion done by Mrs. Wm. Jeffries were very lovely. She centred her tea table with a very pretty square candle and Austrian pine boughs with glittering balls. She also had a decorated Christmas tree to receive the gifts brought for the Christmas basket by each member. Miss Doris Burgess is in charge of distributing these.

Stuck To Post For Week After U.S. Army Forgot Him

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—United States Army authorities have recommended a commendation for a private who stuck to his post for a week after the army forgot him.

Pte. Raymond L. Cote, of Saco, Me., was assigned to guard pontoons near the small Hessian village of Ginsheim during manoeuvres last October.

"Somebody slipped up and he was not relieved," an army official here said today.

For a week Cote stayed on guard. At night he bedded down in the open in a sleeping bag. Worried Germans living nearby fed him sandwiches.

Members of his unit suddenly remembered and returned seven days after they left him.

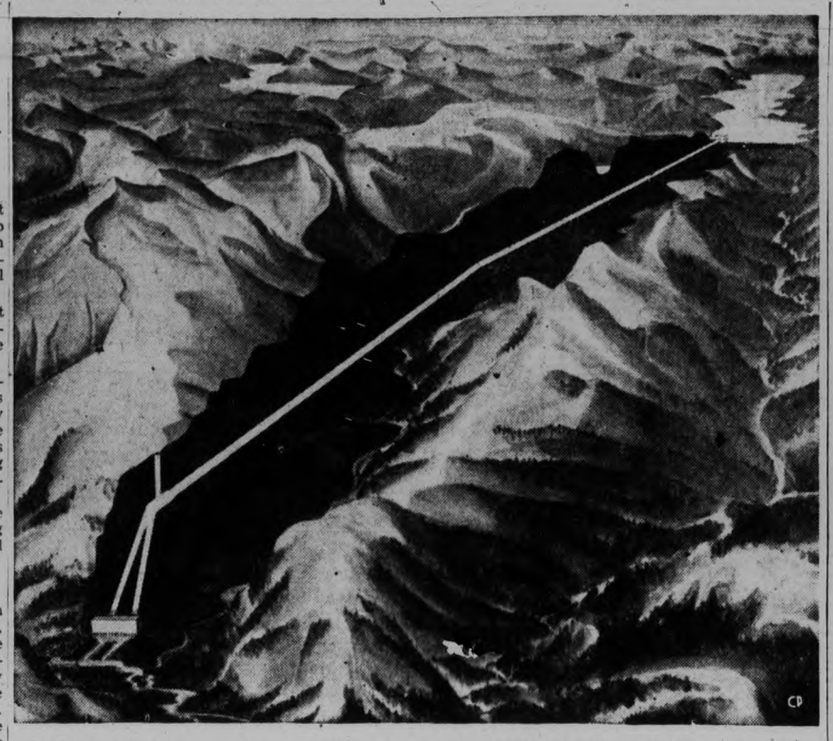
U.K. First Step To Combat Killer Smog

LONDON (CP)—The government Wednesday took its first step to beat London's killer smogs with the publication of a series of recommendations made in an official report.

But the report warned that it may take years to control the menace completely, if it can be done at all.

Housing Minister Harold MacMillan told the House of Commons that London's disastrous five-day fog last December killed off some 4,000 persons. Government experts earlier blamed a series of choking fogs last winter for deaths of 12,000 Britons.



MacMillan was presenting the long-awaited report of anti-smog measures drawn up by a special government committee.

RADIO WARNINGS

Radio warnings would be given in advance of expected major fogs, he said, and old and sick people should not venture out of doors unless it is necessary. Then they should wear a smog mask or tie a scarf across the nose and mouth.

MacMillan said the committee blamed the domestic consumer for most of Britain's smog hazards. "Householders in large towns . . . should burn only coke or other smokeless fuels during consistent fogs," it said.

The committee also recommended that cars should not be driven into fogged-up areas; that fires should be allowed to die out at night; that no incinerators or bonfires be lit during fog danger times.

LONG TUNNEL — Crews working in opposite directions have labored for 21 months to hew a 10-mile underground tunnel through Mount DuBose in British Columbia's Coast Range. The tunnel, shown in this artist's conception of the project, forms part of the $500,000,000 establishment of the Aluminum Company of Canada at Kitimat, B.C. The tunnel will carry water from the lake at upper right to an underground powerhouse shown near bottom of picture, supplying electricity to an aluminum smelter.

Sees No Reason To Prevent Use Of Frank

OTTAWA (CP)—John Blackmore (SC—Lethbridge) Wednesday night said he sees no reason to take any action concerning use by his secretary of his free mailing privileges to mail anti-Communist literature.

Mr. Blackmore was commenting on a request in the House earlier by State Secretary Pickersgill that Mr. Blackmore take "any action necessary" concerning improper use of his frank.

Mr. Blackmore said his secretary was given permission to use his frank and the permission was never withdrawn. His only action would be to encourage his secretary to work as faithfully in the future as she had in the past.

The Lethbridge member made his comment in an interview after the Commons rose.

Mr. Pickersgill said in the Commons improper use of the frank in this case involved only whether Mr. Blackmore knew certain literature had been posted under his frank.

There was no doubt, Mr. Pickersgill said, that the literature in question could be sent through the mails and at the time it was sent. Among the literature sent to the Calgary Herald was a copy of the American Mercury containing an article entitled "The Truth About Joe McCarthy."

Mr. Blackmore previously told reporters that the literature was posted, with his knowledge, by his secretary, Miss Doris Moore.

Trade Experts Want Government Spend More Attracting Tourists

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's tourist trade experts want the federal government to spend more money attracting foreign tourists.

The experts made the recommendation in a resolution passed Wednesday at the final session of a three-day federal-provincial tourist conference.

However, there appears to be little hope of any substantial increase next year in federal expenditures on the promotion of Canada's tourist industry.

Resources Minister Lesage said Monday that heavy defence expenditures will prevent any major increase at present. His deputy, R. Gordon Robertson, said prospects for more money are not good.

The resolution said the government travel bureau's efforts to attract tourists are "excellent," especially in the United States. But it said cost of advertising and other promotional media has risen sharply and competition for the American travel dollar is on the increase.

The government was urged to consider factors in the preparation of the travel bureau's estimates for the 1954-55 fiscal year.

The bureau's appropriation for the 1953-54 fiscal year amounted to $1,528,450, two-thirds of which was earmarked for advertising and publicity, mostly in the U.S.

U.S. Accepts Terms For Gouzenko

To Abide By Ruling For Interview Set By Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government today received a note from the United States accepting Canadian terms for an interview with Igor Gouzenko.

The note was delivered to the external affairs department in midmorning, and officials said it will receive immediate study.

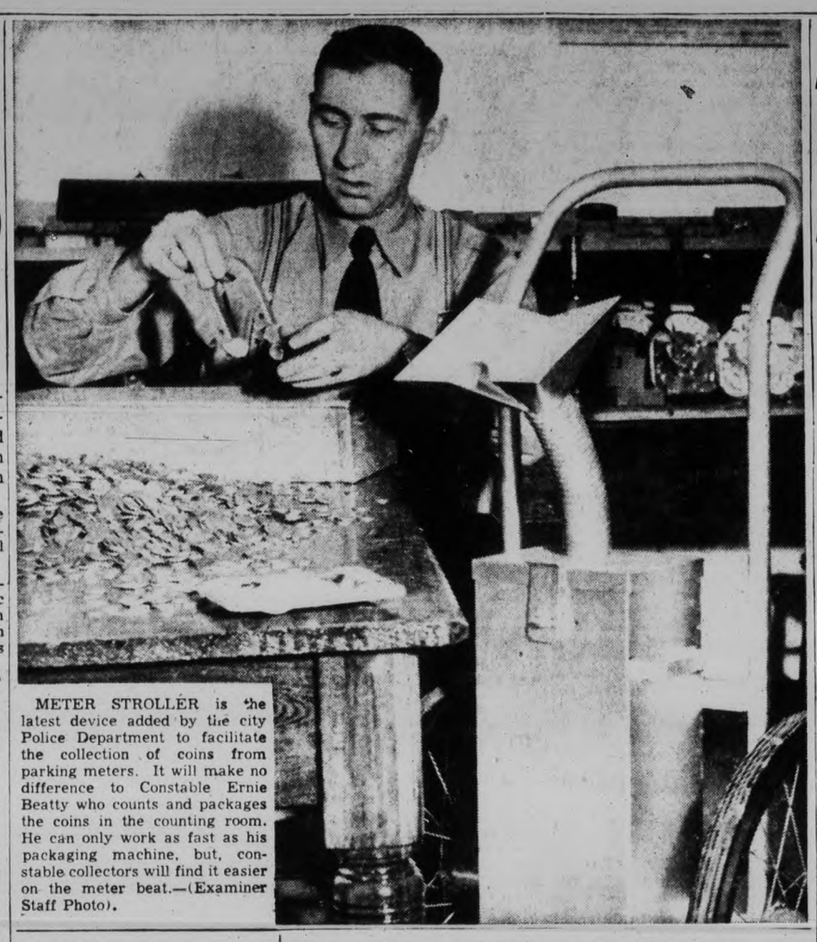
While the contents of the communication were not made public here, officials said they conform generally with earlier information from Washington that officials

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States, in a move to insure strict secrecy, has asked Canada to inform it "by word of mouth" when and where a Senate sub-committee can question Igor Gouzenko, former Russian embassy code clerk. An official note to the Canadian government, made public by the state department, said this unusual notification was suggested by Senator William Jenner (Rep. —Ind.). "In order to protect Mr. Gouzenko's security." Jenner heads the sub-committee. State Secretary Dulles in the formal message also told Canada he wants Douglas Stuart, American ambassador to Canada, "or his designated representative," to be present at the committee quiz.

seeking the interview with the former Russian embassy cipher clerk will abide by Canada's decision as to what material may be made public after the secret meeting.

IN LINE WITH RULING

It was learned also that—though the note asks permission for officers of a senate sub-committee to talk to Gouzenko—they would do so on the nomination of the U. S. administration.



This is in line with a provision laid down by the Canadian government, which deals with the administration rather than with Congress.

The note, according to Washington dispatches, asks that the interview be conducted in Canada by chairman William Jenner and counsel Robert Morris of the Senate internal security sub-committee.

It will make no difference to Constable Ernie Beatty who counts and packages the coins in the counting room. French Ultimatum Expected To Pose Big Problem

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (AP)— President Eisenhower arrived in Bermuda today for the start of a Big Three conference with Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Laniel.

The presidential plane Columbine landed at Kindley Field at 11:12 a. m. EST.

Waiting to greet Eisenhower were Churchill and Laniel, together with Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault.

A crowd of about 2,000 was at the field. Also present was a colorful honor guard made up of Royal Welch Fusiliers, Bermuda militia and U. S. airmen. British warships off Hamilton boomed a salute.

Churchill and Laniel, already in Bermuda, reached the airport about five minutes before the Columbine landed.

GREETED BY GOVERNOR

Eisenhower stepped off the plane promptly at 11:15 a. m. and was greeted by Governor Sir Alexander Hood and Mrs. Hood, followed by the commanders of the military units drawn up to receive him.

The president then walked a few steps and was met by Churchill, who gave him a hearty handshake. The crowd of Bermudians and Big Three conference officials cheered.

In the presidential party were State Secretary Dulles and Lewis Strauss, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission. Strauss was added to the party at the last minute this morning.

Britain's top nuclear expert, Lord Cherwell, arrived Wednesday with Churchill and the supposition is that the question of exchanging atomic information has been added to the agenda.

The flight from Washington took three hours and 10 minutes.

Dulles, Foreign Secretary Eden and Foreign Minister Bidault were scheduled to meet at 3 p. m. to get the formal talks under way, with their chiefs gathering around the table immediately afterward.

The group was to dine tonight with governor Sir Alexander Hood at government house.

CHURCHILL ACCEDES

Churchill earlier had been believed eager to press his pet scheme for a quick meeting with Russian premier Georgi Malenkov. By today, however, it seemed obvious that the U. S. desire to give priority to putting pressure on the French for ratification of the European army treaty now dominates.

Laniel, who arrived Thursday, let it be known through aides that he is just as eager as Eisenhower to tackle this problem in the hopes of gaining from Britain and the United States assurances of protection from the rearmed German

4 Feet Of Water In Streets As Water Main Bursts, Blast Leaves 60-Ft. Crater

TORONTO (CP)—A water main burst under a downtown Toronto street today, blasting a crater 60 feet across through asphalt and sending a river of water four feet deep into a railway parking lot containing 100 trucks. Unofficial damage estimates ranged from thousands of dollars to $1,000,000 after the blast at 5 a.m. Fire department officials, still cleaning up debris seven hours later, said it was too early to make an official estimate.

Mayor Allan Lamport asked for a complete investigation and full report from the city water commission. The 24-inch main blew asphalt and water 20 feet into the air, gouging a crater 20 feet deep in Front St. between Simcoe and John Sts., just a short distance from Toronto's huge Royal York Hotel. A muddy torrent of bricks and cinders ran into Canadian National Express sheds and an adjacent truck lot.

WATER 7 FEET DEEP

The express sheds were flooded seven feet deep.

Al Nicholas, a baggageman, fell into six feet of water off a loading platform. Fellow workers pulled him out.

Fire platoon chief Norman Ashley said damage would be principally to sheds and equipment, merchandise and trucks.

CNR officials said costly machinery in the sheds was put out of commission. An electrician said it may take days to dry out expensive motors.

Waterworks officials said damage to the main itself could not be estimated until crews have dug through the debris around it.

"We can't repair a main that size in an hour or two," one official said. "But the job should be finished sometime today."

A heating tunnel in the Royal York Hotel was flooded five feet deep. Firemen worked five hours to pump it out.

FRONT STREET CLOSED

Front street between Simcoe and John streets was blocked off by police as water gushed over it down to the railway yard.

Water flowing into the main was turned off soon after it broke, but mopping-up was still going on many hours later. Water was being pumped from the parking lot but dozens of trucks were stalled by water in their engines.

Rowboats toured the lot at the height of the flood, taking drivers to the trucks.

Canada Keeps NATO Plans Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada won't make any change in NATO commitments next year, it is understood here. Defence problems of the North Atlantic alliance will be threshed out at Paris in mid-December.

Defence Minister Claxton leaves today by air for Europe. He is expected back Dec. 19. Before the Paris meeting he and Lt.-Gen Charles Foulkes, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, will visit units of Canada's RCAF division and the new German home of the 1st Canadian infantry brigade.

Canada has fulfilled her NATO army and air force commitments on or before target dates and the government feels the country is carrying its full share of Western defence.

Increased commitments also would be highly unlikely in view of the fact other NATO partners, notably the United States, are thinking of reducing their defence forces in western Europe.

However, there is no thought here that Canada might cut her commitments.

NO SLACKENING

The throne speech said the government considers "it would be unwise to slacken our efforts to build up and maintain the necessary strength to deter aggression."

With Canadian forces already trained and in the field, Canada now can afford to pay more attention to home defence. This involves increased production of aircraft, radar and communications equipment and construction of new airfields.

The defence budget next year is expected to be around $2,000,000,000, the same as this year's, the air force again getting the largest slice of it.

Howe Promises Quick Action On Gas Project

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe said today the federal government will move quickly in an attempt to work out a joint project between two companies for a natural gas pipeline from Alberta to eastern Canada.

Expressing approval of Alberta's decision to call on the major competitors to join forces, Mr. Howe told a press conference he will call meetings with them for about Jan. 1.

Mr. Howe, discussing various proposals to export Alberta gas to Minnesota on the way east and to import United States gas into the Toronto area, said the all-Canada line as far east as Montreal will have to take precedence over them.

He expressed approval of the Minnesota-export proposal endorsed by the Alberta government in its decision Thursday to release gas, but he said the trans-Canada line will have to be assured before that project can go ahead.

He said Consumers Gas Company of Toronto, which wants to bring in U. S. gas before the construction of the big line, is not being frozen out of the picture but would have to fit its plans into those for the larger project.

NO SUBSIDY, HOWE HOPES

The minister said he hopes a government subsidy will not be needed for the construction of the east-west line at a cost of roughly $300,000,000.

He was non-committal on the question of whether tax concessions might be extended the operation in its early stages, saying that would depend on how the company was set financially.

The two major firms competing for the right to take the long-withheld gas out of Alberta are Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., which planned an all-Canadian line to the east, and Western Pipe Lines, Ltd., planning to bring gas as far east as Winnipeg and then send it into the Minneapolis area.
